

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
LOS ANGELES

SCHOOL OF LAW LIBRARY

JUDICIAL DECISIONS

OF THE

STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF COMMON SCHOOLS

STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

STATE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

FROM

1822 TO 1913

BY

THOMAS E. FINEGAN M.A. Pd.D. LL.D.

Of the Albany County Bar

Assistant Commissioner for Elementary Education of the State of New York

ALBANY, N. Y.

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

1914

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

Regents of the University

With years when terms expire

1917	ST CLAIR MCKELWAY	M.A. LL.D. D.C.L. L.H.D.
			Chancellor Brooklyn
1926	PLINY T. SEXTON	LL.B. LL.D.	Vice Chancellor Palmyra
1915	ALBERT VANDER VEER	M.D. M.A. Ph.D. LL.D.	Albany
1922	CHESTER S. LORD	M.A. LL.D.	- - - - - New York
1918	WILLIAM NOTTINGHAM	M.A. Ph.D. LL.D.	- - Syracuse
1921	FRANCIS M. CARPENTER	- - - - -	- Mount Kisco
1923	ABRAM I. ELKUS	LL.B. D.C.L.	- - - - - New York
1916	LUCIUS N. LITTAUER	B.A.	- - - - - Gloversville
1924	ADELBERT MOOT	- - - - -	- Buffalo
1925	CHARLES B. ALEXANDER	M.A. LL.B. LL.D. Lit.D.	Tuxedo
1919	JOHN MOORE	- - - - -	- Elmira
1920	ANDREW J. SHIPMAN	M.A. LL.B. LL.D.	- - New York

President of the University and Commissioner of Education

JOHN H. FINLEY M.A. LL.D.

Assistant Commissioners

AUGUSTUS S. DOWNING M.A. L.H.D. LL.D. For Higher Education
CHARLES F. WHEELOCK B.S. LL.D. For Secondary Education
THOMAS E. FINEGAN M.A. Pd.D. LL.D. For Elementary Education

Director of State Library

JAMES I. WYER, JR, M.L.S.

Director of Science and State Museum

JOHN M. CLARKE Ph.D. D.Sc. LL.D.

Chiefs of Divisions

Administration, GEORGE M. WILEY M.A.
Attendance, JAMES D. SULLIVAN
Educational Extension, WILLIAM R. WATSON B.S.
Examinations, HARLAN H. HORNER B.A.
History, JAMES A. HOLDEN B.A.
Inspections, FRANK H. WOOD M.A.
Law, FRANK B. GILBERT B.A.
Library School, FRANK K. WALTER M.A. M.L.S.
Public Records, THOMAS C. QUINN
School Libraries, SHERMAN WILLIAMS Pd.D.
Statistics, HIRAM C. CASE
Visual Instruction, ALFRED W. ABRAMS Ph.B.
Vocational Schools, ARTHUR D. DEAN D.Sc.

RSF 25 Oct 66

To

The Late Andrew S. Draper LLB. LLD.

In

Recognition of his services to public education as a teacher, a member of a city board of education, a trustee of a State Normal College, a State Superintendent of Public Instruction, a superintendent of schools in a leading American city, a president of a great university, and Commissioner of Education of the State of New York from April 1, 1904, to March 29, 1913.

INTRODUCTION

In 1822, the Legislature conferred upon the State Superintendent of Common Schools the authority to hear and determine all questions in controversy which might arise in the administration of the common school system. The decision of the State Superintendent upon such questions was made final. As the public school system has developed, the authority of the chief school officer of the State has been extended in such matters until the Commissioner of Education is not only authorized but is required to hear and determine such cases as are properly brought before him. These cases are called appeals and include all disputed points which may arise at school district meetings or school board meetings or that may grow out of the official action or decision of any school officer. The language of the law is broad and includes the official act or decision of any officer, school authorities or meetings under the general Education Law or any other law pertaining to the common school system. The Commissioner of Education is given great power in this respect, as the law distinctly provides that his decision in all such cases shall be "final and conclusive and not subject to question or review in any place or court whatever."

It will be observed that the chief educational officer of the State has exercised this judicial function for ninety years. The exercise of this authority for such a long period has resulted in the establishment of rules of practice so that a proceeding before the Commissioner of Education must be instituted as an appeal or petition and with the formality of a court proceeding. The law gives the Commissioner of Education the authority to make such necessary orders in a proceeding as will make effectual his decision therein.

More than twelve thousand formal opinions have been rendered by the chief officer of the State education system during the ninety years that this practice has been in operation. For many years these decisions were not numbered but over six thousand of such decisions have been rendered since the plan of numbering them was commenced.

The decisions in these cases have been regarded as binding in the interpretation of the laws relating to the schools, as the decisions of the courts have generally been upon the interpretation of all laws.

This method of disposing of contested cases involving the administration of the schools has been of vital service to the interests of public education. It has provided an inexpensive, expeditious means for the settlement of the numerous questions which are bound to rise in the administration of a work involving so much detail and such important interests as a great system of education which is designed to meet the necessities of ten million people. This plan also placed the interpretation of these questions with the officer charged with the general supervision and direction of the State's educational policies so that such questions should be determined upon sound educational principles.

The preparation of this volume has necessitated great labor and research. These decisions were not all in printed form. It was necessary to obtain copies and read the entire number of twelve thousand and more. From these about eight hundred cases have been selected. Those have been chosen which are of value in showing the historical development of the school system and more particularly those which have a bearing upon the interpretation of the present laws governing that system. The labor of preparing this volume was commenced during the period which I served as Chief of the Law Division of the Education Department and had been completed at the time of the Capitol fire on March 29, 1911 when the manuscripts thereof were destroyed in that fire. Some courage and some faith in the necessity of the work were necessary for the duplication of the labor required to prepare the manuscripts a second time. This task is again completed and in the hope that the volume may be of sufficient service to those officially charged with the management of the schools to cause them to feel that the labor of the author has been well directed.

T. E. F.

Albany, N. Y.

December 17, 1913

APPEALS

JURISDICTION OF SUPERINTENDENTS DISCUSSED AND DETERMINED

If commissioners withhold assent to raise a tax larger than $400 for building a schoolhouse, their refusal is subject to review upon appeal.

Decided September 18, 1841

Spencer, Superintendent

The inhabitants of the village of Cuba had been united in one district by the consolidation of two others. They had been offered a site for a schoolhouse, in a central and commodious location, upon the sole consideration that they should erect upon it a house worth $800. They unanimously voted to accept the site and raise the tax, and applied to the school commissioners for consent to levy that sum. Consent was refused on the ground that the consolidation of the districts would be the means of breaking up the select school hitherto maintained in the district, and, further, that the inhabitants were unable to bear the increased burdens of such an organization.

The commissioners have a discretionary power to grant or refuse their consent. But in this case it was not wisely exercised. They were bound to have a stronger interest in the improvement of the common schools than in the welfare of a private select school. The inhabitants, who ought to understand their own interests, and know their pecuniary resources, had unanimously resolved to raise the tax and shoulder the burden of the new organization. The commissioners ought not to assume that they had overestimated their ability.

The majority of the inhabitants of a district may consist of persons destitute themselves of pecuniary resources, and desirous to avail themselves of the property of the minority to build an unnecessarily costly schoolhouse for the district. The check, which the commissioners possess, to abuses like this, is wise and salutary, and that check was undoubtedly conferred with a view to the possible happening of cases of this description.

The discretion exercised in this case, like that of granting or refusing a certificate to a teacher, is the subject of appeal. The authority of the Superintendent upon appeal extends to all matters arising under the school laws. His decisions have been treated as conclusive by the courts, and acquiesced in by the Legislature and the people.

The commissioners were ordered to give their consent to the tax of $800. Per Spencer, July 19, 1841.

Subsequently the same case came up a second time, on the refusal of the commissioners to obey the order of the Superintendent. The previous decision was sustained and enforced in an elaborate opinion, from which we take the portions treating of discretionary powers, and the appellate jurisdiction of the school department.

"The discretion of public officers is a legal one, to be governed by sound principles, and not by the capricious whim of the individual, and the instances are frequent where courts of law regulate and direct the exercise of discretionary power by officers, where third persons have an interest in such exercise. The only discretion which courts do not undertake to control is that which, according to Justice Sutherland (5 Wendell 125), 'is not and can not be governed by any fixed principles and rules.' Few matters would seem more susceptible of the application of fixed rules than the size of a schoolhouse necessary to accommodate properly a given number of children, the amount of money required for its construction, and the ability of a district to raise a given sum. So that even upon any of the ordinary processes of law, this would be a case where the discretionary power of commissioners could be regulated and controlled. But when we consider that a tribunal has been erected for the express purpose of supervising all the officers engaged in the administration of the common school system; that there is scarcely an act to be performed by them which does not involve more or less discretion, and that an appeal is given from all these acts in the most comprehensive terms; we see at once that the rules which would govern legal proceedings on common law process are not the proper guides, and that we must recur to broader and more enlarged principles.

"The word 'appeal' comes from the civil law, and its nature and office is to substitute the appellate tribunal for that whose acts are examined; and, if the case be one involving discretion, then the appeal invokes that very discretion in the superior, in the same manner and to the same extent that it was possessed by the inferior. 'The cause is in the appellate court,' says the Supreme Court of the United States, in 1 Wheaton 112, 'as if it were in the inferior court.'

"The great majority of cases decided in this Department are those involving more or less discretionary power.

"The statute itself enumerates many cases that are entirely of a discretionary character. The decisions of district school meetings upon any subject upon which they are competent to act, such as the designation of the site of a schoolhouse, the amount of money to be raised by tax, and the omission to levy taxes, involve large discretion, but are nevertheless subject to appeal by the express words of the law. The formation and alteration of school districts must be guided by a sound judgment upon various facts and circumstances, such as the number of children, the amount of taxable property, the extent of territory, and the convenience of the inhabitants. Some fixed rules may be applied, but in many cases the decision must depend on general ideas of the propriety and fitness of things.

"Among cases not enumerated, and which fall within the fourth subdivision of the section conferring the right of appeal, the following are of daily occurrence, viz: the granting or refusing a license to a teacher; the valuations of schoolhouses or other property on the formation of new districts; the refusal of trustees to call special meetings, to employ teachers, or to keep the schools open, and the employment and dismissal of teachers; the government of the school; the admittance and expulsion of scholars, etc. Indeed it would be difficult to specify a single act which any officer concerned in the administration of the system may perform, that has not been the subject of appeal.

"The present case presents less opportunity for the exercise of discretion than many of those above enumerated. The expense of a schoolhouse must depend upon its size and materials. Its size, the number of rooms, and the proper conveniences, will depend upon the number of children in the district of the proper age to occupy it. The only other element for consideration is the ability of the district, a fact easily ascertained from the assessment roll. There is, therefore, nothing in the nature of the decision to be made to prevent its being reviewed and examined upon fixed and settled principles.

"So far as our laws afford any analogy in cases of appeal, there does not appear to be any distinction between discretionary and other cases. Thus, appeals to county judges from commissioners of highways, respecting the opening, altering and discontinuing of highways, necessarily involve that discretion which depends on private judgment.

"Upon the most mature deliberation, then, I can not doubt that the granting or refusing of a certificate, that a larger sum than $400 should be raised for building a schoolhouse, is necessarily the subject of an appeal to the Superintendent. And as, in all cases of appeal, the statute declares his opinion to be 'final,' there must be some mode of giving it effect. In the present case, the commissioners decline obedience to the order directing them to grant the required certificate. From that refusal an appeal has been made, and the commissioners have answered. The whole system must be very defective if there be no power to have an act performed which the competent tribunal has determined to be legal and proper. Perhaps the appellants may enforce the order of the Superintendent, by an application to the Supreme Court for a mandamus.

"But, if there be a more direct, simple and less expensive remedy, I am bound to pursue the policy of the statute in erecting this tribunal by furnishing it. I think there is. It is a universal principle, recognized in England and in this country, that the court to which a writ of error or an appeal is brought is bound to render the judgment which the inferior tribunal should have rendered. Upon this principle, this Department may authorize the inhabitants of the district, at a lawful meeting, to raise the additional sum necessary for building a new schoolhouse that being the judgment or decision which, in the opinion of the Superintendent, the commissioners should have made. I find an order of my immediate predecessor, founded on this principle, and analogous to the one proposed to be made on this appeal, in the case of the trustees of school district no. 30, in Johnstown, in Common School Decisions, page 161. The inhabitants of the district had authorized the trustees to make such repairs to the schoolhouse as they should think necessary and proper, and, in pursuance of such authority, they had contracted with a workman to make the repairs, and agreed to pay him $30. But the district refused to vote more than $25. On appeal, the Superintendent, Mr Dix, held that the district was bound to indemnify the trustees: and he ordered that the trustees should make out a tax list for the whole amount and collect it."

In pursuance of this opinion, the district was authorized to raise a tax of $400, over and above the $400 which the district could otherwise raise, and the trustees were empowered to levy and collect it.

3583

The law intends the jurisdiction of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to be state-wide and to cover all controversies touching any official act of local school officers. His jurisdiction is not obtained from local school acts, but from the general school law, and is general unless taken away by a special act in language so clear as to leave no doubt of its intent.

Decided April 4, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

In an appeal brought from the action of the board of education of the city of Binghamton in the matter of the change or designation of certain textbooks, the board denied that the Superintendent had any jurisdiction to hear and decide the appeal.

"It is said that the school system of the city of Binghamton is governed by a special act of the Legislature (chapter 322, Laws of 1861) and its amendments and that there is nothing in this special act conferring upon the State Superintendent the authority to determine appeals from the acts of the board of education of that city. It is also insisted that the provisions of the Consolidated School Act (chapter 555, Laws of 1864) concerning appeals to the State Superintendent from the acts of local school officers do not extend jurisdiction to the act of a board of education in a city having a special school act. It is accordingly argued that there is no jurisdiction at all in the present case."

The question is an important one and I have endeavored to give it that examination which its gravity demands.

I have examined the statutes specially referring to the supervision of the schools of the city of Binghamton with considerable care and am of the opinion that, if jurisdiction in this case depended alone upon these statutes, it would not be difficult, reading the several successive acts together, to discern an intention to confer it, on the part of the Legislature.

But in my opinion it does not depend upon the provisions of the special acts, having reference only to a particular locality. Title 12, section 1, chapter 555, Laws of 1864, is as follows:

Section 1 Any person conceiving himself aggrieved in consequence of any decision made

- 1 By any school district meeting.
- 2 By any school commissioner or school commissioners and other officers, in forming or altering, or refusing to form or alter, any school district, or in refusing to apportion any school moneys to any such district or part of a district.
- 3 By a supervisor in refusing to pay such moneys to any such district.
- 4 By the trustees of any district in paying or refusing to pay any teacher, or in refusing to admit any scholar gratuitously into any school.
- 5 By any trustee of any school district library concerning such library, or the books therein, or the use of such books.
- 6 By and district meeting in relation to the library.
- 7 By any other official act or decision concerning any other matter under this act, or any other act pertaining to common schools, may appeal to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who is hereby authorized and required to examine and decide the same; and his decision shall be final and conclusive, and not subject to question or review in any place or court whatever.

The seventh subdivision of this section contains language as comprehensive as could well be employed. It authorizes any person aggrieved at "any other official act or decision concerning any other matter under this act, or any other act pertaining to common schools," to appeal to the State Superintendent. The contention of the respondent's counsel that the phrase, "any other official act," refers only to acts by the same body, or of the same nature as though specified in the first six subdivisions of the section, can not be adopted. It is an official act concerning "any other matter under this act, or under any other act pertaining to common schools," which is the subject of appeal. It was the obvious intent of the Legislature to provide an easy, inexpensive, speedy and conclusive way for procuring a determination of complaints against any official act of any local school official. Both the language of the law and the different steps taken by the Legislature to bring it to its present state, sustain this construction. Enacted in the early days of the school system, it has from time to time been added to with the evident purpose of making it clear that the jurisdiction of the Superintendent is intended to be statewide, and is to cover all controversies touching any official act of local school officials.

These provisions of the general law were, in substance, in force long before the passage of the special laws referring only to the city of Binghamton. If the Legislature had intended to cut off the right of appeal, as to that city, it would have so provided in the laws particularly applicable to it. It not only did not do this, but it is worthy of note that it expressly preserved the right in the first instance, and omitted to do this only upon a reenactment of the Binghamton school laws, consequent upon the granting of a city charter to the place. It is fair to assume that the omission at that time was either because of inadvertence or because an express reservation was deemed unnecessary. In any event, the State Superintendent does not get jurisdiction from local school acts, but from the general school law. The authority must be held to be general, unless taken away by a special act, in language so clear as to leave no doubt of its intent, and there is no such taking away in the statutes applicable only to the city of Binghamton.

There is another consideration which has not been suggested by the able and alert counsel who appeared upon the argument of this appeal, and which, in view of the foregoing, is perhaps not material to the determination of the question of jurisdiction, and yet it has sufficient bearing upon it to justify me in mentioning it. The appellant claims that the action of the respondent is in violation of chapter 413 of the Laws of 1877, entitled "An act to prevent frequent changes of textbooks in schools." This is an "act pertaining to common schools." The question brought here is one arising under it. The determination of this question may involve the construction of the provisions of this general law, rather than of the special laws relating to Binghamton. It will hardly be contended that the Legislature meant to leave it to the board of education or trustees in each city or district having a special school act, to place such construction as it should see fit upon this general law, and to suit its acts to its views of the meaning of the law, without affording a means of redress to persons differing with it in opinions and aggrieved by its acts. Such a view would result in as many different constructions of the meaning of this statute as there are different localities having special acts, and would defeat the purpose and intent of this general law.

In view of these considerations, it seems clear to me that the grievance of the appellant is properly brought before the Department by means of an appeal, and that, under the laws, it is the duty of the Superintendent to determine the matter.

On this same subject, see also decision no. 3576, dated March 19, 1887.

5384

In the matter of the appeal of Elias P. Mann, mayor of the city of Troy, from the decision of the board of education of the city of Troy, dismissing the charges preferred against Edwin S. Harris, superintendent of schools.

The Appellate Division of the Third Department has held that the Commissioner of Education has the legal authority to hear and determine an appeal from the action of a board of education of a city of the second class operating under the uniform charter for cities of such class in a proceeding to remove the city superintendent of schools on charges.

Decided March 9, 1908

Hon. George B. Wellington, corporation counsel and attorney for appellant
Hon. John T. Norton, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

On May 24, 1907, Elias P. Mann, mayor of the city of Troy, preferred charges against Edwin S. Harris, superintendent of schools of said city. The board of education gave a hearing on such charges and thereafter dismissed the same. On September 4, 1907, Mayor Mann instituted this proceeding to review the action of the board of education in dismissing such charges. Superintendent Harris, a party in interest in such proceeding, raised the question of jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education to entertain such appeal. On October 2, 1907, I gave a hearing upon the question of my jurisdiction to hear such appeal and heard argument of counsel for the respective parties to this proceeding. At the close of such hearing I decided that the statutes made it my duty to hear and decide such appeal. On October 9, 1907, an alternative writ of prohibition was obtained from Mr Justice Betts by Superintendent Harris restraining me from hearing or deciding such appeal. Such writ was returnable at Kingston November 16, 1907. Proper return was made and argument heard on that date on a motion to quash such writ. On February 25, 1908, Justice Betts rendered a decision holding that the Commissioner of Education did have the legal authority to hear and determine such appeal and dismissing the writ of prohibition.

The object sought by this appeal was the removal of Superintendent Harris. During the latter part of January Mr Harris resigned the office of superintendent of schools of the city of Troy. It appears unnecessary therefore to give this proceeding further consideration and on motion of Mr Wellington, attorney for appellant, the appeal is hereby dismissed.

Edmund Whittier against the inhabitants of school district no. 11 in the town of Ogden.

An appeal to the Superintendent will not be entertained when the point at issue has been settled by an adjudication upon the same case in a court of competent jurisdiction.
Decided June 23, 1826

Flagg, Superintendent

This was an appeal from the proceedings of a meeting of the inhabitants of school district no. 11 in the town of Ogden, at which a tax of $250 was voted to build a schoolhouse. The facts are fully set forth in the decision of the Superintendent.

It is alleged that the vote imposing the tax was carried by the admission on the part of the moderator of the illegal votes of William Hill and Alsen Smith.

The appellant has presented a number of affidavits to show that Hill and Smith, in the opinion of those who testify, were not legal voters. The affidavits set forth generally that the persons testifying have no knowledge that Hill and Smith were legal voters, and from their situation and circumstances do not believe they were.

On the other side, the record of proceedings before a magistrate is produced and duly authenticated, by which it is shown that Hill and Smith were prosecuted for having voted, without being entitled to vote by law, and that on the trial of the cause it appeared that they were legal voters at the time of the meeting, from the proceedings of which the appeal is brought. In addition to this, Smith and Hill testify that they were at the time of the meeting worth $50 in taxable property.

The Superintendent feels bound to recognize the decision of the court as having settled the point that Hill and Smith were legal voters. This being the only point at issue, it is ordered that the appeal in this case be dismissed.

3875

Frank J. Alverson v. Michael Joy, jr, trustee of school district no. 14, town of Springwater, county of Livingston.

The courts having acquired jurisdiction of the subject matter of an appeal through an action brought thereon by the appellant, the appeal will not be entertained.

Decided April 22, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant, on the 15th day of October last, was employed by the respondent to teach the common school in said district for the period of sixteen weeks. No agreement was made between the appellant and the respondent on the subject of janitor work, or the care of the schoolhouse. The appellant alleges that upon assuming the charge of the school, he found that no arrangement had been made for building fires and cleaning the school building; that he applied to the trustee who assured the appellant that he would attend to the matter at once. This, however, he neglected to do, and the appellant cared for the fires and cleaned the schoolhouse; that the appellant then engaged a boy who assisted in those services for a period of five weeks, for which assistance the boy charged $3, which the respondent refused to pay. Thereafter, the appellant continued to care for the schoolhouse, sweeping the same and building fires until the close of his term. The appellant claims for such services the sum of $15, and for the services of the boy the further sum of $3.

The respondent admits that there was no agreement with the appellant relative to the janitor work, denies that he ever agreed to arrange for having this work done, and avers that it was the custom of the district for the teacher to perform this work. It appears further, that before taking this appeal the appellant brought an action against the respondent before a justice of the peace in said county for the value of the identical services claimed by this appeal.

The fact that an action had been commenced, and that the appellant had sought in the courts the same remedy he now seeks by this appeal, makes a decision by me improper, if not unnecessary. It is a well-established rule that, when the courts have acquired jurisdiction of a matter in controversy over which this Department has concurrent jurisdiction, an appeal will not be entertained. It is unnecessary, therefore, to look into the merits of this appeal.

The appeal is overruled.

3754

In the matter of the appeal of Irving Holcomb v. school district no. 17, of the town of Hancock in the county of Delaware.

Appeals to the Department will not be sustained when the papers submitted are so very defectively prepared, and so poorly arranged as to render it altogether impossible to gain any intelligent understanding from them.

Decided January 19, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

Several appeals are brought before the Department by the appellant above named, all of which involve the right of the respondent to tax certain parcels of land owned by the appellant and described by him as lots nos. 5, 6, 7, 16, 17, 18, 26, 27, 28, 36, 37, 38, 46, 47, 48, 56, 57, 58, lying in the Spooner tract. These lots all lie in district no. 17, but the appellant claims that they are owned and occupied by him, and that they lie in one body, and that as his residence is in district no. 12 of the town of Hancock, the lots referred to should be taxed in that district.

The papers submitted by the appellant are numerous, and are very defectively prepared and so poorly arranged as to render it altogether impossible to determine in which case he desires each to be considered. Indeed, it is difficult to understand after the most earnest efforts, what the purpose of the several separate appeals may be. There is no map worthy of consideration submitted.

I shall not undertake to finally determine upon these papers the question as to whether the lots referred to are properly taxable in school district no. 12 or no. 17, but have concluded to discuss the appeals and permit the taxes now levied to be collected, for the following reasons:

- 1 Because of the defective papers and insufficient map.
- 2 Because it is shown that the property referred to lies bodily within district no. 17, and is described as separate lots.
- 3 Because it is shown that it has been taxed in that district for many years.
- 4 Because it appears that the appeals were longer delayed than they should have been; in one case at least, the proceedings have gone so far as a levy and sale under execution by the district collector.

In view of the foregoing, the several appeals are dismissed without prejudice to the right of the appellant to raise the question as to the right of district no. 17 to tax this property at any future time.

4169

In the matter of the appeal of Seymour C. Bishop and others from proceedings of a special school meeting of district no. 1, town of Fairfield, Herkimer county.

To sustain an appeal to this Department, the appellant must show that he is aggrieved, that is, injured, by the action or decision of which he complains. There should be some real grievance, some positive and serious injury sustained to justify a resort by appeal to this Department for redress. Where there is no proof that the appellant or any qualified voter of the district has sustained any damage or injury, or that the educational interests of the district have sustained damage, the appeal will be dismissed.

Decided March 9, 1893

P. H. McEvoy, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

On or about December 1, 1892, the trustee of district no. 1, town of Fairfield, Herkimer county, removed from said district, thereby creating a vacancy in the office of trustee in said district. The clerk of said district issued a notice, stating the fact of the vacancy in the office of trustee, and calling a special meeting of said district to be held at the schoolhouse in said district on December 27, 1892, at 7 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a trustee to fill said office. That said clerk posted said notice for seven full days prior to said December 27, 1892, in seven conspicuous places in said district, but did not serve any other notice of said meeting. That on said December 27, 1892, said special meeting was held and one Simon Eustace was elected trustee to fill said vacancy. That said Eustace accepted said office and entered upon the discharge of the duties thereof, contracted for a teacher and a school is being conducted in said district. From the proceedings of said special meeting this appeal is taken.

The appeal states that the appellant was not served with a notice of said special meeting and had no knowledge of said meeting, and upon information and belief avers that Stephen Comstock, Charles Rands and Philo Hoover, residents of, and legal voters in, said district, were not notified of said meeting and had no knowledge thereof. The affidavit of Comstock only is presented in support of this allegation, and his affidavit is to the fact that he (Comstock) had no notice or knowledge of the meeting.

Section 7 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act of 1864 provides "The proceedings of no neighborhood or district meeting, annual or special, shall be held illegal for want of due notice to all the persons qualified to vote thereat, unless it shall appear that the omission to give such notice was wilful and fraudulent."

No wilful or fraudulent intent on the part of the clerk in the service of the notice of said special meeting is alleged or shown; but he seems to have acted according to such knowledge as he had upon the subject, believing his action to be legal and proper. There is a complete failure on the part of the appellant to show that he, or any one, has been injured by the alleged irregularity in the service of the notice of said special meeting, and that the results of the meeting would, under any circumstances, have been different.

No person can sustain an appeal unless he is aggrieved, that is, injured, by the action or decision of which he complains. There should be some real grievance, some positive and serious injury sustained, to justify a resort by appeal to this Department for redress. There is no proof that the appellant, or any qualified voter of the district, has sustained any damage or injury, or that the educational interests of the district have sustained damage.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

3611

In the matter of the appeal of Octave N. Bonnefond, from certain proceedings of the annual school meeting held in district no. 23, town of Hancock, Delaware county, August 31, 1886.

Where a former trustee is charged, after he has ceased to be a school officer, with wrongfully retaining money of the district, the State Superintendent is without jurisdiction over the person charged. In such case, redress can be obtained only through the courts. Decided June 20, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a resident and taxpayer of school district no. 23, town of Hancock, Delaware county, from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held in said district August 31, 1886.

The particular proceeding of the meeting objected to by appellant was the vote given to accept the report of the retiring trustee, which contained an item of eleven dollars, paid by said retiring trustee to his counsel for his costs and disbursements in preparing an appeal from the proceedings of the annual meeting, at which one Thomas Swope was declared elected trustee, and immediately thereafter entered upon the performance of the duties of such office. The appellant avers that said retiring trustee appropriated eleven dollars for such expense without a vote of a district meeting authorizing it, or the determination of a county judge after an appeal from a refusal of a district meeting to so authorize the expenditure; that at the time the appeal was taken, said retiring trustee was not a school officer, and was not authorized by a vote of a district meeting to prosecute such appeal.

The present trustee answering said appeal, alleges that said appeal was decided in favor of said retiring trustee, who was the appellant therein; that at the last annual meeting the retiring trustee presented his annual report, and, after request by some voters, presented a receipt for eleven dollars from his attorneys for such services, after which the meeting approved and adopted the report.

I shall not express an opinion as to the legality of the retiring trustee's action, or the action of the district meeting in accepting and approving the same.

The former trustee having ceased to be a school officer at the meeting in question, this Department has no jurisdiction over him. If he has retained moneys illegally, the statute points out the manner of recovering the same by civil and criminal proceedings in the courts. The amount involved is small and the appellant's tax therefor is scarcely noticeable, being ten or twelve cents.

— Having no power to enforce a decision of this appeal, if one should be made, I dismiss the same.

3995

In the matter of the appeal of E. R. Fuller v. James M. Shultz and Henry Wheeler, as trustees of school district no. 8, towns of Bath, Wheeler and Avoca, county of Steuben.

Appeals will not be entertained where the allegations are vague and indefinite, and legal and comprehensive proof is not furnished.

Decided September 7, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

By this appeal the removal of the respondents from the offices held by them, as trustees, is sought.

The respondents are charged generally with converting district funds to their own use; with receiving pay from the district for services personally rendered; with giving orders upon the collector when there were no funds in his hands; with using public money for repairs without a vote of a district meeting authorizing such repairs; with being discourteous to their associate trustees, and with refusing to respect the expressed wish of the voters in the matter of employing a teacher, and finally, "with many minor illegal acts and irregularities too numerous to mention."

An answer has been interposed in which some of the allegations of the complaint are flatly denied. Others are admitted and an explanation attempted, and countercharges of irregularities made against the appellant during the time he was a trustee of the district.

I am satisfied that the affairs of the district are in a chaotic state. If the respondents have given district orders upon the collector or supervisor when there was no district or public money in their hands, they are guilty of a misdemeanor and are amenable to punishment therefor. If they have appropriated district money to their own use, they are guilty of a felony. If they have become individually interested in contracts with the district, they are guilty of a misdemeanor, and if found guilty of either of the offenses, they should be punished and removed from office.

But I have not sufficient evidence before me upon which a conviction could be had. A majority of the board of trustees at a regularly called meeting of the board, could legally employ a duly licensed teacher, even though a majority of the patrons of the school and taxpayers of the district were dissatisfied with such selection. I have received numerous letters and sworn statements upon each side relating to the charges and counter charges, of which no proof is furnished showing service of copies upon the other side, which I am, in consequence of the failure to show due service, unable to use upon the consideration of this case.

From the correspondence, it would seem that light upon some of the charges has been discovered since the appeal was prepared.

The allegations of the appellant are too vague and obscure.

I have concluded to dismiss the appeal, without prejudice to the right of the appellant to renew the same, when the charges can be more intelligently and definitely stated and more comprehensive and legal proofs offered.

3501

In the matter of the appeal of Edward Thompson v. George L. Johnson, as trustee of joint school district no. 14, towns of Nassau, Stephentown and New Lebanon, counties of Rensselaer and Columbia.

An appeal taken four months after the performance of the act complained of, when no sufficient excuse for the delay is given, will be dismissed.

Decided May 28, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a resident and taxpayer of joint school district no. 14, towns of Nassau, Stephentown and New Lebanon, counties of Rensselaer and Columbia, from the action of the trustee of said district in issuing a tax list to collect $193.20.

The tax list was issued on the 4th day of October 1886. It is alleged by the appellant that the district meeting authorized a tax of only $150 and that the trustee has added thereto $43.20, which was unauthorized.

The trustee, who appears as respondent, alleges that the sum of $150 was for the current expenses of the school year, and that there existed a deficiency for teachers' wages of $43.20, which it was necessary to raise. It is also alleged that the appeal was not taken until four months had elapsed after the return of the warrant by the collector, and that the appellant had paid his tax under said tax list and the warrant thereto attached.

In view of the facts, which are undisputed, that the tax list and warrant were delivered to the collector in October last and the tax collected of every taxpayer but one, and that the appeal was not taken until February 22, 1887, I am compelled to dismiss the appeal under the rules.

Appeals must be taken within thirty days from the time of the act complained of, or some satisfactory excuse must be given for the delay. None has been given.

5008

In the matter of the appeal of The Hartwood Club v. Frank L. Muller, as trustee of school district 5, Forestburgh, Sullivan county.

An appeal from a school district tax list must be brought by the party aggrieved immediately upon being apprised of the issuance of such tax list. A delay in appealing until after the tax is paid, or its collection enforced, will be fatal.

Decided May 31, 1902

- William H. Crane, attorney for appellant
George H. Smith, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the trustees of school district 5, Forestburgh, Sullivan county, in assessing in the school year 1900-1 the sum of $54.50 for school taxes upon the property of the appellant, and also assessing in the school year 1901-2 upon such property the sum of $60.45 for school taxes.

The appeal herein was filed in this Department April 9, 1902, and the answer thereto was filed May 7, 1902.

The following facts are established by the pleadings filed herein:

The appellant herein, The Hartwood Club, is a domestic corporation of the State of New York, incorporated in pursuance of chapter 267 of the Laws of 1875, and the several acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and was organized in the year 1890 for the purpose of owning and maintaining a game and fish preserve and a summer home for its members, and became the owner, and still owns, a large tract of land in great lots 17, 18, 19 and 20 in the first division of Minisink patent, which tract is a continuous body, and lies mostly in the town of Forestburgh, Sullivan county, and partly in the town of Deer Park, Orange county, State of New York.

The clubhouse, barns, cottages and important improvements owned by the appellant are located on lot 17 and in joint school district 6, aforesaid, and the agent of the appellant resides upon said tract of land and is in occupation of the same, but lives in a dwelling located on lot 17, in said district 6, and the lands in lots 18, 19 and 20 are entirely without buildings thereon, and unoccupied except by the said agent of the appellant, as aforesaid.

In the year 1900, upon the assessment roll of the town of Forestburgh, all the said lands of the appellant were assessed as sixty-five acres improved, at a valuation of $105 per acre; 2783 acres unimproved, at a valuation of $1.50 per acre; making a total of 2848 acres, at a total valuation of $11,000. In said year 1900 the assessors of the town of Forestburgh, in an apportionment made by them, filed with the clerk of said town, apportioned the value of the property of the appellant for school purposes at the sum of $5000. The trustee of school district 5, in the tax list issued by him for the school year 1900-1, assessed the appellant $54.50 upon its property valued at $5000, which sum the appellant paid, under protest, to the collector of said district January 18, 1901.

In the year 1901 the property of the appellant was assessed upon the town roll of Forestburgh at $11,500, and the town assessors of 1901 filed with the town clerk an apportionment of the value of the property of the appellant for school purposes in school district 5 at the sum of $5250. The trustee of school district 5, in the tax list issued by him for the school year 1901-2, assessed the appellant $60.45 upon its property, valued at $5250, which sum the appellant paid, under protest, to the collector of the district September 30, 1901.

The appellant claims that the apportionment so made by the assessors of the town of Forestburgh was null and void; that the assessments so made upon the tax rolls of school district 5 were irregular and without warrant of law; that the taxes so levied in pursuance of such assessments were without jurisdiction of the trustee, and that the moneys collected thereupon should be returned to the appellant.

This Department has uniformly held that an appeal from a tax list, on whatever grounds, must be brought before the payment of the tax, or the collection of the tax; that such appeals must be brought by the party considering himself aggrieved immediately upon becoming apprised of the existence of such tax list. A delay in appealing until the tax is paid or its collection enforced will be fatal.

The rules of practice relative to appeals taken to me provide that an appeal should be taken within thirty days after the making of the decision or the performance of the act complained of, or within that time after the knowledge of the cause of complaint came to the appellant, or some satisfactory excuse must be rendered for the delay.

The first act complained of by the appellant was performed in the year 1900, and the second act complained of was performed in the year 1901. No satisfactory excuse is given by the appellant for the delay in bringing the appeal herein. The appellant having paid the taxes assessed upon its property, I am powerless to afford any relief.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

3628

In the matter of appeal of Abbie M. Armstrong v. the trustees of school district no. 15, town of Hopkinton, county of St Lawrence.

Appeal dismissed, not having been taken timely and no reason for the delay being shown.
Decided August 10, 1887.

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken by a person who alleges she was employed in the month of December 1885, by Herbert C. Maynard, then trustee of school district no. 15, town of Hopkinton, in said county, to teach the school in said district for the term of twenty-eight weeks, commencing on or about the 20th day of December 1885, at the rate of eight dollars per week; that she commenced teaching pursuant to said agreement and continued for the term of ten weeks; that at the expiration of said ten weeks a contagious disease prevailed in the district, and that, on account thereof, the trustee requested the teacher to dismiss the school until such disease should disappear; that the appellant dismissed the school accordingly; that said appellant was notified by the trustee that he would advise her when he was ready to have the school begun; that in April 1886, the appellant was requested by the trustee to attend a teachers institute; that she did attend said institute and at its close returned to the district and commenced teaching the school and taught for three weeks; that thereupon the appellant was informed by said trustee that diphtheria was still prevailing in the district and, acting upon the advice of a physician, he had concluded to close the school for another term; that the appellant returned home and did not and could not engage in any occupation on account of such unfulfilled engagement with the trustee, and that she kept herself at all times in readiness to finish out the term for which she was employed, but that the trustee never notified her to finish such term; that she was paid the sum of $112 only on account of such engagement, and that the district is now indebted to her in the sum of $112, which sum she has demanded payment of from the trustee, and the trustee refused and still refuses to pay the same or any part thereof.

This appeal was verified on the 16th day of October 1886, but was not filed in the Department until the 3d day of March 1887, and a copy of the same does not appear to have been served upon the trustee until the 26th day of February 1887. For an informality the petition was returned to the appellant and refiled in this Department on the 15th day of March 1887. No answer has been received from the trustee to this appeal.

The rules of the Department require appeals to be taken within thirty days from the performance of the act complained of, and without entering into the merits of this case, or without intending to prejudice any rights which the appellant may have in an action in the courts against the district for the recovery of wages, I am compelled to dismiss the appeal.

3963

In the matter of the appeal of Lovina Munson v. school district no. 9, of the town of Hartwick, county of Otsego.

Appeals not brought within thirty days, unless the delay is excused for satisfactory reasons shown, will not be entertained.

Claims for damages for breach of contract, when the extent of the damages are altogether indefinite and uncertain, will not be entertained by the Department.

Decided February 16, 1891

Edick & Smith, attorneys for appellant

Pierce & Arnold, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant claims to have been employed by the trustee of the district above named in December 1889, to teach the school in said district for the period of sixteen weeks in the next summer, at the rate of four dollars per week. Numerous conversations between the father of the appellant and the trustee are set forth in their papers, to establish said employment. The term was to commence on the last Monday of March 1890. When the time arrived the trustee refused to permit the appellant to open the school, and informed her that he had employed another teacher. She brings her appeal for the purpose of enforcing her claim to damages for a breach of the alleged contract.

The appellant is too late in bringing her appeal. The rules of the Department require that it should be brought within thirty days, or that some satisfactory excuse should be rendered.

But aside from this fact, her appeal could not here be entertained. It has been repeatedly held that the Department would not undertake to enforce a claim for damages for the breach of a contract, when the extent of the damage was altogether indefinite and uncertain.

See case of Tillson v. school district no. 4, in the town of Forestburgh, in the annual report of this Department for 1890, at page 131.

The remedy of the appellant is an action in the courts. The appeal is dismissed.

Power of the Department to grant rehearings in matters of appeal considered.
Decided April 18, 1859

Van Dyck, Superintendent

This is an appeal asking for a rehearing of all matters in controversy in the district that have been brought before this Department since March 24, 1857.

The main purpose of this appeal is to secure a rehearing, upon the merits, of those facts and arguments presented in an appeal to this Department which was dismissed December 19, 1857, and by restoring, as far as may be, the condition of things existing at that time, to afford the appellants the relief at that time sought.

At this point we are met by the position of the counsel for the respondents, that this Department has no power to grant a rehearing of any matter of appeal, and that, the order of this Department dismissing the appeal having been issued, no further action upon the matters embraced in that appeal can be taken.

It would be doing injustice to the able, ingenious and plausible argument of the counsel upon this point, for the Department to controvert it simply in action, by granting the rehearing, without any statement of the grounds upon which its conclusions respecting the extent of its rights and powers are based.

First, upon this particular case it may justly be said that the decision of the Department upon it was expressed or rendered in the communication to Commissioner Boyce, that embodied the conclusions at which the Department had arrived from an examination of the evidence adduced; it is, to all intents and purposes, the decision of the questions at that time pending, and it was proposed, when certain conditions should be reached by the further acts of the parties themselves, to issue an order adapted to the circumstances of the case at that future time. On information, supposed to be reliable, that the conditions stated had been reached, the order was issued dismissing the appeal; this being done for the sole purpose of enforcing the decision already rendered. The dismissal of the appeal, therefore, was not the decision of the case, as appears by its terms, in which it especially disclaims to act upon the questions raised in the controversy, they having been disposed of (as was supposed) according to the terms of the decision rendered by the Department. If it be objected that this decision was not in form and under seal, it is sufficient to answer that the statute does not prescribe the manner or form in which these decisions shall be expressed. That is left to the judgment of the Department itself. The seal, or other forms commonly attending the rendering of a decision, are proper as evidences to third parties of the authenticity of the proceedings. But they are of no importance to the Department itself, which is cognizant, at all times, of its own decisions.

An order of the Department may be antecedent or supplementary to a decision, and hence may be continued in force, or vacated, at the pleasure of the Department. Thus, on an appeal, by inhabitants, from the proceedings of trustees in the matter of paying public moneys to a teacher, it might be necessary to issue an order to the supervisor, directing him to withhold the payment of the moneys of that district until otherwise directed. It will not be held that this order is fixed and can not be vacated. So, where an order is issued supplementary to a decision, and with a view, or for the purpose of enforcing its conclusions, if the Department shall afterward find that such order is insufficient to accomplish the enforcement of the decision, or, owing to any circumstances of which the Department was unaware, is calculated to thwart the ends proposed by the decision to be reached, it is absurd to maintain that such order may not be modified or vacated, and such other order be issued as will conform to the doctrines of the decision rendered.

I come now to a review of the power of the Department to grant a rehearing of a case upon its merits, after a decision has once been rendered.

The argument of the counsel was chiefly confined to two points: First, that the power to rehear a matter of appeal, after decision rendered, could only exist by express legislative provision, and, no such power having been conferred by the statute, it, of course, did not exist. Second, that the words of the statute, which declare that the "decisions of the Department shall be final and conclusive," expressly prohibit the exercise of any such power as is asked by the appellants.

In the decisions referred to by the counsel, I fail to find any cases where the power to rehear a cause upon the merits has been denied, that are at all analogous to the one now present. In denoting the distinction between a superior and an inferior court—that is, one competent to grant a new trial and one incompetent—the courts say: "We think that a superior court of general jurisdiction must have full cognizance of one at least of the principal departments of the law throughout the State, and must be free, in its primary action, from the control of any other tribunal."

I can conceive of no language that should more clearly describe and designate this Department than that above quoted. I can, therefore, draw no other conclusion than that this Department is a superior court of general jurisdiction, and hence that to it the decisions relative to the powers of inferior courts do not apply.

But again, in 1 Johnson's Cases 179, which the counsel cited in support of his position, I find the following language: "The power of granting new trials can only be applied in a manner which precludes the possibility of its exercise being reviewed in this or any other court." These are just the circumstances under which this Department always exercises this power. And, further, in the same decision, the court says: "Indeed, no inferior jurisdiction can possess this power without express authority," plainly implying that courts of superior or general jurisdiction may, in the very nature of their organization, possess this power of granting new trials.

It is my conviction, therefore, that the power to grant a new trial of any cause brought before this Department on appeal may exist without special legislative designation, being involved in the powers distinctly conferred, and the purposes and objects sought to be accomplished in the organization of this tribunal.

I pass now to consider the second point in the argument of the counsel upon this question of the power of the Department to grant a new trial, which is based upon the restrictive terms of the statute itself, which says that "the decision of the State Superintendent shall be final and conclusive."

This language has ever been interpreted as characterizing the exclusiveness of the jurisdiction of this Department in matters brought before it for determination, and not as limiting the Department itself to a single examination of any cause before it. It was designed as a check against the interference of other authorities with the decisions here rendered, and not as defining or circumscribing the powers of the Department itself.

The nature of the trust committed to this Department, and the form of procedure necessary for the proper exercise of its powers, preclude the presumption that the Legislature ever intended that the terms "final and conclusive" should bear the construction put upon them by the counsel in this case.

The indication of the exercise of this power by this Department to grant new trials is made not essentially to meet the present case, but to meet and put at rest, so far as it can be done here, the general issue so strongly raised; and I must and shall assume that the practice of this Department, in granting new trials for causes satisfactory to itself, is a legitimate and necessary exercise of powers with which, in the nature of its organization, it is invested.

3508

Nathaniel Coon and others v. Abner L. Sprague, sole trustee of school district no. 14, Sandy Creek, Oswego county.

When an appeal has been decided, such appeal will not be reopened, unless upon the ground of newly discovered evidence.

The submission of testimony not contained in original appeal is not sufficient, unless it is made to appear that such testimony was not known to, or could not have been procured by the appellants at the time of bringing the original appeal.

Decided June 1, 1886

Draper, Superintendent

This is a proceeding purporting to be an "amended appeal" from the election of Abner L. Sprague as sole trustee of school district no. 14, Sandy Creek, Oswego county, N. Y., at the annual meeting held August 25, 1885.

It appears from the records of this Department that an appeal was taken from such election and a decision rendered therein on the 12th day of December 1885.

This appeal was filed in the Department May 11, 1886. Under the rules of practice, an appeal from the action of an annual meeting must be brought within thirty days from the date of such meeting or some satisfactory excuse must be rendered in the appeal for the delay.

Again when a decision has been rendered in an appeal, such appeal will only be reopened upon the production of new evidence which was not in the possession of the appellant, or could not have been procured when the appeal was brought.

While more testimony is submitted in the papers now before me than was contained in the former appeal, it does not appear that such testimony was not known to or could not have been procured by the appellants at the time of bringing the first appeal, and no reason is given for bringing this appeal at so late a day except that it was supposed that the papers in the former case were sufficient, no answer having been made to them. This is not a satisfactory excuse. For these reasons I would decline to entertain the appeal. It might be well (or more satisfactory), however, for me to add briefly, that I have examined the papers herein, and find that the appellants allege as the grounds of their appeal, that the respondent was not eligible to the office of trustee, and that the election was procured by illegal votes. But I also find, by a thorough examination of the testimony, that the appellants fail to show either that Abner L. Sprague was, at the time of his election, ineligible to the office of trustee, or that his election was procured by illegal votes.

The appeal is overruled.

3941

In the matter of the appeal of James D. Van Vechten and others from the proceedings of an adjourned annual meeting held in school district no. 11 of the town of Schodack, county of Rensselaer.

Action of a district meeting in allowing a claim for legal services incurred by a district officer in defending an appeal, sustained.

Decided December 18, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by residents of school district no. 11, town of Schodack, county of Rensselaer, from the proceedings of the adjourned annual meeting held on the 9th day of August 1890, in voting to allow a claim of $133.25 for legal services rendered by Messrs Davenport & Hollister, counselors at law, for the respondents in the matter of the appeal of Alfred T. Bortle and others from the election of James Benner as trustee of the above-mentioned district.

The grounds of the appeal are: that the motion to allow the claim was not made by a legal voter; that the vote was not taken by ayes and noes; that the said James Benner was not instructed by a resolution of a district meeting to defend the appeal; that the claim was not itemized and verified to the district meeting; that the charge is exorbitant; that the appeal brought was sustained; that the appeal was not against any official act of the trustee.

The respondent alleges that, at the meeting referred to, a motion was regularly put and carried authorizing a tax to raise the sum of $133.25 to liquidate the charge for legal services rendered by Davenport & Hollister as attorneys for said James Benner and others; that the said Benner made no charge for expenses incurred by himself beyond the charge for his attorneys as above stated, and that the same was regularly presented to the district meeting and allowed. Respondent alleges that the motion to pay the claim was regularly made by a resident and taxpayer of the district, and carried by a nearly unanimous vote, not to exceed three of the fifteen or eighteen persons present voting against the same. He alleges that he has no acquaintance with the value of legal services, and can not state, of his own knowledge, whether the charge is exorbitant or not.

In the consideration of this appeal, my attention is directed to subdivision 14 of section 16 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act, which reads as follows:

The inhabitants so entitled to vote, when duly assembled in any district meeting, shall have power, by a majority of the votes of those present, to vote a tax . . . to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them for their official acts. . . .

I have no evidence before me which will enable me to pass upon the value of the services rendered by the attorneys whose bill is objected to, except the record evidence connected with the appeal on file in this Department, and the fact that the attorneys appeared before me upon the argument of said appeal.

This is a matter which the district meeting had authority under the statute to act upon. As it has acted, its action must be upheld unless good ground is shown for setting it aside. The burden of proof is upon the appellant to show that the bill audited was excessive. They fail to show this. Indeed, they adduce no proof at all to show it. The overwhelming vote in the district meeting indicates a general willingness in the district to pay the bill, and consequently, a general belief that the amount claimed was not excessive.

The appeal must be dismissed and the stay heretofore granted herein is hereby set aside and revoked.

3983

In the matter of the appeal of Jonathan E. Leach and others v. George E. Fralick, as trustee of school district no. 4, towns of Marathon and Willett, county of Cortland.

Costs and expenses incurred in instituting proceeding on appeal can not be legally allowed by a district meeting, unless the appeal was instituted or prosecuted by a school district officer in his official capacity.

Decided June 30, 1891

William D. Tuttle, attorney for appellant

Milo C. Paige, attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

By this appeal an item for expenses incurred in preparing and prosecuting an appeal before the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, which item has been audited and allowed by a district meeting, and thereupon included in a district tax, is objected to, upon the ground that the action of the district meeting was without authority of law.

From the evidence before me, and which is undisputed, it appears that the appellant was the immediate predecessor of the respondent herein in the office of trustee of school district no. 4, towns of Marathon and Willett, Cortland county, and that during the appellant's term of service the respondent was the clerk of said district; that during this time an appeal was taken by the respondent herein and others from certain proceedings of the then trustee.

It is conceded that the appeal was not brought by the direction of a district meeting, and the appellant herein alleges that it was not brought by the clerk ex officio, but only in an individual capacity in which he was joined by other taxpayers of the district. The respondent insists that he proceeded upon such appeal as district clerk, and that he personally incurred the attending expenses.

Had the appeal been instituted or prosecuted by the direction of a district meeting, or without such direction by the clerk, in his official capacity in a case in which he would have been authorized to institute such a proceeding, the item would be approved, no question having been raised as to its reasonableness. My attention having been directed to the former appeal, no. 3883, I have examined the pleadings of the appellant therein, and I do not find that the district clerk instituted said appeal in his official capacity or in any other than an individual one, and I am, therefore, led to the conclusion that the case is not brought within the statutory provision which authorizes a district meeting to allow the expenses incurred by a district officer in prosecuting an appeal.

The appeal is sustained, the action of the district meeting declared invalid, and the order heretofore granted herein enjoining the collector of the amount voted for expenses incurred on said appeal, is hereby made permanent.

3558

In the matter of the appeal of Aaron N. Losee and others v. Alfred P. Blenis, as trustee of district no. 7, town of Greenville, Greene county.

The district meeting appointed a committee to represent the district upon proceedings before the county judge, for determining the amount of the liability of the district for costs and expenses of an appeal in which the district had been involved (section 9, title 13, Consolidated School Act), and the chairman of the committee having been subsequently elected trustee, levied a tax for the sum of $195 to pay the counsel fee and expenses of such committee.

Held, (1) that a charge for services of counsel amounting to $160 for defending against a claim of $180, was exorbitant; (2) that the committee could not be allowed any compensation for their services; (3) that the committee could not be allowed for the use of their own conveyances.

Decided January 28, 1887

E. C. Hallenbeck, Esq., attorney for appellants
Franklin J. Taylor, Esq., attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

The district from which this appeal emanates is very small, comprising, all told, about twenty taxable inhabitants. It has been involved in a quarrel for a long time, and there seems little prospect of a settlement. About a year since, Alfred P. Blenis, the respondent above named, and others, appealed to this Department to remove from office Leander W. Hallock, then trustee of said district. The decision of such appeal, made upon the 29th day of March 1886, denied the application. Subsequently Mr Hallock presented to a district meeting a claim for costs, charges and expenses incurred by him upon such appeal, and upon the refusal of the district meeting to pay the claim, he appealed to the county judge of Greene county to adjust the same, pursuant to the provisions of section 9 of title 13 of the Consolidated School Act of 1864, and the district subsequently appointed a committee consisting of Mr Blenis, Amos B. Story and Oliver H. Bogardus to protect its interests before the county judge. In the discharge of its duty, the committee incurred some expense and employed counsel. Two lawyers were called in to represent the district before the county judge and defend against a claim amounting to $180. There appears to have been two adjournments of the proceedings before the county judge, and finally in September, that officer adjusted the claim of Hallock, at the sum of $120. Then Mr Blenis, the respondent above named, having in the meantime been elected trustee of the district, made out a tax list and warrant and placed the same in the hands of the collector for the purpose of raising the sum of $195 to cover the expenses of the committee. From this action this appeal is taken.

Whether the committee appointed to represent the district had the right to employ counsel or not, is a matter not free from doubt, but as the trustee who was pressing the claim against the district was represented before the county judge by counsel, there would seem to be some reason in the district being so represented, and as counsel were, in fact, employed, and did appear and represent the district, and as the objections of the appellants here seem to be directed against the amount of the claim for counsel fees rather than against the right of the committee to employ counsel, I am not inclined to inquire into that question too closely. But in any event, it is difficult to justify the proceedings of the committee in employing two attorneys to represent it upon a very simple proceeding before the county judge, when the claim against the district was but for the sum of $180, and it is still more difficult to justify the claim which is presented for counsel fees in the sum of $160, for defending against a claim for $180. Furthermore, it is noticed that the committee have included in their personal bills, items for the use of their own conveyances in going to the county seat upon the several occasions when the matter was expected to be up for consideration. The statute only authorizes them to charge for expenses incurred in the performance of their duty, and provides only that such expenses shall be a charge upon the district. It is not possible to hold that they were subjected to expense in the use of their own conveyances.

I have, therefore, concluded to sustain the appeal, unless the respondent shall, within fifteen days from the date hereof, withdraw the warrant and tax list from the hands of the collector, and reduce the amount levied by said tax list, by deducting therefrom all items charged by members of the committee for the use of their own conveyances and by reducing the amount claimed for the services of counsel to the sum of $75. The said trustee has my permission to withdraw said warrant and tax list and correct the same as herein indicated. In case this is done, restitution must be made to such of the taxpayers in the district as have paid the amount levied against them by the said tax list, or, at least by restoring so much of the amounts so paid respectively, as will be in excess of the amount which they will be obliged to pay under the modified and corrected tax list. In the meantime, the matter will be held in abeyance, and upon proof of such modification being made, the appeal will be dismissed.

3399

Expenses of a member of the board of education in defending action brought against him are chargeable against the district.

Decided March 12, 1885

Ruggles, Superintendent

This appeal is brought from the action of the annual meeting in ordering payment of the sum of $235 to one of the trustees for the legal expenses incurred by him in defending certain actions brought against him.

From November 28, 1882, until June 30, 1883, Sandford S. Gowdey was employed as principal teacher in the school in that district. The board of education in May 1883, assumed to discharge Gowdey from the duties of his office, the discharge to take effect on the 30th of June 1883. In July 1883, Gowdey claimed that he had not been legally discharged, and appeared at the schoolhouse of the district and interfered with a teacher, employed by the board of education in the discharge of her duties, and ordered her and the trustees to vacate the school at once. Gowdey insisted upon his right of possession of the schoolhouse as teacher for several days thereafter. Finally the board held a special meeting to consider what action should be taken in the premises to stop the intrusion of Gowdey, and at the meeting a resolution was unanimously adopted directing George W. Payne, the president of the board, to employ counsel to "defend" the board in the matter of the dispute between said board and Gowdey. Payne was advised by counsel to make complaint to a justice of the peace and have said Gowdey arrested forthwith. On the 8th of September Payne reported to the board the retaining of Benjamin W. Downing as counsel and the advice given by him, and the board then and there adopted a resolution, instructing Payne to cause the arrest of said Gowdey. Acting under this instruction, Payne made a complaint against Gowdey to Justice Van Nostrand, of Flushing, who issued a warrant for his arrest. The case coming on for trial, counsel deeming the warrant irregular withdrew it, and immediately procured another from the justice. The prisoner was immediately rearrested and thereupon tried and acquitted. After his acquittal, Gowdey brought two suits against Payne in the Supreme Court in Queens county, one for false imprisonment and one for malicious prosecution, laying his damages at $10,000 in each suit. These suits were tried at the January circuit following. The plaintiff was nonsuited in both cases. The first case was dismissed on the ground that the warrant was a good one, and in the second case (the action for malicious prosecution), on the ground that upon his own testimony, there was probable cause for the arrest of the plaintiff by the trustee, for disturbing the school. Following this a suit was brought by Payne's counsel in these cases, in a justice's court, against the board of education, some time in June or July 1884. In this suit the complaint charged that the plaintiff and B. W. Downing, rendered certain services for said board, at its request, and that the reasonable value of such services was $200. The answer of the defendant denied that the services were rendered at the request of the defendant, or for its benefit. The judgment for the defendant in this case seems to have been based upon the ground that the plaintiff never had any privity with the defendant, and that he failed to show that he legally derived his claim through any person who was in privity with such defendant. The counsel, Drew and Downing, thereupon demanded payment for these services from the trustee Payne, who at the annual meeting presented an account in writing of the costs, charges and expenses paid by him, with the items thereof, verified by his oath or affirmation, and asked the adoption of the resolution by the meeting, that the same might be assessed upon the taxable property of the district, and when collected to be paid over to said Payne.

There are two questions worthy of consideration in this case:

1 Was the determination of the case of Drew against the board of education of such a character as to constitute res adjudicata?

2 Was Payne a district officer within the meaning of sections 7 and 8, title 13, of the Code of Public Instruction?

A party setting up an estoppel by reason of a former adjudication, must by competent evidence prove affirmatively that the issues on the former adjudication were the same, and between the same parties or their privies. Now, it appears that the action of Drew against the board of education proceeded upon the theory that he and his partner, Downing, were employed by the board. The judgment of dismissal in this case was based upon the ground that they were not so employed, and this was undoubtedly correct. Downing and Drew were employed by direction of the board of education in a criminal action against Gowdey, out of which grew the suits for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution brought by Gowdey against Payne, who had, in the criminal action, made the complaint under the direction of the board. It can not be held that the judgment of dismissal, in the action of Drew against the board of education, could in any way estop a district meeting from legally adopting the resolution from which this appeal is taken, if Payne was a district officer, within the meaning of sections 7 and 8, title 13 of the Code of Public Instruction. This leads to the second question.

Was Payne a district officer within the meaning of sections 7 and 8, title 13 of the Code of Public Instruction?

While the board of education is a corporation, and the individuality of its members is lost sight of in the action of the board, yet each member of the board must be regarded as a school officer; especially so, where the board delegates to, or charges a member with, certain definite duties. Such was the case in the proceeding which led to the resolution of the annual meeting and to this appeal. The board of education vexed and annoyed by the action of Gowdey, whom they had assumed to discharge from his position as teacher by a formal resolution, directed the president to take legal advice as to the best means to defend the board under the circumstances. Payne did as he was directed, and reported back to the board the advice he received, and was in terms empowered and directed to cause the arrest of Gowdey for disturbing the school. All these proceedings were taken in good faith; Gowdey was arrested, tried and acquitted. Up to this point the board of education was directly responsible for the action of its agent, and had suit been brought by counsel against the board for services in this criminal proceeding, and for the advice given to Payne, acting as its agent and president, there can be no doubt that recovery would have been had. But now, Gowdey commenced his two actions in the Supreme Court against Payne. There is no doubt, from the evidence, that in the trial of these two cases it was shown that Payne's action in the arrest of Gowdey was taken as trustee; and in these cases he was forced to defend the suits brought against him for his action as trustee. So, that from the beginning to the end of the controversy, Payne acted in his capacity as a district officer. I think there can be no doubt these actions involved the rights and interests of the district, and that it was within the province of the district to provide for the payment of the reasonable costs, charges and expenses of the district officers.

4652

In the matter of the appeal of Louis F. Metz as trustee of school district 8, Ridgeway, Orleans county, from action of special school meeting in school district 8, Ridgeway, Orleans county, held on January 28, 1898.

Where a school district meeting refuses to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by a district officer in defending an appeal brought against him for his official acts, an appeal will lie to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction from such refusal. If, upon such appeal, it is established that the appeal so defended by the district officer was taken wholly from his official acts, or contained allegations charging him as such officer with acting improperly or illegally, and the expenses paid by him in such defence are reasonable, the State Superintendent has jurisdiction and may make such order therein by directing the levying of a tax or otherwise as shall, in his judgment, be proper and necessary to give effect to such decision.

Decided May 13, 1898

Harry Cooper, attorney for appellant

Irving L'Hommedieu, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of a special school district meeting held in school district 8, Ridgeway, Orleans county, January 28, 1898, in refusing to vote a tax for the sum of $30 to pay the expenses incurred by the appellant in defending an appeal brought against him for his official acts as trustee of such district.

Watson H. Whipple, a qualified voter of such school district, has answered the appeal and alleges that the appellant defended the appeal as an individual and not as trustee; that such defence was made by him without the authorization or sanction of the inhabitants of such district.

From the proofs herein, and from the records of this Department, it appears that the appellant was the trustee of such district for the school year of 1896-97; that on August 3, 1897, the annual school meeting was held in such district.

at which certain proceedings were taken, from which one Bowen and the respondent herein appealed to me, alleging in such appeal, among other things, that said trustee Metz "had resorted to deceitful, fraudulent and unlawful tactics in order to secure his reelection as trustee," etc.; that he had called such meeting to order at 7.30 p. m. when the notice of the meeting, as posted by the clerk, states that the meeting would be held at 8 p. m.; that the proceedings of the meeting were principally taken and the meeting adjourned before the majority of the voters of the district arrived at the schoolhouse, etc.; that the election of district officers was illegal and that illegal votes were received: that a copy of the appeal was served upon trustee Metz, who employed counsel and filed his answer thereto.

Upon the proofs filed in such appeal it appears that on July 29, 1897, trustee Metz inquired of the district clerk whether he had posted notices of the annual meeting, and was informed that he had not, and thereupon was directed by the trustee to post such notices; that such clerk posted one notice in which he stated that the meeting would be held on August 3, 1897, at 8 o'clock p. m.; that on the evening of August 3, 1897, nearly all of the qualified voters of the district assembled in the schoolhouse, or upon the schoolhouse grounds, and a discussion arose as to whether the meeting could be legally organized at 7.30 or 8 p. m., and Trustee Metz stated to those present that the clerk had not inserted in the notice posted the hour fixed by the school law for holding the meeting, and the meeting would be called to order at 7.30, and requested all present to come into the schoolhouse and be present at such meeting; that about one-half of the voters present entered the schoolhouse and took part in the meeting, the others remaining outside and declining to take part in such meeting; that after the adjournment of the annual meeting the persons who declined to enter the schoolhouse held a meeting and voted to appeal from the action of the annual meeting, and said Bowen and Whipple appealed.

In my decision of such appeal I decided that such annual meeting was legally held, and that Metz was legally elected trustee; that there was no one elected district clerk, and that the collector was not legally elected, nor was the tax legally voted, and directed that a special meeting be called for the purpose of electing a district clerk and collector, and to vote upon the question of levying a tax or taxes.

It also appears that Trustee Metz called a special meeting of the district, to be held on October 12, 1897, to transact the business directed by my decision, but added thereto a notice that such meeting would also be asked to vote a tax to defray the expenses of the trustee incurred by him in defending the appeal brought by Bowen and Whipple; that such special meeting refused to vote such tax; that Trustee Metz appealed from such refusal, and the respondent herein answered said appeal, alleging therein (as in his answer herein) that Metz did not defend the appeal of Bowen and Whipple as trustee, but as an individual, and such appeal was not taken from the official acts of Metz, and that he was not requested by the inhabitants to defend. He also alleges that as such special meeting was called pursuant to the directions contained in my decision for specific purposes, the action of the meeting in voting upon the expenses incurred by Metz was without authority.

In my decision of the appeal of Metz I stated that the contention of the respondent, Whipple, that Metz did not answer the appeal of Bowen and Whipple as trustee but as an individual, was not well taken; that as such appeal charges Metz in his acts as trustee with deceitful and fraudulent practices to secure his reelection as trustee, such appeal was brought from his official acts relative to such annual meeting; that upon the facts established he acted properly in defending such appeal; that the sum of $30 paid by him as expenses in such defense was reasonable, and that no good reason was shown why the qualified voters of school district 8, Ridgeway, should not vote a tax to pay the same.

In subdivision 15 of section 14, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that the inhabitants entitled to vote, when duly assembled in any district meeting duly called and held, have power, by a majority of the votes of those present, to vote a tax to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them* for their official acts, or in prosecuting suits or appeals brought by direction of the district.

When an appeal is brought, which alleges improper or illegal acts on the part of a district officer, such officer may apply to, and obtain from, a district meeting authority to defend the same, or he may defend such appeal without such authority. If defended without obtaining such authority from the district he can present to an annual meeting, or a special meeting of the district, duly called, a statement of the expenses incurred by him in such defense, and such meeting has authority to vote a tax to pay the reasonable expenses so incurred by him. If the meeting refuses to vote a tax he may appeal from such refusal to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction under title 14 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894. If upon such appeal it is established that the appeal defended by such district officer was taken wholly from his official acts, or contained allegations charging such officer with acting improperly or illegally, and that the expenses paid by him in such defence are reasonable, the State Superintendent has jurisdiction to entertain such appeal, and may make such order therein by directing the levying of a tax or otherwise as shall, in his judgment, be proper and necessary to give effect to such decision.

I decide:

That the said appeal of Bowen and Whipple was brought not only from certain proceedings taken at the annual school meeting, held in school district 8, Ridgeway, Orleans county, on August 3, 1897, but from certain improper and illegal acts done by Metz as trustee of said district; that said Metz, as such trustee, properly interposed a defence to such appeal; that the sum of $30 incurred and paid by him in defending such appeal is reasonable.

It is ordered, That for the purpose of giving effect to my decision herein, Louis F. Metz, as trustee of school district 8, Ridgeway, Orleans county, is directed to levy a tax for the sum of $30 upon the real and personal property subject to taxation in such district for school purposes, to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by him in defending the said appeal brought by Messrs Bowen and Whipple, charging therein improper and illegal acts on the part of said Metz as trustee of such district.

4507

In the matter of the appeal of Harvey D. Titch from proceedings of annual school meeting held August 4, 1896, in district no. 10, town of Andes, Delaware county.

Under the provisions of subdivision 15 of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, the inhabitants entitled to vote, when duly assembled in any district meeting, shall have power, by a majority of the votes of those present, to vote a tax to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them for their official acts or in prosecuting suits or appeals by the direction of the district against other parties.

The provisions contained in sections 4 to 8, inclusive, of article 1, title 15, of the school law, have reference solely to the prosecution or defense by trustees of school districts in actions or proceedings brought by or against them in the courts of the State, but not expenses incurred by district officers in defending appeals brought to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Decided November 7, 1896

Williams & Conlon, attorneys for appellant

Wagner & Fisher, attorneys for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held on August 4, 1896, in school district no. 10, town of Andes, Delaware county, in the adoption of a resolution that so much of an account of Wagner & Fisher, amounting to the sum of $142.50, as exceeds the sum of $15 therein, be audited and allowed at said amount, and said sum be included in the tax list as asked for by the trustee in his report, upon the ground that the part of the said account amounting to $127.50 is not a proper charge against said district.

Frank B. Scudder, as trustee of said district, has answered said appeal.

The items in the account of said Wagner & Fisher to which the appellant objects are:

For services and disbursements in the appeal of Lewis C. Titch, against John G. Scudder, trustee, and William Middlemist, collector of said district:

Drawing answer and affidavits and making copies for services.....	$25 00
Drawing rejoinder, affidavits and making copies for services.....	25 00
Three days' service in drawing brief.....	30 00
Disbursements in said appeal.....	7 50

For services before county judge in the appeal of Harvey D. Titch from the action of school meeting held December 10, 1895, in refusing to allow said Titch the expenses incurred by him in defending an appeal:

Services before county judge, making argument, copying decision, serving same, and disbursements made.....	30 00
Services in the Matter of the Appeal of Rene M. Jackson.....	10 00

$127 50

It appears that on or about January 1, 1896, one Lewis C. Titch appealed to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction from the action of John G. Scudder, trustee, and William Middlemist, collector of said district and that said trustee and collector employed the law firm of Wagner & Fisher to defend them in said appeal; that in August 1895, William Middlemist appealed to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held in said district in August 1895, at which Harvey D. Titch was claimed to have been elected trustee, and that said Titch employed counsel to defend said appeal, and at a special school meeting held in said district on December 10, 1895, said Titch presented to said meeting an account amounting to $51.44 for expenses incurred by him in defending said appeal and asked to have said amount allowed to him; but said meeting refused to allow any part thereof, and said Titch presented the matter to the county judge of Delaware county, who decided that no part of said claim of Titch ought to be charged to said district; that at a meeting held in said district on December 21, 1895, at the house of one Calvin Smith, John Smith and William Middlemist were appointed a committee to represent said district before said county judge in said matter of the claim of said Harvey D. Titch; that said committee employed said Wagner & Fisher as their counsel in the hearing before said county judge; that in January 1896, Rene M. Jackson brought an appeal to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction from the refusal of John G. Scudder, trustee of said district, to pay her the sum due to her for services rendered as a teacher in the school in said district, and said trustee employed said Wagner & Fisher to defend said appeal.

It does not appear that said Harvey D. Titch, as trustee, in defending the appeal of Middlemist, nor said Scudder, trustee, and Middlemist, collector, in defending the appeal of Lewis C. Titch, nor said Scudder, trustee, in defending the appeal of Miss Jackson, were or any one of them was, authorized by a vote of the district to make such defense.

In subdivision 15 of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that the inhabitants entitled to vote, when duly assembled in any district meeting, shall have power, by a majority of the votes of those present, to vote a tax to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them for their official acts, or in prosecuting suits or appeals by direction of the district against other parties.

Under the provisions of the school law above cited, when an appeal, in any school district, is taken by any voter or voters of said district, from the proceedings of a school meeting or from the acts of any school district officer, or the refusal of such district officer to act, to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, or when a suit in the courts is brought against any district officer, a special meeting of such district may be called for the purpose of determining whether the district shall defend such appeal or suit. If such meeting shall determine to defend the appeal or suit, then, under section 51, article 6, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law, any reasonable expense incurred in said defense is a charge upon the district, and the trustee or trustees may raise the amount thereof by tax in the same manner as if the definite sum to be raised had been voted by a district meeting.

When, however, no authorization to defend the appeal or suit is given by the district, and the trustee or trustees of the district in good faith believe the appeal or suit should be defended, he or they should employ competent counsel to assist in such defense, and when the appeal or suit is decided, an account for the expenses incurred by the district officer or officers in such defense should be presented at an annual or special meeting of the district, and such meeting has authority to vote a tax to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by said district officer or officers therefor.

In the appeal of Lewis C. Titch, Scudder, as trustee, and Middlemist, as collector, without any authorization of the district, defended the appeal and employed counsel who rendered services therein and the account for such services was presented at the annual meeting and the aggregate amount of $87.50 allowed by said meeting. I can not say that the amount allowed was not reasonable for the services rendered, and the action of the meeting in allowing the same is approved.

The appeal of Miss Jackson was brought while the appeal of Lewis C. Titch was pending and undetermined, and Scudder, as trustee, defended the appeal and employed counsel therefor. The counsel for the appellant and respondent therein stipulated for a stay therein until the Lewis C. Titch appeal was decided. The charge of counsel of Trustee Scudder in the appeal of Miss Jackson was not unreasonable, and the district meeting allowed it, and such action is approved.

The remaining item for consideration is the charge of Wagner & Fisher, as counsel for a committee of the district before the county judge, in opposing the claim of Harvey D. Titch for expenses incurred in defending an appeal brought under title 14 of the Consolidated School Law, by William Middlemist from the proceedings of the annual school meeting in said district, held in August 1895, which expenses a school meeting refused to allow, or to vote a tax to pay.

In the Code of Civil Procedure the word "action," as used in the new revision of the statutes, when applied to judicial proceedings, signifies an ordinary prosecution, in a court of justice, by a party against another party, for the enforcement or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or the punishment of a public offense (section 3333, Code of Civil Procedure). Every other prosecution by a party, for either of the purposes specified in the last section, is a special proceeding (section 3334, Code of Civil Procedure).

By section 1926 of the Code of Civil Procedure it is enacted that an action or special proceeding may be maintained by the trustee or trustees of a school district; and by section 1931, an execution can be issued upon a judgment for a sum of money, rendered against the trustee or trustees of a school district in an action or special proceeding brought by or against him or them in his or their official capacity, and may be collected out of the property of the trustee or trustees, and the sum must be allowed to him or them, in the settlement of his or their official accounts, except as otherwise specifically prescribed by law.

Subdivisions 15 and 17 of section 14, article 1, title 7, and sections 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 of article 1, title 15, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, provide for reimbursing the trustee or trustees of school districts for costs, expenses and judgments paid in actions and proceedings in the courts.

Harvey D. Titch, when the school meeting refused to allow, or to vote a tax to pay, the reasonable expenses incurred by him in defending the appeal to the State Superintendent by Middlemist, seems to have entertained the belief that under sections 4 to 8, inclusive, he could appeal from the action of said meeting to the county judge of his county. In this he was mistaken, as the expenses he had incurred were not incurred in defending any action or proceeding brought against him as trustee in the courts, nor for any costs or damages adjudged against him as such trustee in the courts, and the county judge had no jurisdiction of such appeal to him.

Sections 4 to 8, inclusive, have reference solely to the prosecution or defense by trustees of school districts in actions or proceedings brought by or against them in the courts of the State, and not expenses incurred by district officers in defending appeals brought to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The alleged special meeting held at the house of Calvin Smith, on December 21, 1895, at which the committee was appointed to represent the district before the county judge on the appeal of Harvey D. Titch, was, on appeal to me, declared to be illegal and void, and all proceedings had and taken thereat vacated and set aside.

Assuming, for the purpose of argument only, that said committee was legally appointed, and said Titch was authorized to appeal to the county judge, I concur with Superintendent Draper in the opinion expressed by him in decision no. 3558, rendered January 28, 1887, that whether such committee had the right to employ counsel is not free from doubt.

I decide that the annual school meeting held in said district on August 4, 1896, did not have authority to vote a tax to pay the sum of $30 for the services of Wagner & Fisher as counsel for said committee or district in the hearing before the county judge upon the said appeal taken to him by Harvey D. Titch.

The appeal herein is sustained as to so much thereof as is taken from the item of $30 allowed at said annual meeting, and as to all other matters it is dismissed.

It is ordered, That so much of the proceedings of the annual school meeting held in district no. 10, town of Andes, Delaware county, on August 4, 1896, as allowed the item of $30 for the services of Wagner & Fisher, before the county judge of the said county, upon the appeal to him of Harvey D. Titch, be, and the same is, vacated and set aside.

4890

In the matter of the appeal of Squire M. Brown and Alfred E. Stacey from certain proceedings taken at the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district 9, Elbridge, Onondaga county.

Under the Consolidated School Law of 1894, the qualified voters duly assembled at a school meeting in any school district, have the power, by a majority vote, to levy a tax to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them for their official acts.

The trustees of school districts have the power, when the schoolhouse is not in repair, or not properly ventilated or heated, or has been injured or damaged by the elements, or is not of sufficient capacity to accommodate the children attending school in the district, to hire rooms temporarily, and levy a tax to pay the rent thereof.

Decided October 9, 1900

Lewis & Crowley, attorneys for appellants

Northrup & Northrup, attorneys for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal taken from the action of the annual school meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district 9, Elbridge, Onondaga county, in authorizing the levy of a tax for the sum of $85 for the payment of expenses incurred by the trustees of such district in defending a suit or action brought against them for their official acts; and authorizing the levy of a tax for the sum of $100 for the payment of the rent of certain rooms in the Munro academy.

The appellants allege, as the grounds for bringing their appeal, in substance, that the levy of a tax for the sum of $85 was illegal and void, because the bill for such sum was not properly presented or verified, and had not been paid by the trustees, and was not incurred in the exercise of their official duties; that the levy of a tax for $100 for rent of rooms in the Munro academy is illegal and contrary to the interests of the district and the taxpayers therein, and contrary to the policy and practice of the Department of Public Instruction in regard to district property.

Messrs Ranney, Allen and Cone, as trustees of such district, have answered the appeal.

The following facts are established from the pleadings and proofs filed herein:

In June 1899 certain proceedings were taken under the provisions contained in article 1, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the acts amendatory thereof, for the consolidation of school districts 8, 9 and 10, Elbridge, Onondaga county, by the establishment of a union school therefor and therein; that the trustees of school district 10, Elbridge, brought an action in the Supreme Court against Messrs Allen, Templar and Ranney, then trustees of said school district 10, individually and as such trustees, and against the trustees of school district 8, and others, alleging certain irregularities and illegal acts in proceedings taken to consolidate said school districts 8, 9 and 10 by the establishment of a union school therefor and therein; and upon the complaint and affidavits, and without notice to the defendants, on or about August 28, 1899, obtained a preliminary injunction restraining the defendants from further proceedings in the establishment of such union school during the pendency of such action; that the said trustees of district 10 employed the firm of Northrup & Northrup, counselors at law, residing in Syracuse, N. Y., to appear, act for them and defend the said suit brought against them: who did appear and perform services for said trustees therein: that upon an order to show cause, and an argument for and against the continuance of the said injunction, such injunction was continued during the pendency of such action; that no trial of said action upon the merits was ever had, but after the making of the order aforesaid, upon a stipulation of the respective parties, an order was entered at a special term of the Supreme Court, held at Syracuse, October 14, 1899, discontinuing said action without costs to either party as against the other, and thereupon and in the manner aforesaid, said litigation, in respect to the said proceedings for the consolidation of such districts 8, 9 and 10, by the establishment of a union school therefor and therein, ended without any final decision of the court as to whether such proceedings were, or were not, legal; that said firm of Northrup & Northrup presented to said trustees a bill for the services so rendered, as aforesaid and for which the trustees had become personally liable to pay, amounting to the sum of $85; that bill was presented at the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in said school district 9, and a motion or resolution appropriating the sum of $85, and to include said sum in the tax levy for the payment of the same, was adopted, the vote thereon being taken by ballot, 22 persons voting for and 6 against.

That a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district 9, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, duly called, was held therein June 8, 1900, to consider the advisability of building an addition to the schoolhouse therein, or for the renting of part of the Munro academy, and hiring a third teacher; that a resolution was adopted by a vote of 27 in favor and 6 against, ascertained by a ballot being taken, authorizing the trustees of said school district 9 to rent of the trustees of the Munro academy the three east rooms in said academy, in which to conduct the school of such district upon the terms and conditions stated at such meeting; that the conditions of such rental so made by said trustees are to continue for two years with the privilege of ten years, the rent for the first year to be $50, and making certain changes to the extent of $50; that after one year it shall be $100, with the option to either party to terminate the lease or contract by giving six months' notice prior to the end of the school year, the trustees of the district agreeing to vacate such rooms at any time in favor of a normal school if one shall be established therein; that at said annual meeting, held August 7, 1900, a motion was adopted by a vote of 22 for and 2 against, ascertained by a ballot, that the sum of $100 be appropriated for rent of, and changes in, such rooms so rented and authorizing such sum to be included in the tax levy; that the school in said district, for the present school year, opened September 10, 1900, in the three rooms in such academy, so rented, with three teachers and an attendance of 93 scholars.

It is also established that the schoolhouse of said district is a two story building with one room below and one above, having but one stairway; that it is an extremely cold building; that there is no mode of ventilation; that it is unsanitary; that it will not accommodate over 75 scholars while the number of scholars now attending the school in the rooms in the Munro academy is 93, of which number only 8 are nonresidents; that the entire number of children of school age in the district, by the last census, is 127.

The respondents allege that the action of the district in renting and occupying the rooms in the Munro academy is intended to be temporary only, and to await the outcome of a movement that has been inaugurated for the establishment of a normal school to be located in said academy; that should the efforts to establish such normal school fail, steps will be taken for permanently improving the schoolhouse of the district, or building a new schoolhouse.

The contention of the appellants that the action of the annual school meeting, held August 7, 1900, in the appropriation of the sum of $85, and to include such sum in the tax list, was illegal and void, is not well taken.

Under the provisions contained in subdivision 15 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, the qualified voters duly assembled at a school meeting in any district, have the power, by a majority vote, to levy a tax to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them for their official acts.

The proofs herein show that the trustees of district 9 were sued in the Supreme Court for official acts performed by them; that they employed competent legal counsel to defend them in such suit; that such counsel performed services therein for which they charged the sum of $85; that such sum was reasonable; that the school meeting had the legal authority to vote to appropriate money to pay said sum and to authorize the same to be included in the district tax.

The contention of the appellants that the action of the special school meeting, held June 8, 1900, in authorizing the trustees to rent of the trustees of the Munro academy certain rooms therein in which to conduct the school of the district, and the action of the annual meeting in appropriating the sum of $100 to pay such rent is illegal, is not tenable.

Subdivision 5 of section 47, article 6, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 provides that it shall be the duty of the trustees of every school district, and they shall have power, to hire rooms or buildings for school purposes, and to keep such rooms in repair, etc.

Subdivision 8 of section 14, article 1, title 7, provides that the school district meetings have the power to vote a tax to hire or purchase rooms or buildings for schoolrooms, etc., and to keep the same in repair, etc.

It is the policy of the school law and of this Department that school districts should own the buildings in which their schools are maintained. Neither the school law nor this Department favors the hiring of rooms for school purposes, in any school district except temporarily, and then only when the schoolhouse of the district is not in repair or not properly ventilated and heated, or has been injured or damaged by the elements, or is not of sufficient capacity to accommodate the children attending the school in the district.

It is in proof that at the time of the contract for the renting of rooms in the Munro academy, the schoolhouse was not of sufficient capacity to accommodate the children of the district, with no mode of ventilation, unsanitary, and difficult to heat. The renting of said rooms was temporary, the agreement containing a clause that either party could terminate the lease by giving six months' notice prior to the end of the school year.

It is in proof that the school meeting at which the trustees were authorized to enter into such lease, was held June 8, 1900. No appeal has been taken to me from the proceedings of such meeting. This Department has uniformly held that where no appeal has been duly and legally taken from the action of a school meeting, so far as this Department is concerned such action will be deemed to have been legal and valid.

The special meeting, held June 8, 1900, having duly and legally authorized the respondents herein to rent said rooms and to make changes therein, the expense of which the first year was not to exceed $100, and no appeal having been duly and legally taken from such action, the respondents had the legal authority to raise by tax said sum without any further action at any district meeting.

September 11, 1900, upon petition of the appellants, I made an order staying all proceedings on the part of the respondents herein as trustees of said district in the payment of said sums of $85 and $100 respectively, and staying all proceedings on the part of the collector of such district in the collection of the taxes assessed in a tax list delivered to him by said trustees with their warrant on or about September 5, 1900, until the hearing and decision of the appeal herein, or until a further order should be made by me herein.

I decide that the appellants herein have failed in establishing their appeal herein and such appeal should be dismissed and said order of stay, made September 11, 1900, should be vacated.

The appeal herein is dismissed and said order of September 11, 1900, is hereby vacated.

5433

In the matter of the appeal of Olney A. Gifford from the tax list and warrant issued in school district no. 1, towns of Sidney and Unadilla, counties of Delaware and Otsego.

Equalization of taxes in joint districts; failure to conform to order of supervisors.

A taxpayer may not appeal from the failure of a board of education to conform to the order of supervisors in equalizing the taxes in a district comprising a portion of two or more towns, unless he is injuriously affected by the failure of the board to comply with such order.

Notice of collection of taxes. The neglect of a collector to post a copy of the collector's notice of the collection of taxes on the door of the schoolhouse, as required by section 397 of the Education Law of 1909, does not nullify the tax list and warrant nor justify an order invalidating the proceedings of a board of education in respect to the collection of taxes.

Decided January 6, 1910

Olney A. Gifford, attorney for appellant

Charles H. Seeley, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

This appeal is brought from the tax list and warrant of union free school district no. 1, towns of Sidney and Unadilla, counties of Delaware and Otsego, which was prepared by the board of education of such district and delivered to the collector thereof on the 7th day of September 1909. The district is a joint district embracing parts of the towns of Sidney and Unadilla. An application was duly made by taxpayers in the district for an equalization of the value of the taxable real property within the parts of the two towns embraced within the district. The supervisors of the towns met as provided by law, and determined that "96¼ per cent of all taxes levied upon the real property of the town of Sidney lying in said district, and 3¾ per cent of all taxes levied on the real property of said district should be assessed upon the real property of the town of Unadilla lying in said district."

The appellant insists that the board of education, in making its tax list, did not conform to the order of the supervisors, in that they failed to assess upon the real property alone, the portion of the taxes levied upon real property in the district. It is apparent that the board levied upon both the real and personal property in the parts of the two towns comprised in the district, the percentage of the entire tax to be levied in the district. What should have been done was first to ascertain the portion of the entire tax of the district to be borne by the real property in the district, and then impose 96¼ per cent of this amount upon the real property situated in the part of the district in the town of Sidney, and impose the remaining 3¾ per cent upon the real property situated in the part of the district in the town of Unadilla. If this course had been pursued, the tax to be paid by the part of the district in the town of Sidney would have been increased a very few dollars—not more than fifteen. Special franchises are included as real property, leaving only about $20,000 of personal property valuation out of a total of about $660,000 to be affected by the error. The discrepancy caused by the error is very small. Taxpayers residing in the town of Sidney benefit by the error, while those residing in the town of Unadilla are adversely affected. The appellant does not allege where he resides; the respondent alleges that he is not aggrieved by the mistake complained of, since he does not pay a tax upon personal property. The fact that he is not assessed on personal property in the district does not affect his standing in this proceeding. But unless he is a resident of the part of the town of Unadilla comprised in the district, he is not injured by the alleged error, and should not be heard to complain.

Another allegation of the petition pertains to the collector's notice. Its form is apparently sufficient. It was posted throughout the district in a number of conspicuous places, on the 7th day of September, and the time of receiving taxes at 1 per cent was stated therein to expire October 6th, which was thirty days after the notice was so posted. But it seems that the collector neglected to post a copy of the notice on the door of the schoolhouse as required by the statute (Education Law, § 397). This was a mistake which is admitted by the collector, but it does not necessarily nullify the tax list and warrant, nor does it justify an order invalidating the proceedings of the board in respect thereto. A large portion of the taxes on the tax list had been paid before this appeal was brought. The warrant was executed by the board September 6, 1909; it was delivered to the collector September 7, 1909, and notices were posted on the same day, and published September 11, 1909. Under such circumstances the appellant is too late to raise the question as to the sufficiency of the posting of the notice.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

ASSESSMENTS

Personal property in the hands or under the control of any executor or administrator must be assessed in the district where such executor or administrator resides.

Decided April 10, 1884

Ruggles, Superintendent

William C. Fields, late of the village of Laurens, Oswego county, died there on the 27th of October 1882, leaving a last will and testament in which executors were appointed. The will was admitted to probate and the executors duly qualified. The executors are residents of Albany, and had not been residents of the town of Laurens at any time for five years previous to the assessment appealed from.

The trustee of school district no. 2, Laurens, assessed the personal estate of said Fields, deceased, in that district. The appeal is brought by the executors from such assessment.

These facts bring the case within the provisions of the statute, that personal property in the hands of, or under the control of, any executor or administrator is assessable, where the administrator or executor resides, and not elsewhere. (Section 5, article 1, title 2, chapter 13, part 1, Revised Statutes.)

RESCISSION

When a special meeting had voted a tax for building a new house, and had adjourned four weeks to consider proposals for building, and at the adjourned meeting voted to rescind the vote levying the tax, the vote to rescind was legal and valid, even though the tax list had been made out, and a part of the tax voluntarily paid.

Decided February 18, 1858

Van Dyck, Superintendent

At a special meeting duly called a vote was taken and carried, ayes 28, noes 24, to raise $1000 by tax on the district, for the purpose of building a new schoolhouse. The meeting then adjourned for four weeks for the purpose of receiving propositions that might meantime be submitted to the trustees relative to site. At the adjourned meeting a motion was carried to reconsider the vote of the last meeting, after which the meeting adjourned sine die.

In the meantime the tax list for the $1000 had been made out, and a part of the same had been voluntarily collected before the adjourned meeting; but this will avail nothing, as the trustees could not issue their warrant till the expiration of thirty days after the tax was voted. No legal collection could therefore have been made before that time. Voluntary payments may have been made which the trustees would be authorized to receive, but these are not such collections as the courts contemplate in order to place the repeal of a tax levy beyond the power of a district meeting.

It is assumed by the appellants that the special meeting being adjourned for a specific purpose, no other business could be transacted than that specified in the notice for adjournment. This is an error. The meeting was competent to transact any business brought before it.

From the evidence before me, I am compelled to regard the proceedings of the adjourned meeting as a fair expression of the will of the district upon levying the tax, and it is unfavorable to such action. The vote at the adjourned meeting is much larger than that of the special meeting; it is plain, therefore, that no advantage was taken of the absence of any considerable number of the voters by the majority in their vote to rescind the tax. Under these circumstances, therefore, the proceedings of the adjourned meeting are declared legal and are hereby affirmed.

5240

In the matter of the appeal of Round Lake Association and Round Lake Summer Institute from the assessment made against said association and against the property of said institute by the board of education of district no. 9, town of Malta, Saratoga county, for the year 1905, and also from certain acts of the collector of said district in refusing to receive certain taxes.

The school law does not confer upon district trustees the power to review in their discretion the assessments made by town assessors.

The power of such trustees to assess property is only incidental to their general functions and is restricted to cases of emergency or to correcting undisputed errors for which the law distinctly provides.

Decided February 16, 1906

Irwin Esmond, attorney for appellants

Draper, Commissioner

The Round Lake Association is a domestic corporation organized and existing under the provisions of chapter 617 of the Laws of 1868 and the acts amendatory thereof.

This corporation acquired title to certain real estate located in the town of Malta, Saratoga county. This real estate was divided into lots, streets were established, etc., and such lots leased. These lots were leased for a period of 99 years and renewable to the lessee, "his heirs and assigns for a like term of years forever." For some time there has been a difference of opinion between the town assessors and the Round Lake Association as to whom this real property should be assessed. The association has contended that these lots should be assessed to the individual lessee while the town assessors have claimed that they should be assessed to the Round Lake Association. The town assessors in assessing property for the year 1905 assessed each of these lots separately but to the Round Lake Association.

It appears that on August 25, 1905, an agreed statement of facts relating to this controversy was presented to the State Tax Commissioners and a stipulation entered into between the assessors of the town of Malta and the Round Lake Association by which the parties thereto agreed that the decision of the said tax commissioners on the questions therein presented for determination should "be final and binding upon all the parties hereto with respect to the said assessments for the year 1905, and that no other or further proceedings shall be instituted for the purpose of reviewing said assessments for said year."

It also appears that the State Tax Commissioners referred all matters submitted to them and pertaining to this subject to the Attorney General and on September 13, 1905, that officer wrote an opinion on the questions presented, holding that the real estate in question had been erroneously assessed and that such property should be assessed to the individual lessees and not to the Round Lake Association. This opinion appears to have been filed with the town assessors of the town of Malta on September 15, 1905, the last day allowed assessors under section 38 of the tax law for filing with town clerks the completed and verified assessment roll of the town.

The town assessors do not appear to have been governed by the opinion expressed by the Attorney General and the State Tax Commissioners. No change was made by the town assessors in the method of assessment of the property in question before filing the completed and verified assessment roll of the town with the town clerk.

It further appears that William A. Bedell, supervisor of the town of Malta, Saratoga county, petitioned the board of supervisors of said county to change the assessment of the property in question from the Round Lake Association to the individual lessees of such property pursuant to the provisions of section 60 of the tax law. On December 6, 1905, the law and finance committee of that board, to whom had been referred the petition of Supervisor Bedell, made a report recommending that said petition be given favorable consideration. The report of this committee also contained the opinion of the Attorney General to the effect that the board of supervisors possessed the power under section 60 of the tax law to make such change. This report was adopted and the board of supervisors directed Supervisor Bedell of the town of Malta to change the assessment of this property on the town assessment roll from the Round Lake Association to the individual lessees of such property.

None of the questions above mentioned came within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education. They have been recited here because of the relation which they bear to the questions which are within his jurisdiction and which we are now to consider.

On October 25, 1905, the board of education of school district no. 9, town of Malta, issued a tax list and warrant and placed such list in the hands of the collector of the district for collection. The boundaries of the Round Lake Association grounds appear to be identical with the boundaries of this school district. The property in question is therefore all located within the boundaries of such school district. The president of the board of education is one of the town assessors and his views on the matter of assessing this property for school purposes would of course be the same as his views on the method of assessing such property for town and county purposes.

Section 63 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law provides that school district taxes shall be apportioned by trustees upon all the real estate within the boundaries of the district and that such property shall be assessed to the person or persons or corporation owning or possessing the same at the time such tax list shall be made out. Section 64 of the same title provides that the valuations of taxable property shall be ascertained so far as possible from the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors. It is therefore the duty of trustees in making out a tax list to assess real estate to the person or corporation owning it at the time such tax list is made out and at the valuation at which such property is assessed upon the latest completed and verified assessment roll of the town. If it is known by the trustees at the time the tax list is made out that the title to a parcel of real estate has been transferred since the assessment made by the town assessors, it is the duty of the trustees to assess such property to the owner thereof at that time and in such amount as the property is assessed on the town assessment roll.

Section 65 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law confers upon trustees the power to make original assessments. This section defines the conditions under which such original assessments may be made. If any person shall request a reduction in the assessed valuation on his property, or if the assessed valuation of taxable property can not be ascertained from the last assessment roll of the town, or if the valuation of property shall have increased or diminished since the last assessment roll of the town was completed and verified, or if an error, mistake or omission on the part of the town assessors has been made in the description or valuation of taxable property, the trustees have power to ascertain the true value of such property and to assess it accordingly. These are the only cases wherein a board of trustees may make an original assessment and in making such assessment they must proceed in the same manner as town assessors proceed in the assessment of property. Trustees are not required to appoint a grievance day unless they have made an original assessment.

The necessity of empowering trustees to make original assessments in the foregoing cases is quite obvious. Many clerical errors are made. The value of property often changes between the date of assessments made by assessors and the date of issuance of a tax list. It often occurs that new buildings are erected and then again buildings are destroyed so that the value of a piece of property may materially change. In such cases an injustice and many times a hardship would follow if some authority did not possess the power to make equitable changes under these circumstances. Provision is also made in section 84 of title 7 for the correction of errors in a tax list.

The provisions of the school law above mentioned do not confer upon trustees the power to review in their discretion the assessments made by town assessors. Where an issue relative to the assessment of property is raised previous to the assessment of such property and the town assessors with a full knowledge of the points involved in that issue proceed to a determination of such issue and thereby fix a valuation upon, and the ownership of, a piece of property, the right to review such action of the town assessors is not vested by law in school district trustees. To hold that the law extends such power to trustees of school districts would practically give such officers of the several school districts of a town the right to change the valuation upon every piece of property in a town. This is neither necessary nor desirable. It is unnecessary to speculate upon the results which would follow if the law were construed to confer such power upon school district trustees.

If town assessors err in the determination of such questions, the aggrieved party should seek redress through proper channels and school district trustees should not undertake to review and correct the action of town assessors in such cases. I think it will not be claimed that if the town assessors had decided that the property in question was assessable to the individual lessees and had so assessed it the trustees of the school district could have lawfully reviewed such assessment and have assessed such property for school purposes to the Round Lake Association.

Assessors are officers especially empowered to determine the valuation of property and to assess it accordingly. They are elected by the people to perform that special duty. Trustees are the chief administrative officers of school districts. Their power to assess property is only incidental to their general functions and is restricted to the cases above cited for the purpose of promptly meeting some emergency or correcting some undisputed error for which other provision has not been made. It was never contemplated under the provisions of the school law to which reference has herein been made that the power of trustees to assess property should be equal or superior to that of town assessors. [See decision no. 4163½]

Appellant sought relief from the action of the town assessors. He petitioned the board of supervisors of Saratoga county to correct the alleged error of the town assessors. The Attorney General of the State held that the board of supervisors possessed the power to make that correction. The board of supervisors in due time authorized that such assessment should be changed. Appellant's relief from the action of the board of education was an appeal to the Commissioner of Education and a petition to restrain the authorities of the school district from collecting the tax imposed by the tax list issued until the final determination by proper authority of the question involved.

It is unnecessary to determine whether in this particular case the board of education was bound by the agreement between the town assessors and the Round Lake Association and was required to assess this property in accordance with the method which the Attorney General held was proper and legal. The State Tax Commissioners and the Attorney General of the State hold that the method of assessing the property in question was wrong. The Attorney General holds that the board of supervisors could legally correct the error made by the assessors. Such correction has been made. The property is now assessed upon the town assessment roll to the individual lessees of the property. The opinion of the tax commissioners and of the Attorney General should be respected and considered sound until the courts shall hold otherwise. Could this error have been corrected previous to the issuance of the tax list in the school district, it would have been the duty of the board of education to have assessed this property in accordance with the corrected town roll. Appellant should not be compelled to pay a tax levied for school district purposes upon the property in question through such error. Provision has been made in the school law whereby relief can be afforded through an order made by the Commissioner of Education. Such action will be taken.

In the agreed statement of facts presented to the tax commissioners, two other questions were submitted for determination. The Round Lake Association and the Round Lake Summer Institute are two separate corporations. Each claimed exemption from taxation on certain properties. In the Attorney General's opinion that officer holds that the Round Lake Association was not entitled to such exemption. He expressed no opinion on the claim of the Round Lake Summer Institute to such exemption. The property owned by this corporation and the amount for which it is assessed is as follows: George West Museum $5000; Alumni Hall $500; Kennedy Hall $2000; and Garnsey Hall $2500.

Round Lake Summer Institute was incorporated under the Regents on January 12, 1889, as an academy. However, the only one of these buildings which appears to be used exclusively for educational purposes is the George West Museum and that property should be exempt from taxation for school purposes. [32 App. Div. 197; 74 App. Div. 553]

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of said school district no. 9, town of Malta, Saratoga county, bc, and they hereby are, ordered to change, correct and amend the tax list issued by said board on or about the 25th day of October 1905, in and for said district by substituting for the name of Round Lake Association the name of the individual lessees of the several parcels of real estate included in such tax list and assessed to Round Lake Association, and in case any of such lessees shall not be residents of said school district no. 9, Malta, to make such further changes in said tax list as shall be necessary to assess the property of such lessees as nonresident land in accordance with the provisions of section 63, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law.

It is also ordered, That the collector of said district no. 9, Malta, shall immediately after said tax list has been thus changed, corrected and amended, give notice as provided in section 81, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of the receipt of such tax list and the said collector shall thereafter receive voluntary payment of the taxes of said tax list for thirty days as provided in said section 81.*

It is also ordered, That the collector of said district no. 9, Malta, shall receive any tax included in said tax list and which may be tendered to him by any officer or employee of the Round Lake Association or by any other person and shall credit the same to the person to whom said taxes are properly chargeable on said tax list.

It is also ordered, That the said board of education of district no. 9, Malta, shall strike from such tax list the assessment against Round Lake Summer Institute of $5000 on the George West Museum.

5381

In the matter of the appeal of the Round Lake Summer Institute from a certain assessment made against said institute and upon its property described as "George West Museum and Park" by the board of education of district no. 9, town of Malta, Saratoga county, for the year 1907.

When the Supreme Court holds that property is exempt from taxation for State, county and town purposes by reason of being exclusively used for educational purposes and coming within the provisions of subdivision 7 of section 4 of the tax law it will be held by this Department that such property is also exempt from taxation for school district purposes.

Decided February 25, 1908

Irwin Esmond, attorney for appellant

Draper, Commissioner

This proceeding was filed at this Department October 24, 1907. An order was made by me on the date on which such proceeding was filed, restraining the collector of union free school district no. 9, town of Malta, from collecting or attempting to collect from the Round Lake Summer Institute a certain tax levied upon its property known as the "George West Museum and Park."

A decision herein has not before been rendered for the reason that the moving papers showed that appellant had obtained a writ of certiorari from the Supreme Court of the State of New York to review the proceedings of the board of assessors of the town of Malta, Saratoga county, in assessing the property in question, that a return to such writ had been made and filed by the said assessors, but that no hearing had been given thereon and therefore no determination of the issue involved.

It appears that Mr Justice Van Kirk rendered a decision in such case on February 21, 1907, holding that the property in question is exempt from taxation by reason of being exclusively used for educational purposes and coming within the provisions of subdivision 7 of section 4 of the tax law of the State and ordering that the assessment of such property for State, county and town taxes be stricken from the tax rolls.

If the property in question was exempt from taxation for town, county and State purposes for the reasons thus held, it follows that it is also exempt from taxation for school district purposes. It further appears that the property in question was assessed for school purposes in the year 1905 and that on an appeal to this Department it was held that such property was exempt from taxation.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 9, town of Malta, county of Saratoga, shall strike from the tax list of such district issued by said board of education on or about the 24th day of September 1907, any assessment against the Round Lake Summer Institute upon property described as "George West Museum and Park" and that the said board of education shall strike from any other tax list now in force in said district any assessment appearing thereon against the Round Lake Summer Institute upon the said property described as "George West Museum and Park."

It is further ordered, That the board of education of said union free school district no. 9, town of Malta, county of Saratoga, is hereby enjoined and restrained from assessing for school district purposes the property of the said Round Lake Institute known as "George West Museum and Park" so long as said property shall continue to be used exclusively for educational purposes.

3967

In the matter of the appeal of G. D. S. Trask v. the trustees of school districts nos. 2 and 3, town of Castleton, Richmond County.

Equitable relief is sought from erroneous assessments paid long before this appeal was instituted. Held, to be too late to secure the relief from this Department. Relief so sought must come from the courts.

Opinion determines the place of taxation of a small tract of land lying in one district, adjoining land of same occupant and owner in another district, for a succession of years.

Decided April 20, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant who is the executive officer and agent in charge of property owned by the trustees of the Sailors Snug Harbor, situated in the town of Castleton, Richmond county, where he resides, has instituted this proceeding for the purpose of having it judicially determined where a certain lot of land, comprising three acres, situated within the boundary of district no. 2, in said town, should have been taxed for school purposes since the title to such property was acquired by the corporation represented by the appellant.

It appears that the property in question was purchased by the trustees of the Sailors Snug Harbor, in April 1888, and adjoins the main property of the corporation, situated in district no. 3 of said town, upon which its buildings are erected and where the appellant resides.

The property in question was separately assessed upon the town assessment rolls after April 1888, and until the town assessment roll of 1890-91, when the entire body of land owned by the said corporation was assessed in one body.

With these facts conceded, the question is asked where should the three acres, lying within the boundary lines of district no. 2 be taxed for school purposes.

Section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act previous to the amendment of May 29, 1889, provided that "land lying in one body, and occupied by the same person either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant for the same landlord, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides."

By legislative enactment the above section was amended May 29, 1889, so that since said date, lands lying in one body but in two districts are not to be taxed together for school purposes in the district in which the occupant resides, unless the said lands are assessed as one lot on the preceding town assessment roll.

It will therefore be seen that the lot in question was taxable prior to the amendment of May 29, 1889, in district no. 3, with the main land which it adjoined and where the occupant resided.

Since May 29, 1889, and until the town assessment rolls of 1890-91 were prepared and revised by the assessors, it was taxable in district no. 2 as a separate lot.

Since the revision of the said rolls of 1890-91, it was taxable in district no. 3, with the main land as one entire lot.

Other questions are presented which I can not determine upon this appeal.

It is too late to ask for equitable relief from erroneous assessments paid long before this appeal was instituted. Any relief so sought must come from the courts.

5166

In the matter of the appeal of Allen D. Spink as trustee of school district no. 4, Orangeville, and John S. Head as trustee of school district no. 17, Sheldon, county of Wyoming, to determine whether certain real estate shall be assessed as land lying in one body.

No land can be assessed as land lying in one body which does not meet fully each of the four following conditions: (1) The land must lie in one body. There must be an actual line of contact between the boundaries of such two bodies of land. (2) Such land must be owned by one person. (3) The land must be occupied by one person. This person must be either the owner of such lands or the agent or tenant of one and the same landlord. (4) Such land must have been assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessor.

Decided January 17, 1905

Draper, Commissioner

The trustees of these school districts have submitted a statement of facts agreed upon by them in relation to two parcels of land located therein. These facts show that Ira D. Calkins and his wife, Emma L. Calkins, jointly own a tract of 100 acres of land located in school district no. 17, Sheldon, and that they reside thereon. The facts also show that adjoining this 100 acres of land but located in school district no. 4, Orangeville, is another parcel of land of 76 acres owned by the said Ira D. Calkins. These two pieces of property were assessed by the town assessors in 1904 as one body of land. The question presented for my determination is, Shall this land be assessed for school purposes in accordance with the provisions of section 63, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law, in school district no. 17, Sheldon, as land lying in one body, or shall the 76 acres be assessed in school district no. 4, Orangeville, and the 100 acres in school district no. 17, Sheldon?

It appears that this question was submitted to the school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Wyoming county, in which these school districts are located, and he decided that such property should be assessed in district no. 17, Sheldon, as land lying in one body. I assume that the question was submitted to the school commissioner simply to obtain his opinion and not with the understanding that such opinion should in any way be binding upon the districts. It was entirely proper to request an opinion from the school commissioner on this question and also proper that he should express one, or that he should give any advice to school officers on the question which might be helpful to them. It must be understood, however, that the school law does not confer on a school commissioner judicial or ministerial power to pass upon such questions and that the decision of a school commissioner thereon would have no binding effect upon the school districts.

The school commissioner has filed an answer to this appeal. Since a statement of facts has been submitted by the trustees of two districts for determination of a question of law which such commissioner has not power to determine, this Department might properly refuse to accept such answer. He contends that the joint ownership of this 100 acres by Mr Calkins and his wife is not a bar to the assessment of these lands as land lying in one body. In this he is in error as we shall hereafter show. He also contends that the trustee of district no. 4, Orangeville, in assessing the 76 acres in question to Ira D. Calkins did not follow the course of procedure directed by law and therefore asks that the assessment by such trustee be declared illegal. The question of the validity of such assessment is not properly raised. The only question which this Department has been asked to determine in this appeal is whether the two bodies of land in question could be assessed as land lying in one body. This was the only question presented to the commissioner for his opinion. This is the only question which we can properly determine. The commissioner is also barred from raising the question of the validity of this assessment as he does not appear to be an aggrieved party under such assessment.

In order to assess two bodies of land located in different districts as lying in one body under section 63 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law, four distinct conditions must be satisfied. These are:

- 1 Such lands must lie in one body. There must be an actual line of contact between the boundaries of such two bodies of land.
- 2 Such lands must be owned by one person.
- 3 Such lands must be occupied by one person. This person must be either the owner of such lands or the agent or tenant of one and the same landlord.
- 4 Such lands must have been assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors.

No land can be assessed under this provision of law which does not meet fully each of the four conditions above stated. The statement of facts agreed upon by the trustees presenting this question shows that in this particular case the lands in question do not meet the second of these conditions. It is expressly stated that the lot of 100 acres is owned jointly by Ira D. Calkins and Emma L. Calkins and that the lot of 76 acres is owned by Ira D. Calkins. The whole of these two bodies of land is not therefore owned by one person. It is unnecessary to examine into this case to determine if the other conditions are satisfied. The failure to satisfy one condition renders it impossible to assess these two bodies of land in one school district.

I decide, That the said lot of 76 acres should be assessed to Ira D. Calkins in school district no. 4, Orangeville, and that the said lot of 100 acres should be assessed to Ira D. Calkins and Emma L. Calkins in school district no. 17, Sheldon.

It is ordered, That the trustee of school district no. 17, Sheldon, shall not include in any tax list issued by him the said lot of 76 acres owned by Ira D. Calkins and located in school district no. 4, Orangeville; that if the trustee of district no. 17, Sheldon, has already issued a tax list and has included thereon the said lot of 76 acres owned by Ira D. Calkins and such tax list has not been returned, the said trustee shall immediately amend such tax list by striking therefrom such assessment against Ira D. Calkins; that if the said Ira D. Calkins has paid a tax on such 76 acres to school district no. 17, Sheldon, during the current school year by reason of such 76 acres having been included in a tax list issued for the current year, then the trustee of district no. 17, Sheldon, shall immediately refund to the said Ira D. Calkins any and all tax thus paid.

3935

In the matter of the appeal of Isaac E. Shipley and others, trustees of school district no. 6, town of Williamson, county of Wayne, v. Henry P. Benton, trustee of school district no. 1 of the same town.

Lands lying in one body but in more than one district, owned and occupied as one farm, were not assessed in one body upon the last corrected town assessment roll. Held, not taxable for school purposes in one body in the district in which the occupant resided.

Each district is entitled to levy a tax only upon the land lying within its own boundary. Appeal dismissed upon the ground that appellants not being the owners of the land in question, were not the aggrieved persons.

Decided December 3, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

Appeal from the action of the trustee of school district no. 1, town of Williamson, Wayne county, in including in a tax list an assessment against the lands of one John Shipley, 93 acres which lie in one body, 12 acres of which are within the bounds of district no. 1, and 81 acres of which lie in district no. 6. The owner occupies the entire farm, and resides thereon in district no. 1. The land is assessed in two parcels, 12 acres and 81 acres, respectively, upon the last corrected town assessment roll.

The following is the statute providing for the assessment of such lands for school purposes:

Section 66 . . . but land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, if assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides. . . . (Title 7)

It will therefore be observed that, if this land in question had been assessed in one body by the town assessors, the action of the respondent would have been proper. As it is, each piece is taxable in the district in which it is situated.

But I must dismiss the appeal upon another ground. The appellants are not aggrieved persons. John Shipley, the owner, may be, and may become so. The trustees of district no. 6 in preparing a district tax list, were in no way prevented from assessing a tax upon the 81 acres. The fact that it may have been improperly assessed in district no. 1, was no bar to their right to assess.

For the reasons given, the appeal is dismissed.

3931

In the matter of the appeal of Theodore G. Peck and others v. the board of education of union free school district no. 3, Haverstraw, Rockland county. Lands lying in one body but in two districts, all owned and occupied as one farm by the agent of the owners, who resides thereon, and which land is assessed in one body by the town assessors. Held to be taxable in one body in the district in which the agent of the owners who is also one of the owners, resides.

Decided December 3, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

The appellants, who reside in the town of Haverstraw, Rockland county, and one Edith P. Halstead, of the city of New York, are the owners of a certain body of land of about 360 acres, known as the "Peck estate," of which about 325 acres lie in school district no. 2, Haverstraw, and about 35 acres lie in district no. 3, Haverstraw. The entire property is occupied by one or more of the owners, and particularly by the agent of the owners, Gordan H. Peck, and resides in the only dwelling thereon, which is on the land in district no. 2. The entire farm is in one body and is so assessed upon the last town assessment roll.

The board of education of union free school district no. 3, Haverstraw, has made a separate assessment upon the land lying in their district, and from such action this appeal is brought.

The entire farm is and has been for years assessed for school purposes in district no. 2. No answer has been filed.

The action of the board of education of union free school district no. 3, as above set forth, can not be sustained. The statute in such cases provides: ". . . but land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, if assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides. . . ." (See section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act.)

The assessment of the 35 acres in district no. 3 is therefore invalid, and the board of education is hereby ordered to withdraw and correct their tax list accordingly.

The appeal is sustained.

3680

In the matter of the appeal of Calvin C. Reed, as sole trustee of district no. 12, town of New Lebanon, county of Columbia, for and on behalf of the United Society of Shakers, v. school district no. 9, in said town.

Lands owned by the United Society of Shakers which lie in one body, but in different districts, are taxable in the district in which the owners reside.

The objection that the statute (section 66 of title 7, of the Consolidated School Act) refers to a sole ownership or occupancy — held, not tenable. Lands jointly owned are controlled by the same statute.

Decided April 16, 1888

W. C. Daley, attorney for the appellants

Daniel E. Miller, attorney for the respondent

Draper, Superintendent

School district no. 12 of the town of New Lebanon is comprised of lands owned and occupied in common by numerous persons, known as the United Society of Shakers. Some of such lands, lying in one body, extend into district no. 9 of said town. District no. 9 claims the right to tax the lands which lie in that district. The Society of Shakers resist this claim, and contend that, under the provisions of section 66 of title 7, of the Consolidated School Act, said lands are liable to taxation only in district no. 12. This appeal is taken from a tax list, including the land in question, made and delivered to the collector in district no. 9, for the purpose of determining the matter.

In general, real estate is taxable in the school district in which it is situated. The statute (section 66, title 7, chapter 555, Laws 1864) makes an exception to this general rule, however, in the following words, namely: "but land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides."

I am called upon to determine whether the land in question must be held to be taxable under the general rule or under the exception thereto.

The appellants say that the land in the two districts lies "in one body," and this is disputed.

They say also that such land is owned and occupied by the same persons, namely, the United Society of Shakers. It is admitted that there are two occupied dwellings upon the Shaker land in district no. 9, but it is claimed that the occupants are mere agents or employees of the society, and that seems to be the fact.

An issue is raised between the parties as to the meaning of the words, "occupied by the same person either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord." The respondents contend that the ownership or occupancy of the land must be by a single individual. The appellants assert that the statute meant that the land lying in two districts and one body must have an identical ownership, but that several persons may share in it. In support of their position the respondents cite the comments of the editor in the Code of Public Instruction (page 337, edition of 1887). The statements of the editor are based upon a decision made by Superintendent Gilmour, March 24, 1879, in appeal no. 2839. But an examination of the full opinion of the Superintendent clearly shows that it does not sustain the editorial comment referred to. In that case the ownership was not identical, the portion in one district being owned by one person and that in the other district being owned jointly by that person and another. So it can not properly be said that the Superintendent has ever held that land lying in one body must be owned wholly by but one person in order to be taxable in the school district in which the owner or occupant resides.

What, then, did the Legislature mean when it used the language about which the parties to this appeal differ? In order to answer this, it is pertinent to inquire what the purpose was in enacting such a provision. It is evident that the object was to convenience and facilitate the transaction of public business. Land lying in one body, with an identical ownership, is valued for the purposes of taxation by town assessors, and their valuation is fixed, determined and announced in the town assessment rolls. Trustees in school districts are charged with the duty of levying and collecting school taxes. But the law does not assume that they are as well qualified to fix and determine the values of real estate as are officers specially chosen for that particular purpose, and it therefore provides that trustees shall, so far as possible, ascertain the values of real estate from the last assessment roll of the town. Lands lying together, and having the same ownership, are valued upon the assessment rolls as one piece. In very many cases the valuations placed upon these parcels by the town assessors could not be used by trustees in the levying of school taxes, for the reason that the parcels frequently lie in two or more school districts, but for the provision that they shall be taxed in the district containing the residence of the occupant. It was in furtherance of the law that trustees, in levying taxes, shall follow the town assessment rolls, and to obviate the necessity of imposing upon them the duty of fixing a value upon the respective parts of the whole parcel lying in each district, that the exception to the general principle was enacted. I can think of no other reason for this arrangement. Is there any reason why such an arrangement should be extended to lands having a sole ownership which does not apply with equal force to lands having a joint ownership? I can conceive of none. To take a contrary view would lead to endless uncertainty and confusion, for numberless land titles are involved in doubt, vested in heirs, and subject to conflicting claims, the determination of which it is not the purpose of the law to impose upon the school authorities. Moreover, the same section of the statute which contains the provision under consideration also provides that "such property shall be assessed to the person or persons or corporation owning or possessing the same at the time such tax list shall be made out." The phrase under discussion uses the term "persons" and "occupant" in the singular number, but it will hardly be contended that there could be but one person occupying such a parcel of land, in order to render it taxable in the school district containing the residence. Yet the statute seems to imply that, as much as it does that the ownership must be in but one person. The statute not being distinct, it is our duty to give it such a meaning as is consistent with the general and manifest purpose of the Legislature in enacting it. Reading the whole section together, and in connection with other sections related to it, I had no difficulty in arriving at the conclusion that it was the purpose of the Legislature to say that lands lying in one body, and being owned and occupied by the same person or persons, no matter whether the ownership and occupancy is individual, or is shared in by several persons, shall be taxed in the school districts containing the residences of the owners or occupants.

Coming to this conclusion, it necessarily follows that land, the legal title of which is in trustees representing the United Society of Shakers, must, so far as the levying of school taxes is concerned, be treated precisely the same as would be the case if such title were vested in a single individual.

I have examined the last assessment roll of the town of New Lebanon, so far as any real estate in either school district no. 9 or district no. 12 of that town is concerned. I find that the largest parcel of land appearing upon such roll, in either of said districts, consists of 355 acres. This is not so large as to preclude undivided occupancy. Section 67 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act provides that "the valuation of taxable property shall be ascertained, so far as possible, from the last assessment roll of the town." There was a wise purpose in this provision. Trustees are not at liberty to disregard it where it is possible to observe it. No state of circumstances is shown here which renders it impossible or impracticable for the respondents in the present case to follow it. This being so, they are not at liberty to divide lands appearing in single parcels upon the town assessment rolls, or to assume to fix and determine for themselves the assessable valuation of the different parts. The law contemplates that the valuations fixed by the assessors shall be used by trustees, except where that is, for some reason, impossible. I fail to find any reason why it is impossible to do so here.

The rule of the statute that provides that, in certain cases, land may be taxed for school purposes in another school district than that in which it is situated, sometimes operates harshly. Possibly it may be so in the present case, although I observe that the acreage and valuation in the two districts are not widely different, and I see nothing which leads me to think that the provision operates any more harshly in this case than in innumerable other instances. What this district may lose upon one side it may gain upon another. The general advantages which flow from the provision, in the practical transaction of the business to which it relates, I have no doubt, outweigh the disadvantages which may incidentally result from it.

The appeal is sustained.

3700

In the matter of the appeal of Calvin G. Reed as sole trustee of district no. 12, town of New Lebanon, county of Columbia, on behalf of the United Society of Shakers, v. school district no. 9 in said town.

The rule laid down by section 66, title 7 of the Consolidated School Act for assessing land lying in one body and owned or occupied by the same person, held, to apply to corporations as well as individual owners.

Trustees are to follow assessors' valuations as far as possible.

It is not the policy of the law to charge school officers with the responsibility of making original assessments to any considerable extent.

Decided July 24, 1888

W. C. Daley, attorney for the appellant

Daniel E. Miller, attorney for the respondent

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from a tax list made by the trustee in school district no. 9 of the town of New Lebanon, which tax list includes certain real estate belonging to the United Society of Shakers. That society claims that such real estate is not taxable in school district no. 9, but rather in school district no. 12 in said town.

which it adjoins, on the ground that it is real estate lying in one body and owned and occupied by the same persons. The case has been before me heretofore and was decided on the 16th day of April 1888, in favor of the appellants. The respondents have sought a rehearing, and have been heard at length upon their application. Two points have been strenuously urged as against the soundness of the former decision.

1 It is claimed by them that the United Society of Shakers is a corporation, and that corporations are not entitled to the benefit of the exception stated in section 66, of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act, in the words following: "But land lying in one body and occupied by the same person either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides."

2 They urge that the town assessment roll of the town of New Lebanon is erroneous in that it does not properly state the legal ownership of the lands in question. Assuming that this is so, they claim that the trustee of school district no. 9 was justified and will hereafter be justified, in practically disregarding the town assessment roll and assessing the real estate of the appellants for school purposes in the manner followed by him in the present case.

There seems to be little doubt about the proposition that the United Society of Shakers, in the eye of the law, is a corporation for certain purposes at least; but I am unable to adopt the view of the respondent that a corporation is not, in a proper case, entitled to the benefit of the exception above quoted. It is true that the statutes specially provide that railroad, telegraph, telephone and pipe line companies, shall be taxed in the several school districts through which their lines run, without reference to the location of their principal offices. The reason of this is obvious. But I have no doubt about the real property of corporations being subject to the same rules which govern the taxation of individual real estate, except where the statute expressly provides otherwise, as in the case of railroads, telegraph lines, etc. If this is so, then the first objection urged by the respondent is disposed of.

As to the other objection, it may be said that, although it is possible that the town assessors of the town of New Lebanon have erred in the making of their assessment rolls in the manner claimed by the respondents, yet, that claim being disputed, neither the trustee of school district no. 9 of that town, nor this Department, has the facilities for ascertaining, nor is either bound to ascertain, whether the claim be true or not. I am entirely confident in my view, that it is not the policy of the law to charge school officers with the responsibility of making original assessments to any considerable extent. The law wisely provides, for obvious reasons, that they shall follow the town assessment rolls, which are prepared by officers specially chosen with reference to fixing values of assessable property. The law does provide that, in exceptional cases, the trustee, in making his tax list, may make an original assessment, but I take it that these cases must be deemed to be of a very exceptional nature, as for instance, where a house had been destroyed by fire, or a building had been erected, or something else had occurred to indisputably change the value of the property in question since the last town assessment roll was revised and perfected. The law nowhere contemplates an entire disregard of the policy of the assessors in making their roll. It nowhere authorizes school officers to overrule assessors. It only permits them to act upon their own motion where the circumstances have so changed since the assessment rolls were made as to make it obviously necessary that they should act, in order that justice may be done. Even in such exceptional cases the law does not permit them to act blindly or in the dark, but provides that it shall be upon notice to the person interested, and that they shall proceed in the same manner as the town assessors are required by law to proceed in fixing the valuation of taxable property. It is not pretended that any such course has been pursued by the respondents in making out the tax list appealed from.

I am not prepared to say that section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act relative to the taxation of land lying in one body and subject to the same ownership does not operate, with exceptional harshness, as against the respondents. I can not say whether it does or not, or whether or not they ought to receive relief. But it seems entirely clear to me that they can not gain redress in the way which they have undertaken. If the assessors of their town are committing errors in the preparation of the town assessment rolls, it seems to me that the remedy of the respondents lies in an application to the board of town assessors, or in proceedings in the courts to compel a true and proper assessment, and that that course must be taken before the officers who are charged only with the collection of school taxes can be compelled or permitted to change their course. They are, in my opinion, bound to follow the revised assessment roll of the town, and parties who are dissatisfied with the assessments must seek redress elsewhere.

The application to reopen the case is denied.

3762

In the matter of the appeal of Benjamin Gates and Robert Valentine, trustees of the United Society of Shakers in Columbia county, and Timothy Rayson, trustee of school district no. 12, of the town of New Lebanon, Columbia county v. the trustees of school district no. 9 of said town.

Certain lots of land owned by the United Society of Shakers are assessed in the district in which the property was situated. It was claimed by the officers of the Society of Shakers, who reside in an adjoining district, that because the land was a part only of the larger body of contiguous land owned by the Society of Shakers in the adjoining district, the property should be taxed in the district in which such officers reside. A question in relation to the taxation of this property was before the Department some time ago, and it then appeared that it was assessed in one body by the town assessors. It now appears that the property is separately assessed by the town assessors. Held, that the trustees having followed the town assessment roll, must be sustained. It is not intended that school officers shall be charged with the duty of fixing the value upon real estate, unless in exceptional cases. As a general rule, property should be taxed for school purposes in the district in which it lies, when that may be done without involving the necessity of making an original assessment.

Decided February 9, 1889

W. C. Daley, attorney for appellant

Daniel E. Miller, attorney for respondents

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the respondents in levying taxes about the 24th day of October 1888, on property owned by Benjamin Gates and Robert Valentine, as trustees for the United Society of Shakers, as follows, namely: Royce lots $12.23, on Bull lots $5.39, on Ira Royce lots $2.16, on brickyard lots $5.39, and on Thompson lot $1.35, and also an old tax reassessed amounting to $12.76. This property lies in district no. 9, but the appellants claim that it should not be taxed in that district, for the reason that it is only part of the larger body of contiguous land owned by the United Society of Shakers, whose residences are in district no. 12. It is urged that under the provisions of section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act this property should be taxed in district no. 12.

The question has been presented to the Department before, and decisions concerning it will be found on pages 140 and 159 of the annual report of 1889. It was there held that the property was taxable in district no. 12, principally upon the ground that it was then assessed by the town assessors, as appeared by the town assessment roll, jointly with the larger tract belonging to the Shakers, and that it was not the duty of school trustees to separate portions so assessed jointly and make an original assessment on the separate parcel.

It now transpires that, since the question was last before the Department, the town assessors of the town of New Lebanon, have changed their procedure and assessed the parcels separately, as appears by the town assessment roll. The trustees of district no. 9, in making their tax list, have followed the revised assessment roll of the town in levying taxes against the property known as the Royce lot, the Bull lot, and the Ira Royce lot. The assessments against the property known as the brickyard lots and the Thompson lot, which are complained of, appear to be original assessments.

So far as the trustees have followed the town assessment rolls, they must be sustained.

As has been heretofore said, I am of the opinion that the school laws do not intend that school officers shall be charged with the duty of fixing values on real estate, unless in exceptional cases, where there is no other way.

They are to follow the town assessments made by officers specially chosen for that purpose. Real estate is to be taxed in the district where situated, whenever that can be done without driving trustees to the necessity of making an original assessment. The provisions in section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act, that "land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the same principal, or tenant under the same landlord, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides," is only for the purpose of carrying out this general rule.

It assumes that such land would appear in one body upon the assessment roll. There is no reason for the provision where that is not the case. It seems to me that the proposition that the land should be taxable for school purposes in the school district where it is situated, whenever the easy and natural way, provided by law, is open for doing it, needs no argument.

I find nothing in the papers and nothing was said upon the argument from which I can determine the validity of the original assessments made against the property known as the brickyard lots, and the Thompson lot. They must be presumed to be valid until the contrary is shown. From these considerations the appeal must be dismissed.

4330

In the matter of the appeal of Earl D. Howland from tax list and assessment in school district no. 8, towns of Westford and Roseboom, Otsego county, dated October 5, 1894.

The appellant Howland being the owner of a tract or tracts of land lying in one body and occupied by him as such owner, situated in the town of Westford, and said land having been assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of said town after revision by the assessors; held, that said body of land although situated partly in two or more school districts should be assessed to the owner for school purposes in district no. 4 of Westford, in which said Howland resided.

Decided February 28, 1895

Barnum Brothers, attorneys for respondents

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellant herein appeals from a tax list and assessment made and issued in school district no. 8, towns of Westford and Roseboom, Otsego county, on October 5, 1894.

The trustee and collector of said school district have severally answered the appeal.

The following facts are established: that the appellant has for the seven years last past owned a farm situate in the town of Westford, in school district no. 8, towns of Westford and Roseboom, and upon which he resided until on or about September 25, 1894; that in the month of April 1894, the appellant purchased a farm, situate in school district no. 4, town of Westford, and adjoining his said farm in school district no. 8, both said farms being in the town of Westford; that on the last assessment roll of the town of Westford, after revision by the assessors (namely, for the year 1894) said two farms or parcels of land, so lying in one body and occupied by him, were assessed as one lot; that on September 25, 1894, the appellant moved from the house upon said part of his land situate in school district no. 8, to and upon that part of his land situate in school district no. 4, and ever since has, and at the time of bringing the appeal herein still did reside in said school district no. 4 of Westford; that since the commencement of the present school year the trustee or trustees of said school district no. 4 of Westford assessed a tax against the appellant for said body of land owned and occupied by him in said district, which tax has been paid by him; that on October 5, 1894, the trustee of said school district no. 8 of Westford and Roseboom made out a tax list and assessment for such school district, but instead of ascertaining the valuations of taxable property in said district from the last assessment rolls of the towns of Westford and Roseboom after revision by the assessors, namely, said assessment rolls for the year 1894, that said trustee ascertained and took such valuations from the assessment rolls of said town of Westford for the year 1893; that in said tax list and assessment of October 5, 1894, the trustee of said district no. 8 included that part of the land of the appellant lying in one body situate in said school district and assessed a tax of $3.17 against the appellant therefor; that said tax list and warrant were delivered to the collector of said district no. 8, and the appellant refusing to pay said tax the collector collected the same by a levy and sale of certain personal property by the collector.

Under the provisions of article 7, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, and for many years prior thereto, the valuations of taxable property within school district for the purposes of assessments and taxation by trustees shall be ascertained by them, so far as possible, from the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors. Each of the towns of Westford and Roseboom had on October 5, 1894, an assessment roll for 1894 revised by the assessors of each of said towns, and it was the duty of the trustee of said district no. 8 to ascertain the valuations of taxable property in the assessment made by him on October 15, 1894, from said rolls, instead of which such valuations were taken from the rolls of 1893. Such tax list and assessment roll of October 15, 1894, was invalid, and had the appellant taken an appeal in time therefrom to me such assessment would have been vacated and set aside.

This Department has held that any person aggrieved by reason of errors in a tax list must bring his appeal as soon as he has knowledge of said errors, and an appeal brought therefrom after the collection of the tax by levy and sale of his property will not be entertained, his only remedy being by a civil action against the collector. By section 63 of article 7, title 7 of said Consolidated School Law of 1894 (and such has been the school law since 1886) it is enacted that land lying in one body and occupied by the same person either as owner or as agent or tenant for the owner, if assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides.

Since April 1894, the appellant herein has been the owner of a tract or tracts of land lying in one body, all of which has been occupied by him as such owner; that said body of land is situate in the town of Westford, and was assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of said town of Westford, after revision by the assessors; that said body of land is situated partly in two or more school districts, namely, district no. 4 of Westford and no. 8 of Westford and Roseboom; that since September 25, 1894, the appellant has resided upon said land in district no. 4 of Westford.

I find and decide, That on October 5, 1894, under the provisions of the school law above cited, the trustee of school district no. 8 of Westford had no legal power or authority to assess and tax for school purposes in said district no. 8 said body of land so as aforesaid owned and occupied by the appellant then residing in school district no. 4 of Westford, but that said body of land should have been assessed for taxes for school purposes in said district no. 4 of Westford.

As hereinbefore stated, I have no power to afford the appellant equitable redress for the act of the trustee of district no. 8 of Westford and Roseboom in assessing his property for school purposes in said district, he not having brought his appeal in time, and for such reason said appeal must be dismissed; but for the purposes of future taxation of said land for school purposes so long as the conditions relative to said land, existing since September 25, 1894, continue, I find it my duty to indicate to the trustees of each of said districts, no. 8 of Westford and Roseboom and district no. 4 of Westford, the proper district under the school law in which said body of land is taxable.

Appeal dismissed.

4356

In the matter of the appeal of and submission by O. W. Chamberlin and C. L. Mallory, sole trustee of school district no. 1, town of Ischua, Cattaraugus county, for a decision in what school district certain real property of said Chamberlin is taxable.

Where land lying in one body, although situate in two or more school districts, is assessed for school purposes in the district in which the owner or occupant resides, such assessment does not alter the boundaries of the district, nor take any of the land from one district and transfer it to another, as such alterations of a district can only be made by the order of the school commissioner under the provisions of the school law. The provisions of section 63, article 7, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 provide simply for the method of assessing the land for school purposes.

Decided June 27, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

The persons named in the above-entitled matter have, upon a statement of facts in writing, signed by them, submitted to me for my decision the question in what school district certain real property owned by said Chamberlin is, under the school law, taxable for school purposes.

From the statement of facts submitted to me it appears: that prior to the year 1850 there existed in the town of Ischua, county of Cattaraugus, a school district known as no. 1, of said town, and in the town of Franklinville in said county, a school district known as no. 6 of said town, and that the town line between said towns was the line between said school districts; that there was a lot of land, known as lot 30, containing 234 acres or more, situate in said town of Ischua and in said school district no. 1, of said town; that in said year 1850, 70 acres of said lot 30 was set off from school district no. 1, town of Ischua into school district no. 6, town of Franklinville; that subsequently to said year 1850 one Frederick Cline, a resident of school district no. 6, of Franklinville, became the owner of all of said 234 acres of land, then lying in one body, although situated partly in school district no. 6, Franklinville, and partly in district no. 1, Ischua, and which land joined other lands owned by Cline, and said land during such ownership by said Cline was assessed and taxed for school purposes in said district no. 6, Franklinville; that since the ownership of said Cline there have been different owners of said land and all of them were residents of said school district no. 6, Franklinville, and during such ownership said lands continued to be assessed and taxed for school purposes in said district no. 6, Franklinville; that prior to and in the year 1892, O. W. Chamberlin and one Henry C. Farwell became the owners of the said 234 acres of land and also 119 acres upon which said Cline formerly lived; that in said year 1892 the said Chamberlin and Cline made a division of the land so owned by them; the said Chamberlin became the owner of the 234 acres and the said Farwell became the owner of the 119 acres on which Cline had resided; that in said year 1892 said Chamberlin purchased 3 acres of lot 22, situate in the town of Ischua and school district no. 1, adjoining said parcel of 234 acres, and in May 1894, he purchased 3 acres in lot no. 30 adjoining said parcel of 234 acres situate in said school district and town; that said Chamberlin has sold off of said 234 acres, a parcel of 5 acres, situate in said school district no. 1, Ischua. It further appears that on June 10, 1895, the date of the submission in the above entitled matter, the said Chamberlin was the owner of 235 acres of land in one body, of which 70 acres were situate in school district no. 6, town of Franklinville, and 165 acres situate in school district no. 1, town of Ischua; that said Chamberlin is a resident in the village of Ischua, in which village he owns a house and lot, and is a resident of said school district no. 1, Ischua; that 232 acres of said land was assessed to said Chamberlin as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town of Ischua after revision by the assessors; that said Chamberlin, for the last two years, has been assessed and taxed for said land for school purposes in school district no. 6, Franklinville, and in school district no. 1, Ischua, and that he is so assessed and taxed for said land in a tax list issued by the trustee of school district no. 1, Ischua, which tax list is now in the hands of the collector of said district for collection.

The question submitted to me upon the foregoing facts is, where the said 235 acres of land owned by said Chamberlin, under the school law, should be assessed and taxed for school purposes.

By section 63, of article 7, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, it is enacted that "school district taxes shall be apportioned by the trustees upon all real estate within the boundaries of the district which shall not be by law exempt from taxation, except as hereinafter provided, and such property shall be assessed to the person or persons, or corporation owning or possessing the same at the time such tax list shall be made out; but land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, if assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, shall, though partly situated in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides." Under the provisions of said section 63, trustees of school districts must apportion school district taxes upon all real estate within the boundaries of the district, not exempt by law from taxation; and such property shall be assessed to the person or persons owning or possessing the same at the time the tax list shall be made out. The direction to trustees, as above cited, is subject to the following exception contained in said section 63, namely: but land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the owner, or as tenant of the owner, if assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides.

As it appears from the facts that there are 232 acres of land lying in one body, occupied by the same person, namely, O. W. Chamberlin, as owner, and that said 232 acres were assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town of Ischua after revision by the assessors, said Chamberlin, being a resident of school district no. 1, Ischua, it is clear, under said section 63, that said 232 acres should be assessed for school purposes by the trustee of said district no. 1, Ischua, to said Chamberlin, as owner and occupant, although 70 acres of said 232 acres are situate in school district no. 6, Franklinville.

It is also clear that the three acres purchased by Chamberlin in May 1895, should be assessed for school purposes in said school district no. 1, Ischua.

Where land lying in one body, although situate in two or more districts, is assessed for school purposes in the district in which the owner or occupant resides, such assessment does not alter the boundaries of the districts, nor take any of the land from one district and transfer it to another district, as such alterations of district can only be made by the order of a school commissioner under the provisions of the school law. The provisions of section 63 above cited provides simply for a method of assessing the land for school purposes.

Under the statutes of the State, a farm through which the line between two towns runs, is assessable and taxable in that town in which the residence of the owner of the farm is situated; but such provisions of the statute does not change the boundaries of the towns, nor set off the farm into the town in which the tax is laid.

I decide that said 232 acres of land, owned and occupied by O. W. Chamberlin, a resident of school district no. 1, town of Ischua, and of the town of Ischua, of which land 70 acres are part of school district no. 6, town of Franklinville, but situate in the town of Ischua, under the Consolidated School Law of 1894, is assessable and taxable for school purposes in school district no. 1, town of Ischua, and not in school district no. 6, town of Franklinville.

3730

In the matter of the appeal of Emma B. Fox v. school district no. 11, town of Verona, county of Oneida.

Land owned by the same person, separated by the Erie canal and a public roadway, and lying in two districts which the canal divides, must be taxed in the districts in which it lies respectively and not as one entire farm.

Decided November 16, 1883

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant owns certain real estate lying in the town of Verona and in school districts nos. 11 and 19 of said town, and upon both sides of the Erie canal. The canal and a public highway run between the two school districts named. The residence of the appellant is in district no. 11. The trustees of district no. 11 have assumed to tax the entire tract in their district. The appellant objects to this. She desires that the portion lying in each district shall be taxed in the district in which it is situated. She says that this has been the case in years past, and she brings this appeal to determine her rights in the premises.

Real estate must, in general, be taxed in the district in which it is located. The statute makes one exception to this general rule. It provides that "land lying in one body and occupied by the same person either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides." This exception is made for the convenience of trustees. It is not the policy of the law to require trustees to fix values upon real estate for the purposes of taxation to any greater extent than is absolutely necessary. The law, therefore, provides that trustees shall follow the last town assessment roll, after the same has been revised, so far as they can do so, and, accordingly, it permits them to make one assessment against land lying in the same body and owned or occupied by the same person, even though such land be in different school districts. But the exception made by the statute must be strictly construed. The general rule must be followed except in cases which are strictly within the provisions of the statutory exception. Even the exception now operates sometimes unjustly, but in the eye of the law this is more than compensated for by the better facility with which it enables trustees to transact public business. In the present case, it appears that the two school districts are separated by the Erie canal and a public roadway. This fact precludes the idea that the appellant's land lies in one body, and it seems clear to me that, in consequence of that fact, such land should be taxed in the district in which it is situated.

In view of the foregoing considerations, I must sustain the appeal, and the respondents will henceforth levy school taxes against the appellant for only such portion of her land as lies within their own school district.

3703

In the matter of the appeal of Thomas Hood, Martin P. Gale and Burton L. Gale, comprising the firm of Hood, Gale & Company, v. school district no. 6, town of High Market, Lewis county.

A large tract of land owned by a firm was listed on the town assessment roll as separate lots. Held, that the trustees' tax lists, which followed the town assessment rolls, are correct.

Decided July 26, 1888

J. A. Warmuth, attorney for petitioner

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the act of James McDonald, sole trustee of school district no. 6 of the town of High Market, county of Lewis, in levying a tax for the sum of $123.57, and issuing a tax list and warrant for the collection of the same, on or about the 26th of June 1888. The appellants say that they own some 14,000 acres of land in the town of High Market, lying in school districts nos. 4, 6 and 7 of said town; that such land is used and kept for lumbering purposes, and that their mills and the residence of the superintending member of the firm, and the residences of their employees are in school district no. 4. They insist, that, in consequence of that fact and because all of the land mentioned lies in one body, they should be taxed for school purposes only in district no. 4. The trustee of school district no. 6, in his answer, alleges that the 14,000 acres of land referred to has always appeared upon the assessment rolls of the town as nonresident land. While admitting the ownership of the appellants, he claims that that portion of said land being in his district is not in fact occupied by the appellants. He says that it is far removed from their mills, and that it has not been lumbered by them at all. He furthermore states that said lands appear upon the last revised assessment roll of the town of High Market as nonresident lands, and that in said roll it is described only by the number of lots. He alleges furthermore, that school district no. 6 is very poor and weak, the entire assessable valuation being but $12,625, while the lands of the appellants lying within the district, and upon which they seek to avoid taxation, are valued at $5145.

It strikes me that the material question is as to whether the trustee of school district no. 6, in issuing the tax list appealed from, followed the last revised assessment roll of the town, as required by statute. If the lands of the appellants appear upon said roll as separate lots, it is clear to me that they can not claim the benefit of the exception to the general rule as set forth in section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act, which provides that lands lying in one body and owned or occupied by the same person, shall be taxed in the school district in which the residence of the owner or occupant stands. It is clearly the intent of the law that school officers shall follow the last revised assessment roll of their town in levying taxes. It appears that the trustee in the present case did so. That seems to be conclusive of the matter.

The appeal is dismissed.

4209

In the matter of the appeal of Monroe Kelly v. union free school district no. 6 and school district no. 8 of the town of Collins, Erie county.

Under the provisions of article 7, title 7, of the Consolidated School Act, to enable land lying in one body and owned by one person and assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, though situated partly in two or more districts, to be taxed in that one of them in which such owner or occupant resides, said land must be occupied by one person, either as owner or as agent for the owner, or as a tenant under the owner. If not so occupied, said land must be taxed in the respective districts in which it is situated.

Decided January 30, 1894

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the action of the trustees in each of the above-named school districts in the assessment of certain lands owned by the appellant. The trustees of each of said districts concur in the statements of facts contained in the appeal herein.

The facts are as follows: The appellant, in the year 1893, resided in the town of Collins, Erie county, and was the owner of a parcel of land lying in one body, consisting of 160 acres, and situate in said town of Collins; that 60 acres of said land are situate in school district no. 8 of said town, and upon which there are a dwelling house and barn, occupied by appellant, and having a garden; that 100 acres of said land are situate in union free school district no. 6 of said town, upon which is a dwelling house occupied by a tenant of the appellant; that from about February 12, 1893, the said 160 acres of land, excepting the dwelling house, garden spot and barn room situate on the 60 acre tract in district no. 8, and occupied and reserved by appellant, was in the possession of, and occupied by, a tenant of the appellant, said tenant residing in the house on the 100 acre tract in district no. 6 and which tenant was working said land under a contract with appellant for a share of the produce of said land; that said 160 acres of land was assessed as one lot upon the last assessment roll of the town of Collins after revision by the assessors at a valuation of $2240; that the appellant is assessed on the last tax roll of district no. 8 for said 160 acres at a valuation of $1600, and is also assessed on the tax list of district no. 8 for said land at a valuation of $2000; that the appellant has not paid either of the taxes assessed to him by said districts.

From the action of the trustees of district no. 6 and district no. 8, respectively, the appellant has appealed.

The trustees of district no. 6 contend that all of said 160 acres except the house, barn and garden, situated in district no. 8, occupied by appellant, is taxable in district no. 6, and the trustees of district no. 8 contend that all of said 160 acres except the house and garden occupied by the tenant of appellant situate in district no. 6, is taxable in district no. 8.

I am of the opinion that such contentions are not, nor is either of them, tenable.

By section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law, as amended by section 4 of chapter 328 of the Laws of 1889, it is enacted: "School district taxes shall be apportioned by the trustees upon all real estate within the boundaries of the district which shall not be by law exempt from taxation, except as hereinafter provided, and such property shall be assessed to the person or persons, or corporation owning or possessing the same at the time such tax list shall be made out, but land lying in one body, and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, if assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides."

Under the provisions of section 66, to assess land lying in one body, though situate partly in two or more school districts, in that one of them in which such occupant resides, it must be established: (1) that the land lies in one body; (2) that the whole body of land must be occupied by one person, and he must be either the owner or agent or tenant of one and the same landlord; (3) that the land is assessed as one lot on the last town assessment roll after revision by the assessors.

It is conceded in the appeal that the said 160 acres of land lie in one body; that the appellant is the owner, and that it is assessed as one lot on the last town assessment roll after revision by the assessors. The question remaining to be determined is as to the occupancy of the said 160 acres. It is also conceded that the appellant, the owner of said land, has leased all of said land excepting the dwelling house occupied by him on the 60 acre lot situate in district no. 8, and barn room and garden spot, to a tenant who resides on the 100 acre lot in district no. 6. Upon the facts conceded there seems to be two occupants of said land lying in one body, namely, the appellant, as owner, of a portion of the 60 acre lot expressly reserved by him in his lease of the 160 acres to his tenant; and the tenant under his lease of all of said 160 acres except the portion in the 60 acre lot reserved by the appellant and occupied by him. Section 66 says, "but land lying in one body and occupied by the same person," etc. It seems clear that the Legislature intended that when the ownership of land lying in one body is in the same person, but the land is occupied by a tenant, such occupancy must be of the whole body of land, and not of a part only. I am of the opinion that the 160 acres of land lying in one body, owned by the appellant, is not, under the provisions of section 66 of title 7 of the school laws, taxable as one body in either of said districts nos. 6 and 8 of the town of Collins, Erie county, but that the 60 acres situate in school district no. 8 is taxable in said district, and the 100 acres situate in union free school district no. 6 is taxable in said district.

I do find and decide that the assessments made by the trustees of union free school district no. 6 and school district no. 8 of the town of Collins, Erie county, and each of them, of said farm of 160 acres, the property of the appellant, as conceded in the appeal herein, are, and each of them is, invalid, and the said trustees of each of said districts are hereby ordered to withdraw their respective tax lists and warrants and correct the said tax list so far as the assessment of said land of the appellant is concerned, in accordance with my decision herein.

The appeal herein is sustained.

3811

In the matter of the appeal of William Reid and others v. school district no. 10, town of Newtown, county of Queens.

Land lying in one body and owned and occupied by the same person, but lying in two or more school districts, can be wholly taxed for school purposes in the district in which the residence of the owner or occupant is, only when assessed as one parcel on the last revised assessment roll of the town. If the parcels in the respective districts are assessed separately by the town assessors then each district can tax only such parcel as lies within it.

Decided September 21, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

It appears that Thomas Kelly owns a hotel and 1 acre of land upon one side of the street and 16 acres of land upon the other side of the street, which are assessed upon the town assessment books in separate parcels. One parcel is in district no. 10, and the other is in district no. 4 of the town of Newtown. Heretofore the entire property has been assessed for school purposes in district no. 10. The board of education of district no. 4 contend that the 16 acres lying in their district should be assessed therein, and this appeal is brought for the purpose of determining the question.

Inasmuch as these two parcels of land are assessed as separate parcels upon the town assessment rolls, the amendment of 1889 to section 66 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act is clearly applicable to the case. It is unnecessary to determine the question whether, in consequence of the laying out of the street referred to, there was no contact between the parcels or whether the two parcels were properly assessable to school district no. 10 heretofore. Under the amendment referred to, each parcel is now clearly assessable in the district in which it lies. The appellants in this case will, therefore, be justified in including the 16 acre parcel in their future assessments.

The appeal is sustained.

4351

In the matter of the appeal of Oscar Wheeler, as trustee of school district no. 9, town of Hornellsville, Steuben county, v. board of education of union free school district no. 7, town and city of Hornellsville, Steuben county.

A farm consisting of 385 acres, situated in two or more school districts, and divided or separated into three separate parcels by the roadbed, tracks etc., of three different railroad companies, there being no proof that the owner of said farm is the owner of the fee of the land used and occupied by said railroads, said farm does not come within the exception contained in section 63 of article 7, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, relating to land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, and assessed as one lot on the town assessment roll, being taxable in that school district for school purposes in which the owner resides. So much of said farm as lies within said two or more school districts must be assessed in each of the districts respectively for the portion situated therein. This Department has uniformly held that when a farm lies in different districts, but is separated by railroad property, it can not be regarded as land lying in one body, and each separate part must be assessed in the district in which it lies.

Decided April 4, 1895

Milo N. Acker, attorney for appellant
Dolson & Dolson, attorneys for respondent
Near & Rathbun, attorneys for intervenor

Crooker, Superintendent

On November 12, 1894, one Charles H. Hartshorn, a resident of the city of Hornellsville, Steuben county, was, and for some years prior thereto had been, the owner, subject to the dower right therein of his mother, Cordelia Hartshorn (which dower right has not been admeasured), and in possession of certain real estate, commonly known as the Hartshorn Stock Farm, in the town of Hornellsville, Steuben county, and which real estate was situate partly in union free school district no. 7, and school district no. 9, town of Hornellsville; that the aggregate acreage of said real estate is about 385 acres; that there are farm buildings upon said real estate, the most, if not all, of which are located upon that part situate in said school district no. 9; that said real estate has been occupied by a person acting either as the agent or foreman, or the tenant of said Hartshorn, and persons employed as laborers have also resided thereon; that said real estate was assessed upon the last town assessment roll of the town of Hornellsville for the year 1894, after revision by the assessors, to said Hartshorn as "stock farm, 385 acres, $20,000"; that extending across said farm or real estate the entire distance from east to west are the roadbed, tracks etc., with right of way, of two railroad companies, namely, New York, Lake Erie & Western Company (formerly the Erie R. R. Co.), being 6 rods wide, and that of the Central New York and Western Railroad Company, being 4 rods wide, which said roadbed, tracks etc., are owned by, and in possession and control of, and operated by, said corporations respectively; that said corporations are assessed for and pay taxes upon said property so owned and operated by them respectively; that the roadbeds, tracks etc., of said railroads are parallel to each other, those of the N. Y., L. E. & W. R. R. running straight across said land of Hartshorn, and that of the C. N. Y. & W. R. R. at or near the boundary line between said districts 9 and 7, curving to the southwest, leaving a portion of the land of Hartshorn lying between the roadbed, tracks etc., of each of said railroads; that for several years prior to 1894 all of said real estate or farm had been assessed for school taxes in district no. 9; that the trustee of said district no. 9 appeared by counsel before the board of education of district no. 7 and objected to said board assessing any portion of said real estate or farm of said Hartshorn not lying within the bounds of said district upon the ground principally, "that said real estate or farm did not lie in one body within the meaning of the Consolidated School Law of this State"; that on or about November 12, 1894, said board of education of said district no. 7 assessed, in the tax list made by it, the whole of said real estate or farm to said Hartshorn at the valuation of $20,000; that said Hartshorn refused to pay the tax assessed to him by the trustee of said district no. 9, upon the ground that he had been assessed for said real estate in district no. 7; that pursuant to a resolution adopted at a school meeting, held in said district no. 9, on October 8, 1894, the appellant as trustee of said district appeals from the said tax and assessment of said real estate or farm to said Hartshorn in the tax list and assessment made by the board of education of said district no. 7 on or about November 12, 1894.

An answer has been made to said appeal and a reply to said answer. The said Hartshorn has been permitted to file proofs herein as intervenor.

The papers and proofs presented herein do not raise any question of fact, unless it may be relative to the occupancy of said real estate or farm, and in the view I take the occupancy of the farm is not material.

In my opinion the said real estate or farm of said Hartshorn did not, at the time of the assessment to him as aforesaid by the board of education of said district no. 7, lie in one body, within the meaning of section 63, article 7, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, and the decisions of this Department, and hence the board of education of said district no. 7, in making said tax and assessment, acted without having jurisdiction.

The provisions of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 in relation to the taxation of real property for school purposes are as follows:

By section 63, article 7, title 7, of said Consolidated School Law it is enacted that school district taxes shall be apportioned by the trustees upon all real estate within the boundaries of the district which shall not be by law exempt from taxation, except as hereinafter provided, and such property shall be assessed to the person or persons, or corporations owning or possessing the same at the time such tax list shall be made out; but land lying in one body and occupied by the same person, either as owner or agent for the same principal, or as tenant under the same landlord, if assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town after revision by the assessors, shall, though situated partly in two or more school districts, be taxable in that one of them in which such occupant resides. This rule shall not apply to land owned by nonresidents of the district, and which shall not be occupied by any agent, servant or tenant residing in the district.

By section 67, article 7, title 7, of said law it is enacted that any person working land under a contract for a share of the produce of such land, shall be deemed the possessor, so far as to render him liable to taxation therefor, in the district where such land is situate, and any person in possession of real property under a contract for the purchase thereof shall be liable to taxation therefor in the district where such real property is situate.

By section 68, article 7, title 7, of said law it is enacted that every person owning or holding any real property within any school district, who shall improve and occupy the same by his agent or servant, shall, in respect to the liability of such property to taxation, be considered a taxable inhabitant of such district, in the same manner as if he actually resided therein.

It will be seen that real property should be taxed in the district in which it is situate, except as to land lying in one body, etc., but situate in two or more districts, as stated in section 63. In order for any person to avail himself of the provisions contained in such exception, or for any board of trustees to have jurisdiction and power to tax and assess land in accordance therewith four questions are to be determined, namely, first, does the land lie in one body? second, the ownership, third, the occupancy, and, fourth, is the land assessed as one lot on the last assessment roll of the town? The first question to be determined by the board of education of district no. 7 in November 1894, and to be decided by me in this appeal, was and is, Did the said real estate or farm of said Hartshorn lie in one body? If it did not, that ends the matter, and it was not, and is not, material to inquire as to its ownership, occupancy or assessment on the town rolls, as its several parts must be assessed and taxed in the district in which they respectively lie.

Land lying in one body must consist or be in a collective whole or totality — there must be an actual contact or touching or meeting of the respective parts — it must be contiguous, adjoining. Where, however, in said exception in section 63, two parcels in the possession of the same owner are separated by a public highway the fee of which he owns, subject to the right of passage in the public, this is not to be regarded as preventing their contact.

The proofs presented herein establish the fact that in November 1894, said real estate or farm of said Hartshorn, consisting of 385 acres and situated partly in school district no. 9, and partly in school district no. 7, was divided or separated, by the roadbed, tracks etc., and property of the N. Y., L. E. & W. and C. N. Y. & W. Railroad Companies into three separate parcels, namely, one parcel situate north of the roadbed, property etc., of the N. Y., L. E. & W. Railroad Company; one parcel situate south of the roadbed, property etc., of the C. N. Y. & W. Railroad Company, and one parcel in triangular form situate between the roadbeds, property etc., of said two railroad companies. The contention of the respondents, the board of education, that said railroad roadbeds, tracks etc., are highways under the general definition of highways as applied to the public roads of the State, is not well taken. There is no proof that the said Hartshorn owns the fee of said land used and occupied by said railroads, subject to the rights of the corporations of the user thereof; and it is shown by the sworn statements of Hartshorn that his land was taken by the C. N. Y. & W. Railroad Company under condemnation proceedings, and he has been paid therefor. The N. Y., L. E. & W. Railroad was constructed many years ago through the farm or real estate of which Hartshorn is now the owner, and admitting, for the purpose of argument only, that said Hartshorn has the fee of its roadbed etc., through his said farm, it is not material, as the property of the C. N. Y. & W. Railroad Company divides and separates said real estate or farm of said Hartshorn into two separate parcels.

This Department has uniformly held that in the numerous cases in which land lying in one body, etc., as stated in said section 63, is crossed or cut through by a railroad, the land of the railroad company being taxable property, and coming between the two parcels of land, divides them so that the tracts of land on each side of the railroad will not, under the meaning of said section 63, be deemed or regarded as land lying in one body.

Superintendent Ruggles in appeal no. 3232, decided October 5, 1883, held that when a farm lies in different districts, but is separated by railroad property, it cannot be regarded as land lying in one body, and the respective parts must be assessed in the district in which they lie.

I find and decide, That in November 1894, said real estate or farm of said Charles H. Hartshorn, comprising 385 acres, and situate in two school districts, was not, within the meaning of said section 63, article 7, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, "land lying in one body"; that in November 1894, the board of education of school district no. 7, of the town and city of Hornellsville, had no jurisdiction or legal authority to assess and tax for school purposes the said real estate or farm consisting of 385 acres to said Charles H. Hartshorn, and that such assessment and taxation was and is void; that the trustee of said school district no. 9, town of Hornellsville, in the year 1894, had no jurisdiction or legal authority to assess and tax for school purposes the said real estate or farm consisting of 385 acres to said Charles H. Hartshorn, and that such assessment and taxation is void; that the respective parts or portions of said real estate or farm of said Charles H. Hartshorn, consisting of 385 acres, situate respectively in said school districts no. 7 and no. 9, should be assessed and taxed for school purposes by the trustees of said districts respectively, in the school districts in which said parts or portions respectively lie.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That so much of the tax list and assessment made by the board of education of school district no. 7, town of Hornellsville, on or about November 12, 1894, as assessed and taxed said Charles H. Hartshorn for a stock farm of 385 acres, at a valuation of $20,000, be, and the same hereby is, vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That so much of the tax list and assessment made by Oscar Wheeler as trustee of school district no. 9, town of Hornellsville, in 1894, as assessed and taxed said Charles H. Hartshorn for a stock farm of 385 acres, at a valuation of $20,000, be, and the same hereby is, vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That the board of education of said school district no. 7, and the trustees of said school district no. 9, of the town of Hornellsville, respectively, be, and they are, hereby ordered and directed to correct their respective tax lists and assessments, made and issued in the year 1894, in relation to said assessment and taxation of said real estate or farm of said Charles H. Hartshorn of 385 acres, in conformity with the foregoing finding, decision and orders made by me herein.

A person set off from one district to another, by an order that does not take effect until three months after its issue, will be liable on any taxes levied in the district from which he is set off, prior to the taking effect of such order.

Decided June 2, 1857

Van Dyck, Superintendent

In March 1857, an order was made, by the school commissioner having jurisdiction, transferring the lands of the appellant and others, from district no. 1 to district no. 2. The trustees of no. 1 having withheld their consent, this order will not take effect till the expiration of three months from the 1st day of April 1857, when notice thereof was served. While the alteration was inchoate, the district meeting was held, against the proceedings of which this appeal is directed, and a tax to defray the expenses of changing site and building a new schoolhouse was voted. The appellant objects that the effect will be to charge him with the payment of a tax for constructing a schoolhouse from which he receives no benefit.

Held, That this was a proper consideration for the judgment of the inhabitants of district no. 1, in determining whether they would build at once or postpone till after the alteration should have taken effect. The appellant continues an inhabitant of the district for all purposes until the 1st day of July. If the appellant is set off from the district without his consent, he will be exempted from paying a tax from building in no. 2, for four years. If he has given his consent, he is responsible for all the consequences, and can not be permitted to trammel the action of either district for the purpose of avoiding any personal charge or inconvenience.

3723

In the matter of the difference between school district no. 1, Franklinville, and school district no. 7, Lyndon, in the county of Cattaraugus.

Under chapter 59, Laws of 1886, a person whose place of residence is divided by a town line may elect in which of two towns he will pay his tax, and this statute is held to apply to school district taxes.

Decided November 14, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This matter comes before me by an agreed statement of facts out of which has arisen a question as to the proper place of taxing the lands of one Matthew Newman for school purposes.

It appears that Mr Newman is the owner of a farm which lies in two districts. He occupies the land and works it all as one farm and resides in a house situate thereon, which is divided by the line which divides the districts. Mr Newman claims to be a resident of the town of Franklinville, where he votes and to which town he pays taxes on the land in question. Under chapter 59 of the Laws of 1886, Mr Newman, in a case of this kind, would have a right to elect in which of the two towns in which his property is situate he would pay taxes, and it appears from the papers submitted that he has so elected, and wishes to pay his entire tax in the town of Franklinville.

I therefore decide that school district no. 1 of the town of Franklinville, Cattaraugus county, is entitled to assess the entire farm of Matthew Newman for school purposes.

 3538

In the matter of the appeal of J. W. Rood v. John Latimer, trustee of school district no. 16, town of Pomfret, Chautauqua county.

Trustees, in assessing railroad property, are to take the assessors' valuation, filed pursuant to chapter 694, Laws of 1867.

Decided April 18, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a taxpayer in district no. 16, town of Pomfret, Chautauqua county, N. Y., against John Latimer, sole trustee of said district.

The appellant alleges as a ground for appeal, that in preparing a certain tax list, said trustee failed to include all the property within the district, belonging to a certain railroad company, and all of certain other property belonging to a certain telegraph company.

It appears from the pleadings of the appellant, that the town assessors apportioned to the district, the railroad and telegraph property in question, pursuant to chapter 694, Laws of 1867, as amended, and filed the statement thereof in the town clerk's office. It is provided by said act that all taxes against said companies shall be levied and assessed upon the said assessors' valuation, until their next annual assessment or apportionment. This it appears the trustee did; consequently, there is no ground for this appeal, and the same, therefore, is dismissed.

3946

In the matter of the appeal of David Horton v. Philip Antis, as trustee of school district no. 15, town of Greenville, county of Greene.

An inhabitant of a school district, whose assessed valuation upon property by the town assessors was $2500, was assessed upon the same property by the school district trustee for school purposes upon a valuation of $5000, without receiving notice of such increase in assessed valuation. Held, illegal.

Decided December 30, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant, a taxable inhabitant of school district no. 15, town of Greenville, county of Greene, alleges that the trustee has wrongfully and illegally increased an assessment of $2500 upon the property as it appears upon the town assessment roll, to $5000, without giving to him notice thereof, and an opportunity to show that the increase was unwarranted.

The trustee has attached a warrant dated November 19, 1890, to the tax list, and delivered the same to the district collector.

No answer has been received, and the irregularity complained of is admitted by the trustee who has requested and been given permission to withdraw and correct the tax list.

The appeal is sustained, and the trustee is directed to correct his tax list, and comply with the provisions of law relating to the taxation of property for school purposes.

4006

In the matter of the appeal of George W. Martin v. Eli B. Shelmandine, trustee of school district no. 6, town of Blenheim, county of Schoharie.

Appeal by a minister of the gospel from the action of a school trustee in refusing to allow an exemption of $1500 upon certain property in the school district.

The statute provides for an exemption to ministers of the gospel of the amount claimed from the value of the property, real and personal, or either, if the value thereof exceeds $1500.

But this appeal is dismissed for the reason that the evidence does not disclose what property the appellant may be possessed of in the district and elsewhere.

Decided September 17, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the action of the trustee of school district no. 6 of the town of Blenheim, Schoharie county, in refusing to allow the appellant an exception of $1500 from the assessed valuation of his real estate lying in the above-mentioned district, which he claims as a minister of the gospel. The evidence is that upon the town assessment roll the exemption claimed by the appellant was allowed him, but that the trustee in preparing the district tax list, disallowed the exemption and so advised the appellant, basing his action upon the fact that the property assessed was not occupied by the appellant, and that the appellant resided in another district. The appellant appeared before the trustee at a time designated by that officer, and made statements claiming the exemption, but declined to make a statement in writing.

It is conceded by the respondent that the appellant is a minister of the gospel and is pursuing his vocation in an adjoining district. The appellant insists that his home is still in district no. 6 of the town of Blenheim, and that he spends some time there with his family, and that the property is in charge of his son and managed under his direction.

There is some conflict in the evidence as to the exact position the son occupies as the possessor of the farm, but if it is a fact that the son is working the farm upon shares, he would be liable to taxation for the property, but that question does not necessarily arise upon the consideration of this appeal.

Under section 5 of title 1 of chapter 13 of part 1 of the Revised Statutes, the appellant would be entitled to have deducted from the value of his property — if the same both real and personal or either of them, exceeded in value the sum of $1500. From the evidence submitted, I am unable to determine what property, both real and personal, the appellant is possessed of. Whatever it may be, he is entitled to but one exemption of $1500. He may have other real estate situated elsewhere, or he may have personal property of a sufficient amount or more, which would cover the exemption to which the law entitles him. The courts have held that a minister of the gospel is entitled to this exemption, whether he occupies his real estate or not. (See People ex rel. Mann v. Peterson, 31 Hun 421.)

It follows, therefore, that this appeal must be dismissed.

3551

In the matter of the appeal of Myra Kent from the action of Marvin Phillips, sole trustee of school district no. 16, town of Harmony, county of Chautauqua, in assessing her for personal property.

A tax upon personal property will be set aside when it appears that a trustee made an original assessment, and did not give to the party assessed twenty days notice of such assessment before delivering the tax list to the collector.

Decided January 3, 1887

F. A. Brightman, Esq., attorney for appellant

A. C. Packard, Esq., attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by Myra Kent, a resident of school district no. 16, town of Harmony, Chautauqua county, N. Y., from the action of the trustee of said district in making an original assessment against her for personal property in a tax list delivered to the collector of said district on or about November 23, 1886.

The appellant alleges as grounds of appeal:

1 That she was not assessed for personal property upon the last assessment roll of the town.

2 That she has no personal property liable to assessment or taxation.

3 That although the assessment of personal property to the appellant, by the trustee, was an original assessment, notice thereof was not given to her until several days after the tax list containing such assessment had been delivered to the collector.

The notice served is annexed to appellant's papers.

The trustee, answering the appeal, seeks to justify his assessment of appellant by certain allegations relative to property controlled by another, apparently for the benefit of appellant, and seeks to convey the idea that it is in the control of some person as guardian or trustee of the appellant.

From the allegations of the answer, it is not at all clear that this appellant has any property liable to taxation. The appellant unqualifiedly denies that she has. In any event, the trustee has neglected to proceed according to the statute, in making an original assessment in the following particulars:

1 Twenty days notice should have been given the appellant to enable her to appear and show cause why the assessment for personal property should not have been made. The notice served, gave her but nineteen days notice.

2 The roll containing an original assessment should have been open for inspection for twenty days and notice thereof given; and this before the delivery thereof to the collector.

It appears the roll was delivered to the collector three days earlier than the date of the notice given to the appellant.

I shall not pass upon the question as to whether the appellant is liable to taxation upon personal property, but she is certainly entitled to the opportunity the law gives her to examine the tax list and present her objections to the assessment.

I sustain the appeal and set aside the tax on personal property against the appellant and direct the respondent to withdraw and correct the tax list accordingly.

3857

In the matter of the appeal of Henry Ziengenfuss v. school district no. 2, of the town of Avoca, county of Steuben.

The exemption of certain property of ministers of the gospel from taxation is only intended to persons who are acting as such and derive their support from such employment.

Trustees must follow the town assessment roll except in special cases, when an original assessment may be made, but only after giving the statutory notice. In a case where the town assessors granted a person exemption from taxation as a minister of the gospel, and the school trustees had given no notice of an original assessment, but had included his property in a tax list, held, that it must be stricken out.

Decided February 17, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

Subdivisions 8 and 9, title 1, chapter 13, of the Revised Statutes, provide that the real estate of every minister of the gospel or priest of any denomination, when occupied by him, and not exceeding the value of $1500, shall be exempt from taxation. In case the value of such real estate exceeds $1500, then only the excess is to be taxed.

The appellant in this case claims to be an ordained minister of a sect known as "Advent Christians." He is not serving any organized church. He holds meetings in his neighborhood occasionally, at which collections are taken for his benefit. He is regularly engaged in the saddlery business, and maintains a shop or store where he carries on such business, and sells articles appertaining thereto. He owns real estate in which he resides and carries on his business, valued by the town assessors at the sum of $1600. It seems to be the fact that the town assessment rolls in 1887 and 1888 contained this property at its assessed valuation, with memoranda to the effect that $1500 thereof was exempt from taxation. It also seems to be the fact that such memoranda were placed upon the rolls in one or two instances, at least, only after the payment of taxes by the appellant, and that his demand for the return to him of such taxes as had been levied upon $1500 of valuation, had in each case been complied with. But the school trustees, in making out a tax list for school taxes in the district, have assessed him upon the valuation of $1600. This appeal is brought in order to avoid the taxation for school purposes upon the sum of $1500.

I am not at all certain that the appellant is in circumstances to entitle him to the exemption named in the statute. It seems to me very clear that he depends for a livelihood upon the saddlery business more than upon ministerial service, and it is very doubtful if it was the purpose of the Legislature to extend the exemption to such a case, but I do not deem it necessary to determine that question in this connection. It is the policy of the school laws to require trustees, in making out a tax list, to follow the last revised assessment rolls of the town, except in special cases where they have power to make an original assessment, but it can be done only upon notice to the person interested. There was evidently no such notice given in this case. In the absence of it, I think the trustees are bound to follow the town assessment rolls. In any case of a character similar to the one under consideration, it would seem to be the wisest and safest policy for trustees to follow such rolls. It is always to be borne in mind that the town assessment rolls are prepared by officers who are chosen with special reference to such a service, and who must be presumed to be better informed as to what circumstances will be sufficient ground for an exemption from taxation, within the provisions of the statute, than school trustees are likely to be. While there was evidently some doubt in the minds of the town assessors as to what their duty was in this particular case, and while there is some confusion about what they actually did, and the precise time when they did it, it still remains clear that up to the present time the exemption has in fact been granted to him by the town authorities. In view of this fact, and of the other one that the trustees have never given him legal notice of an original assessment by them, I am constrained to sustain his appeal, and direct that in the tax list appealed from, they grant him the same exemption which the town authorities have extended to him.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

5202

In the matter of the appeal of Francis W. Borden and George Deuel from the action of the board of education of union free school district no. 5, town of Easton, Washington county.

A board of education is not authorized by law to borrow money to meet the general expenses of maintaining a school except as provided in subdivision 19, section 15, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law.

The affairs of a school district should be managed within its resources and a board of education should not incur a liability in excess of appropriations voted by the district or authorized by law.

Decided September 21, 1905

Clarence E. Akin, attorney for appellant

Draper, Commissioner

This appeal is brought by two members of the board of education of union free school district no. 5, Easton, Washington county, to compel such board to issue a tax list to raise sufficient funds to meet the indebtedness of the district. No answer has been filed in this appeal, but members of the board of education who have voted to borrow money to meet outstanding bills have consulted this Department on the questions involved herein and have agreed to issue a tax list and raise an amount sufficient to liquidate the district's indebtedness. It is quite probable that the board has already authorized the issuance of such tax list. It is necessary, however, to take some action in this appeal in order to clear the records of this Department.

This district is located in a prosperous farming community. It does not even contain a small village. Several of the surrounding districts have contracted with this district for the education of their children. The people of this district are entitled to much credit for their efforts to maintain a school of advanced grade under such adverse circumstances. It appears that the cost of maintaining the school about three years ago was more than the board believed advisable to raise by tax that year. The board therefore borrowed a sum of money to aid in meeting the cost of maintaining the school. This indebtedness now exceeds $600. Subdivision 19 of section 15 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law authorizes a board of education to borrow money in anticipation of taxes levied but uncollected for the then current year and to issue certificates of indebtedness therefor. These certificates can not be issued for a longer period than nine months and not in excess of the amount of the tax levied. This is the only provision in the Consolidated School Law authorizing a board of education to borrow money to meet the expense of maintenance of school. The money borrowed by this board was not borrowed in accordance with the provision of law above stated and was therefore without legal authority. It appears that some of the trustees gave personal notes to meet these obligations. The spirit shown by these individuals is commendable, but the transaction is not based upon sound business methods or wise school administration. The affairs of a school district should be managed within its resources and a board of education should not incur a liability in excess of appropriations voted by the district or authorized by law.

The necessary funds for maintaining a school should be obtained by levying a tax on the property of the district annually or as such funds are needed. Carrying an indebtedness from year to year and paying interest thereon is unwise and can not be permitted.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 5, town of Easton, Washington county, shall within 30 days from the date hereof levy a tax on the taxable property of such district sufficient to meet all outstanding indebtedness and cause the same to be collected as the Consolidated School Law of the State provides.

5187

In the matter of the appeal of Janette E. Hutchins and Lillian A. Hutchins from the action of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Norfolk, St Lawrence county.

Ordinarily this Department will not interfere with the action of a board of education in referring to a district meeting any question involving the interests of the district. On the contrary it encourages such action.

A board of education, however, will not be permitted to delay the execution of directions from a district meeting, or to thwart the expressed wishes of a majority of the legal voters of a district without good cause, by calling special meetings of the district to pass upon questions which the district has already decided three times.

The action of a special meeting, regular in every particular, in designating a site and authorizing the board of education to obtain title thereto in behalf of the district creates a district liability.

An incumbrance upon the site designated, provided it may be removed, does not furnish sufficient ground upon which the district may refuse to complete a contract of purchase.

Decided May 25, 1905

Hon. Ledyard P. Hale, attorney for appellants

Fred. J. Flanagan, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

Union free school district no. 1, town of Norfolk, is located in the village of Norfolk, St Lawrence county. It was formed a few years ago by the consolidation of three common school districts. The population of the village is increasing and the school accommodations of the district are not adequate to its needs. In December 1904, the district made an appropriation of $14,300 for the erection of a new building.

It was also necessary to select a new site. A special meeting of the district was held January 17, 1905, for that purpose. The records show that five pieces of property were voted for and the one known as the Hutchins lot received a majority of 1 over all five and a majority of 9 over the one receiving the second largest number of votes.

After the Hutchins site had received a majority of the votes cast to determine which site should be chosen, the meeting proceeded to vote upon a resolution to appropriate $1000 for the purchase of that site which was described by metes and bounds in the resolution. Those who were opposed to the selection of the Hutchins site evidently voted against this resolution but it was carried by a majority of 15. This meeting therefore practically voted twice in favor of the selection of the Hutchins lot for a site.

On January 30, 1905, the board of education directed the call for a special meeting of the district to be held February 24, 1905, to rescind the vote at the special meeting of January 17, 1905, by which the Hutchins site was adopted. The records do not show that any of the residents of the district had petitioned the board to call a meeting for this purpose. The resolution offered at the meeting of February 24th to rescind the vote at the meeting of January 17th, by which the Hutchins site was chosen, was lost by a majority of 27. This meeting was well attended as 179 votes were cast. The refusal of this meeting to adopt a resolution to rescind its former action was equivalent to a vote in favor of the Hutchins site. The district therefore practically voted three times in favor of the Hutchins site.

At a meeting of the board of education held March 6, 1905, James Donnelly tendered his resignation as a member of the board and it was accepted. At a meeting of the board of education held March 13th, H. G. Atwater was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr Donnelly. At this meeting of the board of education, Mr Atwater, the member just appointed to fill a vacancy, offered a resolution directing the call of a special meeting to rescind the resolution adopted by the special meeting of the district on January 17, 1905, by which the Hutchins site was selected. This resolution was adopted and a special meeting called for April 5th.

On March 22d this appeal was filed with a petition for a stay to restrain the board of education from holding a special meeting of the district until this appeal could be determined. Such stay was issued by me March 23, 1905.

Section 10 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law provides that a majority of the voters of a union free school district may designate a site for the district. Subdivision 6 of section 15, title 8 of the same law imposes upon the board of education the duty "to purchase a site . . . for the district as designated by a meeting of the district." When the voters of the district at a district meeting have designated a site it is the duty of the board of education to purchase such site under the terms directed by the district. It was the duty of the board of education of this district to purchase the Hutchins site as directed by the voters of the district at a meeting held January 17, 1905.

Two answers to this appeal have been submitted. Thomas F. Mein and Albert B. Crabb, members of the board of education, concur in the statement set forth by appellants in their moving papers. The other members of the board of education, seven in number, set forth three reasons for failing to purchase the Hutchins site and for calling another special meeting of the district. The grounds on which they base their action are:

1 That the site was not regularly designated.

2 That the Hutchins site is not a suitable one for the erection of the building desired in this district.

3 That appellants are not able to give good title to the property.

The board of education is not the proper authority to determine whether the site was properly designated or not. The records show that the methods of procedure in relation to this matter were generally regular and in good form. It was well understood throughout the district that the meetings were to be held. The meetings were orderly and well attended. The merits of the various sites were generally discussed for several weeks and an open discussion took place at the meeting of January 17th. The meeting appears to have been eminently fair. If any of the proceedings, from the issuance of the call of the meeting to its close, were sufficiently irregular to warrant the setting aside of such proceedings the remedy of any aggrieved party was an appeal to the Commissioner of Education. Such appeal should have been brought within 30 days from the date on which such irregular acts occurred. The board of education having failed to avail itself of this remedy within the proper time, it will not be permitted at this time to interpose a mere technicality as sufficient ground for setting aside the wishes of a majority of the voters of the district clearly and properly expressed at a legal meeting. The records of the board of education show that such board recognized the action of the meeting of January 17th as proper and legal.

The notice given by the board for the special meeting of February 24th states that one of the propositions to be voted upon is "Shall the resolution for the selection of a schoolhouse site and for the raising of money for the purchase of the same, passed at the last special meeting of said union free school district, held January 17, 1905, be rescinded?" The resolution offered by Mr Atwater at the meeting of the board on March 13, 1905, contains the following proposition: "Shall the resolution for the selection of a schoolhouse site and for raising of money for the purchase of the same, passed at the special meeting of said union free school district, held January 17, 1905, be rescinded?" The board of education put itself on record twice as saying, "Shall the resolution for the selection of a schoolhouse site etc. be rescinded?" At no time does the regularity of the proceedings of the meeting of January 17th appear to have been questioned by the board of education until the appeal was brought. In view of the previous action of the board, such claim does not appear to be made in good faith now.

The board also claims that the Hutchins site is not a suitable one; that it is not centrally located; that it is not sufficiently level; that it is springy, etc. If these claims are true such facts were in the possession of the voters of the district at the time of the special meeting in January when such site was chosen. The judgment of a majority of the voters of the district regularly and fairly expressed at a district meeting must be accepted in lieu of the opinion of a majority of the members of the board of education.

The respondents claim that the Hutchins property is subject to a mortgage that does not become due until January 1, 1906, and that the mortgagee refuses to discharge such mortgage or accept the amount due on the same until that date and that appellants are thereby unable to give clear title to such property.

Appellants acknowledge that the Hutchins lot is subject to such mortgage and show that the total amount which will be due on such mortgage January 1, 1906, is one hundred five dollars ($105). Appellants show that such amount in gold coin of the United States has been tendered the mortgagee and that she refuses to accept it. Appellants also show that said tender has been deposited in the Norwood State Bank to the credit of the mortgagee and that the cashier of said bank has notified the mortgagee of the deposit of such tender. The appellants show that they offered to put up a bond to indemnify the district or to permit the board of education to deduct from the purchase price an amount sufficient to satisfy the mortgage.

The existence of this mortgage was not sufficient ground for the board of education to refuse to carry into effect the direction of the district meeting. The existence of this mortgage appears to have been known to residents of the district at the time such lot was designated as a site. It appears that Mr Flanagan, the attorney for respondents, drew the mortgage and that his law partner, Mr Atwater, one of the members of the board of education and one of the respondents, witnessed its execution.

The action of the special meeting of the district held January 17, 1905, was legal and also binding upon the district. The appellants thereby became the vendors of the real estate in question and the district became the purchaser of such real estate. If appellants are able to give a marketable title to this property the purchaser, the district, is bound to accept it. The only question to determine, therefore, is whether or not the incumbrance of $105, the balance of an outstanding mortgage due January 1, 1906, is sufficient to render the title of this property unmarketable. The vendors are able to give immediate possession. The title to the property in question is not doubtful. It is simply incumbered. The amount of the incumbrance is definitely known to both parties. The date when it becomes due is fixed and known to both parties and is in the near future. In a court of equity the appellants could undoubtedly enforce specific performance on the part of the purchaser. The accepted rule on this question is: "An incumbrance upon the premises so long as it may be removed by application of the purchase money or where the vendor being solvent offers to remove it or may be compelled to do so, furnishes no ground upon which the purchaser may refuse to complete the contract or recover damages against the vendor." (See § 304. Maupin on Marketable Title to Real Estate; 96 Am. Dec. 582; Webster v. K. T. C. Co. 145 N. Y. 281.)

The conclusion must be reached in this appeal that a majority of the board of education is not justified in delaying an acceptance of this property. There appears to have been the usual discussion and rivalry in this district incident to the designation of a site. A determined effort was made by certain residents of the district to select one other than the Hutchins lot. Mr Atwater appears to have been prominently identified with this element. He was present at the January meeting and spoke against the selection of the Hutchins lot. He offered to contribute $100 toward the equipment of the new building if the district would select the Bemis lot. In the face of these arguments and inducements the district meeting voted to select the Hutchins lot. The pleadings do not show that such action was unwise. The voters of the district passed upon the wisdom of this selection three times, and each time by an increased majority. It is not shown that any of the residents of the district petitioned for a further opportunity to express their wishes upon the location of a site previous to the last call for a special meeting or before this appeal was brought. Ordinarily this Department will not interfere with the action of a board of education in referring to a district meeting any question involving the interests of the district. On the contrary it encourages such action. A board of education, however, will not be permitted to delay the execution of directions from a district meeting or to thwart the expressed wishes of a majority of the legal voters of a district without good cause by calling special meetings of the district to pass upon questions which the district has already decided three times.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Norfolk, St Lawrence county, shall without unnecessary delay, accept in behalf of said district the Hutchins lot as a schoolhouse site and obtain title thereto as the law provides. In performing this duty the said board of education shall exercise the usual methods of prudent men to protect the said district from any loss which might result from the incumbrance on said Hutchins lot as appears herein, and said board of education shall therefore determine whether the amount of said incumbrance shall be deducted from the purchase price of said lot, whether the vendors shall give a bond of indemnity with proper sureties, or whether some other plan shall be pursued which shall afford sufficient and proper protection to the district in the premises.

5289

In the matter of the appeal of Corwin J. Thomas and others from the action of the board of education of Pike Seminary union free school district no. 8, town of Pike, county of Wyoming.

The Commissioner of Education will not interfere with the action of a board of education whose business transactions have not conformed to the statutes through lack of knowledge of the provisions of such statutes when it is shown that the board acted honestly and in good faith and when such board gives full publicity to the voters of the district of its transactions and takes prompt action to correct all errors as soon as such board receives information of the procedure to be taken under the circumstances.

Decided October 23, 1906

G. W. Harding, attorney for appellant

Draper, Commissioner

It is alleged in this appeal that the annual report of the board of education is not sufficiently explicit in relation to the finances of the district as to give the taxpayers of the district a proper understanding of the real financial status of the affairs of the district. It is alleged that many of the expenditures of the board are given in the aggregate amount instead of itemized form. It is alleged that the tax list issued soon after the last annual meeting does not contain the heading required by law. It is also asserted that the annual report for 1905 was not published as required by law. It is further alleged that the board of education without authority borrowed $1100 to meet current expenses of the school and is still paying interest on that sum. It is not charged or implied in the moving papers that the board of education has wasted or extravagantly expended the funds of the district. It is not charged or implied in any way that the board of education has been guilty of any intentional wrongful conduct. In general the most that is charged is that the method of procedure has been irregular, that the board has exceeded its authority and that information desired is not obtainable.

The board of education makes a straightforward open answer and explanation to all these allegations. The board acknowledges that the tax list did not contain the heading prescribed by law, but it asserts that all taxpayers have paid their taxes and without protest. It states that the treasurer prepared the tax list and used an old form of heading without understanding the legal requirements.

The answer of the board shows that all appellants (except Greene who, it is charged, is not a legal voter) were at the annual meeting of August 7, 1906, when its report was read and that such report was approved and accepted without a dissenting vote. If the report was incorrect, misleading or incomplete it was the duty of the appellants to object at that time, but failing to raise such objection and the report having been accepted appellants are barred from objecting now unless they show that they possess information now in relation thereto which was not known then. This is not shown.

This school district was only organized into a union free school district in 1904. Upon the organization of such district Pike Seminary was transferred to it. The board asserts that during this transitory period the board of education in power failed to make definite estimates and levy sufficient taxes to meet the ordinary running expenses. It is also stated that the board of education in power at that time believed that the interest accruing from the endowment fund of Pike Seminary which would become an asset of the district could be legitimately used to pay the deficiency in the maintenance fund of the school district. The board acknowledges that for the reasons above stated it borrowed in April and May 1904, the sum of $1100 from the endowment fund in question. There was no secrecy about the action of the board and the fact that such loan had been made was generally known and that knowledge of all facts in connection therewith have been known to appellants for two years or more. The board also claims that it acted in entire good faith in the whole transaction and on the belief that it had full legal authority to do so.

The board in its answer also shows that it has called a special meeting of the district to permit the voters of the district to provide means and methods of liquidating the indebtedness in question. It appears that the special meeting will be required to authorize the issue of bonds to meet this indebtedness. The attention of the board is directed to the provisions of sections 9 and 10 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law as to the purposes for which bonds may be issued. The district has not authority to issue bonds for this particular purpose.

Respondents admit that no report for 1905 was published as the board was not familiar with the requirements of the law in that respect. The board however did publish its report for 1906 when it understood the law governing the same. It is too late for appellant to raise that question now as 15 months have occurred since failure to publish such report. Such report as it appears on the official files is open to the inspection of any legal voters of the district.

It appears that the Pike Seminary building burned in December 1904, and that the school district thereafter erected a new building or repaired the one injured by fire. The pleadings are not clear upon this point, but the board makes a report on a building fund. This report shows in receipts an item under the head of insurance to the amount of more than $7000, one of bonds sold for $3000 and a total of $10,598.32. One of the criticisms on that report is that the items under expenditure are not given in detail. The report shows that $6548.68 were paid to the Silver Springs Manufacturing Co. This report does not show what the expenditure was for. It evidently was for something in connection with the building. It is not shown whether the building was erected under contract or by the district. It was not practicable to publish an itemized statement of such expenditure or to report it in full in detail to the meeting. If such expenditure was under contract it is immaterial. If it was not under contract but was for material, labor etc. the proper course would be to appoint an auditing committee to go over all accounts with the board and pass upon them. Other items in this report may be treated similarly.

Appellants allege that they are unable to get full information on these expenditures but respondents claim that no request has ever been made for such information from any of appellants except Mr Smith. They claim that the secretary and treasurer showed Mr Smith all exhibits and explained all items fully to him and that he expressed himself as fully satisfied that the aggregate amounts as shown in the report were fully accounted for in the books and vouchers which he examined.

The relief requested by appellants is an order from me directing the examination of all papers and books by the school commissioner of the district. I do not think such action necessary. The board of education has been eminently fair in its treatment of appellants and offers them full opportunity to obtain any information desired or which is in its possession. The board acknowledge all irregularities which exist or which have taken place and have corrected the same as far as possible. No improper motives are alleged to have impelled the board in its action in any of these matters. Any resident of the district has full access to the official records and until it is shown that the board is unwilling to afford reasonable access to such records assistance should not be requested from outside sources.

The appeal is dismissed.

5142

In the matter of the appeal of Helen Clark v. the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Thompson, Sullivan county.

The legally constituted authorities of a school act wholly within their legal rights in exercising control of the expressions and the business matters of a publication which is held out to represent the school. Such authorities are not only legally warranted in doing it but they are legally obligated to do it. A publication standing for a high school and appealing to the constituency of that school on such ground is not a private or personal affair, but a public affair and subject to public authority.

Decided September 16, 1904

Wilton Bennett, attorney for petitioner

Draper, Commissioner

This is an appeal from the action of the board of education of Monticello union free school district no. 1, town of Thompson, Sullivan county, in sustaining the action of the principal of the union free school in suspending from the school the son of the appellant.

The difficulty arose as follows: Several pupils in the school, among whom Matthew J. Clark seems to have been an energetic and leading spirit, began the publication of a school paper which they called the High School Mirror. So far as I can learn from the papers presented, this publication at first had no school organization behind it, nor was it fairly representative of the school. There can be no doubt, however, that it assumed to represent the school, and subscriptions and advertisements on the ground that it was the paper of the Monticello High School, were solicited and received. It does not appear that the school authorities at first either aided or disapproved of the enterprise. In time the paper attained some success securing considerable patronage. The statements of the parties lead me to conclude that this was largely due to the energy and business skill of Matthew Clark. With success came responsibilities in the way of moneys, obligations and editorial policies, which involved or were sure to involve the school, its faculty and the board of education. In view of this the principal proceeded to secure as responsible an organization as was practicable among the pupils for the management of the affairs of the paper. Such an organization was effected, went into operation and called upon Clark, who was the business manager, to make an accounting and submit the management of the paper to the organization. He refused to do this, taking the ground that the publication was a personal affair with such students as had participated and not answerable to a school organization or to the school authorities. He thus joined the issue with authority and in time was suspended from school privileges by the principal who was sustained by the board of education.

It seems to me that there can be no doubt about the legally constituted authorities of a school being wholly within their legal rights in exercising control of the expressions and the business matters of a publication which is held out to represent the school. Not only are they legally warranted in doing it but they are legally obligated to do it. Under the law they are charged with the duty of protecting the good name of the school; of keeping the organization free from whatever may discredit it, and of maintaining such a state of discipline among pupils as will insure harmony and effectiveness of procedure and accomplish the general ends for which the school is maintained.

The highest point of effectiveness is reached when this general principle is commonly assumed and the largest practicable freedom is accorded to the pupils; that is, when the pupils are capable of exercising the largest freedom without rebelling against the fact that in the last resort the legal and responsible governors of a school must govern.

There would be some pleasure in sustaining this energetic young manager, but he is in error. His error lies in the fact that he does not see, as he probably will when he is older, that a publication standing for the Monticello High School and appealing to the constituency of that school on that ground is not a private or personal affair. It becomes a public affair and so subject to public authority. The principal acted lawfully and moderately, firmly and wisely, and the board of education was correct in sustaining him. It follows that the appeal must be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

5161

In the matter of the petition for the removal of Christopher H. Stark et al. as trustees of union free school district no. 2, town of Highlands, Orange county.

When a board of education fails to comply with the direction of a district meeting owing to some great emergency but reports fully in relation thereto to the next district meeting and the meeting acquiesces in the judgment of such board by adopting its report, the board can not be regarded as having acted in bad faith, or as not having been open and fair in its dealings to the district.

It is legal and proper for a board of education to expend for current expenses any of the usual receipts which are paid into the treasury of a district. If appropriations voted at a district meeting for contingent expenses are insufficient the board possesses power to levy a tax for the necessary amount to meet the expenditures for contingent purposes.

Certificates of indebtedness may be issued by a board of education in anticipation of taxes levied but uncollected. Such certificates can not be legally issued unless such taxes have been levied.

A mere allegation by a layman that water-closets are in an unsanitary condition is not competent proof when a board of education and a district meeting decide that such closets are suitable for use for one year. This allegation, however, is sufficient to warrant an investigation by competent authority to determine the condition of such closets.

Decided January 4, 1905

Robert H. Barnett, attorney for petitioners

C. L. Waring, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

The petitioners herein allege five specific acts of wilful violation of law or of wilful refusal or neglect to perform official duties as trustees on which they ask this Department to remove from office the trustees of union free school district no. 2, town of Highlands, constituting a board of education of such district.

The first and one of the most important charges made against these trustees is their failure to provide new water-closets. The board of education, through its budget presented to the annual meeting in 1903, requested an appropriation of $500 for building new water-closets. The district voted an appropriation of that amount for such purpose. The trustees failed to erect the water-closets. They used part of the money appropriated for these closets to enlarge the accommodations of the primary department. The budget of the trustees for 1903 also contained an item of $350 for furnishing additional accommodations for the primary department and an appropriation for that amount and purpose was voted. The respondents set forth that when they commenced to equip sufficient additional accommodations for the primary department it was found impossible to do so on the appropriation voted and they therefore used part of the money for that purpose which had been appropriated for water-closets. The respondents claim that they regarded the making of these accommodations of more importance to the district than the building of the water-closets and especially so since these increased accommodations were made on the recommendation of an inspector of this Department. It appears that the board of trustees made a full report to the annual meeting of the district on their action in failing to erect such water-closets and in using part of the appropriation therefor for increasing the primary department accommodations. It appears that such report was accepted by the annual meeting and the acts of the trustees in the matters in question were also ratified by such meeting. The district, therefore, acquiesced in the action of the board and accepted the judgment exercised by the board as having been in accordance with the wisest course to pursue under the circumstances. Under these conditions the board can not be regarded as having acted in bad faith or as not having been open and fair to the district in dealing with the question of closets and increased accommodations for the primary department.

A safer and wiser course for the board to have pursued under such circumstances would have been to have called a special meeting of the district and permitted such meeting to have decided whether additional money should be appropriated or whether that appropriated for closets should be used for other purposes.

The second important count made by the petitioners is the expenditure of money in excess of that appropriated. The petitioners include in their moving papers a copy of the report of the board of education to the annual meeting in 1904. This report shows the total receipts for the year to be $16,904.03. The report also shows the expenditures including "balance on hand" to be $16,904.03 and the appropriations made by the annual meeting of 1903 amounted to $13,694. The expenditures therefore exceeded the appropriations by $3,210.03. The other receipts of the district brought the total amount of receipts to within $700 of the total expenditures.

In preparing its budget for the annual meeting of 1903 the board undoubtedly took into consideration the fact that there would be receipts from various sources which could be legally expended for many purposes and therefore made their estimate of appropriations to be voted at that meeting less than what the aggregate expenses of maintaining the school system would be. It was proper that they should do so. It would undoubtedly have been wiser for the board to have stated fully all sources of revenue anticipated for the year, specifying each item. It was entirely legal and proper however for the board to expend for the current expenses any of the usual receipts which are generally paid into the treasury of a district. If the appropriations voted at the district meeting for teachers' salaries or for contingent expenses were insufficient the board possessed power under section 20 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law to levy a tax for the necessary amount to meet the expenditures for such purposes. It is not even alleged by the petitioners that these expenditures were not made for legitimate purposes. The itemized report of the board accepted at the annual meeting shows the expenditures to have been proper and within the legal power of the board. The amount appropriated for teachers' salaries was $6250. The actual amount expended was $7738.65, an excess over the appropriation of $1488.65. The amount appropriated for fuel was $500. The actual amount expended was $717.40, an excess of $217.40. It is unnecessary to go into the details of all of these expenditures as all others appear to be for contingent expenses and were within the legal powers of the board.

It is also alleged that the board exceeded its authority by issuing a trustee's note for $700. The respondents state in their answer to this charge that such note was issued by them under authority of chapter 233, Laws of 1903. This law authorizes a board of education to issue certificates of indebtedness. Such certificates are to be issued in the name of the board and shall be signed by the president and clerk thereof. These certificates may be issued in anticipation of taxes levied but uncollected. The proceeds of this note amounted to $700 and were used to meet a deficiency in the expenses of the district for the payment of which no provision had been made. The law did not confer such power on the board. Not having the available funds to meet the expenses of the district, the board should have levied a tax to meet such deficiency. The board then would have possessed power to issue a certificate of indebtedness.

It is also charged that the tax list and warrant were not filed as the law requires in the town clerk's office. It appears however that such tax list and warrant were properly filed within four days after return thereof was made by the collector and this was within a reasonable time.

It is also charged that members of the board of education were personally interested in contracts for the district. It is charged that one Nelson, a former member of the board of trustees and a notary public and justice of the peace received $7.50 for acknowledging affidavits and that he was paid $5 for other purposes. The respondents admit that these payments were made but claim that the $5 was for traveling expenses to consult an architect and that said Nelson went to consult the architect at the direction of the board. The charge of $7.50 for acknowledging affidavits was an improper charge. It should not have been audited by the board or by a district meeting. The clerk of the district is authorized to administer oaths in all matters pertaining to the school affairs of the district. He received a salary and should have performed this duty without additional compensation.

It is also charged that the clerk of the district was interested in contracts. It appears that he performed certain work in the nature of grading, etc., but the board had a right to employ him for this purpose as a clerk of the board is not a member of such board but its employee.

In connection with the charge of wilful failure of the board to build water-closets, it is alleged that the present closets are in an unsanitary condition. Competent proof is not offered however in substantiation of this charge. No certificate of a school commissioner or of a health officer has been filed on this question. A mere allegation by a layman that closets are in an unsanitary condition is not competent proof when a board of education and a district meeting decide that such closets are suitable for use for one year. This allegation, however, is sufficient to warrant an investigation by competent authority to determine the condition of such closets. This Department's inspector of school buildings will therefore be authorized to make such investigation without delay. If such closets are found to be in an unsanitary condition an immediate remedy will be applied.

In proceedings of this kind for the removal of trustees this Department is governed by the decisions of the courts of the state. The Commissioner of Education, under section 13, title 1 of the Consolidated School Law, may remove a school officer who has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty, etc. The courts have held that the term wilful as used in this connection means "intentional." The language of the court is "the words 'wilful violation of duty' as used in section 13, title 1 of the Consolidated School Law, as applicable to acts for which members of a board of education may be removed by the State Superintendent [Commissioner of Education] must be construed to mean acts intentionally done with a wrongful purpose." See 63 Hun 389, and 37 Appellate Division Reports 44.

The petitioners have failed in establishing by a preponderance of proof that the respondents in any way acted intentionally with a wrongful purpose.

In my opinion the respondents have shown that they acted in entire good faith in all of these matters. They submitted a clear and complete report of all their official acts to the annual meeting of the district. Such meeting accepted the report and ratified the acts of such trustees.

The petition is dismissed and the prayer of the petitioners is denied.

5420

In the matter of the appeal of R. J. McDowell and Thomas Henderson from the proceedings of annual school meeting of union free school district no. 3, Mooers, Clinton county.

Notice of submission of question of increase of members of board of education at annual meeting. A notice of an annual meeting held in a union free school district, whose boundaries are not coterminous with an incorporated village, prepared and posted by the district clerk, which contains a statement that a proposition will be submitted at such meeting to increase the number of the members of the board of education, is not illegal, nullifying the vote upon such proposition, because such statement was included without authority from the board, where it appears (1) that the board wrongfully refused to include such statement in the notice; (2) that the qualified electors had ample opportunity to discuss the question of increasing the number of members of the board before the meeting; and (3) the result of the vote upon such question showed that the sentiment in the district was decidedly in favor of the increase.

Decided November 3, 1909

David H. Agnew, attorney for appellant

C. J. Vert, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The petitioners in this case, Russell J. McDowell and Thomas Henderson, are two of the three members of the board of education of union free school district no. 3, town of Mooers, Clinton county. They ask that the proceedings of the annual school meeting held in such district on August 3, 1909 "in voting upon the proposition to increase the number of trustees from three to five be vacated and set aside as illegal and void, upon the ground that the board of education had not authorized the submission of said proposition to said annual meeting in the manner provided by section 227 of the Education Law of this State." They also ask that the election of M. B. Stewart and W. S. Stevenson who were voted for, upon the adoption of the proposition above referred to, be vacated and annulled. All the questions properly considered on this appeal depend for their determination upon the disposition of the question raised as to the validity of the submission of the proposition for increasing the number of members of the board of education of this district. The boundaries of the district are not coterminous with those of the village of Mooers, and section 227 of the Education Law provides the procedure for the change in the number of members of the board of education of such district. Such section is as follows: "At any annual meeting held in any union free school district whose limits do not correspond with those of any incorporated village or city, the qualified voters may determine by a majority vote of such voters present and voting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of such district. If such board shall consist of less than nine members and such meeting shall determine to increase the number, such meeting shall elect such additional number so determined upon and shall divide such number into three classes, the first to hold office one year, the second two years, and the third three years. If such meeting shall determine to diminish the number of such members composing such board, no election shall be held in such district to fill the vacancies of the outgoing members thereof until the number of members shall correspond to the number which such meeting shall determine to compose such board. No board of education of such district shall consist of less than three nor more than nine members. No change shall be made in the number of trustees of any such school district unless notice is given by the board of education at the time and in the same manner that notice is given of the annual school meeting that a vote will be taken upon the question of changing the number of trustees at such annual meeting."

From the papers in the case it appears that a petition, signed by twenty-nine taxpayers of the district, was presented to the board of education requesting the board to insert in its call for the annual meeting a notice to the effect that a vote will be taken at such meeting to increase the number of the members of the board from three to five. The signers of the petition owned about one-third of the taxable property in the district. They were evidently representative men, influential citizens and interested in the welfare of the school. This petition was considered by the board at a meeting held July 6, 1909, and a motion that such petition be received and a proper notice be inserted was rejected. The petitioners McDowell and Henderson voted against such motion and the respondent, Chauncey H. Humphrey, voted in its favor. The notice of the annual meeting was prepared and posted by the said Humphrey, who was clerk of the board. He included in such notice a statement in the following form:

"Notice is also hereby given that there will be submitted for vote at said meeting the question: Shall the number of the board of education, or trustees, be increased from three to five members."

The board did not authorize the insertion of such statement. It was apparently inserted by Mr Humphrey on his own initiative in his capacity as clerk. A resolution was submitted at the annual meeting in conformity with the notice increasing the number of members of the board from three to five. The petitioners filed a written protest against a vote being taken on such resolution. The resolution was nevertheless voted upon and carried by a vote of 109 to 7. After the adoption of such resolution the meeting proceeded to elect two additional trustees.

It is insisted that under section 227 of the Education Law, above quoted, a board of education is clothed with the exclusive power of determining at what time and under what circumstances the district shall vote to increase or diminish the number of its members, and that if such power is not exercised the qualified electors of the district may not vote upon such question. Such a construction of the statute would nullify the evident intent of the statute. The section referred to was derived from section 31 of title 8 of the former Consolidated School Law, as amended by Laws of 1903, chapter 463. Before the amendment of 1903 an annual meeting could vote upon the question of a change in the number of members of the board of education without a notice having been given. The object of amending the law by providing for notice is apparent. The Legislature intended that the district should be informed in advance of any proposed action changing the membership of the board, so that they might know how many members were to be elected at the annual meeting. It was not the intent of the statute to vest the board with the power of preventing action by the district on this important question. The statute imposes upon the board the ministerial duty of giving notice that the question of a change will be voted upon at the annual meeting. It is a positive duty to be performed by the board whenever any considerable number of persons request such notice to be given. Such duty will be compelled upon an appeal upon proof of the required facts.

In this case it clearly appears that the petitioners, constituting a majority of the board of education, arbitrarily rejected a petition of twenty-nine taxpayers representing nearly one-third of the taxable property in the district, requesting that the board give notice that the annual meeting would vote upon an increase in the membership of the board. This was a violation of duty and an official wrong upon the district. They should have acted favorably upon such petition and directed the clerk to include in the notice of the annual meeting a statement that such increase would be voted upon. The clerk of the board, who was a member thereof, took upon himself to right this wrong, by including the proper statement in the notice of the annual meeting. Except for the fact that by so doing he was performing a legal duty imposed by statute upon the board itself, I would not uphold his action. The clerk of the board must ordinarily be deemed its servant; he should not, under usual circumstances, be permitted to overthrow its official acts. But where the unauthorized act is the performance of a duty clearly imposed upon the board, which such board had wilfully refused to perform, it may be necessary to sustain and give legal force to such act.

The electors of district no. 3, town of Mooers, were entitled to the privilege of voting upon this question at its annual meeting. It could not be voted upon without notice. The board unlawfully refused to give the notice; the clerk exceeded the powers usually conferred upon clerks, in incorporating the required statement in the notice of the annual meeting. If the board is sustained in its wilful violation of duty the district will be deprived of the privilege which rightfully belongs to it, of controlling the number of the members of its board of education. If the clerk is upheld in disregarding the direction of the board, and in giving notice of the submission of the proposition for an increase in the number of members of the board, the privilege of controlling such number will be preserved to the district.

The clerk should be sustained in giving such notice. The notice must be held legal and binding upon the board, and sufficient under the statute to justify the vote taken upon the proposition at the annual meeting. Since the notice should have been given by the board in the performance of its legal duty in respect thereto, it is proper to consider such notice as having been given by the board. To hold otherwise would permit the board to profit by its wrongful acts.

Another reason exists for sustaining the acts of the annual meeting in voting upon this proposition. The result of such vote shows that the sentiment of the district, after actual notice and full discussion, was decidedly in favor of such proposition. There is no claim made that there was any lack of information about it. No unfair advantage of those opposed to it was taken. It is always the desire of the Department to uphold the deliberate, and certainly the decisive, determination of a school district upon such a question. Thus we come to the question as to whether the Department should overthrow the determination simply because of a technical defect in the method of giving the notice, which in no wise reaches the merits of the case. The Department would not do that without absolute necessity and I do not think it exists in this case.

I must therefore conclude that the proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education of this district was properly and legally voted upon at the annual meeting; that such proposition was duly adopted; that the acts of such meeting in electing M. B. Stewart and W. S. Stevenson as members of such board were legal and binding upon the district; and that the acts of a majority of the board of education as constituted by the election of the said Stewart and Stevenson are valid.

A question was raised as to the resignation of Russell J. McDowell and as to whether he is now a member of the board. Such resignation was not legally made and the said McDowell continues as a member of such board.

The appeal is dismissed.

4276

In the matter of the appeal of Edgar T. Boudy, from election of John S. Knight as member of the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of North Greenbush, Rensselaer county.

In union free school districts other than those whose limits correspond to those of an incorporated village or city, the vote upon a proposition to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education must be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters present and voting upon said proposition, and such proposition must receive a majority of the votes so taken and recorded. Where the resolution, increasing the number of the members of the board of education, was not acted upon in the manner hereinbefore stated, the election of an additional member of said board is null and void. Proceedings to increase or diminish the number of members of a board of education can only be had and taken at the annual meeting of said district.

Decided October 9, 1894

Van Alstyne & Hevenor, attorneys for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the election of John S. Knight as a trustee or member of the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of North Greenbush, Rensselaer county, at the adjourned annual meeting of said district held on August 14, 1894.

The following facts, material to the questions arising upon this appeal, are established by the papers presented upon said appeal:

That the limits of said school district do correspond to those of an incorporated village; that on the first Tuesday of August 1894, the board of education of said district consisted of six members; that the annual meeting of said school district was held on the first Tuesday of August 1894, at which the annual report of the board of education of receipts and expenditures, with vouchers, and the amount of money necessary to be raised for the new school year, were presented and said vouchers were referred to a committee of five to examine and report at an adjourned meeting, and said meeting was adjourned to August 14, 1894, at 8 o'clock p. m., that on August 14, 1894, said meeting convened pursuant to adjournment, and after the transaction of some business, a motion was made that the number of members of the board of education of said union free school district be increased to seven; a motion was made that the matter be laid over for one week and said motion was lost, and thereupon the chairman of the meeting appointed two tellers, and the chairman of the meeting put said motion for increasing the members of said board of education to seven, stating that all those who were in favor of the motion should raise their right hands and remain so until counted by the tellers, which was done, the tellers reporting that the number of ayes was 30; the chairman then stated that all opposed to the motion should raise their right hands and remain so until counted by the tellers, which was done, the tellers reporting that the number of nays was 9; and the motion was declared adopted; that an election was then had for an additional trustee or member of said board of education, by ballot, with the following result: 50 ballots were cast, of which Joseph Parks received 5, Daniel Layden 8, Wesley O. Howard 7, Edgar Boudy 12, and John S. Knight 18, whereupon the chairman declared John S. Knight as such trustee.

Under section 31, article 5, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted, that at any annual meeting held in any union free school district whose limits do not correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, the qualified voters may determine, by a majority vote of such voters present and voting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of said district. If such board shall consist of less than nine members and such meeting shall determine to increase the number, such meeting shall elect such additional number so determined upon, and shall divide such number into three several classes, etc., etc.

Said union free school district no. 12, North Greenbush, under section 31, above cited, had the power and authority, at its annual meeting, held on the first Tuesday of August, or at the adjourned annual meeting on August 14th, to determine by a majority vote of the qualified voters present and voting, such vote to be ascertained in the manner prescribed in said section, namely, by taking and recording the names of each voter voting thereon and also taking and recording the aye or no of each voter so voting upon said question opposite to his or her name, and if said meeting should so determine it could then elect the additional member of said board. The proofs show that the vote of the meeting, upon the question to increase the number of members of said board to seven, was not taken and ascertained in the manner provided by said section 31, but, on the contrary, said vote was taken and ascertained by the uplifted hand. The said district did not, at its annual meeting in 1894, duly and legally determine to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district, and the action and proceedings had and taken relative to such increase was null and void; that no action to determine said increase can be taken by said district until its next annual meeting.

The said district not having legally determined to increase the members of the board of education to seven, it follows that the meeting could not legally elect an additional member of said board and that the actions and proceedings of said meeting relative to the election of such additional trustee were null and void.

The school law requires that a person to be legally elected to a school district office must receive a majority of the votes cast for said office. Admitting, for the purpose of argument only, that at the annual meeting of said district it was duly and legally determined to increase the members of the board of education to seven, the meeting failed to elect any person as such additional member. The proofs show that the whole number of ballots cast for such additional member was 50; a majority of 50 is 26; no one received 26 votes, and hence no one was legally elected as a trustee or member of said board of education.

I find and decide that the qualified voters of union free school district no. 6, town of North Greenbush, at the adjourned annual meeting held therein on August 14, 1894, did not legally determine to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district.

That John S. Knight was not, nor was any one, duly and legally elected at said meeting held on August 14, 1894, as a trustee of said district, or a member of the board of education of said district.

That the qualified voters of said district can not take any action to legally determine to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of said district until the next annual meeting held in said district.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all action or proceedings had and taken at the adjourned meeting, held on August 14, 1894, in union free school district no. 6, town of North Greenbush, Rensselaer county, in the election of a member of the board of education, or an additional member of the board of education of said district, be and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

5018

In the matter of the appeal of Joseph Warringer from proceedings of annual meeting held August 5, 1902, in union free school district no. 3, Red Hook, Dutchess county.

Under the provisions of section 31, article 5, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, the vote taken at the annual meeting of a union free school district to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of such district must be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters present and voting.

Decided September 23, 1902

J. Morschauser, attorney for appellant
Hackett & Williams, attorneys for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings taken at the annual meeting held August 5, 1902, in union free school district 3, Red Hook, Dutchess county, relating to the increase of the number of members of the board of education of the district from five to seven, and the alleged election of C. A. Pritchard and Clarence Ames as members of such board for the term of three years; and of Peter Rifenburgh for the term of two years; and of Henry B. Coon for the term of one year.

The appeal herein was filed in this Department September 4, 1902, with due proof of service of copy thereof personally on C. A. Pritchard, the chairman of the annual meeting, and a member of the board of education, and on Frank Berkman, a member of the board of education, on August 30, 1902; and upon Montgomery Queen, the clerk of the board of education and of the annual meeting on September 2, 1902.

An answer has been filed to such appeal in which the material allegations contained in the appeal are admitted. Annexed to the appeal is a full copy of the proceedings had and taken at such annual meeting as recorded by the clerk; and also of a printed copy of the call for said annual meeting and of the annual financial report of the board of education.

It appears from the printed copy of the notice of the annual meeting, annexed to the appeal herein, that two trustees were to be elected, each for the term of three years, in place of Watson D. Otis and C. A. Pritchard, whose respective terms of office would expire on August 5, 1902; and that the sum of $3669 would be required to be raised for school purposes for the school year 1902-3.

It further appears from the proofs herein that on August 5, 1902, certain of the qualified voters residing in union free school district no. 3, Red Hook, Dutchess county, assembled in the school building at 7.30 p. m., and organized by the choice of C. A. Pritchard as chairman, the clerk of the district, Montgomery Queen, acting as clerk; that the annual report of the trustees was read and on motion was approved; the estimate of the sum deemed necessary for the board of education for the support of the schools for the present school year was read by items, and a motion was adopted that it be voted upon collectively; Messrs C. H. Morgan and Walter Scott were appointed inspectors of election; a vote was taken by ballot upon appropriating the sum of $3669 for school purposes, and resulted in 107 ballots being received, of which 52 were for the appropriation and 54 were against, and 1 blank; a motion was adopted referring the estimates back to the trustees.

It further appears that a resolution was offered by F. O. Green, and duly seconded, that the board of education be increased in number from five members to seven members, and a ballot was taken upon such resolution, which resulted in 109 votes being cast, of which 56 were for and 53 against such resolution, and thereupon nominations were made of persons for members of said board, and a ballot was taken. When the ballot was closed the inspectors of election reported that the whole number of votes cast was 106, of which Clarence Ames received 51, C. A. Pritchard, 56; Peter Rifenburgh, 60; Harry B. Coon, 51; James H. Kidd, 42; C. H. Champlin, 44; Ferdinand Egert, 46; and George W. Fingar, 45. The following persons were declared elected as trustees: C. A. Pritchard and Clarence Ames, for three years; Peter Rifenburgh, two years; and Harry B. Coon, for one year. Protests were made by Ferdinand Egert and F. O. Green against counting the ballots for members of the board of education, which did not divide the candidates into classes, and thereupon the meeting adjourned without day.

It is also in proof that the whole number of votes received by the inspectors was reported as 106, whereas the poll list kept by the clerk contained the names of but 102 persons as having voted, and no action was taken by inspectors to draw out, before canvassing the ballots, the excess of the number on said poll list.

It is clear from the proofs established herein that all the proceedings taken at such annual school meeting, from the action taken in referring the annual budget back to the board of education down to action on the motion to adjourn, were not in accordance with the provisions of the school law. *

Under section 31, article 5, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law, the action of the meeting to increase the number of the members of the board of education from five to seven should have been ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the voters present and voting, and not by ballot.

Not having legally increased the number of members of the board of education, the meeting could only elect two members of said board in the place of the two members whose term expired on August 5, 1902. All the ballots cast for members of the board of education should have had designated thereon the term for which the persons named were to hold office.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that all proceedings had and taken at the annual meeting held August 5, 1902, in union free school district no. 3, Red Hook, Dutchess county, commencing with the vote taken on the resolution to increase the number of members of the board of education from five to seven, down to the protest made by Ferdinand Egert and F. O. Green, be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered that the board of education of said union free school district no. 3, Red Hook, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, in the manner prescribed by section 10, article 2, and section 13, article 3, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law, for the purpose of electing two members of such board, each for the term of three years, in place of said Watson D. Otis and C. A. Pritchard, and to consider and act upon the question of appropriating a sum of money, to be named in the notice of such meeting, for the support of the schools in the district for the present school year, and authorize the levy of a tax for the sum so voted.

4896

In the matter of the appeal of John Drummond and Jay R. Burleigh from proceedings of annual meeting held on August 7, 1900, in union school district no. 25, Verona, Oneida county.

The number of members of a board of education of a union school district, under the Consolidated School Law of 1894, can not be less than three nor more than nine. A board of education having but three members of the board can not legally reduce or diminish said number. In union school districts other than those whose limits correspond to those of an incorporated village or city the clerk of the board is appointed by the board of education and such clerk shall also act as clerk of the district.

Decided October 25, 1900

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal taken from the proceedings at the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in union school district no. 25, Verona, Oneida county.

A copy of such proceedings is annexed to the appeal. No answer has been made to the appeal.

It appears that said district has three trustees, and the term of office of Frank Tuttle, one of said trustees, expired at the time of such annual meeting; that a motion was adopted at such meeting that the district have but one trustee, and no person was elected as a trustee in the place of said Tuttle; that one M. L. Van Vechten was elected district clerk.

Section 31, article 5, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, provides the method by which the trustees of any union school district whose limits do not correspond with those of any incorporated village or city may be increased or diminished. Said section also provides that no board of education of any such school district shall consist of less than three nor more than nine members.

As the number of members of the board of education of union school district 25, Verona, Oneida county, August 7, 1900, consisted of but three members, such meeting did not have the legal authority to diminish the number.

Section 7, article 1, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, as amended by section 1, chapter 466 of the Laws of 1897, in every union school district other than those whose limits correspond to those of an incorporated village or city, gives the power to the board of education of the district to appoint one of their number, or any qualified voter in said district other than a teacher employed in said district, as clerk of the board of education of such district. Such clerk shall also act as clerk of such district, and shall perform all the clerical and other duties pertaining to his office, and for his services he shall be entitled to receive such compensation as shall be fixed at an annual meeting of the qualified voters of such district; that in case no provision is made at an annual meeting of the inhabitants for the compensation of a clerk, then and in that case the board of education shall have power to fix the same.

I decide (1) that the action taken at the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in union school district 25, Verona, Oneida county, relative to the diminishing of the number of members of the board of education of such district from three to one, was without authority of law and void; (2) that the action taken at such annual meeting in electing M. L. Van Vechten, as clerk of such district was without authority of law and void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that all proceedings taken at such annual meeting in said district, in relation to the diminishing the number of members of the board of education of such district from three to one, and in the election of a clerk of said district, be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered that the members of the board of education of said union school district 25, Verona, Oneida county, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of such district, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, for the purpose of electing a trustee of said district for the term of three years from the first Tuesday of August 1900, to succeed Frank Tuttle, whose term of office as a trustee expired at the time of the annual meeting held therein on August 7, 1900. That notice of such special meeting be given in the manner prescribed in section 10, of article 2, title 8, and section 13, article 3, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

In the matter of the appeal of Adolph Bausch and others, from proceedings of board of education of union free school district no. 22, town of Oyster Bay, Queens county, in the election of William Smith as a member of said board.

One of the members of a board of education of a union free school district, which board consisted of nine members, resigned, and his resignation was duly accepted by the board. At a meeting held to fill the vacancy created by such resignation eight members of the board were present; that several ballots were had for member of the board without resulting in any election, when a recess was taken. When the meeting was called to order after such recess, only four members of the board were present; that a ballot was then taken to fill such vacancy; whole number of votes being four, of which one Smith received three, and Merritt one, and thereupon said Smith was declared by the chairman of said board elected as a member thereof. On appeal; held, that said election was illegal and void, there being no quorum of the board present. Also, held, that it being shown that the members of said board can not elect any person to fill said vacancy, that a special meeting of the voters of the school district be called for the purpose of filling said vacancy.

Decided November 16, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

In the above-entitled matter Adolph Bausch, Thomas J. Talbot, William Denton and Joseph H. Doud, four of the members of the board of education of union free school district no. 22, town of Oyster Bay, Queens county, appeal from the proceedings and action of Amos G. Sullivan, George H. Fuechsel, Philip Ketcham and Peter V. Ketcham, the other four members of said board, had and taken on October 18, 1895, in the alleged election of one William Smith as a member of said board.

Amos G. Sullivan, George H. Fuechsel and Peter V. Ketcham, three of the members of said board, and said William Smith, alleged to have been elected a member of said board, join in an answer to said appeal. Said answer has annexed thereto an affidavit of Philip Ketcham, a member of said board, in which he alleges that no copy of the appeal herein had been served upon him.

The appeal has annexed thereto copies of the record of proceedings of said board, held on October 18 and 23, 1895, and to the answer are annexed copies of the records of proceedings of said board on October 1 and 15, 1895.

The following facts are established:

That prior to October 1, 1895, the board of education of said union free school district consisted of nine members, to wit: John P. Heyen, Amos G. Sullivan, Peter V. Ketcham, Philip Ketcham, George H. Fuechsel, Adolph Bausch, Thomas J. Talbot, William Denton and Joseph H. Doud; that at a regular meeting of said board, held on October 1, 1895, said John P. Heyen presented, in writing, his resignation as a member of said board, which was duly accepted, and that by said resignation and the acceptance thereof, a vacancy occurred in said board, which said board had the legal power to fill; that a discussion was held relative to filling such vacancy, and the matter was laid over until October 15, 1895, to which date said board adjourned its meeting; that at said adjourned meeting on October 15, 1895, a quorum of the members not being present (only four members being present) no meeting was held; that a special meeting of said board was held on October 18, 1895, at which all of the eight members of said board were present, and a Mr Merritt and a Mr Smith were each nominated as candidates to fill the vacancy existing in said board; that five ballots for a member of said board were taken, each resulting in four votes for Merritt and four votes for Smith; that a recess of five minutes was then taken, and the chairman, after waiting about ten minutes, called the meeting to order, but only four members of the board were present, the other four members of the board (the appellants herein) having left said meeting; that a ballot was then taken for member of said board to fill such vacancy and four votes were cast of which William Smith received three and J. C. Merritt one, and thereupon said William Smith was, by the chairman, declared elected as a member of said board.

It is clear that after the recess taken at said meeting of said board on said October 18, 1895, there being no quorum of the board present, the only business that the four members then present could legally do was to adjourn; and that the election of William Smith, as a member of said board, a quorum of the members of said board, namely, five members, not being present, was illegal and void.

Boards of education of union free school districts are severally created bodies corporate. Section 7, article 1, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, Bassett v. Fish et al., 75 N. Y. 30.

The corporation so created takes not only the powers given expressly by the statutes, but such other powers as are necessary to its life and well being, and which such entities have at common law or by other statutes; it must act also, and can act only in the mode and by the means appropriate to a corporation. Bassett v. Fish et al., 75 N. Y. 30.

By the general corporation law of this State, chapter 687, Laws of 1892, section 29, it is enacted that "Unless otherwise provided by law a majority of the board of directors of a corporation at a meeting duly assembled, shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and the act of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the board of directors."

The Consolidated School Law does not state how many members of a board of education of a union free school district shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; but at common law, and by statute (general corporation law cited) a majority of the members of said board, respectively, shall be necessary to constitute a quorum of any such board for the transaction of business.

The four respondents herein, by their action in attempting to fill the vacancy in said board, seem to have assumed that there having been a quorum of said board present on October 18th up to the time of the recess, that such quorum continued after the recess and after the appellants herein, the other four members of the board, had left the meeting. This theory is not sound. To lawfully transact business a majority of the members of the board must be present at any meeting thereof, duly assembled, and continue to be present until such meeting adjourns to constitute a quorum; otherwise a majority, present when the session commenced, might be reduced by the members leaving the meeting, until no one remained except the chairman and clerk who, under the contention of the respondents herein, could transact any business of the board. Merely to state such a contention is sufficient to show its absurdity.

It appears from a copy of the minutes of the meeting of the said board, held on October 23, 1895, that the said William Smith who, it is claimed by respondents, was elected a member of said board, was present and acted, and that a vote to approve the minutes of said meeting of October 18, 1895, against the protest of the appellants herein, was declared carried by the votes of the four respondents herein and the vote of said Smith. It is clear that as said Smith was not legally elected a member of said board he had no legal authority to act as such member at said meeting, or to vote upon questions arising at said meeting: that any and all actions or proceedings had and taken, or motions or resolutions adopted, at said meeting, by the vote of said Smith are, and each of them is, void.

As it is apparent that the present members of said board of education can not fill the vacancy existing in said board it becomes my duty, under the provisions of subdivision 12, of section 15, article 4, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, to order a special election to be held in said union free school district for the purpose of filling such vacancy.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at the meeting of the board of education of union free school district no. 22, town of Oyster Bay, Queens county, held on October 18, 1895, after the recess and after Messrs Bausch, Talbot, Denton and Doud, members of said board had left said meeting, relative to the election of a member of said board to fill a vacancy therein, and especially the ballot then had and taken to fill said vacancy, be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at the meeting of said board, held on October 23, 1895, recognizing in any manner whatsoever, one William Smith as a member of said board, be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered. That said board of education, with all reasonable despatch, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said union free school district no. 22, town of Oyster Bay, Queens county, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, for the purpose of electing a member of said board of education to fill the vacancy existing in said board by reason of the resignation of John P. Heyen as a member of said board.

4128

In the matter of the appeal of Matthew Lannon, jr, v. the board of education of school district no. 5, town of North Hempstead, Queens county.

Vacating office of trustee. A member of a board of education temporarily absent from the district but not having removed therefrom did not cease to be a resident and inhabitant of the district and the action of the board in declaring the office vacated was illegal and void.

Decided October 26, 1892

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the action and proceedings of a special meeting of the board of education of school district no. 5, town of North Hempstead, Queens county, held on August 30, 1892, declaring the office of the appellant as a member thereof vacant, and from the action and proceedings of said board, at a special meeting thereof, held on September 10, 1892, in electing one Timothy J. Bird as a member thereof to fill the vacancy so as aforesaid declared to exist in said board on August 30, 1892.

No answer to said appeal has been filed in this Department, and the facts alleged in said appeal are deemed admitted.

The following facts are established:

That the appellant is a resident of Port Washington in school district no. 5, town of North Hempstead, county of Queens; that the annual meeting for the election of trustees of said district was duly held on August 3, 1892, and the appellant was duly elected a trustee of said district for the term of three years; that on the evening of August 16, 1892, the board of education met at Port Washington and perfected its organization for the ensuing school year by the election of Warren S. Weeks as president and Theodore F. Morgan secretary, Messrs Weeks, Morgan, Adelbert Jones, Edward F. Allen and the appellant being present; that a resolution was adopted at said meeting that the meetings of said board should be held on the last Monday in each and every month of the school year, and that the first regular meeting of said board under said resolution should be held on the last Monday in September 1892; that on or about August 19, 1892, the appellant went to the town of Jamaica in Queens county, to temporarily assume the management of the business interests of one Pettit in conducting a hotel; that engagement was merely temporary in its nature and was so understood by the parties concerned, and that neither then nor at any other time did the appellant ever relinquish his actual residence in said school district no. 5 of the town of North Hempstead; nor did he then, or at any other time, ever have or express any intention to reside elsewhere; nor did he remove, or attempt to remove, any of his personal effects or property from said school district, or engage or contract in any way for any place or residence either in the town of Jamaica or elsewhere.

That the by-laws of said board of education require that when a special meeting of the said board is called, each member thereof shall be duly and personally notified or in such other manner as shall give to him due notice of said special meeting; that, as the appellant has been informed and verily believes, a special meeting of said board was held at Port Washington on the evening of August 30, 1892, during the period of the temporary absence of the appellant as aforesaid, at which meeting a resolution was adopted declaring the office of the appellant as such trustee vacant by reason of his said absence; that no notice of such special meeting so held on August 30, 1892, was ever received by the appellant; that as the appellant is informed and verily believes, a second special meeting of said board was held on September 10, 1892, at Port Washington, and that one Timothy J. Bird was chosen as a trustee of said district until the annual election of trustees on the Wednesday succeeding the first Tuesday of August 1893, to fill the vacancy declared to exist at said special meeting of August 30, 1892, by reason of the absence of the appellant; that on September 14, 1892, the appellant returned to his home in Port Washington in said school district, and then became apprised of the facts in relation to said special meetings of said board of education and the proceedings thereof as hereinbefore stated; that the appellant appeared at the regular meeting of said board of education held pursuant to the resolution before stated on Monday evening, September 26, 1892, at Port Washington, and attempted to exercise his right as a trustee of said school district and a member of said board, but the same was denied him, and he was denied any voice in the deliberations of said board, on the ground that he had relinquished his right of residence, and that his office having been declared vacant, the board of education, in the exercise of its powers, had elected or chosen another as trustee until the next annual election of officers. Against all of which the appellant duly protested, and thereupon brought this appeal.

Under the school laws, trustees of school districts are chosen by the qualified voters in the respective districts and not by boards of trustees or education. Such boards of trustees or education have the power to fill any vacancy which may happen in any of said boards by reason of the death, resignation, removal or refusal to serve of any member or officer of said board.

The appellant was duly elected a trustee of his district; he met with his associates at the organization of the board on August 16, 1892, when a resolution was adopted that the regular meetings of the board should be held on the last Monday of each and every month of the school year, and the first of such regular meetings should be held on the last Monday of September 1892; that on August 19th he went to Jamaica, in the same county as Port Washington, his residence, to be absent temporarily in the transaction of certain business. On August 30th, eleven days after he left his home, a special meeting was called and his office of trustee was declared vacant by reason of his absence; and on September 10th, at another special meeting, a person was elected trustee to fill such alleged vacancy. On September 14th he returned to his home and was then first apprised of the action of the board, and on attending on September 26th, at the first regular meeting of the board after his election, was refused to be allowed to exercise his right as such trustee.

This appeal does not present a similar state of facts to those stated in the decision of Superintendent Young, page 764, Code of 1887, nor to those stated in the decision of Superintendent Gilmour, page 787-88, Code of 1887.

It is apparent that the board of education of said district acted with undue haste and without the sanction of law. The appellant did not cease to be a resident and inhabitant of said district. He did not remove from said district, and the action of the said board of education in declaring the office of the appellant as trustee of said district vacant, and in the election of a person to fill such vacancy exceeded their powers and authority, and said acts were, and each of them was, illegal and void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered:

That so much of the proceedings and actions of said board of trustees or education of district no. 5, town of North Hempstead, Queens county, at the special meeting held on August 30, 1892, as declared that the office of trustee, held by the appellant herein, was vacant; and so much of the proceedings and action of said board at the special meeting held on September 10, 1892, in the election of one Timothy J. Bird as a trustee of said district to fill the vacancy declared to exist by its action on said August 30, 1892, be, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered:

That said board of trustees or education of said district receive at all the meetings of said board the said Matthew Lannon, jr, as a trustee of said district holding his office as such trustee for the term of three years from the Wednesday succeeding the first Tuesday of August 1892, for which he was duly elected, with the right of exercising all the powers and duties possessed by him by virtue of said office of trustee.

4749

In the matter of the appeal of George Harris from proceedings of a special meeting held January 7, 1899, in union school district no. 1, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county, in the election of a member of the board of trustees of such district.

The board of education of every union school district has the power, and it is its duty, to fill any vacancy which may occur in such board by reason of the death, resignation, removal from office or from the school district, or refusal to serve, of any member or officer of said board. Said board can not legally call a special meeting of the inhabitants of the district to fill a vacancy existing in such board. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction may order a special election to fill a vacancy existing in any board of education of a union school district, and when such special election is ordered by him, the vacancy shall not be filled otherwise. If the board fails to fill such vacancy for a period of 30 days the same may be filled by the school commissioner having jurisdiction.

Decided February 24, 1899

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings of a special meeting, held January 7, 1899, in union school district 1, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county, in the election of a member of the board of trustees in such district.

The appeal herein is not full and definite in its statement of facts, but it appears that a vacancy was created in the board of trustees of said district by the death of one of the members of such board. The ground alleged by the appellant upon which his appeal is taken, in substance, is that such vacancy could not be legally filled at a school district meeting, unless so directed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Trustee Jones has answered the appeal, and to such answer the appellant has made a reply. A copy of the call for the special meeting, held January 7, 1899, with proof of the manner of the service of such notice, and a copy of the proceedings of such special meeting, have been filed with me.

It appears that school district 1, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county, is a union school district, with a board consisting of three trustees, namely, Joseph Jones, John F. Eagan and John Corrigan; that at some time prior to December 28, 1898, said Trustee Corrigan died, thereby creating a vacancy in said board of trustees; that Jones and Eagan, the two remaining trustees of such board, could not agree upon any person to fill such vacancy; that said Jones and Eagan interpreted the law as quoted to them in a letter from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, that they had the legal authority to call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, to elect a trustee to fill such vacancy, when it was impossible for them to elect a trustee; that a notice, of which the following is a copy, namely, "Notice. There will be a special election held in the schoolhouse of union school district 1, Po'keepsie, Saturday, Jan. 7, 1899, 7.30 p. m., to fill the vacancy in the board of education By order of trustees. Michael Lyons, clerk. Dated December 28, 1898," was posted in six conspicuous places in the district, ten days preceding January 7, 1899; that on January 7, 1899, in pursuance of said notice certain of the inhabitants of such district assembled at the schoolhouse, Trustee Jones acting as chairman and Trustee Eagan as clerk, and the call for the meeting was read; that the appellant George Harris and Alfred Brower were nominated for trustee to fill the vacancy created by the death of Mr Corrigan and ballot was taken which resulted in 121 votes being cast of which Brower received 70 and Harris 51; that said Brower has, since said meeting, been acting as a trustee of the district in the place of Corrigan, deceased.

Assuming, for the purpose of argument only, that Trustee Jones and Trustee Eagan had the legal authority to call a special meeting of the qualified voters of such district to elect a trustee to fill the vacancy existing in the board of trustees of the district, the notice given was defective in form, and said notice was not served in the manner required by title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and hence said special meeting of January 7, 1899, was not duly and legally called and held, and the proceedings taken thereat are illegal and void.

Section 13, article 3, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 provides that in union school districts other than those whose limits correspond to those of any incorporated village or city the boards of education shall have power to call special meetings of the inhabitants of their respective districts whenever they shall deem it necessary and proper, in the manner prescribed in section 10 of said title.

Section 10 of said title 8 provides that notices of meetings of the qualified voters of such districts shall be published once in each week for the four weeks preceding such district meetings, in two newspapers if there shall be two, or in one newspaper if there shall be but one, published in such district. But if no newspaper shall then be published therein, "the said notice shall be posted in at least twenty of the most public places in said district twenty days before the time of the meeting."

It is clear that Trustee Jones and Trustee Eagan had no legal authority to call a special meeting of the qualified voters of such district to supply the vacancy in the board of trustees caused by the death of Corrigan.

Subdivision 12 of section 15, article 4, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 provides that the board of education of every union school district has the power, and it shall be its duty, "to fill any vacancy which may occur in said board by reason of the death . . . of any member or officer of said board; and the person so appointed in the place of any such member of the board shall hold his office until the next election of trustees as by this act provided. In case of the failure of such board to fill such vacancy, and in case no special election is ordered for filling the same for a period of 30 days, the same may be filled by the school commissioner having jurisdiction. The Superintendent of Public Instruction may order a special election to be held in any district for the purpose of filling such vacancy, and when such special election is ordered the vacancy shall not be filled otherwise."

The foregoing provision of law is perfectly plain. If a vacancy occurs in the board of trustees of a union school district such vacancy shall be filled by the remaining members of the board of trustees. If for any reason such remaining members can not, or do not, fill such vacancy, for a period of 30 days after the vacancy occurs, the school commissioner of the commissioner district in which the school district is situated, has the power to fill the vacancy, unless a special election is ordered. The only person who has authority to order a special election is the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who, for reasons satisfactory to him, can order a special election.

No special election has been ordered by me in said district to fill the vacancy in the board of trustees of the district, caused by the death of Mr Corrigan.

I decide:

That as the special meeting held in said school district January 7, 1899, was not ordered by me, such meeting was illegal and void; that Alfred Brower was not legally elected a member of the board of trustees of said district to fill the vacancy in such board caused by the death of John Corrigan; that such special meeting was neither legally called nor held, and the proceedings taken thereat were illegal and void and must be set aside.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered:

That the proceedings taken at said alleged special meeting, held January 7, 1899, in union school district 1, Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county, and especially in the alleged election of Alfred Brower as a trustee of said district, be, and the same are, hereby vacated and set aside.

4343

In the matter of the appeal of William Keutgen v. Nicholas J. Macklin, as president of board of education of union free school district no. 2, Middletown and Southfield, Richmond county.

When a vacancy occurs in a board of education of a union free school district, such board has power, under the school law, to fill such vacancy, and the person appointed shall hold office until the next annual meeting of the district. A board of education consisting of nine members, a quorum of the board being present, namely, five members, a person elected to fill the vacancy receiving a majority of the votes of those present is duly elected to fill such vacancy.

Decided March 19, 1895

John Widdecombe, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is, in fact, an appeal from the election of one Thomas J. Flannigan as a member of the board of education of union free school district no. 2, Middletown and Southfield, Richmond county, as, although the appellant alleges various acts of the board and its president to be irregular and contrary to the by-laws of said board, he asks that the election of Mr Flannigan, as a member of said board, be set aside as illegal. Both said Macklin and Flannigan have filed an answer to the appeal.

It appears that by the action of the school meeting by which said union free school was established the board of education thereof was to consist of nine members and nine persons were duly elected to constitute said board; that prior to January 25, 1895, one P. Albin Warth was a member thereof, but said Warth duly resigned as such member, which resignation was duly accepted by said board on January 25, 1895, and thereupon there became a vacancy in said board; that at an adjourned regular meeting of said board, held on February 6, 1895, at which there were present seven of the eight members of said board, after the transaction of various matters, Mr Cole moved that the board then proceed to the election of a trustee, and the appellant herein moved as a substitute that it be laid over until the next meeting, whereupon the substitute was lost and the motion of Mr Cole adopted; on motion by the appellant a recess for ten minutes to consider candidates was carried; that upon the expiration of said recess the president ordered a vote to be taken for the election of a trustee; that Mr Robinson, a member of the board, during the recess, was excused, and Mr Corey, also a member of the board, left the meeting; that a vote was taken for trustee which resulted in four votes for Thomas J. Flannigan and one for Mr Barry; that two other votes were taken with a like result; that appellant herein asked to be excused, and the president of the board refused to excuse him upon the ground that it would break the quorum; that Mr Cole moved for another ballot for trustee which was taken and resulted as hereinbefore stated; that Mr Cole raised a point of order demanding the president of the board to declare Mr Flannigan elected as trustee on the ground that Mr Corey, not being excused, must be recorded as present, and thereupon claimed that Mr Flannigan received a majority vote; that the appellant herein thereupon left the meeting and the president reserved his decision and there being no quorum, ordered an adjournment of the meeting until February 3, 1895, at 8 p. m.; that on February 3, 1895, a quorum of the board not being present, the meeting of the board was adjourned to February 12, 1895, and on February 12, 1895, there being no quorum of the members present the meeting of the board was adjourned to February 16, 1895; that on February 16, 1895, an adjourned meeting of said board was held, a quorum being present, at which the president of the board stated he had looked up the question of the point of order raised by Mr Cole, at a former meeting, requesting the president to declare Mr Flannigan elected a trustee, and he had come to the conclusion that the point was well taken, and thereupon declared Mr Flannigan legally elected a trustee of said district, and directed the clerk to enter his name on the roll, and to notify Mr Flannigan of his election and to give to him notices of all future meetings of the board.

Boards of education of union free school districts are severally created bodies corporate (section 7, article 1, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894; Bassett & Fish et al. 75 N. Y. 303).

The corporation so created takes, not only the powers given expressly by the statutes, but such other powers as are necessary to its life and well-being, and which such entities have at common law or by other statutes; it must act also, and can act only in the mode and by the means appropriate to a corporation (Bassett & Fish et al. 75 N. Y. 303).

Such boards of education have power, and it shall be their duty, to fill any vacancy which may occur in any such board by reason of the death, resignation, removal from office or from the school district, or refusal to serve, of any member or officer of such board (sub. 12, sec. 15, art. 4, title 8, Consolidated School Law of 1894).

The Consolidated School Law does not prescribe how many members of a board of education shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

At common law the rule was well settled, that in select governing bodies of a definite number, invested with functions of a public nature, a majority of a quorum, though less than a majority of the whole body, may legally act.

Mr Dane in his abridgment states that, "If the body consists of twelve common councilmen, seven is the least number that can constitute a valid meeting, though four of the seven may act." In Dillon on Municipal Corporations it is stated, "So if a board of village trustees consist of five members and all, or four, are present, two can do no valid act; if three only were present they would constitute a quorum, then the votes of two, being a majority of the quorum, would be valid, and certainly so when the three are all competent to act."

Section 10, article 3 of the Constitution of this State enacts that "A majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business." Under said clause it is competent for either house to do any business by a bare majority of a quorum, except in particular cases, such as the enactment of laws where a larger vote is expressly required by restrictive words elsewhere in such constitution. In the general corporation law, chapter 687 of the Laws of 1892, section 29, it is enacted that "Unless otherwise provided by law, a majority of the board of directors of a corporation at a meeting, duly assembled, shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and the act of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the board of directors."

Superintendent Ruggles in appeal 3314, decided on March 3, 1884, held that the appellant therein, who was elected a member of a board of education by vote which was less than a majority of the board, though it was a majority of the members present, a quorum being in attendance, was legally elected.

Boards of education have power to adopt such by-laws and rules for their government as shall seem proper in the discharge of the duties required under the provisions of the school law.

It is not necessary, in disposing of this appeal, to decide as to whether or not the by-laws adopted by said board are valid or not. The appellant herein contends that the by-laws, article 2, which provides that when only a quorum of the board is present at any meeting a unanimous vote shall be necessary to decide a question other than that of adjournment, requires a unanimous vote to fill a vacancy in said board, is not tenable.

The appellant contends that after the first vote to fill the vacancy in said board the president should have declared Mr Flannigan elected and not allowed the other ballots to be taken. The appellant seems to hold the opinion that the declaration by the president of the election of Flannigan was necessary to make such election valid. In this he is in error. At a school district meeting or board of education when an election is had for an officer, it is not the declaration of a chairman, but the fact that a person received a majority of the legal votes cast, which constitutes an election. One ballot or vote was all that was necessary to be taken at said meeting of said board of education held on February 6, 1895, to elect a member of said board to fill the vacancy existing therein.

I find and decide, That Thomas J. Flannigan was, on February 6, 1895, at a duly held meeting of the board of education of union free school district no. 2, Middletown and Southfield, Richmond county, duly and legally elected a member of said board of education to fill the vacancy then existing in said board by reason of the resignation of P. Alvin Warth, which resignation had theretofore been duly made to and accepted by, said board.

Appeal dismissed.

3314

Power of board to appoint member thereof fully discussed.

Decided March 3, 1884

Ruggles, Superintendent

The vote by which the appellant claims to have been appointed a member of the board of education, was less than a majority of the board, though it was a majority of the members present, a quorum being in attendance.

Was it competent for a bare majority of a quorum present to make a valid appointment?

The special statute under which this school district was organized, provides that said district "shall under the direction of the board of education, which board shall consist of four members, three or more of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business."

At common law the rule seems to have been well settled, that in select governing bodies of a definite number, invested with functions of a public nature, a majority of a quorum, though less than a majority of the whole body, may legally act.

Mr Dane thus illustrates the rule: "If the body consists of twelve common councilmen, seven is the least number that can constitute a valid meeting, though four of the seven may act." 5 Dane Abr. 150. The rule is further illustrated in Dillon on Municipal Corporations (§ 279, 3d ed.), as follows: "So if a board of village trustees consists of five members, and all, or four, are present, two can do no valid act; if three only were present they would constitute a quorum, then the votes of two, being a majority of the quorum, would be valid; certainly so when the three are all competent to act." This rule of the common law has been made the statutory rule in this State in reference to corporations (2 Rev. Stat., 1531, § 6, 7th ed.). I am inclined to think, however, that this statute, although its words are general, applies only to private corporations. On the other hand, we have a general statute relating to the exercise of powers confided by law to three or more persons, or officers which requires the concurrence of a majority of the whole number in the valid exercise of such powers (1 Rev. Stat., 2458, § 27). It might be urged with some force that the last statute governs the case in hand, but for the fact that chapter 81 of the Laws of 1848, in respect to this particular board of education, expressly makes three members a quorum. In the use of this word, I think the Legislature intended to invest in three members, present at a duly convened meeting of the board, the ordinary common law powers of a quorum, especially in the absence of any instructive words.

The Constitution of this State, article 3, section 10, in defining the powers of the Legislature, making similar use of the word, provides that "a majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business. Under this clause it is competent for either house to do any business by a bare majority of a quorum, except in particular cases where a larger vote is expressly required by restrictive words elsewhere in the Constitution" (Cooley on Constitutional Limitations, 141). It follows that the vote of the appellant was sufficient to constitute a valid appointment. In this view of the case it is not necessary to pass upon the question, whether under the circumstances, Mr Marvel, the nonvoting member of the quorum, by reason of his silence, is to be deemed to have assented to, and as a matter of law voted for the appointment of the appellant.

The statute confers upon the board power to fill any vacancy which may happen in said board by reason of the death, removal or refusal to serve of any member or officer of said board. It provides for no commission, oath, bond or other formality, subsequent to the vote and the official announcement of the result by the presiding officer, in order to perfect the appointment and invest the appointee with the office. The appointment was complete when the vote was taken and officially announced by the presiding officer. The entry in the minutes is but evidence of the exercise of the power.

Was it competent for the board to subsequently reconsider this action and make a valid appointment of another person, Mr Murray not having been removed nor in any way vacated the office? I think such action was beyond the power conferred upon the board. When the statutory authority was once exercised, the power of the board in the matter was exhausted. The general rule of law applicable to the case, is concisely stated by Reynolds C., in People ex rel. Hotchkiss v. Supervisors, 65 N. Y. 227. "The cases are very numerous and the principle perfectly well stated that when power to do a certain act is conferred upon a public officer, or board of officers, and when action has once been had under the power it is final and may not be repeated, reversed or annulled by the same officer or body."

The People ex rel. Mosher v. Stowell, 9 Abb. N. C., is a case in point in affirmance of this rule. The common council of Elmira appointed Mosher as chamberlain. Subsequently a resolution was adopted by the council purporting to rescind the appointment and to appoint Stowell. The court held Mosher entitled to the office. The court, Smith, J., says: "When the common council adopted the resolution appointing the relator, its action in respect to the choice of chamberlain was complete. It had no authority to rescind such action, the appointment being for a definite term, especially after the relator had signified his acceptance of the office by taking and filing the oath." To the same effect is Sank v. Philadelphia, 8 Phila. 117. Appellant declared legally appointed a member of the board.

4584

In the matter of the appeal of William H. Flewellin and Isaac G. Braman v. James B. McLeese and John H. McKeever.

In the petition of two members of the board of education of the city of Watervliet, Albany county, for the removal of the other two members of such board for violation and neglect of duty and in not obeying the decisions of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and for failure to open the schools of such city.

Held, that the common school system of the State is a State and not a local system; that the power delegated by the Legislature to the local school authorities of such city through its charter is to enforce, not to nullify, the mandate of the Constitution requiring the Legislature to provide for the maintenance and support of a system of free common schools wherein all the children of the State may be educated; that no community in the State can close its schools and refuse compliance with the provisions of the organic law; that the entire public school system of the State is under the supervision and management of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, to the end that the constitutional requirement be complied with and the legislation accompanying it made effective; that if the school authorities fail to perform their duty in opening the schools the State Superintendent will not hesitate to exercise the power of opening such schools; that the board of education of such city is ordered and directed to provide the necessary equipment of qualified teachers, janitors and necessary employees, and to open the common schools of that city to the pupils residing therein, on or before the 4th day of October 1897.

Decided September 27, 1897

Skinner, Superintendent

This is a petition presented by the above-named appellants praying for the removal from office of the respondents herein, and also that the appellants be directed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to open the schools in the city of Watervliet at once with a full corps of teachers, janitors and other employees.

The parties to the above-entitled proceedings constitute the entire board of education of the city of Watervliet and their office is created and their powers and duties are defined by chapter 905 of the Laws of 1896.

The relief asked for is based upon the allegation that the schools of said city remain closed, although the date upon which they usually open, and the date publicly announced by the board of education as that upon which they would open, has long since passed, it being claimed by the appellants that the respondents herein refuse to unite with them in the selection of proper teachers and other employees, and by reason of said refusal the board of education in said city is in a hopeless deadlock. It is also claimed by the appellants that the respondents herein persist against their protest, in the continued leasing, beyond the period of temporary emergency contemplated by the statute, of the building situated at the corner of Fifth avenue and Seventh street in said city, in violation of the decision of the State Superintendent in appeal cases nos. 4516 and 4546.

The respondents, by their answer, deny any intention upon their part to violate the spirit or letter of the decisions referred to, and allege that the schools in said city remain closed because of the refusal of the appellants herein to unite with them in the employment of qualified teachers and necessary employees for the opening and continuation of said schools.

Passing over the details of the unfortunate controversy as set forth in the pleadings herein, two facts stand admitted:

1 The school authorities of the flourishing city of Watervliet all admit there is and for a long time has been a lack of sufficient school accommodations in said city and that an additional school building is needed. Such need is admitted by all parties, is urgent, and has continued for a long time. No reason why the needed school building can not be supplied exists, or, at least, none is alleged, and yet no steps have been taken to supply the urgent demand for additional school facilities, and the board of education are still dickerings with the owners of private property in an attempt to rent buildings or portions of private buildings in which to conduct a public school. As was shown in the former appeals, to which reference is herein made, few localities in the State are more fortunately situated or better able to provide for the public ownership of all property used for school purposes. Yet no effort whatever seems to have been made to provide sufficient school facilities except an effort to continue the system of leasing private property against the policy of the State as clearly contemplated by the Consolidated School Law.

2 The entire schools of the city are closed and parents, anxious for the education of their children and fortunate enough to be able to send them elsewhere, are doing so. Those less fortunately situated are roaming the streets of the city.

I shall not attempt, in these proceedings, to fix the blame for these unfortunate and unnecessary conditions. Each is, in itself, disgraceful; both should be remedied at once.

The most efficient remedy, however, in my judgment, does not at this time consist in removing from office any members of the board of education.

The schools in the city of Watervliet are, by the charter of that city, under the local management of a board of education created in its personnel by the selection of members of the two leading political parties in equal numbers, with the avowed purpose of making them bipartisan. Whatever may have been the operation elsewhere of this effort of modern legislation to keep politics out of the schools by this method of bipartisan boards, the direct result in this city has been to inject politics into the school to the extent that every other consideration has been lost sight of — even the school itself. It is earnestly hoped that at an early day some legislation may be enacted that will render the present conditions impossible.

In the meantime, however, I am of the opinion that a remedy for the present unfortunate condition of affairs in this city exists.

The schools in the city of Watervliet are not local institutions in the sense that the citizens of the State at large have no interest therein, or the State authorities no control thereof. The Constitution of the State in article 9 thereof provides as follows:

“The Legislature shall provide for the maintenance and support of a system of free common schools wherein all the children of this State may be educated.”

This constitutional requirement has been fulfilled by the Legislature of the State. It has provided, by general taxation, a fund exceeding four millions of dollars for the support of a State system of free common schools, of which amount the city of Watervliet receives from the State treasury the sum of nearly six thousand dollars. But all the children of the State can not be educated therein for the reason that those residing in the city of Watervliet are waiting upon the pleasure of the board of education of that city while they are engaged in determining and agreeing upon how many of the necessary teachers to be employed shall belong to either political party or of what religious denomination they shall be devotees, before necessary school buildings shall be supplied.

Not only does the State meet this requirement of the Constitution by providing this large fund for school purposes to be raised by general taxation, but it has provided for a State Superintendent of Public Instruction to enforce the constitutional mandate and its accompanying legislation.

The Consolidated School Law of the State places the supervisors of the entire common school system of the State under his control. He is charged with the duty of apportioning the public funds, and may withhold the whole or any part thereof from any district or city under certain conditions. He "must give to local school authorities such information and instructions as he shall deem conducive to the proper organization and government of the common schools, and the due execution of their duties by school officers." "Any person conceiving himself aggrieved in consequence of any decision made by any school officer concerning any matter under the Consolidated School Law, or any other act pertaining to the common schools, may appeal to him, and he is authorized and empowered to make all orders which may, in his judgment, be proper or necessary to give effect to his decisions."

The entire public common school system is thus under his supervision and management to the end that the constitutional requirement shall be complied with and its accompanying legislation made effective.

Even the charter of the city of Watervliet recognizes this power of the State Superintendent over all the common schools of the State providing in subdivision 10 of section 12 of title 5 therein that "the board of education in said city shall have, to the exclusion of all boards and officers, except the State Superintendent of Public Instruction of this State, the entire supervision and management of the schools of said city."

No community in the State can close its schools and refuse compliance with this provision of the organic law.

The common school system of the State is a State and not a local system. The citizens of the most remote section of the State have an interest in the schools of this city. They assist in maintaining them and they have a direct interest in their efficiency. The power delegated by the Legislature to the local school authorities of Watervliet through its charter is to enforce, not to nullify the mandate of the constitution.

This charter so far as it relates to the common schools therein must be read and interpreted in connection with the general school law of the State. It is supplemental only to that. If the local school authorities refuse to comply with the provisions of these statutes they must be compelled to do so by the courts. If they refuse and are not compelled to do so, ample authority is by the general school law vested in the State Superintendent to open the schools of said city.

I shall not hesitate to exercise this power if the school authorities of that city persist in their neglect and refusal to perform the duties of their office.

Without, therefore, passing at present upon the question as to which of the parties to this appeal is censurable for the condition of school affairs now existing in that city, I hereby order and direct the board of education of the city of Watervliet to provide the necessary equipment of qualified teachers, janitors and necessary employees, and to open the common schools of that city to the pupils residing therein on or before the 4th day of October 1897.

The board of education of the city of Watervliet, having wilfully refused to comply with the foregoing decision and order of September 27, 1897, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, on October 4, 1897, made the following order:

In the matter of the opening of the schools in the city of Watervliet by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Having made and entered on the 27th day of September 1897, an order directing the board of education in the city of Watervliet to employ sufficient qualified teachers, janitors and employees, and having directed them to open the public schools for the city of Watervliet on or before the 4th day of October 1897; and said board of education having wilfully refused to comply with the terms of said order and direction, and said schools in said city yet remaining closed and no teachers, janitors, or other necessary employees having been employed or appointed by said board, now, therefore, I do hereby order and direct Mr A. M. Wright to proceed to the city of Watervliet and organize the school system of said city as temporary superintendent of schools with the following corps of qualified teachers and the persons herein designated as janitors and librarian, each of whom is herein temporarily appointed to the position and at the annual compensation designated opposite each respective name, in this order, namely:

Frank D. McGowan, librarian, $150 per year; Charles E. Trowbridge, truant officer, $400 per year; Michael F. Wood, truant officer, $400 per year; Mary F. Fitzgerald, drawing teacher, $480 per year; Sarah E. Forsyth, principal, $600 per year; Jane Kennedy, assistant, $480 per year; Rose Mary McClare, teacher, $432 per year; Harriet A. Lacy, teacher, $432 per year; Susie A. Nugent, teacher, $432 per year; Chyllean P. Luther, teacher, $432 per year; Henrietta R. Lyons, teacher, $432 per year; Mary Dillon, janitress, $325 per year; Ellen J. Le Maire, principal, $600 per year; E. Jennie Morey, assistant, $480 per year; Mattie Mooney, teacher, $432 per year; Anna Von Lehman, teacher, $432 per year; Mary F. Taylor, teacher, $432 per year; Alice Crummy, teacher, $432 per year; Samuel Van Vranken, janitor, $325 per year; Elizabeth R. Rogan, principal, $600 per year; Carrie Pratt, teacher, $432 per year; Thomas E. Shaughnessy, janitor, $125 per year; Julia Cullen, principal, $600 per year; Mary Healey, assistant, $480 per year; Agnes Storen, teacher, $432 per year; Teresa Hillis, teacher, $432 per year; Nellie A. Boyle, teacher, $432 per year; S. Eugenia C. Buck, teacher, $432 per year; Middey Seeney, janitor, $325 per year; Maggie B. Costello, principal, $600 per year; Nettie Smith, assistant, $480 per year; Jane G. Fleming, teacher, $432 per year; Mary K. Hennessy, teacher, $432 per year; Mary A. Walsh, teacher, $432 per year; Wm. P. O'Brien, janitor, $325 per year; Mary C. Occumpaugh, assistant, $480 per year; Charles Bell, janitor, $100 per year; Jennie A. Van Hoesen, assistant, $480 per year; Charles F. Dabney, janitor, $100 per year; George Hunter, janitor of office, $50 per year.

Said teachers holding proper certificates and being otherwise qualified for the positions to which they are herein assigned and appointed, and having been heretofore employed in the schools of said city by the local school authorities thereof with one exception, said appointments are to continue until the local school authorities of said city shall designate qualified teachers as their successors.

I do also further order and direct the board of education of said city to immediately open the school buildings and the necessary rooms, desks and closets therein to the above-named teachers and place at their disposal the usual and proper furniture and supplies, including fuel and school apparatus; and as often as at the end of each calendar month during the continuation of the services of each teacher, janitor and the librarian herein designated to audit and pay to each thereof an equal one-eighth part of the annual compensation herein designated to be paid to each.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto affixed my hand and official seal at the [L. S.] Capitol in the city of Albany, N. Y., this 4th day of October 1897.

CHARLES R. SKINNER

State Superintendent

4487

In the matter of the appeal of Archibald Fulton and Frederick W. Hulsebus from proceedings of annual school meeting held August 4, 1896, in union free school district no. 6, town of Northfield, Richmond county.

In union free school districts other than those whose limits correspond with those of any incorporated village or city, at the annual school meeting therein the vote to make appropriation for school purposes and to levy taxes therefor, must be taken by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters attending and voting at such meeting. Where at any such meeting the clerk is instructed by a viva voce vote to vote for or against any such appropriation, such proceedings were not in accordance with the provisions of the school law; that a vote to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of any such union free school district, taken viva voce, directing the clerk to cast a ballot for such increase or diminution, is not in accordance with the provisions of the school law. Where the board of education consists of three members, and an increase of the number of members thereof to five was not made legally, the election of five trustees at such meeting, was illegal and void.

Decided October 14, 1896

George Sheridan, jr. attorney for appellants

Lot C. Alston, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

This appeal is brought by the appellants as qualified voters of union free school district no. 6, town of Northfield, Richmond county, in the above-entitled matter, as alleged by them in their appeal, "from the several actions in the annual meeting of the said union free school district no. 6, held at the school-house, August 4, 1896." Said appeal contains the following specific actions of said meeting appealed from:

1 From the action of said meeting purporting to increase the number of members of the board of education to five.

2 From the action of said meeting in the pretended election of the following named persons as members of the board of education of said union free school district, and for the term of time set opposite the name of each, as follows: William H. Prall three years, E. C. Sheridan three years, W. J. Scott two years, C. H. Ingalls two years, J. W. Wortz one year.

3 From the action of said meeting in voting the items of the budgets submitted by the trustees to the meeting for appropriations necessary to conduct the school in the district during the school year of 1896-97.

Annexed to the appeal is what purports to be a copy of the records of the action and proceedings of said annual meeting as kept and recorded by Arthur W. Deas, as clerk of the said school district and of said meeting.

An answer to the appeal has been made by Messrs Wortz, Ingalls, Scott, Sheridan and Prall as qualified voters of said district.

The respondents in their answer do not controvert the statements as to the action and proceedings had and taken at such annual meeting as stated in the appeal, and in the aforesaid copy of the records of the meeting annexed to the appeal, relative to the proposition to increase the members of the board of education to five, the assumed election of the five persons as members of said board, and in appropriating money and authorizing the levy of taxes for the same; or in other words, the respondents herein admit that the vote upon the motion or proposition presented at said annual meeting to increase the number of members of the board of education from three to five, and the determination of the qualified voters present and voting thereon, was not ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, that is, by taking and recording the name of each person who voted thereon and setting opposite to each whether he or she voted aye or no; that the respondents admit that a ballot was taken at said meeting for five persons as members of the board of education of said district and that Messrs Prall, Sheridan, Scott, Ingalls and Wortz received a majority of the votes cast upon such ballot; that the action and proceedings of said meeting in the voting of the items of appropriations and the levy of taxes therefor did not comply with the provisions of the school law.

The contention of the respondents seems to be:

1 That although the appropriations were not voted by ballot or by taking and recording the ayes and noes, they do not see what good purpose will be served or how the district will be benefited by having the appropriations set aside, or what good motive prompted the appeal from this vote.

2 That the action of the district meeting in increasing the number of trustees from three to five was a substantial compliance with the law.

3 That the action of the meeting increasing the number of members of the board of education from three to five, having been a substantial compliance with the law, and five members of said board having been voted for by ballot, they were legally elected as members of said board. The respondents further contend that, as the appeal herein was not brought within thirty days after the proceedings were had from which the appeal is taken, it was not brought in time, nor taken in good faith, but only for the purpose of annoying the persons claiming to have been elected as trustees, and gratifying the spite and malice of a defeated candidate and his principal supporters.

In answer to the first contention above stated, I would state that in section 10, article 2, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and its amendments, relative to union free school districts other than those whose limits correspond to an incorporated village or city, it is enacted, that on all propositions arising at said meetings involving the expenditure of money, or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes in one sum or by instalments, the vote thereon shall be by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such meetings. . . . And whenever a tax for any of the objects hereinbefore specified shall be legally voted, the board of education shall make out their tax list, etc. In section 18, article 4, title 8 of said Consolidated School Law it is enacted that it shall be the duty of the board, at the annual meeting of the district, besides any other report or statement required by law, to present a detailed statement in writing of the amount of money which will be required for the ensuing school year for school purposes, exclusive of the public moneys, specifying the several purposes for which it will be required, and the amount for each, etc. In section 19, same article and title, it is enacted that after the presentation of such statement, the question shall be taken upon voting the necessary taxes to meet the estimated expenditures, and when demanded by any voter present, the question shall be taken upon each item separately, and the inhabitants may increase the amount of any estimated expenditure, or reduce the same, except for teachers' wages and the ordinary contingent expenses of the school or schools. At said annual school meeting the trustees presented a detailed statement in writing of the moneys required for the ensuing year for school purposes. The school law there required that the qualified voters present who wished to vote upon making appropriations and authorizing the levy of a tax for said sums should either by their ballots, or having their wishes ascertained by taking and recording the name of each qualified voter present who desired to vote, and whose vote was received, and setting opposite the name of each person who voted, whether he or she voted aye or no. If, on the presentation of such statement, no voter present demanded that the question should be taken on each item separately, the vote could be taken in the manner above stated upon the aggregate amount contained in said statement as needed for such school purposes.

Prior to chapter 500 of the Laws of 1893 becoming a law, there was no provision of the school law designating the manner of voting upon propositions arising at school meetings involving the expenditure of money, or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, and the vote thereon was usually taken viva voce. A multiplicity of appeals was taken from the action of school meetings in voting such taxes, or from the tax list issued by the school authorities on the ground that unqualified persons voted, there being no opportunity afforded on viva voce to challenge a vote, or to ascertain whether the persons voting were qualified voters or not. In addition, numerous suits were brought in the courts against collectors in enforcing such taxes.

It is clear that the action of said annual school meeting on voting the appropriation and authorizing the levy of a tax therefor was not in accordance with the school law, and not being legally voted, the board of education of the district did not have legal authority to make out a tax list. The "good purposes" served by the appeal herein, in having the action of said meeting relating to such appropriations and the levy of the tax set aside, will enable the qualified voters of the district to vote such appropriations and tax in the manner directed by the school law, and prevent the issuing of an illegal tax list, and the appeals therefrom by taxpayers to this Department, and suits against the collector in enforcing such illegal tax list.

The contention of the respondents herein that the action of the said meeting, increasing the number of trustees from three to five, was a substantial compliance with the law, is not well taken. Prior to the passage of chapter 482, Laws of 1875, the power to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of any union free school district, fixed at the meeting establishing such district, did not exist. In subdivision 28, section 1, chapter 482, Laws of 1875, it was, among other things, enacted that boards of supervisors in this State were empowered to authorize boards of education in any union free school district to increase or diminish the number of members of said boards. This provision of law remained in force until the passage of chapter 686 of the Laws of 1892, when the power so as aforesaid given to boards of supervisors, was taken away, and until the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894 went into effect, namely, on June 30, 1894, there was no provision of law which permitted the qualified voters of a union free school district, or a board of education thereof, or any one, to increase or diminish the number of members of any board of education of any union free school district.

In section 31, article 5, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, which became a law on June 30, 1894, it was enacted that at any annual meeting held in any union free school district whose limits do not correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, the qualified voters may determine by a majority vote of such voters present and voting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of such district. If such board shall consist of less than nine members, and such meeting shall determine to increase the number, such meeting shall elect such additional number so determined upon, and shall divide such number into three several classes, the first to hold office for one year, the second two years, and the third three years.

The power of the qualified voters of union free school district no. 6, Northfield, to increase the number of members of its board of education from three, as fixed by the meeting that established such union free school, to five, is given by the provisions of law above cited, and must be exercised pursuant to such provisions.

What do such provisions require? They require, first, that the action of the voters of the district shall be taken at an annual school meeting of the district; second, that the motion or proposition increasing said number to five shall be determined by a majority of such voters present and voting, and such majority shall be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such voters, that is, taking and recording the name of each person voting and setting opposite to the name of each such person whether such person votes aye or no; third, having determined to increase the number of members of said board by the addition of two, to elect such members by ballot, and then divide the said two into classes, one to hold one year, and one two years.

What did the said annual meeting do, relative to the proposition to increase the membership of the board of education of the district? Mr Middlebrook offered a motion that the board of trustees be, and they are hereby increased in number from three to five. Mr S. F. Rawson seconded the motion, and suggested that the clerk be authorized and directed to cast one ballot in favor of increasing the board of trustees to five members; the motion was then altered to include the suggestion, and the meeting unanimously voted (by a viva voce vote or by acclamation) in favor of it. The clerk, Mr A. W. Deas, then cast one ballot in favor of increasing the board of trustees to five members, and the chairman announced one ballot in favor of the motion and none in the negative, and then declared the board of trustees increased to five members. No election of said two additional members followed, nor were such two members divided into classes, the one to serve one, and the other two years.

The only act done by the said meeting that was in compliance with the provisions of the statute was in the motion or proposition to increase the number of members of said board, and instead of proceeding to vote upon the motion as the statute required, they proceeded in the manner above stated, that is, by the casting of one ballot by the clerk of the meeting.

The respondents in their answer, and their counsel in his brief, allege that this matter of the increase of the number of members of the board of education had been under discussion in the district for a long time and everybody agreed to it; that it was not sprung on the meeting suddenly and rushed through without giving a chance for the opposition that it was generally believed that both of the appellants favored and voted for it; that the appellants participated in a caucus on the nomination of five trustees, one of them being on the ticket so nominated; that the vote authorizing the secretary to cast a ballot for such increase was unanimous.

Assuming all such allegations to be true, the facts alleged are no answer or defense to the facts herein established, that said meeting did not express its desire to make such change and increase in the manner required by the statute, and not having done so, its action in that regard was illegal.

It is clear that said action of said meeting on the proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education was not a substantial compliance with the law.

In my decision in appeal no. 4465, on September 14, 1896, which appeal was taken from the action of the annual school meeting held in union free school district no. 3, town of Castleton, Richmond county, in attempting to increase the number of members of the board of education, where the vote thereon was taken by acclamation, I held that such action was illegal and void, for the reason that such vote was not taken in the manner prescribed by the school law. As in the action of the meeting, from which the appeal herein is taken, in its attempt to increase the number of members of the board of education the vote was not taken in the manner prescribed by the school law, I follow the decision in no. 4465 and hold that such action was illegal and void. The difference in the manner in which the vote was taken in district no. 3, Castleton, and district no. 6, Northfield, does not change the fact that in neither of said districts was such vote taken as prescribed by the school law.

The contention of the respondents herein, that the action of this meeting increasing the number of members of the board of education from three to five, having been a substantial compliance with the school law, and five members of said board having been voted for at said meeting by ballot, they were legally elected as members of said board, is not well taken.

I hold that the increase of the number of members of the board of education was not legally made, and therefore the meeting could not legally elect five members of said board, as said board at the time the said meeting was held and the vote taken, consisted of but three members.

It is clear that said annual meeting could legally elect but three trustees of the board of education, namely: One for the full term of three years in place of C. H. Ingalls, whose term expired on the first Tuesday of August 1896; one to fill the unexpired term of Charles H. Vail, and one to fill the unexpired term of George H. Janneman, each of whom was, on July 8, 1896, removed by me from office as trustee or member of said board. It does not appear clearly when the terms of said Vail and Janneman respectively would expire. The ballot should have had stated thereon the name of one person and that one for the full term, and also the names of two other persons to fill the unexpired terms of Vail and Janneman, and the terms respectively for which such persons were to serve.

It is claimed the meeting elected two trustees for three years, two trustees for two years, and one trustee for one year. It is impossible to say or decide which of the two elected for three years, if either, was elected in place of Ingalls, whose term expired on the day of the meeting, or which two of the other three were elected to fill the unexpired term of Vail and Janneman. The five persons claimed to have been elected for the term of time respectively, as stated in the minutes of the meeting, were not legally elected as such, even assuming that the increase of the members of said board was legally adopted. If the members of the board had been increased to five it was the duty of the meeting to elect one for a full term of three years and two to fill, respectively, the unexpired terms of Vail and Janneman, and the additional two divided into two classes, one for one year, and one for two years. Assuming that the unexpired terms of Vail and Janneman were one and two years, the meeting could have legally elected one trustee for a full term of three years; two trustees, one for one year and one for two years to fill such unexpired terms; and two additional trustees, one for one and one for two years.

It is clear that the five persons claimed to have been elected trustees of the district at the annual meeting are not, nor is any one of them, de jure trustees or a trustee of the district. Whether such persons are, or any of them is, de facto trustees or trustee, in or of said district, it is not necessary for me to decide herein.

As to the contention of the respondents herein, that the appeal herein was not brought within thirty days from the date of the annual meeting, and should, therefore, be dismissed, I would state that title 14 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, relating to appeals to the State Superintendent, does not prescribe the time within which such appeals must be brought, but gives to him the power to regulate the practice therein. Pursuant to such power said Superintendent has established his rules regulating the practice in such appeals, and in rule 3 it is provided that the original appeal and all papers be annexed thereto, with proof of service of copies as required by rules 3 and 4, must be sent to the Department of Public Instruction within thirty days after the making of the decision or the performance of the act complained of, or within that time after the knowledge of the cause of complaint came to the appellant, or some satisfactory excuse must be rendered for the delay.

The State Superintendent has the power to extend the time in which an appeal may be brought, to alter, modify or change the rule made by him relating to the time in which such appeal may be brought or to receive, entertain and decide an appeal brought after the thirty days, provided an excuse, satisfactory to him, is given for the delay. The appellants herein, in the affidavit of verification to this appeal, state that the first knowledge that they had that the acts complained of by them were illegal was upon reading a copy of my decision in the "New Brighton school appeal" (decision no. 4465), relative to acts similar to those herein appealed from, decided September 14, 1896. The reason given by the appellants for the delay being satisfactory to me, I received said appeal. I was also satisfied that by entertaining the appeal and deciding upon the legality of the acts appealed from, the school district would be saved from appeals taken from the acts of the persons claiming to be the trustees of the district.

The appellants herein while appealing from the several actions of said annual meeting, do not appeal specifically from the election of Arthur W. Deas as clerk of the district. The action of the meeting in the election of a clerk of the district, appears to be as follows: Mr Arthur W. Deas was nominated for clerk of the district and there being no further nominations, on motion the meeting unanimously voted that the chairman be authorized and directed to cast one ballot in favor of Mr Deas; this being done the tellers announced one ballot cast in favor of Mr Deas and none in the negative.

This Department has held, since the school law has required that school district officers shall be elected by ballot, except in a few instances in which it has been indisputably established that all the voters present desired the election of a person nominated for a district office, and no voter asked that a ballot be taken, that to comply with the provisions of said law the polls should be open, and the vote of every person present qualified to vote who desired to vote, received (see decision no. 4375); that the delegation of power to one person by a vote taken by acclamation or viva voce, to cast a vote for a district officer is not a compliance with the provisions of the school law relative to the election of district officers.

The appeal herein alleges that no inspectors of election at said annual meeting were appointed or elected, and none of the members of the board of education although present, acted as said inspectors. Under the school law the annual meeting of a union free school district should organize by the election or appointment of a chairman, and the clerk of the district, if present, should act as clerk of the meeting; but if the clerk is absent a clerk of the meeting should be elected or appointed; two inspectors of election should also be elected or appointed. The members of the board of education do not act as inspectors of election except at the election of members of the board and the clerk of the district, held in districts where the number of children is over three hundred and such election is held on the Wednesday next following the day designated by law for holding the annual meeting of the district. It appears that at said annual meeting a chairman was elected, and that Clerk Deas was elected clerk; that certain proceedings were taken, including the nominations for trustees, when the chairman appointed two inspectors of election or tellers and two watchers. There was no necessity for electing a clerk, the clerk of the district being present at the meeting; the inspectors of election should have been appointed as soon as the meeting was organized, and the school law does not recognize any school officers of a school meeting as "watchers."

I decide: First. That the action and proceedings of said annual meeting relative to appropriating money and authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes for the items contained in the statement of the board of education required for school purposes, or for the appropriation of money to pay any other item presented to the meeting and authorizing a tax to pay the same, were, and each of them was, illegal and void.

Second. That the action and proceedings of said annual meeting relating to, and upon the motion or proposition to increase the number of the members of the board of education of said district were, and each of them was, illegal and void; that the five persons voted for and declared by the chairman of said meeting to have been elected as such members were not, nor was any one of them, legally elected, nor was any person at such meeting legally elected a member of the board of trustees or board of education of said district.

So much of the appeal herein as is specifically taken from the action and proceedings of said annual meeting in appropriating money and authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, and increasing the number of the members of the board of education of said district from three to five, and in the election of five members of the board of education of said district or any member of said board, is sustained.

It is ordered, That all actions and proceedings had and taken at the annual school meeting held on August 4, 1896, in union free school district no. 6, town of Northfield, Richmond county, relative to the following matters, namely: Appropriating money and authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes for the support of the schools of said district for the school year commencing August 1, 1896, as contained in the statement of the board of education of said district, presented to and read at said annual meeting, or any other appropriation made or authorizing the levy of a tax to pay the same; all actions and proceedings had and taken upon the motion or proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district from three members to five; all actions and proceedings had and taken in the election or alleged election of J. W. Wortz, C. H. Ingalls, W. J. Scott, E. C. Sheridan and W. H. Prall, or any one of them, as trustees or members of the board of education of said district, be, and the same are, and each and all of said actions and proceedings of said annual meeting hereinbefore specified, is and are, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That Arthur W. Deas, an inhabitant in, and qualified voter of, said union free school district no. 6, town of Northfield, Richmond county, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district, qualified to vote at school meetings in said district, for the purpose of acting upon the statement presented by the board of education of said district to the said annual meeting of said district held on August 4, 1896, of the sum or sums required to be raised by a tax or taxes for the support of the schools of said district for the school year commencing August 1, 1896, and also to elect three trustees or members of the board of education of said district, namely: One trustee for the full term of three years in the place of C. H. Ingalls, whose term of office as trustee expired on August 4, 1896; and one trustee to fill the unexpired term for which Charles H. Vail was elected, and one trustee to fill the unexpired term for which George H. Janneman was elected, to the end that said board of trustees or board of education of said district shall consist of three members.

That notice of such special meeting be given by said Arthur W. Deas in the manner prescribed for giving notice of meetings by boards of education of union free school districts as contained in section 10, article 2, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the amendments thereof.

BRANCH SCHOOLS

4164½

In the matter of the appeal of William S. Barber v. Stephen M. Pratt, trustee, school district no. 2, town of Bolton, Warren county.

Whenever, in any remote locality of the district, a number of scholars, sufficient to make a respectable school, are debarred, from the fact of such remoteness, from attending school, the establishment of a temporary branch school will be directed.

Decided February 28, 1893

Crooker, Superintendent

- This is an appeal from the action and decision of the respondent as trustee of school district no. 2, town of Bolton, Warren county, in refusing to establish a temporary or branch school in the part of said school district known as the "Robinson neighborhood."

It appears from the papers filed herein that there are about 123 children of school age residing in said district; that the district schoolhouse has two rooms, each of which is capable of holding about 48 pupils; that there are about 26 children of school age residing in that part of said district known as the "Robinson neighborhood"; that about 17 of such children are compelled to go about 2½ miles over steep hilly roads to attend the school in the schoolhouse of said district; that said roads are badly drifted in winter season, and that it is difficult in inclement weather for such pupils to attend the school at said schoolhouse; that the assessed valuation of said district is about $218,000; that there was a temporary branch school conducted last year in said neighborhood for a period of ten weeks at a cost of eighty-five dollars; that a suitable room or building for such temporary branch school can be hired for a reasonable sum, and the expense of procuring necessary furniture, etc., for said school will be small.

The school commissioner of the commissioner district in which said school district is situate, is of the opinion that as the school in the district is a graded school with two teachers, to take away one of said teachers or to take from the school a portion from each department to establish the branch school would not be for the best interests of the pupils. It appears, however, from the certificate of said teachers that the entire attendance in one of said departments, of pupils from the Robinson neighborhood, for the present school year and between September and December 1892, aggregated but 59 days, and that in the higher department there has been no attendance of pupils from said neighborhood since the beginning of the school year. Should a branch school be established the trustee should employ a teacher for the same, and not transfer either of the teachers now employed.

It appears from the papers filed herein that at some time during the progress of this appeal, an agreement was arrived at between the appellant and respondent, by which the respondent was to establish such branch school, but from a reason, which does not clearly appear, the respondent declined to do so.

By section 50 of title 7 of the Consolidation School Act of 1864, power is given to the trustees of school districts, whenever it shall be necessary for the due accommodation of the children of the district, to hire temporarily, any room or rooms for the keeping of school therein, and any expenditure made or liability incurred in pursuance of said section shall be a charge upon the district. This Department has the power, upon appeal, to review the decision of trustees either in establishing or refusing to establish a temporary branch school in any district. This Department has held that whenever, in any remote locality of the district, a number of scholars sufficient to make a respectable school are debarred, from the fact of such remoteness, from attending school, the establishment of a temporary branch school will be directed. It seems clear to me from the fact of the number of children residing in said Robinson neighborhood; their distance from the present schoolhouse; the difficulty in an inclement season of reaching such schoolhouse; and the assessed valuation of the district that a temporary branch school should be maintained, as asked for by the appellant.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the trustee of school district no. 2, town of Bolton, Warren county, be, and he hereby is, directed to forthwith employ a competent qualified teacher, and hire a schoolroom and establish a temporary branch school in that part of said school district known as the "Robinson neighborhood," and that such temporary branch school be maintained by him for a period of not less than 12 weeks during the present school year.

Discretion of a trustee in establishing branch school overruled.
Decided March 31, 1859

Van Dyck, Superintendent

On an appeal from the action of the sole trustee in sustaining two schools in the district, as public schools, and alike entitled to share in the public money appropriated to said district, the following facts appear: That the district is about 3 miles in extent from north to south, and that the schoolhouse is situated near the center. It further appears that most of the children reside in the northern part of the district, while the population or voters of the district, interested in keeping the school at the center, are in the majority. The residents of the north part of the district, unable to secure a change of site, have maintained, during some portion of the year, for some time past, a school in their vicinity, and have received toward its support a portion of the public money. At the last annual meeting, it was voted that the school be kept in the "brick schoolhouse," near the center of the district; but the trustee also employed a teacher to teach the school in the north part of the district, and from this proceeding the present appeal is brought.

The size of the district, the number of pupils, the condition of the district schoolhouse, are nowhere urged as conditions giving rise to this proceeding. I can not find, in the conditions presented, a necessity for the establishment of two schools in that district. The trustee himself concedes that there is no necessity for two schools in the district, except that created by feeling in the north, of opposition to the central school. If this feeling is sufficiently strong to cause them to sustain a private school, there is no help for it; but there is no sufficient reason, to my mind, for fostering and cherishing this spirit of opposition, by helping to support the school by making it a public charge.

It is my opinion, therefore, that the trustee has acted without due discretion, and his action in the matter is hereby disapproved.

434¹

In the matter of the appeal of Mordecai Casson v. William C. Casson, trustee, school district no. 4, town of Tuscarora, Steuben county.

Where it appears that a branch school is necessary for the due accommodation of children living in that portion of the district remote from the schoolhouse of the district, and that said district is abundantly able financially to sustain such branch school without being burdensome, it is the duty of the trustee or trustees of said district to establish such branch school.

Decided March 15, 1895

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is from the order or decision of the trustee of school district no. 4, town of Tuscarora, Steuben county, to hire a teacher and continue to maintain a branch school in said district. An answer by the trustee of said district to the appeal herein has been received. The principal reason given in answer for not continuing the branch school is because two-thirds of the inhabitants of the district are opposed to it.

It appears from the papers that said school district has real and personal property of the aggregate assessed valuation of about $44,250; that the whole number of children of school age residing in said district is about 36, of which about 22 attended the winter term; that 10 scholars residing in the northeast part of said district attended the branch school held in the locality, commencing November 5, 1894; that the children living in that part of said school district in which said branch school has been maintained, are required to travel to reach the schoolhouse in said district 2 miles at least, and upon roads impassable portions of the time in winter.

It also appears that early in the present school year the appellant herein and School Commissioner Harrison visited the respondent herein, and the appellant requested said respondent as trustee of said district to establish a branch school in that part of said district, in which appellant resided; that the appellant stated to the respondent that he and others residing in that part of said district would build a suitable building in said locality for a schoolhouse upon condition that the respondent would hire a teacher and maintain a school in such locality for 32 weeks during the present school year; that said Commissioner Harrison recommended that said branch school be established; that the respondent consented and agreed to establish such branch school upon the condition then and there stated; that thereupon the appellant herein and others residing in his vicinity erected a building 16 by 24 and 13 feet high — balloon frame — sheathed, papered and sided on the outside, and ceiled inside — painted outside and varnished inside, and furnished the same with Paragon (chair) seats, table for teacher, blackboard, stove etc., at an aggregate cost of $300; that the respondent employed a qualified teacher for 16 weeks and on November 5, 1894, established and opened a branch school in said building; that such branch school was maintained for 65 days exclusive of holidays, and the teacher's roll shows 10 scholars with 620 days' attendance, averaging 9 13-33; that respondent refused to employ a qualified teacher and to continue and maintain a branch school in said locality and building. The respondent alleges in his answer to the appeal herein that he agreed to hire a teacher for said branch school for 32 weeks with the understanding that the school district would receive $100 additional public money to help pay teacher's wages.

Under the provisions of section 6, title 2 of the Consolidated School Law, said school district is entitled to distributive portion or district quota of $100 for each qualified teacher or successive qualified teachers who shall have taught a school in said district for 160 days of school, inclusive of legal holidays that may occur during a term of school and exclusive of Saturdays, during the school year commencing August 1, 1894, and ending July 31, 1895. Should a qualified teacher or successive qualified teachers, during the present school year, teach a school in said branch school for a period of 160 days, inclusive of legal holidays that may occur during the term of school and exclusive of said Saturdays, said district will be entitled to have and receive in the next apportionment the sum of $100.

Under the provisions of section 50, article 6, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is the duty of the trustee or trustees of every school district, and they shall have the power, whenever it shall be necessary for the due accommodation of the children of the district, by reason of any considerable number of said children residing in portions of said district remote from the schoolhouse in said district, thereby rendering it difficult for them in inclement weather and winter to attend school at such schoolhouse, etc., etc., to establish temporary or branch school or schools in such place or places in said district as shall best accommodate such children, and hire room or rooms, etc., etc.; and any expenditure made or liability incurred shall be a charge upon said district.

By the above provisions of the school law it is mandatory upon the trustees to establish the temporary or branch school, and the qualified voters of the district have no power in the matter.

It is clear, under the facts established, that a branch school is necessary for the due accommodation of the children living in the northeast portion of said district. Relying upon the promise of the respondent a comfortable building has been erected and furnished for said school without cost to the district, and there can not be, aside from teachers' wages, but a small expense to the district to maintain said school, and it appears that the district is abundantly able financially to sustain such branch school without its being a burden. If the school is not continued the district will not be entitled to any part of the teacher's quota of $100 from the public money.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the trustee of school district no. 4, town of Tuscarora, Steuben county, forthwith employ a qualified teacher to teach in said branch school, and open, continue and maintain said branch school for a period during the remainder of the present school year, that, together with the number of days during the present school year that said school has been maintained, the said branch school shall have been maintained and taught by a qualified teacher or successive qualified teachers for at least 160 days of school, inclusive of legal holidays that may occur during the term of school, and exclusive of Saturdays.

5178

In the matter of the appeal of Jennie W. Mowell v. William R. Sliter, sole trustee of school district no. 9, town of Hardenburg, Ulster county.

When a district has maintained a branch school for two years and at the close of that period conditions in the section where such school has been held are the same as they were during the period such branch school was conducted, it is proper and legal for the retiring trustee to make the same provision for the continuance of such school during the ensuing year as he may under the law make for the continuance of the regular school of the district.

A teacher acts entirely within her legal rights in closing school until fuel is provided so that the schoolroom can be placed in a safe and comfortable condition for school purposes. Decided February 10, 1905

Draper, Commissioner

On July 28, 1904, Joseph E. Scudder, trustee of school district no. 9, town of Hardenburg, county of Ulster, entered into a contract with Jennie W. Mowell, the appellant herein, under the terms of which it was agreed that she should teach the branch school of said district for a period of 32 weeks from September 12, 1904, at a salary of $10 per week. The term of office of Trustee Scudder expired at the annual meeting August 2, 1904, or five days after such contract was made. At the annual meeting William R. Sliter, respondent herein, was elected trustee. The annual meeting also voted not to maintain a branch school. On September 12, 1904, the date fixed in the contract between Trustee Scudder and Miss Mowell for the opening of the branch school, Trustee Sliter appeared at the schoolhouse in which such branch school had been conducted and forbade Miss Mowell to open such school, and informed her that he would not pay her if she did open it and teach therein. Miss Mowell, however, opened the school and has been teaching there since, and the respondent as trustee has refused to pay the salary agreed upon by the contract executed by his predecessor, Mr Scudder. The contention of the respondent is that such branch school was unnecessary and that Trustee Scudder did not possess legal power to determine that a branch school should be maintained in the district during the year following the expiration of his term of office as trustee.

It appears that the section of the district in which this branch school is maintained was formerly a separate school district; that such district was dissolved and annexed to the district of which it now forms a part.

In respondent's answer reference is made to an appeal decided by this Department in 1902, refusing to direct the trustee of this district to establish a branch school for that section of the district in which the present branch school is operated. The contention of respondent is that by such decision this Department held that a branch school should not be established at this point and that such decision was final and binding upon the district, and that to maintain such branch school would be a direct violation of that decision. An examination of that decision does not sustain respondent's contention. The pleadings in that appeal shows that a petition for such branch school was filed with the trustee January 28, 1902. On January 30, 1902, the trustee gave the petitioners a written answer refusing to establish the school. February 27, 1902, an appeal from the refusal of the trustee to establish such school was filed at this Department. The pleadings in such appeal were not completed until May 20, 1902. It was then near the end of the school year. This Department dismissed the appeal on that ground and on the further ground that the old schoolhouse did not appear to be in a fit condition for use; that it could not be repaired in time to open school that year, and that a suitable room for school purposes could not be obtained. In dismissing such appeal this Department suggested that the whole question be taken up at the annual meeting and some solution reached. This Department did not undertake to pass upon the necessity of establishing such school, nor is such question properly before this Department now for determination. It is not improper to add, however, that in the appeal of 1902, it was shown that the children in this section of the district in question, known as Tray Valley, were about two miles from the schoolhouse by a path across the fields or woods and that by the regular highway the distance was much greater.

The pleadings in the appeal now under consideration show that a branch school was maintained for this section of the district in 1902-3 and also in 1903-4. It is also shown that such school has been held in the old schoolhouse of the dissolved district.

Only two questions are to be determined in this appeal. These are: Did the trustee, Joseph E. Scudder, possess the legal right to hire a teacher for this branch school on July 28, 1904, for the ensuing year? If he possessed that right, did Miss Mowell perform the service required under her contract?

Subdivision 9 of section 47 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law provides that it shall be the duty of the trustee "to employ all teachers in the dis-strict school or schools . . . and to designate the number of teachers to be employed; to determine the rate of compensation to be paid to each teacher, etc." The power to employ teachers and to determine the number of teachers, rests solely with a trustee and that officer in the exercise of such duty is not subject in any way whatever to the action of a district meeting. This same section of the law also authorizes a trustee to contract with a teacher for one year in advance. Section 50 of the same title of the Consolidated School Law also confers on trustees the power to establish branch schools. The provision of law on this point is as follows: "Whenever it shall be necessary for the due accommodation of the children of the district, by reason of any considerable number of said children residing in portions of said district remote from the schoolhouse in said district, thereby rendering it difficult for them in inclement weather and in winter to attend school at such schoolhouse, or by reason of the room or rooms in said schoolhouse being overcrowded, or for any other sufficient reason the due accommodation of such children can not be made in said schoolhouse, they shall establish temporary or branch school or schools in such place or places in said district as shall best accomodate such children, and hire any room or rooms for keeping said temporary or branch school or schools, and fit up and furnish said room or rooms in a suitable manner for conducting such school or schools therein. Any expenditure made or liability incurred in pursuance of this section shall be a charge upon the district." This Department has uniformly held that whenever any of the above conditions exists it is not only within the power of the trustee to establish a branch school, but it is his duty to establish one. A district meeting can not limit or interfere with the power or duty of a trustee on this question. When a district has maintained a branch school for two years and at the close of that period, conditions in the section where such school has been held are the same as they were during the period such branch school was conducted, it is proper and legal for the retiring trustee to make the same provision for the continuance of such school during the ensuing year as he may under the law make for the continuance of the regular school of the district. Of course a trustee can not provide for a branch school unless a necessity exists for the establishment of one. If a trustee exceeds his power in this respect the same relief may be granted that is provided for in any other case in which a trustee exceeds his power. The party attacking the action of a trustee in establishing such school must show conclusively that a necessity for its establishment did not exist. The respondent in this appeal has failed on this point.

In view of the provisions of law, above cited, and of the circumstances in this particular case, I am of the opinion that Trustee Scudder acted strictly within his legal rights in employing two teachers for this district for the current year and that the contract with Miss Mowell, as teacher of the branch school, was legal, and binding upon the district.

It appears that Miss Mowell reported at the schoolhouse in the district where the branch school had been held for two years. The respondent claims that she should have reported to him and not at the school building. Her contract specifically stated that she was to teach the branch school and she properly reported at the building where such school had been conducted. The trustee expected her to report at such building as he went there himself to meet her and to prevent her from opening the school.

The respondent also contends that this appeal should be dismissed on the ground that a question of damages is involved and he cites several decisions of this Department in which it has been held that a question of damages is one to be determined by the courts and not by this Department. I am familiar with these decisions and know that such has been the uniform ruling of this Department on appeals involving the assessment of damages. This appeal, however, does not involve that question. This is an appeal to enforce the payment of salary for services performed. It is not an appeal for an adjudgment of damages for breach of contract. The cases cited by the respondent on this point relate to those where teachers had made legal contracts, but had been prevented by trustees from performing the services required under such contracts. The appellant in this appeal not only made a legal contract but entered upon the performance of her part of such contract and is still rendering service in the performance of such contract. It is a case which should not go to the courts but which should be heard before the Commissioner of Education.

The respondent also claims that if the contract was legally made and binding upon the district it was invalidated by the acts of Miss Mowell in November by closing school two or three days without his permission. Appellant states, and it is not denied by the respondent, that she asked him for the privilege of closing school on these days and he replied that he did not care what she did. He therefore gave her discretionary power in deciding on the wisdom of closing school on those days. The appellant also states, and this is not denied by respondent, that on the days school was thus closed there was no fuel at the schoolhouse and that she was compelled to close school. This was proper cause for closing school. The teacher acted entirely within her legal rights in closing school until fuel was provided so that the schoolroom could be placed in a safe and comfortable condition for school purposes.

Respondent also alleges that Trustee Scudder had a pecuniary interest in the contract with Miss Mowell. He alleges that when Scudder wrote Miss Mowell about contracting for this school he also wrote her that he would board her at $2.50 per week. There was nothing improper in this. Teachers usually desire to know what board will cost in a community before contracting to teach therein. It is not shown that Scudder imposed the condition that Miss Mowell should agree to board with him if he contracted with her to teach. It is not shown that she was not at liberty to make such arrangements as she might desire in relation to the question of board. The respondent has failed to sustain this allegation.

It is clearly shown that appellant made a legal contract for 32 weeks from September 12, 1904, at a compensation of $10 per week, payable at the end of each 30 days, and that she has in good faith performed all the obligations by which she was bound under such contract. The contract was binding upon the district and the appellant must be sustained in her claim and must be paid for her services.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That William R. Sliter, trustee of school district no. 9, town of Hardenburg, county of Ulster, pay the said Jennie W. Mowell any and all salary now due to her for services as teacher of the branch school of said district, under the said contract executed July 28, 1904, and that after paying her the amount now due he shall also pay her any and all salary as the same shall become due and payable under the terms of the said contract.

It is further ordered, That if there are not funds of the district available for the purpose of paying such salary of Jennie W. Mowell or any part of it, the said Trustee Sliter shall raise by tax on the taxable property of the district as the Consolidated School Law provides, any and all moneys necessary to pay such salary.

5402

In the matter of the appeal of Frank Sherman for a branch school in district no. 1, town of Caroga, Fulton county.

Establishment of branch school. A trustee may establish a branch school whenever the conditions prescribed by the Education Law, section 196, subdivision 5, are found to exist without regard to the previous act of a district meeting. His determination as to the establishment of such school will not be disturbed on appeal unless it be shown by a fair preponderance of evidence that the prescribed conditions do actually exist.

Number of children to be accommodated. Unless a considerable number of children are to be accommodated by a branch school it should not be established, notwithstanding the remoteness of their residence and the hardships to be endured by them in reaching the main schoolhouse. A branch schoolhouse should not be established to accommodate the three children of a single taxpayer.

Decided March 4, 1909

Dudley & Dennison, attorneys for appellant

N. H. Anibal, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The petitioner herein complains of the action of Burtelle Foster, trustee of school district no. 1 of the town of Caroga, county of Fulton, in refusing to establish a branch school in such district. It appears from the affidavits submitted that Frank Sherman, the petitioner, resides about 4 miles from the schoolhouse in such district. There is some conflict in the pleadings and affidavits as to the character of the road between the home of the petitioner and the schoolhouse. It is apparently an Adirondack road, comparatively little traveled, and 2 or 3 miles of it through the forests. In an ordinary Adirondack winter, a journey over it twice a day for a distance of 4 miles would tax the endurance of children of 7, 11 and 12 years, the ages of the children of the petitioner. In any event, there does not seem to be much question about the remoteness of the petitioner's location from the schoolhouse in his district. If this were the only question involved a decision might well be rendered in his favor.

This case must be decided, however, with a view of carrying out the purpose and intent of the law applicable thereto. By subdivision 5 of section 196 of the Education Law of 1909 (former Consolidated School Law, title 7, section 50) the trustee is clothed with full discretionary power to establish a branch school "whenever it shall be necessary for the due accommodation of the children of the district, by reason of any considerable number of said children residing in portions of said district remote from the schoolhouse in said district." This power may be exercised by him whenever the conditions prescribed are found to exist, without regard to the previous act of a district meeting. It is for the trustee to determine in the first instance whether such conditions exist. His determination is subject to review upon an appeal brought to the Commissioner of Education, but unless it be shown by a fair preponderance of evidence that the prescribed conditions do actually exist, and that he nevertheless refuses to establish a branch school his determination will not be disturbed. The petitioner has three children, all of compulsory school age. At the time the petition was filed another family resided in the same portion of the district with two children of less than 8 years of age. The father runs a summer hotel which is open from spring until fall; the remainder of the time the family is not in the district. The petitioner in effect asks, therefore, for a branch school for the sole accommodation of his own three children. The number of such children can not be said to be "considerable," within the meaning of the statute. It was not the purpose of the law to require a branch school with a separate teacher for so few children, especially when they all belong to the same family. Unless a considerable number of children are to be accommodated by the school it should not be established notwithstanding the remoteness of the children and the hardships to be endured by them in reaching the main schoolhouse. The children of the petitioner are entitled to the benefits of the school in the district, but the trustee may not be compelled to take the school to their door. There is also a parental obligation resting upon the petitioner to give his children educational advantages. He should not be permitted to shift this burden upon his neighbors. If his business takes him into a remote district and his family goes with him, his children must either suffer the hardship of attending a school located a long distance from their home, or must be given equivalent instruction at home. When other families go into the same remote district where the petitioner now resides so that a considerable number of children would be accommodated by the establishment of a branch school, then the trustee may reasonably be required to establish such school. It is not necessary for a determination of this appeal to decide what number would be a "considerable number," within the meaning of the statute. Neither three nor five is sufficient.

The petition herein is dismissed.

5405

In the matter of the appeal of Anthony Swint from an order of the trustees of school district no. 11, town of Guilderland, county of Albany.

Pupils to attend branch school; duties of trustees. Where a branch school is established as provided by law, the trustees may set off a certain part of the district and insist that the pupils residing therein shall attend such school. The trustees should reasonably exercise such power with a view of carrying out the evident purpose, that is, the accommodation of those pupils who reside in portions of the district remote from the main schoolhouse. It is not reasonable to compel pupils to attend a branch school where it appears that they reside at a place more conveniently accessible to the main schoolhouse.

Decided May 3, 1909

Stern & Hirschfeld, attorneys for appellant

Draper, Commissioner

The appellant appeals from an order given by the trustees of school district no. 11, town of Guilderland, county of Albany, directing the appellant to send his children to the branch school instead of the main school in such district. The petitioner alleges that he has three sons of the ages of 8, 14 and 16, and one daughter of the age of 11. The branch school is on the other side of the Western turnpike from the residence of the appellant and is apparently in an almost opposite part of the district. The road leading to such branch school from the residence of the appellant runs through the sand plain, sometimes through woods, and is at all times of the year a difficult road to travel, either on foot or in vehicles. The distance between the appellant's residence and the branch school is about 2 miles, and that between such residence and the main school is about $1\frac{2}{3}$ miles. The main school is upon the Western turnpike, about four-fifths of a mile from the point of connection with the road leading to the residence of the appellant. The appellant lives about four-fifths of a mile from this point. The Western turnpike is a main road leading into the city of Albany. It is frequently traveled and the appellant's business requires him to go over this road nearly every day.

From the facts stated it clearly appears that the attendance of appellant's children at the branch school, as directed by the trustees, is much more difficult than such attendance at the main school. Trustees may establish branch schools (1) for the accommodation of children residing in portions of the district remote from the schoolhouse therein; (2) where the room or rooms in such schoolhouse are overcrowded, or (3) where for any other sufficient reason the due accommodation of the children of the district can not be made in such schoolhouse. The branch school in this district was established for the first purpose above specified. There was a considerable number of children to be accommodated by such school all residing within a reasonable distance therefrom. From evidence on file in this Department it appears that there are 24 pupils registered as attending such school which is all that can be accommodated therein.

Where a branch school is established as provided by law, the trustees may set off a certain part of the district and insist that the pupils residing therein shall attend such schools. This discretionary power necessarily coexists with the power to establish the school. But it should be reasonably exercised with a view of carrying out the evident purpose of the law, that is, the accommodation of those pupils who reside in portions of the district remote from the main schoolhouse. It would not be a reasonable exercise of this power to compel pupils to attend a branch school where it appeared that they resided at a place more conveniently accessible to the main schoolhouse. This is especially so where both schoolhouses are overcrowded, as appears in this case.

The children of the appellant and the other pupils residing in his immediate neighborhood should be permitted to attend the main schoolhouse.

If such schoolhouse is inadequate to suitably accommodate all these children, it is the duty of the district to increase its size or to erect a new schoolhouse so as to afford reasonable school facilities. The qualified electors of the district should be given an opportunity to determine which of these courses should be followed and the trustees should immediately call a special meeting for such purpose.

The order of the trustees directing the children of the appellant to attend the branch school is unreasonable and should be set aside. I am informed that there are other children in the immediate neighborhood of the appellant who also have been directed to attend the branch school. The principles declared in this decision would apply to them, but the action of the trustees in respect to them not being at issue in this appeal I can not at this time make any formal order as to which school such pupils should attend. It is suggested, however, that the trustees treat such pupils as though they were within the scope of this appeal, and permit them to attend at the main schoolhouse.

The appeal is sustained.

It is hereby ordered, That the notice or order of the trustees of school district no. 11, town of Guilderland, county of Albany, directing the children of Anthony Swint to attend at the branch school and not at the main schoolhouse in such district be set aside, and that the said trustees permit the children of the said Swint to attend the main schoolhouse in such district.

BUILDING COMMITTEE

3621

In the matter of the appeal of Henry C. Almy and others v. E. O. Rogers, as trustee of district no. 11, town of Wirt, county of Allegany, and others.

The district meeting appointed a building committee. Held that it could act only in an advisory capacity.

The trustee is the officer invested by law with the sole authority to carry out the directions of a district meeting.

Persons named as a building committee, who are not trustees, may be employed in their line of business by the trustees to do work for the district, unless otherwise directed by the district.

Decided July 19, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This proceeding is an appeal by residents and taxpayers of school district no. 11, town of Wirt, Allegany county, from the action of the trustee of said district, and a building committee composed of the said trustee and two other residents of the district. The appellants aver that at a school district meeting, held September 21, 1886, it was decided to repair the schoolhouse, laying a new floor and ceiling the room, among other matters. A building committee was selected. It is claimed by the appellants that the meeting decided to use basswood for the ceiling, and to lay the new floor over the old one, and that the minutes of the meeting, as recorded by the clerk, are incorrect in that it does not appear therein that basswood was to be used for ceiling and the floor laid as above stated. It is further alleged that the job was not let to the lowest bidder, and that proposals were not asked for; that the work was done by the members of the building committee, except the trustee, and that it has not been done in a good and workmanlike manner, and is defective, and that unseasoned wood has been used.

The respondents, the trustee, district clerk, collector and the so-called building committee, in answer to the appeal, allege that the meeting did not give any directions as to how the work should have been let or executed, or as to what material should be used; that Messrs Hand and Case, of the building committee, were carpenters, and did the job by day's work by the trustee's direction, and as they understood the meeting to desire; that the material used was well seasoned and first-class material, carefully selected; that they used narrow hemlock for the ceiling, and maple for flooring; that the old floor was so uneven that a new floor could not be properly laid over it, and that the old floor was, therefore, removed to make place for the new.

They produce the affidavits of carpenters, builders and others who state that the work is properly done and the material used is suitable and proper.

Upon the application of the appellants, an order was granted, staying all proceedings for the enforcement of the tax list and warrant for the collection of the moneys needed to pay the expenses of this improvement pending this appeal.

Other questions concerning the tax list have been raised by subsequent pleadings, which I do not consider it necessary or proper to consider on this appeal, but shall confine myself to the issues raised by the original pleadings.

The evidence is very voluminous and conflicting. After careful reading I find the facts to be:

1 That the district meeting authorized the repairs which have been made to the schoolhouse.

2 The minutes, so far as directing what should be done, are correct.

3 Messrs Hand and Case were appointed to act with the trustees as a building committee.

4 The work has been properly and reasonably done; the schoolhouse has been measurably improved.

5 The district has been benefited by the work and should pay for the same.

Finding the facts as above, I hold:

The appointment of a building committee can not be sustained and is a nullity. The meeting has power to direct repairs, but the law invests the trustee with the sole power to carry out those directions. The building committee having no legal existence, its members, Messrs Hand and Case, could legally, and being competent workmen, properly enter into a contract with the trustee to do this work.

The appeal is overruled and the stay heretofore granted therein vacated.

The trustees can not be interfered with by any building committee appointed by the district.
Decided August 20, 1868

Weaver, Superintendent

The decisions of the courts and the Department have been that no power is given to the inhabitants to invest a building committee with authority to contract for building a schoolhouse or to do any other act binding upon the trustees, without their assent. (6 Howard's Pr. R. 437; Code Pub. Inst. [ed. 1868] 139.)

The trustees are the authorized agents for carrying out the instructions of the district in respect to building, and in paying therefor, and they can not be superseded by any other set of men appointed by the district.

In this case, I am of the opinion that the trustees had authority to go on and complete the schoolhouse according to the plan adopted, and to levy taxes for the expense thereof without reference to any action on the part of the building committee [in assuming to audit the accounts pertaining to said building].

5227

In the matter of the appeal of William C. Smith from the action of the annual meeting of school district no. 2, town of Minden, Montgomery county.

An annual meeting may accept repairs made by a building committee if such repairs were authorized and the cost of the same is not exorbitant.

The action of the meeting in auditing bills for repairs will not be set aside on the sole ground that such repairs were supervised by a building committee instead of the trustee.

Decided December 5, 1905

George C. Butler, attorney for appellant

H. V. Borst, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

During the month of May 1905, a special meeting was held in school district no. 2, Minden, Montgomery county, to decide whether a new schoolhouse should be erected or the old building repaired. It appears that the meeting decided by nearly a unanimous vote to repair the old building. The meeting also instructed the chairman to appoint a building committee of three. The chairman of the meeting appointed as such committee Charles Bellinger, Charles Smith and Emmett Klock, all of whom were residents and taxpayers of the district. This committee employed mechanics and made such repairs as were authorized and deemed necessary. Bills for such repairs amounting to $113.74 were presented by the building committee to the annual meeting of the district held on August 1, 1905. The annual meeting audited these bills and authorized the trustee to raise a tax on the property of the district sufficient to pay the same.

The Consolidated School Law does not authorize the appointment of a building committee. Subdivision 5 of section 47, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law expressly imposes upon trustees the duty of making repairs to school buildings. Since the law makes this work the duty of the trustee a district meeting has not the power to delegate to a building committee such work. A building committee therefore has no legal standing and if one is appointed it can act in an advisory capacity only. The trustee was the proper person to employ mechanics, purchase materials and supplies and to supervise the construction work.

The necessity of the repairs which were made are admitted and appellant even alleges that they are insufficient and that the school accommodations are inadequate. It was within the power of the annual meeting to accept the repairs made by the building committee. It is not shown by the appellant that the cost of the repairs is excessive. The sole ground on which he contends the expenditure illegal is that such repairs were made under the supervision of a building committee instead of the trustee.

The remedy of appellant or any other aggrieved party from the action of the special meeting in appointing a building committee or from the action of such committee in assuming to take charge of repairs which it was not legally authorized to make was an appeal to the Commissioner of Education immediately after the special meeting or whenever the committee commenced to make the repairs.

The Commissioner of Education had full power to issue any orders necessary to restrain such committee from proceeding with such repairs while an appeal could be determined. The trustee should have proceeded to make any repairs authorized at the special meeting and he failed in the performance of his duties in permitting the building committee to make such repairs.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

3301

A district meeting can not delegate to a building committee the power to appoint a member of such committee to carry out the wishes of the district, in case the committee can not agree.

Decided January 15, 1884

Ruggles, Superintendent

Among other proceedings of the special meeting appealed from is the adoption of the following resolution: "That a committee of two be associated with the trustees as a building committee, with full power to repair said schoolhouse as in their judgment will best meet the wants and wishes of the district, with instructions, that if they can not agree to act together, they shall choose one of their number to so act.

The adoption of this resolution at said meeting, for the appointment of a building committee with full power to repair said schoolhouse, will be sustained only so far as such committee acts in an advisory capacity with the trustee; the latter portion of the resolution, which instructs the committee that if they can not agree to act together they shall choose one of their number to carry out the wishes of the district, is invalid. The trustee is the agent of the district accredited by the law for this purpose.

The instruction contained in said resolution, to which reference has been made, is hereby set aside.

CONTRACT SYSTEM

5219

In the matter of the petition of Henry Nulty that provision be made for the transportation of his child from his home in school district no. 7 of the town of Easton to district no. 5 of said town.

The moral and legal obligation rests upon every parent to give his child the advantages of the school facilities afforded by our system of public education. He should do this even at great inconvenience and expense if necessary. He should not expect remuneration nor should it be given for such trouble as may reasonably be expected of a parent to enable his children to attend school.

To vote compensation to a parent from the public funds for taking his child to and from school was not intended under the contract law.

Payment to a parent for conveying his children to school comes dangerously near being an improper consideration to influence his vote in favor of the contract system when it might be more desirable to maintain a home school.

The intent of the law in providing transportation is that it should be regular and daily; that individual parents should not derive pecuniary advantage from it; and that nothing should be left to parental convenience or caprice.

The general rule should be that one person of proper character, furnishing suitable accommodations, should be regularly employed and the contract for transportation should be awarded, after opportunity for competition, to the most reliable party who will furnish the best transportation at the lowest cost to the district.

Decided October 31, 1905

William E. Bennett, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The appellant herein is a resident of common school district no. 7, town of Easton, Washington county. He has a son who will be 7 years of age November 23, 1905. For several years this district has contracted with school district no. 5, Easton, Washington county, under the provisions of title 15 of the Consolidated School Law for the education of its children. The distance from the home of appellant to the schoolhouse in district no. 5, Easton, is $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles. The 7 year old son of appellant must therefore travel 9 miles daily in order to regularly attend school under the contract between these two districts.

At the annual meeting of school district no. 7, Easton, in August 1904, a resolution was adopted authorizing the trustee to contract for the education of the children of that district in "district no. 5, Easton, or some other district in the town of Easton." The trustee of district no. 7 was therefore given discretionary powers as to the district in the town of Easton with which he should contract. It appears that he made a contract with district no. 5, Easton. At the annual meeting of district no. 7 in August 1905 a motion was adopted providing that the resolution of the annual meeting of 1904, authorizing the trustee to contract, should hold good for the ensuing year. The resolution of 1904 was also read by the clerk. The trustee for the current year therefore had the power to contract with district no. 5, Easton, or with any other district in the town of Easton. No one knew for a certainty at the time of the annual meeting of 1905 with what district the trustee would make a contract for the ensuing year. That was to be determined later by the trustee. He made such contract in due time with district no. 5, Easton.

The annual meeting of 1905 also adopted a motion providing that $10 for each child attending school under the contract system should be paid to the parent or guardian of such child for its transportation for the entire year. It was also provided that if a child did not attend school the full year the allowance made for its transportation should be in proportion to the time such child did attend.

The attorney for respondent asks that the appeal be dismissed on several grounds. These grounds are all technical and are not supported by substantial reasons. He contends that the proceeding is not an appeal but a petition. In this he is wrong. Appellant does state in the title of the proceedings that he petitions for provision for transportation for his child, but in his notice of appeal to the Commissioner of Education it is specifically stated: "The petitioner and appellant hereby appeals to you etc." The entire proceeding is in the nature of an appeal as defined by law and must be considered as such.

It is also claimed that the appeal should be from the action of the annual meeting and not from the action of the trustee, and that such appeal was not brought within the 30 days limit fixed by the rules. The grievance of appellant does not date from the action of the annual meeting. Appellant did not know what transportation would be necessary for his child until he knew with what district a contract had been made. It is undisputed that the trustee had authority under the resolution of the annual meeting to contract with any district in the town of Easton. Appellant could not therefore know of the sufficiency of the transportation authorized by the annual meeting until he knew with what district a contract had been made and where his child would be required to attend school. It is not shown in the pleadings that more than 30 days occurred between the date on which knowledge of such contract having been made came to appellant and the date on which the appeal was filed. The trustee is, under the law, the proper person to provide for transportation when it is authorized and the appeal might therefore be properly taken from the action of the trustee or of the annual meeting. We must therefore hold that the appeal is properly before this Department and must be considered on its merits.

The law authorizing the contract system provides that all contracts must be approved by the Commissioner of Education. This Department has refused to approve such contracts whenever the distance from the homes of any of the children to the schoolhouse at which they are required to attend school thereunder is too great for them to walk to and from school daily unless proper provision is made for their conveyance.

Section 19, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law as amended by Laws of 1905, chapter 175, authorizes a district to levy a tax to provide transportation for any or all children to the school which they must attend under a contract. It also provides that any portion of the public money apportioned a district may be used in payment of such transportation. Under this section the district meeting is to authorize the trustee to provide transportation and to vote a tax to raise necessary funds and the trustees of the district must then contract for the conveyance of the children.

Attorney for respondent is wrong in his contention that trustees must contract in accordance with rules provided by the district meeting. The district meeting simply authorizes the contract for transportation and it is then the duty of trustees to make such contracts and to prescribe rules to govern the conveyance of children.

The pleadings show that it has been the custom in this district for several years to allow the parents of children attending school under contract the sum of $10 for each child. This custom appears quite common in districts operating under the contract system. It is one to be severely condemned. The moral and legal obligation rests upon every parent to give his child the advantages of the school facilities afforded by our system of public education. He should do this even at great inconvenience and expense if necessary. He should not expect remuneration nor should it be given for such trouble as may reasonably be expected of a parent to enable his children to attend school. It is difficult to understand on what mathematical basis a computation is derived by which it is determined that a parent is entitled to $10 for getting his children to and from school daily for one year. In most cases the parent is to no additional effort or trouble whatever. The $10 is so much gain. When this course is pursued and transportation is not provided but should be, the plan operates as a hardship upon the child. This method of providing transportation is therefore demoralizing if not corrupting. It has no authority of law. Proper and comfortable transportation can usually be provided for all the children in a district for the amount paid the several parents by employing one suitable person. Transportation is not to be provided unless it is necessary. Whenever it is necessary it must be provided. When it is provided it must be comfortable and suitable and of such character as to warrant the belief of parents that no harm will result therefrom to their children. It is necessary to provide proper transportation in this district and particularly for the Nulty boy if the contract with district no. 5, Easton, is to stand approved. Such transportation has not been provided. Respondent claims that one Pierce, a neighbor of appellant, has offered to permit appellant's son to ride to school with his son. The age of Pierce's son is not given and we are unable to determine whether or not he is a proper person to be charged with the responsibility of taking the 7 year old son of appellant to and from school daily.

The action taken by the annual meeting in relation to the transportation of children was not such as the law contemplates in such cases. The district meeting should have authorized the trustee to provide transportation in necessary cases and should have voted a tax for such sum as was necessary to meet the expenses of such transportation.

To vote compensation to a parent from the public funds for taking his child to and from school was not intended under the contract law. Payment to a parent for conveying his children to school comes dangerously near being an improper consideration to influence his vote in favor of the contract system when it might be more desirable to maintain a home school. A school district should maintain a home school unless it clearly appears that the district is too weak financially and numerically to do so. Even then it should be clearly shown that the educational facilities of the district will be improved by contracting and that it may be done without imposing undue hardships upon the children required to attend school under such contract. Beyond that the intent of the law in providing for transportation was that it should be regular and daily; that individual parents should not derive pecuniary advantage from it; and that nothing should be left to parental convenience or caprice. The general rule should be that one person of proper character, furnishing suitable accommodations, should be regularly employed, and the contract for transportation should be awarded, after opportunity for competition, to the most reliable party who will furnish the best transportation at the lowest cost to the district.

School districts which are unwilling to provide suitable transportation must not operate under the contract system but must maintain a home school. The propriety of requiring a child 7 years of age to travel 9 miles daily to attend school must be seriously questioned. Unless substantial reasons are given for contracting in a district having such cases the wisdom of maintaining a home school is apparent.

The respondent claims that the Nulty boy is only 7 years of age and not under the provisions of the compulsory education law and the district should not, therefore, be required to provide transportation for him. This statement should not be passed unnoticed. The law fixes the school age between 5 and 21 years. All persons between these ages are entitled by law to attend the school in the district in which they reside. When a district contracts for the education of its children it is regarded as maintaining a home school. This boy is therefore entitled to all the privileges in the school of district no. 5, Easton, that he would be entitled to in his home school were one maintained in the district.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That George W. Van Buren, trustee of school district no. 7, Easton, Washington county, shall within five days from the date hereof, issue a call for a special meeting of said district by giving notice thereof as provided in sections 2 and 6, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law for the purpose of authorizing the trustee to provide necessary transportation for the children of said district who are required to attend school in district no. 5, Easton, by virtue of a contract made by said trustee with said district no. 5, Easton, on August 1, 1905, and also to vote the necessary appropriation therefor.

It is also ordered, That if the special meeting of said district no. 7, Easton, Washington county, authorized herein, shall fail or refuse to authorize the trustee to provide such necessary transportation and to make the necessary appropriation therefor, the said Trustee Van Buren shall immediately report the same to me and shall thereupon immediately open a home school in said district no. 7, Easton, as provided by the Consolidated School Law.

5241

In the matter of the appeal of W. F. Dening from the proceedings of school district no. 13, town of Champion, county of Jefferson.

The settled policy in relation to the contract system is that districts which contract must provide proper and suitable transportation for children who live so far from the schoolhouse which they must attend as to be unable to walk to and from school daily.

Decided February 21, 1906

W. B. Van Allen, attorney for appellant

Draper, Commissioner

The annual meeting of this district authorized the adoption of the contract system instead of maintaining a home school. No provision was made for the transportation of pupils. The trustee made a contract with the West Carthage district. The appellant herein lives 2 miles from the schoolhouse of the West Carthage district. He has two daughters, one 14 years of age and the other 12 years of age. These children are delicate and each is afflicted with hernia. The older of these girls has been compelled to wear a truss although she does not at the present time. The younger girl has for some time and does now wear a truss. Because of their delicate constitutions and of their affliction they are physically unable to walk from their home to the West Carthage schoolhouse each morning and return at night. This would necessitate their traveling 4 miles each day in order to attend school. There is no dispute in this appeal as to these facts.

The contention of respondent is that the district has offered to pay appellant a reasonable sum for conveying his children, but has not been able to agree with appellant on the amount which should be paid. Respondent further contends that appellant should convey his children to school himself if they are unable to walk. In each of these contentions respondent is wrong. In appeal no. 5219, decided by me October 31, 1905, I held as follows:

To vote compensation to a parent from the public funds for taking his child to and from school was not intended under the contract law.

Payment to a parent for conveying his children to school comes dangerously near being an improper consideration to influence his vote in favor of the contract system when it might be more desirable to maintain a home school.

The intent of the law in providing transportation is that it should be regular and daily; that individual parents should not derive pecuniary advantage from it; and that nothing should be left to parental convenience or caprice.

The general rule should be that one person of proper character, furnishing suitable accommodations, should be regularly employed and the contract for transportation should be awarded, after opportunity for competition, to the most reliable party who will furnish the best transportation at the lowest cost to the district.

The settled policy in relation to the contract system is that districts which contract must provide proper and suitable transportation for children who live so far from the schoolhouse which they must attend as to be unable to walk to and from school daily. In this case I must hold that transportation is necessary and that the trustee should provide it for the remainder of the current school year.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That Orrin Phillips, trustee of said school district no. 13, town of Champion, Jefferson county, be, and he hereby is, ordered to provide proper and suitable transportation for the two children of W. F. Dening from their home to and from the West Carthage schoolhouse, for the remainder of the current school year.

5427

In the matter of the appeal of D. B. Abrams et al. from the action of special meeting of school district no. 14, Johnstown, Fulton county, in refusing to make a contract with the board of education of Gloversville.

Action of district meeting in refusing to contract will not be disturbed. (Education Law, 1909, § 600) The statute (Education Law, 1909, § 600) clearly intends that the voters of a district shall determine whether contracts shall be made with other districts for the instruction of pupils, or such pupils be instructed in the home school. If the voters have had a fair opportunity to express their views as to this question the Commissioner of education will not intervene on an appeal to overthrow the will of a majority.

Policy of Department in favor of maintenance of home school. It has been the policy of the Department to encourage the maintenance of home schools; the Commissioner of Education has refused to approve contracts for the instruction of pupils out of the district where it is apparent that the best educational interests of the district would not be thereby promoted. It would not accord with this policy to compel a district to contract for the instruction of all or part of its pupils against the will of a majority of the legal voters of the district, fairly expressed at a legal meeting.

Decided December 16, 1909

William A. Macdonald, attorney for appellants

Wood & Mader, attorneys for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

This appeal is brought by D. B. Abrams and others from the action of a special meeting held in district no. 14 of the town of Johnstown, county of Fulton, on the 24th day of August 1909, in refusing to make a contract with the board of education of the city of Gloversville for the instruction of a portion of the pupils residing in said district no. 14. The appellants and respondents appeared by counsel and made oral arguments in support of their contentions. It appears that the appellants reside in that portion of district no. 14 lying near the boundary line of the city of Gloversville, and it is probably true that their children may attend the schools in that city with less inconvenience than the school in their own district. Contracts were made by such district with the city during the years 1906, 1907 and 1908. A resolution to continue this arrangement was submitted at the annual meeting and voted down. The trustee called a special meeting for the purpose of reconsidering the question, and it was again voted not to contract. It is thus apparent that a fair chance was given to all the qualified voters of the district to vote upon the question. No claim of unfairness in the vote is made by the appellants. They base their prayer for relief upon the hardships imposed upon their children by compelling them to attend the district school which is located from a mile and a half to two miles from where they live, and to reach which they are required to travel over a road which is exceedingly difficult during the winter months. There is not much question as to these facts. They are entitled to careful consideration on this appeal. But there is a question of law and policy involved which impedes the granting of the desired relief.

Section 600 of the Education Law provides for the instruction of all or a part of the pupils of a district under a contract with another district, or a city, when such district shall empower the trustee or board of education to make such contract "by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters present and voting thereon." Unless such contract is authorized the district must provide for all its pupils in its own school. The statute clearly intends that the voters of the district shall determine whether contracts shall be made with other districts or the pupils be instructed in the home school. When opportunity has been afforded such voters to fairly express their views as to this question, and it is decided that the pupils should be instructed in the home school, the Commissioner of Education should not intervene on an appeal to overthrow the will of the majority. It has been the policy of the Department to encourage the maintenance of home schools, and in the exercise of his power under the statute, the Commissioner of Education has refused to approve contracts for the instruction of pupils out of the district, where it was apparent that the best educational interests of the district would not be thereby promoted. It would not accord with this policy to compel a district to contract for the instruction of all or part of its pupils against the will of a majority of the legal voters of the district, fairly expressed at two meetings when the question was submitted. The appeal must therefore be dismissed.

The peculiar circumstances of this case seem to demand that some relief be afforded the appellants. Their children ought not to be required to walk from their homes to the school and back each day during the winter months. Although the appellants have not asked for such relief, it seems proper to suggest that the trustee make provision for conveying the pupils residing in the part of district no. 14, in which the appellants reside, and that such pupils be required to meet the conveyance furnished by the trustee at some conveniently accessible point. This conveyance should be provided during the winter months and until May 1, 1910.

It is also suggested that the school commissioner of the district be asked to consider the advisability of adjusting the boundaries of this and neighboring districts with a view of establishing a single district along the boundary line of the city of Gloversville, the residents of which district would be best served by a contract made with the city for the instruction of its pupils. It would seem that a new district might be thus established without material injury to the districts from which its territory is taken. If such a district is formed the appellants should be placed in the new district, and they would therefore probably receive the privilege of attendance in the city schools.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4499

In the matter of the appeal of R. H. Palmer and others v. Oscar H. Farrington and James S. Sloan, trustees, school district no. 9, town of Montgomery, Orange county.

Where at a school district meeting the vote upon a motion or resolution, empowering the trustee of the district to enter into a written contract with the board of education of an adjoining union free school district whereby all the children of the district may be entitled to be taught in the public schools of such adjoining union free school district, is not taken by ballot nor by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters present and voting, such motion or resolution was not legally adopted, and the trustee or trustees of the district were not duly and legally empowered to make such contract.

Decided October 26, 1896

E. B. Walker, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellants in the above-entitled matter appeal from the refusal of the respondents herein, as trustees of school district no. 9, town of Montgomery, Orange county, to contract with the Walden High School, whereby all the children of said school district may be entitled to be taught in said Walden High School for a period of not less than 160 days in the school year of 1896-97, pursuant to a resolution empowering said trustees to make such contract for a sum of money not exceeding $275, adopted at the annual school meeting held in said district on August 4, 1896, as alleged by the appellants herein in said appeal.

The respondents herein have answered the appeal, and ask that the appeal be dismissed upon various grounds alleged therein, and deny each and every allegation contained in the appeal. The respondents allege that the vote on the motion or resolution set forth in said appeal was not by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters attending and voting at such district meeting; nor did such motion or resolution receive the vote of a majority of the qualified voters of said district; that at said meeting a vote as required by law was demanded but such demand was refused and ignored.

The records of the proceedings of the school meeting as recorded by the clerk of the district, relative to said motion or resolution, are as follows: "Resolution offered and seconded, that the trustees of school district no. 9 be required to enter into a contract with the board of education of Walden High School to teach the children of this district for ensuing year at a cost not to exceed $275. Carried."

That there is nothing in said records to show how the vote upon said resolution was ascertained, or the manner of voting thereon.

The appellants in their reply to the answer herein, concede that the vote upon said resolution was not by ballot nor by taking and recording the ayes and noes.

In section 14, article 4, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, as amended by section 18, chapter 264 of the Laws of 1896, it is enacted that "whenever any school district adjoining a city or village, or adjoining any union free school district by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters of such district, shall empower the trustees thereof, the said trustees shall enter into a written contract with the board of education of such city, village or union free school district, whereby all the children of such district may be entitled to be taught in the public schools of such city, village or union free school district for a period of not less than one hundred and sixty days in any school year, upon filing a copy of such contract, duly certified by the trustees of such school district, and by the secretary of the board of education of such city, village or union free school district in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction."

Subdivision 18 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, enacts that "in all propositions arising at said district meetings, involving the expenditure of money, or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, the vote thereon shall be by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such district meetings."

The respondents herein, as trustees of school district no. 9, were not required to enter into a contract under the provisions of section 14, article 4, title 15, above quoted, unless said school district by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters of said district should empower them to do so. The motion or resolution empowering or requiring said trustees to enter into said contract, being a proposition arising at said school meeting involving the expenditure of money, the vote thereon should have been taken by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such meeting.

I decide that said resolution requiring said trustees to enter into a contract with the board of education of Walden High School to teach the children of said district for the ensuing school year at a cost not to exceed $275, was not legally adopted, and that said trustees of said district have not, by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters of such district, been empowered to make said contract.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

In the matter of the appeal of Cornelius Tellier and others from the action of the annual meeting and the trustee of school district no. 8, towns of Palmyra and Marion, Wayne county.

The law authorizing a trustee to contract for the education of the children of a district requires a majority vote of those present and voting and not a majority of all the voters of the district.

Money raised by tax authorized at an annual meeting "for school expenses for the coming year" may legally be used to meet any expenses incurred by the district when such district has adopted the contract system.

Decided October 31, 1905

Charles McLouth, attorney for appellants

Joseph Gilbert, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

Notice was given as required by law of the annual meeting for school district no. 8, towns of Palmyra and Marion, Wayne county, to be held August 1, 1905. The meeting was regularly held but was attended by only eight voters residing in the district. The meeting adopted a motion empowering the trustee to contract for the education of its children with the Marion union free school district. Under such instructions the trustee entered into a contract with the board of education of the Marion district and forwarded such contract to this Department September 1, 1905, for approval. The contract was in proper form but did not show what provision had been made for the conveyance of pupils or whether it was necessary to make such provision. The trustee was requested to supply information to this Department on that point. On September 7, 1905, he gave full information on that point showing that provision had been made for proper transportation. He was promptly advised on receipt of such information that the contract would be approved. Appellant and nine other legal voters and taxpayers of the district appeal from the action of the annual meeting in authorizing such contract and from the action of the trustee in making the contract. Attorney for appellant claims that under the law creating the contract system a district meeting can not authorize a trustee to make such contract except by a majority vote of all the legal voters of the district. The law does not contain such provision. Section 14, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law, as amended by the Laws of 1904, chapter 322, specifically provides that a "majority of the qualified voters present and voting thereon" may empower a trustee to make such contract. The vote authorizing the trustee to make the contract in question was a majority of those present and voting.

The second contention of the attorney for appellant is that the vote was not taken by ballot or by taking and recording the ayes and noes. He claims that a vote empowering the trustee to make a contract for this purpose involves an expenditure of district funds which necessitates the levying of a tax and that the vote must be taken by one of the two methods above stated. Under the Consolidated School Law, on a proposition involving an expenditure of money or authorizing the levying of a tax, the vote must be by one of these methods. The official record of the proceedings of this meeting shows that an appropriation of $170 "for school expenses for the coming year" was made. The vote on this proposition was had by ballot as the law directs. The law also provides that a district which contracts for the education of its children shall be regarded as maintaining a home school. Public money is apportioned such district upon this basis. Any expense, therefore, incurred in providing for the education of children under the contract system must be regarded as the equivalent of an expense to maintain a home school. The $170 voted at the annual meeting "for school expenses for the coming year" is therefore available to meet any expenses incurred under the contract system. The law specifically provides that funds apportioned to a district operating under the contract system may be used to pay the tuition under such contract and also the transportation of pupils. As the funds needed to meet the expense of this contract have been provided as the law directs it is not necessary that the vote authorizing the trustee to contract shall be taken in the manner by which a vote to appropriate funds shall be taken.

It appears clear that the annual meeting was regularly and legally held and that such meeting regularly and legally empowered the trustee to contract with the Marion union school district. Under such instruction the trustee has made a contract for the education of the children of district no. 8 in the Marion union school district and he has also made a contract for the transportation of the children. The contract with the Marion union school district has been filed at this office, has met the requirements for such contracts and has been approved. The trustee appears to have acted in a candid open manner in the whole proceeding. He has acted clearly within his legal rights and duties. His action in making the two contracts in question has undoubtedly created a district liability which must not be overlooked in a determination of this appeal.

Appellants raise one point which demands careful consideration. They show that only eight of the legal voters were present at the annual meeting. It appears that the district has never before contracted but has always maintained a home school. It does not appear that it was generally known that the question of contracting would come up at the annual meeting. If the pleadings showed that any unusual hardship would result from the contract system, I should feel inclined to order a special meeting of the district and submit the question of contracting to that meeting for consideration.

It appears, however, that the Marion school is a large graded school in the village of Marion and maintains school for 40 weeks during the year. The school facilities are greatly superior to those of district no. 8. It also appears that district no. 8 extends into the village of Marion and to within one-quarter of a mile of its schoolhouse. Many of the children in district no. 8 live nearer to the schoolhouse in the village of Marion than to the schoolhouse in their own district. Several of the children residing in district no. 8 always attend school in the Marion district and many would do so this year even if the contract in question had not been made. None of the children residing in district no. 8 will be required to travel an unreasonable distance with suitable conveyance provided. It does not appear that the children of district no. 8 will be subjected to any greater exposure or hardship in attending school in the village of Marion with transportation provided than they will be to attend school in their own district without transportation. In view of these reasons and the district liability existing under the contracts made by Trustee Smith, I think it is for the best interests of all concerned to refuse to interfere with the action regularly taken by the annual meeting.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4926

In the matter of the appeal of Abram C. Howland and Herbert Oles v. Clark J. Beers, as trustee of school district no. 17, Walton, Delaware county.

Under section 14 of article 4, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, as amended by said section 1, chapter 294, Laws of 1897, it is enacted that whenever any school district, by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters present and voting thereon, shall empower the trustees thereof, such trustees shall enter into a written contract with the trustees or board of education consenting thereto of any other district, village or city, whereby all the children of school age of such school district may be entitled to be taught in the public schools of such city, village or school district for a period of not less than 160 days in any school year. This Department rules that when such contract shall be executed, and the price fixed in the contract for tuition is less than the $100 district quota which the district will receive from the State, that the trustee may use the excess for the purpose of conveying such children to and from the school where they are taught, under such regulations as he may establish.

Decided January 31, 1901

Marvin & Hanford, attorneys for appellants

Neish & More, attorneys for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings taken at a special meeting held September 6, 1900, in school district 17, Walton, Delaware county, empowering the trustee of the district to enter into a written contract with the trustees of school district 6, town and county aforesaid, whereby all the children of such district 17 may be entitled to be taught in the public school of such district 6 for not less than 160 days during the school year of 1900-1; and from the refusal of the trustee of school district 17 to furnish a conveyance for the children of the appellants respectively to and from their homes to the school in district 6.

Trustee Beers of district 17 has answered the appeal, and to such answer the appellants have made reply.

In section 14 of article 4, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, as said section was amended by section 1 of chapter 294, Laws of 1897, it is enacted that whenever any school district, by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters present and voting thereon shall empower the trustees thereof, the said trustees shall enter into a written contract with the trustees or board of education consenting thereto, of any other district, village or city, whereby all the children of such district may be entitled to be taught in the public schools of such city, village or school district for a period of not less than 160 days in the school year; that upon the filing of a copy of such contract, duly certified by the trustees of such school districts, in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, such district shall be deemed to have employed a competent teacher for such period, and shall be entitled to receive one distributive district quota for the school year.

The object of said section 14 and the amendments thereof, is to permit school districts, weak financially or in total resident school population or both, to maintain their district organizations without maintaining a school therein, and to have all the children of school age taught in the school of an adjoining district or districts for at least 160 days in the school year, and thereby, to receive from the State a district quota of $100.

This Department has held that where a contract is made whereby all the children of school age residing in the district may be taught for at least 160 days in the school year in the school of some other district, the trustee has the legal authority to use the excess of the $100 quota, after paying for the tuition of such children, under the contract, for the purpose of conveying such children to and from the school where they are taught, under such regulations as he may establish.

It is established by the pleadings herein that a special meeting was duly held on or about September 5, 1900, in school district 17, Walton, Delaware county, for the purpose of deciding whether the children in such district should be taught in an adjoining district for the present school year; that the appellants herein were duly notified of such special meeting, but neither of them attended such meeting; that a motion was made at such meeting as follows: "Shall the children of school district 17, Walton, be taught in adjoining district?" and was voted on by ballot and adopted unanimously; that a motion was then made. "Shall the trustee of district 17 be authorized to contract with other districts for teaching the children of district 17?" and was voted on by ballot and unanimously adopted; that September 13, 1900, Trustee Beers entered into a contract with Trustee Halbert of school district 6, Walton, whereby all the children of school age residing in school district 17, Walton, may be entitled to be taught in the school of said district 6 for a period of not less than 160 days in the school year commencing August 1, 1900, at and for the sum of $2.50 for each child; that such contract was made in duplicate and one part thereof, as appears from the records of this Department, has been filed therein and duly approved.

It further appears that Trustee Beers, after consulting with the residents of district 17, having children of school age, as to the conveyance of such children to the school in district 6, September 15, 1900, entered into a written contract with one Samuel L. Halbert, a resident of district 6, whereby said Halbert agreed to convey all the children of school age, residing in said district 17, from the schoolhouse therein, to and from the schoolhouse in district 6, for and during each school day for the present school year for the sum of \$125; that said Halbert commenced conveying such children under such contract on or about October 1, 1900, and has so conveyed them each school day since that date; that the distance between the schoolhouse in said district 17 and 6 is about $3\frac{1}{4}$ miles; that the time occupied in making the trip in the morning from the schoolhouse in district 17 to the schoolhouse in district 6 is from 30 to 45 minutes, and in returning in the afternoon from 40 to 60 minutes, according to the condition of the roads; that said Halbert uses a light spring wagon in pleasant weather, and a covered conveyance in stormy weather and such conveyances upon all trips are amply provided with robes and blankets.

It appears that the appellants are the only residents of district 17 who object to the conveyance of the children therein from the schoolhouse in the district, such appellants contending that such children should be conveyed from their homes to and from the school in district 6; that the appellant, Oles, resides about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the schoolhouse in district 17, and the appellant Howland resides about 100 rods nearer the said schoolhouse than the appellant Oles; that the children of the appellants are not required to walk a greater distance to attend the school in district 6 than they would if a school was maintained in the schoolhouse in district 17; that at the time of the special meeting in September in district 17 there were 13 children of school age residing therein, 3 of whom were then, and still are, attending the school in district 15; that since said special meeting 4 children have been added to district 17, but their parents are claimed to be transient residents; that not more than 12 children from district 17 will attend the school in district 6 at an aggregate cost to the district 17, for tuition for the present school year, of \$30.

The records of this Department show that the average attendance of pupils at the school in district 17 for the school year of 1899-1900 was but 5; that the assessed valuation of property subject to taxation therein was $8075, and the amount raised by taxation to support the school was $102.88; that the school in district 6 had an average attendance of 46 pupils, with two teachers, and an assessed valuation of $112,148; that said district possesses a new and commodious schoolhouse, with a better school than that heretofore maintained in district 17.

From the facts established herein it is clear that the children residing in school district 17 are now provided with better school facilities at a much less expense than if a school had been maintained in such district, and can attend the school in district 6 without being required to walk any greater distance than they would be required if a school was maintained in the schoolhouse in district 17.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4505

In the matter of the petition of Manly S. Dodge, for the removal from office of Jerome L. Westbrook, as trustee of school district no. 8, town of Van Etten, Chemung county.

Where at a school meeting a trustee of a school district is empowered to contract with the board of education of an adjoining free school district, for the education of the children of school age of the district, by a motion or resolution duly and legally adopted, and such trustee refuses or neglects to make a contract, he is guilty of a wilful violation or neglect of duty as such trustee, and is removed from office.

Decided October 31, 1896

Skinner, Superintendent

The petitioner in the above-entitled matter asks for the removal of Jerome L. Westbrook as trustee of school district no. 8, town of Van Etten, Chemung county, alleging that said Westbrook has been guilty of a wilful violation and neglect of duty as such trustee. An answer to said petition has been made by said Westbrook.

The following facts are established:

That the petitioner herein is, and has been since August 4, 1896, a qualified voter in said school district, and that said Westbrook is the trustee of said school district and has been such trustee since August 4, 1896; that on August 18, 1896, the petitioner herein delivered to and left with the said Westbrook as such trustee a petition signed by a majority of the taxable inhabitants and voters of said district, requesting said trustee to call a special meeting of said district for the purpose of considering the advisability of said district contracting with the adjoining union free school district no. 1, of the towns of Van Etten and Spencer, for the education therein during the present school year of the children of school age in said district no. 8, under the provisions of the school law; that on August 27, 1896, said Westbrook, as said trustee, called a special meeting of said district to be held on September 3, 1896, at 7.30 p. m., for the purpose of considering the advisability of making such contract as aforesaid and to provide means for the transportation of said children to and from said school, if such contract should be deemed advisable; that said special school meeting of said district as called by said Westbrook, was held on September 3, 1896, and a resolution offered for consideration at said meeting by the petitioner herein, that the trustee be directed, instructed and empowered to contract with the proper authorities of the Van Etten union free school district for the education of the children of school age in said district no. 8 during the present school year, and that said trustee be further directed, instructed and empowered to hire or otherwise secure transportation of the children to and from said union free school, and which resolution was put to a vote, which vote was by ballot, and adopted; that the said Trustee Westbrook has not entered into any written contract with the board of education of union free school district no. 1, towns of Van Etten and Spencer, as he was directed and empowered to do by the vote of said special school meeting of said district no. 8, held on September 3, 1896. The respondent herein has failed to give any valid reason for neglecting and refusing to enter into said contract.

It further appears herein that, after said petition requesting him to call a special meeting was presented to said Westbrook, on August 12, 1896, he refused to call said meeting until a letter from this Department was shown to him, in which it was stated that when a respectable number of the voters of a district present a petition to the trustee to call a special meeting of the district for a proper purpose, it is the duty of such trustee to call said meeting. It further appears, as bearing upon the question as to whether said Westbrook was acting in good faith, and to carry out the wishes of the district, that after the petition was presented to him to call said special meeting, and before he called said meeting, he entered into a contract with a Miss Bennett to teach the school in said district for a period of 16 weeks, said school to commence on September 14, 1896.

It also appears that at the time of filing the petition herein, Miss Bennett was teaching the school, and that but one pupil attended. In and by section 14, article 4, title 15, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, as amended by section 18, chapter 264, of the Laws of 1896, it is enacted that "whenever any school district adjoining a city or village, or adjoining any union free school district, by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters of such district, shall empower the trustees thereof, the said trustees shall enter into a written contract with the board of education of such city, village or union free school district, whereby all the children of such district may be entitled to be taught in the public schools of such city, village or union free school district for a period of not less than 160 days in any school year, upon filing a copy of such contract, duly certified by the trustees of such city, village or union free school district in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction."

When any such school district shall, by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters thereof, empower the trustees thereof, it is mandatory upon such trustees to enter into said contract.

I decide that school district no. 8, town of Van Etten, by a vote of a majority of the qualified voters of said district, at the special meeting held therein on September 3, 1896, duly empowered the said Jerome L. Westbrook, trustee of said district, to enter into a written contract with the board of education of union free school district no. 1, towns of Van Etten and Spencer, whereby all the children of such district no. 8 may be entitled to be taught in the public schools of such union free school district no. 1 for a period of not less than 160 days in the school year of 1896-97; that it was mandatory on the part of said Westbrook to enter into said contract; that he has neglected and refused to enter into said contract, and that he, said Westbrook, as said trustee, is guilty of a wilful violation and neglect of duty, under the provisions of the school law. In section 13, of title 1, of the Consolidated School Law, it is enacted that "whenever it shall be proven to the satisfaction of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, that any school officer has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty, the said Superintendent may, by an order under his hand and seal, which shall be recorded in his office, remove such school officer."

The petition herein is sustained.

Whereas, it having been proved to my satisfaction that Jerome L. Westbrook, trustee of school district no. 8, town of Van Etten, Chemung county, has been guilty of wilful violation and neglect of duty as such trustee, under the Consolidated School Law, I do hereby remove said Jerome L. Westbrook from office as trustee of said school district no. 8, town of Van Etten, Chemung county.

5388

In the matter of the appeal of Fred H. Cross and Thomas Seymour from the act or decision of the voters of district no. 6, town of DeKalb, St Lawrence county, N. Y., at a special meeting held on Tuesday afternoon, February 18, 1908, at three o'clock and from each and every part thereof and from all acts and proceedings had in pursuance thereto.

In districts operating under the contract system parents must be reasonable in their demands for transportation of their children and must accept service which insures their children safe, comfortable and prompt passage to and from school. While trustees are required to provide suitable transportation for children they are justified in resisting unreasonable demands based upon personal feelings.

Decided May 23, 1908

George A. Adams, attorney for appellants
Abbott & Dolan, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

This proceeding grows out of the action of school district no. 6, town of DeKalb, St Lawrence county, in voting to adopt the contract system instead of maintaining a home school. This is the third proceeding which has been before this Department during the past year as a result of this controversy.

At a special meeting of the district held on the 10th day of September 1907 the district authorized the trustees to contract for the education of its children pursuant to the provisions of article 4, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law. It appears that one of the children residing in district no. 6, DeKalb, could attend school in district no. 4, DeKalb more conveniently than in any other district and that the rest of the children residing in district no. 6 could attend school more conveniently in district no. 17, DeKalb. The trustee therefore contracted with these two districts. No provision was made at this special meeting for the transportation of these children. The child attending in district no. 4 was 9 years of age and had only 1 mile to walk to attend school. It did not appear to be necessary to provide transportation for such child. It appears from the contract filed at this Department that four children were to attend in district no. 17. Three of these were children of appellant Cross and one of appellant Seymour. The ages of the Cross children were 14, 8 and 6 years, and the age of the Seymour child was 7 years. The distance which these children were required to travel was about $1\frac{1}{3}$ miles. Owing to the tender ages of part of these children, the distance they were required to travel and the general condition of the roads, transportation was deemed necessary.

The trustee did contract for such transportation. In a former appeal this Department held that the provisions of such contract were defective and too indefinite. In deciding such appeal I directed the trustee to call a special meeting to consider the question of transportation and also directed that the district should provide suitable, daily transportation or open and maintain a home school.

Pursuant to this order a special meeting was held but was not conducted as the law directs. The facts were presented to this Department and under advice from the Chief of the Law Division the trustee called another special meeting for February 18, 1908. It is from the action of such meeting that this proceeding is brought.

Two questions are raised in this appeal:

1 It appears that the vote at the special meeting authorizing the trustee to provide transportation was carried by 13 to 11. It is alleged by appellants that five persons voted in favor of such proposition who were not qualified voters at that district meeting. The burden of proof on this question is upon appellants. They must show affirmatively by a preponderance of evidence that at least two of these persons were not qualified to vote at such meeting and that they voted on the affirmative side of such question. The evidence submitted is insufficient to sustain such proposition. It appears that the district attorney is conducting an investigation of this alleged illegal voting and that the whole question will be presented to the grand jury in June. It would be unwise to delay a determination of this proceeding until the evidence submitted on this question is before the court and available for use in this case. This proceeding should be determined before the close of school in district no. 17.

2 It is claimed that Thomas Golden, the person who contracted to convey the children to and from school is not a suitable person to perform such work and that he did not supply proper conveyances, blankets etc. This is the only question raised which on the record is entitled to serious consideration. It is not claimed that Golden is a man of moral delinquencies. It is not alleged that he is addicted to the use of intoxicating drinks or that his conduct toward any of the pupils was ever improper. It is claimed that on a certain occasion at the home of appellant Cross, Golden lifted the young son of appellant by the ears and that the child has been afraid of Golden since then. It is also claimed that on one occasion when Golden was not conveying the children to school under contract he overtook the children on their way to school and asked them to ride. After the children were in his conveyance it is claimed he ran his horses and frightened the children. It is shown, however, that since these occurrences appellant Cross has sent his children to the home of Golden and allowed them to remain there over night to enable said appellant and his wife to spend their evening away from home or at places of entertainment. Evidence is introduced to the effect that he drove a spirited team of young horses and that he often drove his horses on a fast trot and sometimes one horse on a gallop. The evidence upon this point seems to be exaggerated but even at that it is unimportant. It does not establish that Golden is a bad man or a man who should not be trusted with such care of children as is required of a person who conveys them to and from school. It does not establish that he is an incompetent driver or unable to properly manage a team of horses. It is not shown that this team ever became unmanageable or that Golden was ever unable to manage any horse or team which he was driving. It must therefore be held that it is not established that Golden is an unfit person to convey children to and from school.

But one question therefore remains to be determined and that is, did Golden supply a suitable conveyance, properly equipped to convey these children to and from school? The horses, wagon, sleigh, blankets — the whole outfit — should have been such as to provide a safe and reasonably comfortable passage for the children and to protect them from undue exposure during cold and stormy weather. If he did not supply such equipment or if appellants were dissatisfied with the services rendered by the contractor, the facts should have been reported to the trustee and it then became the duty of that officer to require the contractor to provide suitable conveyance and render proper service. Appellants were required to be reasonable in their demands and to accept service which insured their children safe, comfortable and prompt passage in going the $1\frac{1}{3}$ miles which they were required to travel to attend school. While the trustee was required to provide suitable transportation for these children he was justified in resisting unreasonable demands based upon personal feelings. When a majority of the voters of a district have adopted the contract system it is the duty of parents having children to send to school to cordially cooperate with the trustee and the party providing transportation in every reasonable effort to afford the children safe and comfortable conveyance.

In this case appellants were not willing to cooperate with the trustee or contractor Golden. Appellants were opposed to the district contracting for the education of their children. They desired a home school maintained. They had determined not to accept the service provided by the trustee. Their principal effort has been directed toward vacating the action of the district meeting in authorizing the contract system, upon technical grounds.

After the contract with Golden was authorized at the February meeting Golden drove to the home of Cross to take the children to school. Cross refused to let the children go. Cross claims that the sleigh provided by Golden was not a suitable one. The evidence is to the effect that the sleigh was a light pair of bobs and one mechanic swears that there is no better pair of sleighs in the town. The principal objection raised by Cross to the sleigh is that the seats did not contain "lazy-backs." I think the evidence establishes that the conveyance provided by Golden was a proper one and should have been acceptable to appellants. It may also be said that the action of this Department in directing the district to provide transportation was extremely liberal. The distance which the children were required to travel to reach the schoolhouse in no. 17 was only $1\frac{1}{3}$ miles. There are thousands of children throughout the rural districts who are required to walk much longer distances to attend school.

This appeal must therefore be dismissed.

5368

In the matter of the appeal of Fred H. Cross and Thomas Seymour from the act or decision of the voters of school district no. 6, De Kalb, at a special meeting held September 10, 1907.

Trustees are not required to contract for 160 days. Contracts may be made for a shorter period of time and school may be maintained in the district for a portion of the year. If the period of time covered by the contract combined with the period of time the home school is maintained equals 160 days the requirements of the law are satisfied.

If a district desires to operate under the contract system instead of maintaining a home school it must provide suitable transportation for children of tender years who are required to travel long distances to attend school.

Decided December 23, 1907

Hale & Adams, attorneys for appellants

Abbott & Dolan, attorneys for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

School district no. 6, De Kalb, at a special meeting held on the 10th day of September 1907, authorized its trustee to contract for the education of the children in the district instead of maintaining a home school. The trustee thereafter entered into contracts by which part of the children of such district were to receive instruction in no. 17, De Kalb, and part in no. 4, De Kalb. Copies of these contracts were duly filed in this Department.

Appellants were opposed to the contract system and desired to maintain a home school. They bring this proceeding to vacate the action of such special meeting in authorizing the trustee to contract with other districts. The grounds in substance upon which the proceeding is based are:

- 1 That two persons voting at such special meeting were not legal voters and that the proposition to contract was carried by a majority of one vote only.

- 2 That the term of school provided in school district no. 17, and after the date on which the contract was executed does not cover 160 days and the trustee of no. 6 could not contract for a less period of time than 160 days.

- 3 That the transportation of pupils provided by the trustee is insufficient and unauthorized.

Sufficient proof is not found upon the record to sustain the first contention. To vacate the action of the meeting upon the ground that the proposition was carried by illegal votes it must affirmatively be shown that sufficient illegal votes were cast in favor of the proposition to have carried such proposition. If the evidence submitted should be regarded sufficient to hold that the two voters in question were not legally qualified to vote at such meeting it would also be necessary to show affirmatively that such persons voted in favor of the proposition to contract. Such fact is not established by the record.

The trustee is not required under the law to contract for 160 days. He might contract for a shorter period of time and maintain school for a portion of time in the district. If the period of time covered by the contract combined with the period of time a home school is maintained should equal 160 days the requirements of the law would be satisfied. The fact is however that the contract provides that the children of school district no. 6 shall receive instruction in district no. 17 for 160 days. District no. 17 is therefore obligated to maintain school for the children of no. 6 for the full period of 160 days.

It must therefore be held that the contracts in question were duly authorized and that they have been legally and properly executed.

There is however one question presented by appellants which should receive careful consideration. The appellants are within their legal rights in insisting that suitable transportation shall be provided their children. The distance from the homes of appellants to the schoolhouse in no. 17 is about $1\frac{1}{3}$ miles and much greater than the distance from their homes to the schoolhouse in their home district. One of the appellant's children is only 6 years of age.

The State will pay a contracting district a sum equal to the amount paid for tuition and transportation of pupils, but not to exceed the amount of the district quota to which such district would be entitled provided it maintained a home school. This district has an assessed valuation of $23,231 and might therefore receive a district quota of $175. The contracts filed show that respondent has agreed to pay $32 for the instruction of the children of the district. It also appears that the trustee has contracted to pay $135 for the partial transportation which has been provided. The entire cost of the transportation and tuition is therefore paid by the State and the expense of operating the school in this district under the contract system is no cost to the taxpayers of the district.

It will not therefore operate as an injustice or hardship upon this district if the district is required to levy a tax in order to raise funds to provide proper transportation for its children. If a district desires to operate under the contract system instead of maintaining a home school it must provide suitable transportation for children of tender years who are required to travel long distances to attend school. I held in decision no. 5219 that such transportation should be regular and daily and that as a general rule one person of proper character, furnishing suitable accommodations, should be regularly employed and the contract should be awarded, after opportunity for competition, to the most reliable party who will furnish the best transportation at the lowest cost to the district.

It appears from the pleadings in this case that the party to whom the contract was awarded to convey these children to and from school is a proper person to perform such work and that he has suitable accommodations therefor. It does appear however that the contract does not require daily conveyance of children.

The children are to be conveyed "on such days as the weather is extremely cold and the roads are impassable by reason of the elements or at any time that any reasonable person might say it was unreasonable that children of tender age should walk."

This provision of such contract is defective. It is too indefinite and leaves the question of the necessity of transportation open to disagreement. A contract in such form is likely to breed dissatisfaction and contention. A parent might deem transportation necessary on a certain morning and request his children to wait for the conveyance. The party to convey the children might deem transportation unnecessary on that morning. Under such conditions children would be likely to get to school late and might not get to school at all. Contracts containing such conditions can not therefore be approved.

The trustee of district no. 6 De Kalb, must therefore provide transportation daily for these children or must open and maintain a school in such district. If the trustee had not been authorized to provide transportation he should call a special meeting of the district at once for the purpose of obtaining such authorization. Should the district fail to authorize such transportation it is the clear duty of the trustee under the consolidated school law to open the school in the district as soon as he is able to make suitable arrangements therefor.

So much of the appeal herein as relates to the insufficiency of the transportation furnished by the trustee is sustained.

It is ordered, That Melvin A. Fletcher, trustee of school district no. 6, town of De Kalb, shall immediately take such action as may be necessary to provide suitable transportation on each school day that school is in session in school district no. 17, De Kalb, for the children of district no. 6, De Kalb, who are required to attend school in said district no. 17, De Kalb, and that if such transportation is not provided on or before January 10, 1908, the said Melvin A. Fletcher shall open and maintain a school in district no. 6, De Kalb.

5375

In the matter of the appeal of Jacob B. Hildreth v. Daniel Ryant, sole trustee of school district no. 11, towns of Van Etten and Spencer.

When better facilities can be afforded by contracting with two or more districts instead of contracting with one district such policy should be pursued. The law encourages such policy by specifically authorizing it.

Decided January 27, 1908

Moreland & Thurston, attorneys for appellant

Cornelius O. Scabring, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The annual meeting of school district no. 11, towns of Van Etten and Spencer, authorized its trustee to contract for the education of its children instead of maintaining a home school. Pursuant to such authorization respondent Ryant contracted with school district no. 1, Van Etten. Appellant is a resident and taxpayer in school district no. 11. He has children of school age attending school. He resides $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the schoolhouse of district no. 1. His children are therefore required to travel 7 miles daily in order to attend school. His children are within the compulsory school ages and must attend school. The distance from appellant's residence to the schoolhouse in district no. 16, Van Etten is only $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles. If appellant's children could attend school in district no. 16 they would be required to travel only 3 miles each day to attend school, instead of 7 miles. Appellant has been desirous of having a contract made with district no. 16 so that his children could attend the school in that district. The trustee refused to make such contract on the ground that the annual meeting instructed him to contract with no. 1. The question received much attention through correspondence with the Law Division of this Department and also from the school commissioner of Chemung county. A special meeting of the district was held about November 19, 1907 to vote upon authorizing a contract with no. 16 and such proposition was defeated. It is claimed by respondent that district no. 1 is a graded school and affords better school facilities than district no. 16, but this is not sufficient ground under all the circumstances to justify the majority of the voters of the district, no. 11, to refuse to authorize a contract for appellant's children and other children residing near appellant with district no. 16. If a district does not desire to maintain a home school but in lieu thereof wishes to operate under the contract system, it is incumbent upon such district to provide the best school facilities possible for all the children of the district. If better facilities could be afforded by contracting with two or more districts instead of contracting with one district such policy should be pursued. The law encourages such policy by specifically authorizing it. If appellant and the other parents residing in his section of the district preferred to send their children to no. 16 and were willing to accept the school facilities afforded by such district, instead of sending them to the village school in no. 1, because it would relieve their children from traveling 4 additional miles each day in order to attend school, it was the duty of district no. 11 to authorize the trustee to contract with district no. 16.

I shall not vacate the action authorizing a contract with no. 1 nor shall I set aside such contract. A portion of the children residing in no. 11 can attend the school in no. 1 more conveniently than in any other district. It also appears to be the desire of their parents that they shall attend such school. It is unnecessary therefore to disturb such contract. The only action necessary in this proceeding is such as will give the children residing in the section of district no. 11 in which appellant resides school privileges which are reasonably accessible and satisfactory to their parents. This can be done by the district authorizing respondent Ryant to contract for the education of such children in district no. 16. If the district refuses to authorize such contract the trustee of district no. 11 must open a home school in such district.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the trustee of district no. 11, towns of Van Etten and Spencer, Chemung county, call a special meeting of the legal voters of the district to authorize a contract with school district no. 16, Van Etten, for the education of the children residing in said district no. 11 whose parents desire them to attend school in district no. 16.

It is also ordered, That if such special meeting shall refuse or fail to authorize the trustee of district no. 11, Van Etten and Spencer, to make such contract with district no. 16, Van Etten, the said trustee of district no. 11, Van Etten and Spencer, shall thereupon employ a teacher and open and maintain a school in said district no. 11, Van Etten and Spencer.

ELECTIONS

5218

In the matter of the election of a member of the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of Mohawk, Montgomery county.

The claim of right or title to the office of trustee will not be sustained when the very right itself rests upon either fraud, corruption, negligence, imposition or wrong.

An election resulting from sharp practice and in unfairness and injustice and not reflecting or representing the popular expression of those entitled to be heard, will be set aside and a new election ordered.

The accepted doctrine of popular elections is that the great body of the voters shall have notice in fact of the election. It is not necessary that the formal notice of an election required by the law shall be given or shall be brought to the attention of each voter, but did knowledge of the fact that such election was set to be held at a fixed time become known to the great body of the voters?

The paramount question in a proceeding to determine the title to the office of trustee is, Did the voters generally have an opportunity to legally express their choice for such trustee? The right of any individual to the office of trustee is subordinate to this great right of the legal voters.

Decided October 30, 1905

George M. Albot, attorney for appellant

J. S. Sitterly, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

This is an appeal to determine the right or title to the office of trustee in school district no. 6, town of Mohawk, Montgomery county. This is a union free school district whose boundaries do not coincide with the boundaries of an incorporated village or city. The incorporated village of Fonda is located within the school district. At present less than 300 children of school age reside within the school district. Since 1878 the annual meeting of this district has been held on Tuesday evening as required by law and the election of trustees on the afternoon of the following day. On July 3, 1905, the board of education issued the following notice:

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

The annual school meeting of Fonda high school district no. 6, town of Mohawk, will be held in the school building on Tuesday evening, August 1, 1905, at 7.30 o'clock.

The annual election of one member of the board of education for three years will be held in the high school building on Wednesday, August 2d, from 12 o'clock noon until 4 p. m.

HARRY H. DOCKSTADER

GEORGE L. DAVIS

JOHN E. COOK

Board of Education

Dated, Fonda, July 3, 1905

This notice was published for four consecutive weeks in the Fonda Democrat and posted in several public places within the district. The annual meeting held on the evening of August 1st transacted the usual routine business which generally comes before such meetings, passed a resolution to change the time of election of trustees from the afternoon of the Wednesday following the annual meeting to the time of the annual meeting, and then proceeded to the election of a trustee for the ensuing three years. Several of those present protested against the passage of such resolution and of the election of a trustee at that time, claiming that the election was illegal and that such election should be held on the following afternoon in accordance with the official notice given by the board of education.

The district meeting proceeded, however, to the election of a trustee. It appears that 64 votes were cast of which number Bernard Conlan, appellant herein, received 61 and was thereupon declared elected trustee by the chairman. It also appears that those who protested against the election of a trustee at that meeting refrained from voting.

It has been the custom in this district for many years to hold a caucus immediately after the adjournment of the annual meeting to nominate a candidate for trustee to be voted for on the following afternoon. In accordance with that custom those present at the annual meeting who believed the election should be held on Wednesday and who had refrained from participating in the election of Tuesday evening, held a caucus after the adjournment of the annual meeting and nominated Harry H. Dockstader for trustee. The board of education conducted an election on the following afternoon in accordance with the provisions of section 14, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law. At such election 143 votes were cast, all of which were for the said Harry H. Dockstader and he was thereupon declared elected.

On August 2d the board of education held a meeting and organized by electing the said Harry H. Dockstader the president of said board. This meeting of the board of education was clearly illegal, as section 13, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law provides that the annual meeting of the board of education shall be held on the first Tuesday following the annual meeting. The proper time to hold such meeting was Tuesday, August 8, 1905, and on that date the board of education held its annual meeting and recognized the said Harry H. Dockstader as the regularly elected trustee. The board of education also again elected the said Dockstader as its president. The board of education also refused to recognize the appellant, Conlan, as the legally elected trustee of the district.

The present Consolidated School Law went into effect June 30, 1894. Previous to that date the election of trustees in all school districts having more than 300 children of school age and whose boundaries did not coincide with those of an incorporated village or city was held under the provisions of chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878, except certain districts organized under special acts or especially exempted from the provisions of said chapter 248. That law provided that the election of trustees in districts of this class should be held on the second Wednesday of October between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Subsequently the date of annual meetings in school districts was changed by the Legislature to the last Tuesday in August and later to the first Tuesday in August, and the date of election of trustees in districts of this class was accordingly changed to the Wednesday following the last Tuesday in August and later to the Wednesday following the first Tuesday in August. So it always occurred from 1878 to 1894 that the annual meeting was held on Tuesday evening and the annual election of trustees on the next day or Wednesday. In 1878 the hours of such election were changed so that thereafter the election was held between the hours of 12 m. and 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, the Consolidated School Law, repealed chapter 248, Laws of 1878, and also repealed the chapter fixing the date of annual meetings. Since the enactment of the Consolidated School Law in 1894 it has been necessary for all school districts to hold their annual meetings and to elect their trustees at the time fixed and in accordance with the provisions of said Consolidated School Law. Section 13 of title 8 of that law provides that the annual meeting of all union free school districts whose boundaries do not correspond to those of an incorporated village or city shall be held on the first Tuesday of August. Section 5 of title 8 provides that the election of trustees in union free school districts whose boundaries are not the same as those of an incorporated village or city shall be held at the annual meeting. However, section 14 of title 8 provides that in union free school districts in which the number of children of school age exceeds 300 and whose boundaries are not coincident with those of an incorporated village or city, the election of trustees may be held on the Wednesday next following the date of the annual meeting. This section provides that districts desiring to hold the election of trustees on Wednesday may so determine by a majority vote to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes. This vote may be taken at an annual or a special meeting called for that purpose.

District no. 6, Mohawk, held its election of trustees from 1878 to 1894 on the Wednesday following the date of the annual meeting. The presumption is that during that period of time the number of children of school age residing in the district exceeded 300. This district is also a union free school district whose boundaries do not coincide with those of an incorporated village or city. The pleadings do not show whether at the time of the annual meeting in 1894 the number of children of school age residing in the district exceeded 300. If the number of such children did exceed 300 this district in common with all other districts of its class possessed the authority to decide to hold the election of trustees on Wednesday afternoon instead of Tuesday evening. But it was necessary for this district in 1894, or any other district of its class, if it desired to continue to hold its election of trustees on the afternoon following the annual meeting, to so decide by a majority vote as above stated at either the annual meeting or at a special meeting.

The records do not show that a vote was ever taken upon such proposition in this district. The board of education gave notice as required by law in 1894 that the annual meeting of the district would be held on Tuesday night and the election on Wednesday afternoon. The annual meeting was held and transacted the business which usually devolves upon such meetings. It then adjourned and immediately thereafter those in attendance upon such meeting held a caucus and nominated a trustee to be voted for on the following day. On that day the election was held. No objection was raised by any resident of the district to this proceeding. Each year from 1894 down to the year 1905 the annual meeting has adjourned, a caucus to nominate a trustee has immediately thereafter been held, and on the following afternoon the election of trustees has taken place. It is contended by the attorney for respondents that the action of the annual meeting in 1894 in adjourning without considering in any way the election of a trustee; the action of those in attendance upon the annual meeting immediately after its adjournment in holding a caucus and nominating a trustee; the action of the legal voters in holding an election on the following day and a repetition of these various steps each year thereafter, was a substantial compliance with the requirements of section 14 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law. Since 1894 it has been necessary for this district, or any other district of its class, to show two essential things in order to legally hold its elections on the Wednesday immediately following the annual meeting, namely, that the district contained more than 300 children of school age and that the district had determined by a majority vote as the law directs to hold the election on Wednesday. It does not appear to my satisfaction that these conditions have been met as the law contemplates they should be.

If the election of Wednesday was irregular or illegal, was the election of Tuesday night regular and legal? The attorney for appellant contends that the pleadings do not raise the question of regularity of the election on Tuesday night. He contends that the only questions before this Department for determination are the regularity of the Wednesday election and the regularity of the action of the board of education in recognizing said Dockstader as the legally elected trustee of the district, and that this Department has not jurisdiction on the pleadings to determine the regularity of the Tuesday election. This contention is unsound. The appellant entitles this proceeding: "In the matter of the election of a member of the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of Mohawk, Montgomery county." He states in his moving papers that he appeals "from all proceedings and determinations of said board at said last named meeting whereby this appellant was denied the right and privilege of sitting as a member and participating in the proceedings of said board as a lawfully elected member thereof." In the concluding paragraph of the moving papers the relief requested by appellant is "that the appellant be adjudged the duly and lawfully elected trustee or member of said board of education for the term of three years commencing August 1, 1905." He also files with his moving papers a copy of the proceedings of the annual meeting held on Tuesday night and makes the same a part of his pleadings. The appellant therefore directly raises the question of the regularity of the Tuesday election. He can not ask this Department to adjudge him the legally elected trustee without squarely submitting for determination the regularity in every particular of his election. He contends that respondents do not question the regularity of the Tuesday election and that in fact they admit it. In this he is wrong. Respondents admit the proceedings taken at each meeting but they specifically deny that appellant was legally elected or that any of his lawful rights were violated. They set up the official notice given by the board of education to the effect that the election of trustee would be held on Wednesday, they show that this had been the custom of the district for twenty-seven consecutive years, and they show that an election was held on Wednesday and contend for the regularity and legality of the same. Thus do they deny and question the regularity of the Tuesday election. But the question as to what either party to this proceeding may specifically raise is not conclusive upon this Department. This Department is a tribunal to which appellant appeals for a judicial determination of his right or title to an office and this Department has not only the jurisdiction but it is its bounden duty to inquire into the regularity of every proceeding pertaining to the election upon which appellant bases his claim to the right for which he contends and to determine whether such right or title has been obtained as the law contemplates it should be.

For seventy years this Department has held that in actions involving the right to an office "it will inquire into the bonae fides thereof. Were the things done as such as it was proper to do at said meeting? Has any one been misled, imposed upon, or wronged? If mistakes and irregularities have occurred will the greater hardship be imposed upon individuals by setting aside or sustaining such acts? (See decisions 3534 and 4327.)

The courts of this State have always sustained this principle. In the case of The People v. Vail, Judge Bronson said: "Such proceeding reaches beyond those evidences of title which are conclusive for any other purpose, and inquires into and ascertains the abstract question of right. In legislative bodies which have the power to judge of their own membership, it is the settled practice, when the right of the sitting member is called in question, to look beyond the certificate of the returning officer; and I think a court and jury with better means of arriving at the truth, may pursue the same course."

In the leading case of The People v. Pease, the Court of Appeals of this State held: "In all cases where the proceeding is by quo warranto, or in an action of that nature, it is held that such proceeding is instituted to try the right to the office directly, and it is competent to go behind the certificate, which would otherwise be conclusive, to ascertain the real facts of the case. It is conceded that this proceeding is to ascertain the very right of the person to the particular office, and that by means of it any negligence, mistake or fraud of the inspectors or canvassers in their proceedings may be corrected. The truth may be inquired into and the right ascertained. As a general rule affirmative facts are not to be presumed, but must be proved by the party asserting them. The disposition of the courts in this State is to look through the formal evidence of the right to the right itself and to set aside the election of officers when necessary to promote the ends of justice." (27 N. Y. 45)

The Court of Appeals of this State in the case of Judson v. Thatcher held: "The defendant must show, before he can have judgment in his favor, that he has a legal title to the office. Possession is not, in such an action, evidence of his right; the burden is upon him of showing that his possession is a legal and rightful one."

Where, however, the action is brought on the relation of one claiming the office, the failure of the defendant to prove his title does not establish that of the relator. Upon that issue the plaintiffs have the affirmative, and the burden is upon them to maintain it.

The certificate of the proper officers is prima facie evidence of election to a public office. But the certificate, and the returns upon which it is based, are open to inquiry, and the returns will be corrected or set aside, so far as they are shown to be erroneous, if necessary to promote the ends of justice.

The inquiry as to errors in the returns is not confined to intentional frauds on the part of the inspectors of election officers. They may be impeached and set aside for error, whether that of the officer or arising from the interference or illegal acts of third persons. (55 N. Y. 525)

The pleadings show that the faction in control of the annual meeting and in favor of the election of Conlan passed the following resolution:

Whereas, It has been the custom for some years past, in school district no. 6 of the town of Mohawk, to hold the election for a member or members of the board of education on the Wednesday following the annual school meeting between the hours of 1 p. m. and 4 p. m.

Whereas, Said custom is unjust inasmuch as it disfranchises the greater number of the qualified electors of said district on account of their being unable to attend during the hours at which it has been held except at great loss and inconvenience to themselves, and,

Whereas, It is also directly contrary to the school election law which specifies that in all union free school districts, with a population of less than 300 children of school age, the election shall be held at the annual school meeting.

Therefore, it is hereby resolved, That at this and all subsequent meetings, until changed by a proper resolution, the election of a member or members of the board of education shall be the first order of business at said annual school meetings after organization and that any and all resolutions heretofore adopted affecting the time and place of the annual school election in this district are hereby rescinded.

Under section 14 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law a district of this class which has been holding its elections under the provisions of such law may, by a majority vote, decide to change the time of such election from Wednesday to the time of the annual meeting. It appears clear that the faction favoring the election of Conlan believed that by passing the above resolutions they could proceed that night to the election of a trustee for three years. It does not appear that the faction favoring the election of Dockstader had any knowledge of the intention of the other faction and they had not attended the annual meeting as the official notice showed that the election would be held on Wednesday. The whole proceeding in voting to change the time of the election of trustee and the election itself may be properly looked upon as a scheme carefully planned to take advantage of those who might rely upon the official notice of the board and remain away from the annual meeting believing as they rightfully should, that the election would be held on Wednesday and in accordance with the custom prevailing in the district for the twenty-seven preceding years. This Department has always held that when an annual meeting decides to change the time of an election under said section 14, title 8, from Wednesday back to the annual meeting, such decision does not become operative until the election of the following year. Due notice having been given that the election would be held on Wednesday the people interested in such election might remain away from the annual meeting expecting to vote on Wednesday and would thus be deprived of the right to express a choice for trustee. To hold otherwise would also open the road to many abuses which would result in great evil to the public school system. This policy is also in harmony with the trend of legislative thought for as recently as 1903 the Legislature amended the Consolidated School Law by providing that the number of trustees in any union free school district should not be increased or diminished unless due notice is given of the intention to present such question to the district for determination. A faction conspiring to control a board of education often accomplished that end by increasing or diminishing the number of members on such board at an annual meeting not largely attended and when it was not known that such action was contemplated. The action of the annual meeting in passing the resolution in question did not confer the lawful right to elect a trustee that night. It was not until after the ruling of this Department on that question was known to appellant's friends that they claimed Tuesday night as the legal time on which to hold the election. The resolution speaks for itself and shows conclusively that the annual meeting did not regard it legal to proceed to an election until after such resolution was adopted.

The board of education gave official notice as before stated that the election of trustee would be on Wednesday. This notice was published in the village paper for four weeks immediately preceding the date set for the election. It was also posted in several public places in the district. It was a matter of common interest and knowledge that the election of the district had occurred on that day for twenty-seven years immediately preceding. Should a faction in the district be permitted in view of these facts to take advantage of a technical provision of law and thus prevent a large number of the electors of this district from exercising the right to express their choice for a trustee? It appears that 143 of such electors desired to vote and at the election of Wednesday did vote while only 64 voted for trustee at the annual meeting.

It is contended by the attorney for the appellant that notice of the annual meeting was unnecessary and that failure to give notice does not invalidate an annual meeting. It is true that the law provides that a district meeting shall not be invalid for want of due notice to all qualified voters unless it shall appear that such omission was fraudulent or wilful. This Department has consistently refused to set aside the action of a meeting on such ground unless it has been shown that the failure to give notice was wilful or fraudulent, or the result of such meeting might have been changed had those who failed to receive notice been present and been permitted to participate in the proceedings of the meeting. When the omission of notice has shown such results this Department has uniformly set aside the proceedings of meetings on that ground. (See decisions of this Department nos. 3587, 3593, 3741, 3809, 3820, 3912, 3921, 3926 and 4000)

In decision 4000 it was held: "Proceedings of an alleged annual meeting will be set aside where a long established custom in the district for calling the people together, had been purposely and intentionally omitted, thus enabling a very small minority of those intending to be present at the meeting to assemble and transact the business of the annual meeting."

The accepted doctrine of popular elections is that the great body of the voters shall have notice in fact of the election. It is not necessary that the formal notice of an election required by law shall be given or shall be brought to the attention of each voter but did knowledge of the fact that such election was set to be held at a fixed time become known to the great body of the voters?

Mechem says, at page 184: "When it is obvious that the great body of the electors were misled for want of the official proclamation, its absence becomes such an irregularity as prevents an actual choice by the electors; prevents an actual election in the primary sense of that word, and renders invalid any semblance of an election which may have been attempted by a few, and which must operate, if it operates at all, as a surprise and fraud upon the rights of many."

He also says in section 224: "It is well settled that where an election has been in fact had, and the great body of the electors have actually participated in it, irregularities not proceeding from a wrongful intent, in the manner of calling, holding or certifying the election, will, where they do not affect the result, be ignored."

McClary on Elections, section 176, says: "It does not follow that formal notice of the time and place of holding an election is always essential to its validity. Whether it is or not depends upon the question whether the want of formal notice has resulted in depriving any portion of the electors of their rights." In section 232 he says: "It is safe to say that a mistake should always be corrected if it can be corrected by the tribunal trying the contest. (See also Loring & Russell's Election Cases, Mass. p. 343 and 344 and cases therein cited.)

The paramount question in this whole proceeding is, Did the voters generally of this district have an opportunity to legally express their choice for a trustee? The right of any individual to the office of trustee is subordinate to this great right of the legal voters.

I know that the Court of Appeals of this State, in the case of The People v. Cowles, 113 N. Y. 350, held where a vacancy occurred in the office of a Supreme Court judge only a few days previous to the election and such vacancy was filled at the election although no official notice of such vacancy and the filling of the same was given, that such election was valid. It must be understood in this case, however, that the voters of the judicial district had in fact notice of such vacancy and of the election. The vacancy was caused by the death of a judge in New York City. His death was immediately announced in all the great journals of that city. The political parties immediately nominated candidates to fill such vacancy. Four nominations were made. These nominations were printed in the daily papers and the relative merits and qualifications of such nominees were also discussed by the papers of that city. Then too the prevailing opinion of the court which was 4 to 3 was based upon a provision of the State Constitution.

The books will be searched in vain for a case wherein a court or an officer possessing judicial powers has sustained the claim of right or title to an office when the very right itself rests upon either fraud, corruption, negligence, imposition or wrong. The Court of Appeals of this State in 1900, matter of Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Albany (164 N. Y. 10) rendered a decision pertinent to the issue involved in this proceeding and shows the views of that tribunal upon an election resulting from sharp practice and in unfairness and injustice and not reflecting or representing the popular expression of those entitled to be heard. In this company there were two classes of voters known as cash policyholders and note policyholders. At the annual election in 1900 an unexpected contest occurred. The inspectors reported 1112 votes cast upon note policies for the Lyon board and 1347 votes upon similar policies for the Rathbone board. The inspectors refused to count 895 votes upon cash policies for the Lyon board. No votes upon cash policies were offered for the Rathbone board although they controlled 720 votes on such policies. The court (51 App. Div. 163) held that the cash policy votes cast for the Lyon board should be counted and also directed that the 720 votes on cash policies controlled by the Rathbone board should be counted although none of such votes were offered at the election. The Court of Appeals modified the order of the Appellate Division by holding that cash policyholders were entitled to vote but directing that a new election should be held.

For the views of courts generally upon similar questions see also 17 Atlantic Reporter 952, 12 Vroom 297, 102 Cal. 184, 10 Iowa 212, 44 Mich. 89.

There is a different relation between the Commissioner of Education and a proceeding before him from that which obtains between a court and a proceeding before it. A court is disinterested in all questions except the facts and the law. The Commissioner of Education is the administrative or supervisory officer of the whole educational system of the State. He is bound to have an interest in the equity, right and justice of all questions having a bearing upon the administration of the educational system. He must determine judicial questions with a view to the general effect upon the school system as well as to the technical requirements of the law. In the settlement of questions relating to the election of school officers it is his duty to see that all parties are accorded a fair opportunity to participate in elections if they will, not only because of the need of extending justice to individuals interested but also because the peace and quiet of the school district can only be maintained by doing so. The will of the majority desiring to express itself and not guilty of any laches must be given its opportunity.

I decide, That neither the election at the annual meeting held on August 1, 1905, nor on the Wednesday next following were regular or legal elections in the sense contemplated by the statutes and that in the interests of justice to all parties concerned and for the best educational interests of this district a new election should be held. It also follows that the action of the board of education in electing Harry H. Dockstader its president was illegal. The election in the future must be held at the annual meeting until the time for such election is changed as provided by law.

So much of this proceeding as relates to the election of Harry H. Dockstader as a trustee and as the president of the board of education in said district no. 6, Mohawk, is sustained, and that relating to all other matters is dismissed.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of Mohawk, county of Montgomery, shall within 10 days from the date hereof, call a special meeting in such district and give notice thereof as provided in section 10 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law, for the purpose of electing a trustee in said district whose term of office shall extend until July 31, 1908.

It is further ordered, That the board of education of said district no. 6, Mohawk, shall, within five days after the said election has been held, hold a meeting thereof for the purpose of electing a president of said board.

5293

In the matter of the appeal of E. H. Farrington and Mary A. Taylor from the proceedings of the annual meeting of union free school district no. 1, town of Franklinville, county of Cattaraugus.

Irregularities in calling or holding an election not proceeding from a wilful or wrongful intent and not affecting the results are not sufficient grounds for setting aside an election.
Decided October 29, 1906

L. Thayer Waring, attorney for appellants

George E. Spring, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

The board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Franklinville, county of Cattaraugus, passed a resolution providing that the election of that district to be held at the annual meeting should open at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and continue until 7 o'clock in the evening and that the election should be held in the town room of Morgan Hall. The resolution also provided that immediately after closing the polls at 7 o'clock the annual meeting would be continued in the opera house room of the same hall for voting appropriations, receiving reports of officers and transacting any other business which might properly come before the meeting. After the adoption of this resolution by the board of education that body gave notice that the annual election of members of the board and the annual meeting would be held on August 7, 1906, at the time and place provided by such resolution. This notice was published in the Franklinville Journal, a paper published within the district, in the issues of July 18th and 25th, and August 1st. The election and annual meeting were held accordingly.

This district is a union free school district whose boundaries do not correspond with the boundaries of an incorporated village. It appears there are more than 300 children of school age in this district but that no action has been taken as provided by section 14, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law to establish the Wednesday following the date fixed by law for holding the annual meetings as the time for holding the annual election of members of the board of education in this district. Such election in this district must therefore be held as provided by section 5 of title 8 at the annual meeting of the district. Section 13 of title 8 provides that the annual meeting of union free school districts whose boundaries are not the same as the boundaries of an incorporated village shall be held on the first Tuesday in August. The hour for opening such meeting and the place for holding it are not fixed by this section. Section 8 of title 7 however provides that the annual meeting of every district in the State shall be held at the schoolhouse and at 7.30 o'clock in the evening unless at a previous meeting some other hour and place shall have been designated. It is not claimed that any meeting of this district has designated some other hour or place for holding the annual meeting. This Department has held that a district in which a union free school has been established is still an ordinary district except so far as the inhabitants and officers thereof are invested with additional powers and privileges. Under section 16 of title 8 all provisions of the Consolidated School Law which relate to common school districts apply to union free school districts except where other or different provisions relating to union free school districts are prescribed by title 8. The statutes do not confer upon a board of education the power to fix an hour or place for an annual meeting. Therefore it must follow that in the absence of a fixed hour and place being prescribed by section 13 of title 8 and no action having been taken at a district meeting in prescribing an hour and place and the statutes not conferring power upon a board to fix such hour and place, the annual meeting of this district should have opened on August 7, 1906, at 7.30 o'clock p. m. in the schoolhouse. The action of the board in passing the resolution in question and in giving notice accordingly was irregular and without authority of law.

Section 13 of title 8 provides that notice of annual meetings shall be given by the board of education in the manner stated in section 10 of that title. Section 10 provides that notice of meetings shall be published once in each week for the four weeks next preceding the date of such meeting in two newspapers published in the district, if there are two, or in one paper if there is but one published in the district. The notice given by the board appears to have been published in three issues of one paper instead of four and in only one issue of the second paper published within the district.

Some time after this notice appeared in the newspapers the right of the board to designate 4 o'clock as the hour for opening such meeting appears to have been questioned. It also appears that there were two factions in the district and each faction nominated a ticket. One ticket known as the "administration ticket" was supported by those who indorsed the board of education and the other ticket known as the "opposition ticket" was supported by those who were opposed to the board of education. A short time previous to the date of the annual meeting, representatives of each faction communicated with this Department to ascertain the right of the board of education to designate 4 o'clock as the hour for opening such meeting. The Chief of the Law Division was on his vacation at the time such communications were received. The situation as presented in such letters appeared to be somewhat complicated and the clerk in charge of the Law Division was not willing to pass upon such questions but forwarded the letters to the chief of the division for his consideration. These letters did not contain all the information necessary to determine when the annual meeting should be held. The law contains separate provisions for districts having 300 children of school age or less and districts having more than 300 children. From the information given, the Chief of the Law Division assumed that the district had less than 300 children of school age and replied to the letters in question on that understanding. As this district had more than 300 children of school age the board of education construed the letter from the Chief of the Law Division as not applying to their district. Another letter was written by the clerk of the district explaining more fully the conditions in this district and asking for a definite reply as to whether or not the meeting might legally be opened at 4 o'clock. This letter was addressed to Mr Finegan where he had been spending his vacation. Before its receipt he had gone to another place and the letter was reforwarded several times, reaching him at this Department on Tuesday morning, August 7th, the date of the annual meeting. He immediately wired a reply to the effect that the meeting should open at 7.30 in the evening and suggested that a member of the board should be at the place designated for holding the meeting at 4 o'clock and give notice to any who might appear that the meeting would not open until 7.30 o'clock.

There was to be a sharp contest on the election of members of the board of education. A thorough canvass had been made by both factions. The hour and place of the meeting had been given the fullest publicity possible and it did not seem practicable to the board of education to defer opening the meeting until 7.30 o'clock. It appears that a conference was held between some of the leaders of the two factions and it was agreed to open the election at 4 o'clock and keep the polls open until all had voted. This course was pursued. The meeting was called to order by a member of the board of education. The Hon. Alfred Spring, a Supreme Court justice and a member of the Appellate Division of the fourth department, was chosen chairman. He stated at the outset the ruling of this Department on the legal right of the board to call the meeting at 4 o'clock. He also stated what had informally been agreed upon and specifically asked if there was any objection to proceeding with the election. No objection was made. Representatives of both factions were present. Appellants appear to have been present, but if they were not they came in later and made no objection to the meeting being continued. Dr Kales, one of the prominent leaders of the opposition party, was present. The evidence shows that he distinctly assented to the meeting being called at 4 o'clock. This he denies. But whether he agreed to it or not, he was present and offered no objection and participated in the proceedings of the meeting. The appellants also participated in the proceedings of the meeting and at no time did they object to the meeting being held open previous to 7.30 o'clock. Had the opposition ticket been successful this appeal would undoubtedly never have been brought. It is claimed by appellants that the board of education refused to be bound by the ruling of this Department in failing to comply with the suggestion contained in the telegram from Mr Finegan. This contention is not sustained. Immediately after the close of the annual meeting the chairman of such meeting advised this Department fully of the action taken and gave the reasons therefor which were satisfactory.

The school law provides that no district meeting shall be invalid for want of due notice to all qualified voters unless it shall appear that such omission was fraudulent or wilful. In fact failure to give any notice of an annual meeting would not invalidate such meeting. The law fixes the date and the hour of annual meetings and the voters of a district may convene at that hour and transact the business of the district even if no notice is given. This annual meeting was in session at the time fixed by law and any legal voter of the district might have appeared at that time and exercised any of the rights or privileges which the law confers upon him. The legal rights of no voter of the district were violated by having the meeting opened at 4 o'clock. The polls were kept open until 8 o'clock and until all who desired had voted. The chairman distinctly asked two or three times if all who desired had voted. No protest was made by appellants, by Dr Kales or by any other person against closing the polls at 8 o'clock. It is not shown in the pleadings of appellant that any one was barred from voting by reason of the polls having been closed at 8 o'clock. The mere allegation of appellants that many were prevented from voting is insufficient. There should be some tangible evidence in support of such charge if it is to be given any weight. The same is true in relation to the charge that many illegal votes were cast. General charges of this character are not entitled to consideration unless there is evidence of some character to support them. Appellants do not give in their pleadings the name of one person who voted illegally or who was barred from voting by reason of the hours during which the polls were open.

The pleadings show that more than 400 votes were cast and that the meeting was unusually orderly. It appears that but one vote was challenged. The chairman questioned the challenged party and advised her not to vote. The advice was accepted. It appears that the building designated was one better adapted for holding the annual meeting than the schoolhouse. It was centrally located and accessible. No wrongful intention or motive is shown on the part of the board. The only object which the board seemed to have in mind was to afford all voters of the district an opportunity to vote for their choice of candidates in an orderly manner and with ease and comfort. In this all parties acquiesced and are therefore barred now from raising that question of irregularity and technical procedure.

The main question in this appeal is, Did the voters of this district have a fair opportunity to legally and honestly express their choice for the candidates at such election?

The accepted doctrine of popular elections as laid down by our courts is: "It is well settled that where an election has been in fact had, and the great body of the electors have actually participated in it, irregularities not proceeding from a wrongful intent, in the manner of calling, holding or certifying the election, will, where they do not affect the result, be ignored."

It appears that the successful candidates received from 263 to 273 votes and the opposing candidates from 130 to 140 votes. The majority in favor of the successful candidates was so decisive that the general result of the election would not be changed by the few illegal votes which may have been cast in an election conducted as orderly and fairly as the election in question. No reason exists for ordering a new election.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

5426

In the matter of the appeal of John Gasser, jr, from the acts and proceedings of the annual meeting in district no. 3, Hempstead, Nassau county.

Destruction of excess ballots. The ballots cast for district officers at an annual meeting should be counted without unfolding them, except so far as to ascertain whether such ballots are single, and if it is found that the number of ballots cast was greater than the number of persons who voted, all the ballots should be replaced in the ballot box without being unfolded, and after the ballots are thoroughly mingled the excess ballots should be drawn out and destroyed. The fact that when the ballots are unfolded it is found that two of them may have been cast through error for a person for another office does not change the force and effect of this rule.

Minutes of meeting. The duly recorded and certified minutes of a district meeting, included as a part of the pleadings of one of the parties to an appeal, will be taken as true, unless impeached by clear and convincing evidence.

Decided November 18, 1909

John Lyon, attorney for appellant

Clock S. Seaman, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

This appeal is brought to set aside the action of the chairman of the annual meeting in school district no. 3, town of Hempstead, county of Nassau, held August 3, 1909, in declaring Henry Rowhel elected trustee of such district for a term of three years. Numerous affidavits have been presented by both parties, and there is conflict between them as to some of the material facts. It is conceded (1) that the appellant, John Gasser, jr, and Henry Rowhel were the only persons formally nominated for the office of trustee; (2) that 83 persons voted by ballot for candidates for the office of trustee, and that upon canvass by the inspectors it appeared that 85 votes had been cast; (3) that the meeting instructed the inspectors to destroy two ballots, one cast for the appellant Gasser, and the other for the respondent, Rowhel; (4) that when the remaining ballots had been counted it appeared that Rowhel had 41 votes and Gasser had 39.

The appellant alleges that when the votes remaining after the destruction of the 2 votes were counted, there were still 85 votes canvassed, 2 more than the number on the list of voters kept by the clerk of the meeting. The respondent denies this, but does not attempt to impeach the minutes of the meeting which show that 85 votes were counted, of which Rowhel received 41, Gasser 39, Leary 3 and Wellstood 2.

The respondent Rowhel insists that he received a majority of the votes cast and was properly declared elected as trustee. He bases his contention upon the claim that there were only 85 votes in the ballot box when the count was begun; that 2 of these ballots, which were marked "for district clerk," were cast for William Wellstood; that these 2 ballots should have been destroyed instead of the 2 ballots which were destroyed at the direction of the meeting; that the direction given by the meeting as to these 2 ballots was illegal and should be disregarded, and that counting for him the ballot which was destroyed, he received 42 votes, a majority of those legally cast at the election.

It is not denied that when the ballots were counted after the polls were declared closed 2 more ballots were found than there were voters on the list. It was recognized by all present at the meeting that 2 ballots must be destroyed to make the number of ballots conform with the list of voters. The legal way would have been to count the ballots found in the ballot box without unfolding them, except so far as to ascertain that each ballot was single, and if it was found that the number of ballots deposited in the box was greater than the number of persons who voted, all the ballots should have been replaced in the box without being unfolded, and after having thoroughly mingled the ballots, one of the inspectors should have drawn out the excess ballots, standing so that he could not see the ballots and with his back to the box. Such excess ballots should have been then destroyed without being unfolded. This is the procedure prescribed by law for like cases at general elections (see election law, 1909, § 367). This Department has held that the rules as to the destruction of excess ballots at general elections should apply to school elections (see appeal of Dillon, no. 4261, July 1894). It follows that the method used in the case now being considered was not regular. But the respondent did not object to the method adopted, and seems to have acquiesced in it. It can not be held that the vote for him, which was destroyed, should be counted for him, upon the assumption that when the ballots were unfolded two of them were illegal, and that if they were thrown out the number of ballots would conform to the list of voters. The election law, and parliamentary usage, demand that the excess ballots be drawn out before the ballots are unfolded. The rights of the candidates and the prevention of fraud demand that such a course be followed.

If the vote for Rowhel, which was destroyed, had been counted for him he would have had 42 votes, enough to elect him. If it is held that he was not entitled to such vote, he was not elected and the chairman was wrong in declaring him elected. It must be held either that the method of destroying the excess ballots was illegal, which nullifies the ballot, or that the method, while irregular, was not illegal, in which event the respondent Rowhel received only 41 votes, one less than a majority of the votes cast for the office. It follows therefore that Rowhel was not legally elected.

The appellant sets up as a part of his pleadings, a copy of the minutes of the meeting. The respondent has not attempted to impeach the accuracy of these minutes. It is an established rule frequently applied on appeals from the acts of district meetings, that the minutes of such meetings duly recorded will be taken as true unless impeached by clear and convincing evidence. The minutes of the meeting show that "the chairman announced 85 votes cast, 41 for Henry Rowhel, 39 for John Gasser, 3 for Arthur Leary and 2 for Wm. Wellstood." It thus appears from the minutes that Rowhel did not receive a majority of the votes cast, even admitting that he is right in his contention that the votes for William Wellstood should not be counted. It must be held that there was a failure to elect a trustee for the term of three years at the annual meeting and that a new election must be held for such purpose.

The appeal is sustained.

It is hereby ordered, That the action of the annual meeting of school district no. 3, town of Hempstead, county of Nassau, held August 3, 1909, in declaring Henry Rowhel elected as one of the trustees of such district for a term of three years be, and the same hereby is, set aside; and

It is hereby further ordered, That the clerk of such district give notice, as provided by law, of a special meeting of the qualified electors thereof to be held within thirty days after the filing of this decision, for the purpose of filling the vacancy caused by the failure to elect a trustee for a term of three years at the annual meeting.

3564

In the matter of the appeal of John A. Weatherwax from the proceedings of the annual school meeting in district no. 10, towns of Schaghticoke and Lansingburgh, Rensselaer county.

Where upon a ballot for trustee two ballots are found folded together, the presumption is that the vote is fraudulent, and when it is found that the ballots cast exceed the poll list by one, both ballots should be rejected.

When a district clerk upon whom a copy of an appeal is served colludes with the appellant to keep all knowledge of such service from the respondent, sufficient ground is afforded for his removal from office.

Decided February 9, 1887

G. H. Mallory, Esq., attorney for appellant

Hon. A. C. Comstock, attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the annual meeting in district no. 10, in the towns of Schaghticoke and Lansingburgh, Rensselaer county, held upon the 31st day of August 1886, relative to the election of a trustee. It appears that there were three candidates named for the position, namely, John K. Overrocker, Charles Moon and the appellant. John N. Bonesteel was made chairman of the meeting. Two tellers were appointed, namely, D. C. Halstead and Henry De Freest. Henry Smith was clerk and kept the poll list. When the meeting proceeded to elect a trustee, the names of the voters present were called, and each person, as his name was called stepped forward and deposited his ballot.

In his appeal, the appellant alleges that at the conclusion of the voting, the tellers counted the ballots and announced that 42 ballots had been cast and the poll clerk stated that 42 persons had voted; that Mr Halstead, one of the tellers declared, while counting the ballots, that two ballots were folded together and that the chairman took and retained these two ballots and they were not counted; that said two ballots were not folded together, but had slipped together; that the two ballots not counted were for the appellant; that the tellers reported the result of the ballot as follows, namely, Overrocker, 17; Weatherwax, the appellant, 16, and Moon, 7; that objection was made by the appellant and his friends to the rejection of the two ballots, and that it was insisted by them that said ballots should have been allowed to him, and that he was elected, as only a plurality was necessary to elect; that, as a result of the controversy, the meeting determined to take another ballot, which was done, and resulted in Overrocker receiving 21 votes and the appellant 19 votes, and Overrocker was declared elected.

The affidavit of service showed that the papers of the appellant were served September 25, 1886, on Henry Smith, the district clerk. The papers were filed in this Department September 27, 1886.

No answer having been received from the respondent, the case was disposed of on the statement of facts set forth by the appellant, and on the 15th day of November 1886, a decision was rendered, holding that the two rejected ballots should have been received and counted for Weatherwax and declaring him elected and entitled to the office of trustee.

On the 17th of December, 1886, Mr Overrocker, who was declared elected trustee at the annual meeting, and afterward acted as such, and was deposed by the decision of November 14th, presented an application for a reopening of the case upon papers which had been served on Weatherwax on the 15th of December. He alleged that he had received no notice whatever of the appeal; that the district clerk had colluded with Weatherwax and concealed the papers from Over-rocker, the trustee most interested in the matter. He swore that he would have answered the appeal if he had had any knowledge of it, and that he had fully and fairly stated his case to counsel, and was advised by counsel that he had a good and substantial defense on the merits of the case. The statements of Mr Overrocker remained uncontroverted the requisite length of time, and, on the 27th day of December, an order was made by the reopening of the case, and allowing Mr Overrocker to come in and answer.

The answer and the affidavits which he has since presented materially controvert the facts set up by the appellant. Not only the respondent, but the chairman of the meeting, the two tellers who supervised the election, and numerous other persons of undoubted credibility, who stood about the table at the time the ballots were cast and counted, all swear that two ballots were folded together, both being in favor of said Weatherwax, and were so folded that the entire side of one was laid to and against the entire side of the other, and were evenly folded, with two folds, and had the appearance of one ballot, and could not have come together after they were cast; that if both of said ballots had been counted, there would have been an excess of one ballot over the number indicated by the poll list; that at the time of the occurrence, Mr Weatherwax and his friends only claimed that one of the rejected ballots should have been counted for him, which would have tied the result and made another ballot necessary; that the chairman ruled that one, and but one, of the ballots folded together should be counted; that one of said ballots was counted, which resulted in a tie vote between Weatherwax and Overrocker; that another ballot was taken, upon which Overrocker was elected. The preponderance of proof seems with Mr Overrocker. The sworn statements of the chairman of the meeting and the tellers who supervised the election are entitled to great weight. If their statements are correct, the two ballots folded together were clearly fraudulent, and the tellers would have been justified in rejecting both of them. The fact, which seems to be pretty well established by the affidavits presented by Mr Overrocker, that the appellant at the time when the first ballot was announced, did not claim to be elected, but only insisted that one of the disputed ballots should be counted for him, and that there was a tie vote, rendering another ballot necessary, and that he maintained this position until after he was defeated upon the second ballot, is an important fact. It is important because it is added proof of the fact that it was the general belief of the meeting that the two ballots were fraudulently folded together. Whether they were or not is the vital point in the case. If they were, neither of them should have been counted, and their rejection would have elected the respondent upon the first ballot, or, upon the view of the matter most favorable to the appellant, would have justified the meeting in proceeding to another ballot. Upon all the proofs submitted, it is impossible to come to any other conclusion than that they were fraudulent, and that the appeal must be dismissed.

It is proper to add that the manifest collusion between the appellant and the district clerk, by which the former served his appeal papers upon the latter as the official representative of the district, and the latter kept them from the knowledge of the trustee in office, whom it was the purpose of the appeal to remove, not only disparages all of the proceedings of the appellant, and impairs confidence in affidavits presented by him, but, if not capable of explanation, it affords sufficient grounds for the removal of the district clerk from office.

The appeal is dismissed.

3231

In the matter of the appeal of Reuben A. Scofield v. Stephen B. Ayres et al.

Where, in a contest to determine who was elected trustee, it appears that five double ballots were found in the box, which were disregarded and not counted by the tellers, although the total number of ballots in the box was less than the number of persons voting, as shown by the poll list, and no evidence is produced to show that the double ballots were fraudulently folded together, but it is shown on the contrary that they might have slipped together after being cast;

Held, that the tellers were not justified in throwing out the double ballots. They should have produced evidence to show that they were fraudulent, or should have counted them. If the number of ballots exceeded the poll list, the excess should have been withdrawn at random from the whole number.

General allegations upon information and belief, that many persons voted who were not entitled to, will not suffice. Such persons should have been challenged at the election. It is necessary not only to state specifically who voted without right, but that such persons voted at the procurement, or in the interest of the opposition.

Where affidavits are presented on one side by a number of persons who swear that they were paid for voting by the other side, and affidavits by the same affiants to the effect that their former affidavits were not true, and were made for pay, or when intoxicated, it is a case for the district attorney. Unless enough fraudulent votes are shown to have been cast to have changed the result, the Department will not set aside the election.

A. C. Harwick, attorney for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the declared result of an election for trustees in the union free school district embracing the village of Penn Yan, in the county of Yates, held at the annual meeting, on the 7th of October 1889. Three trustees were to be elected. Five persons were voted for. According to the determination of the inspectors, Mr Edson Potter received 536 votes, Mr P. P. Curtis 336, Mr Stephen B. Ayres 302, Mr R. A. Scofield 275, and Mr B. L. Holt 235, and the three first named were declared elected.

The appellant, with a view to overthrowing this result, alleges:

1 That 10 ballots bearing the names of Scofield, Potter and Curtis were wrongfully thrown out and not counted by the inspectors.

2 That enough illegal votes were cast and counted for the ticket opposed to him to have changed the result as between Ayres and himself.

3 That the result as declared was attained through corrupt and fraudulent acts on the part of his opponents, including the purchasing of votes.

The real and only issue is between the appellant and the respondent Ayres, and he alone interposes an answer. According to the inspectors, Mr Curtis had a majority of 101 over Mr Holt, and no substantial effort is made to overcome or set aside this result. But the declared result gave Mr Ayres but 27 majority over Mr Scofield, and the latter insists that this was attained by fraud, and should be set aside. Mr Ayres answers and denies the allegations of the appellant generally and specifically.

It becomes necessary to examine each of the appellant's grounds of appeal and the proofs thereupon submitted by the respective parties in interest.

1 It is claimed that 10 ballots cast for the appellant and his associates were thrown out and not counted by the inspectors. There is no conflict of evidence upon this point. Mr George R. Young, one of the members of the board of education, and a teller, kept the poll list of persons voting. At the conclusion of the voting this list showed the names of 563 persons who had voted. Upon counting the ballots before opening there were apparently but 559. Mr Young, however, swears that upon opening the ballots, 5 double ballots, or 10 in all, were found folded together in pairs, each of which contained the names of Potter, Curtis and Scofield, and that none of these were counted. He says that the paper upon which these ballots were printed was thinner than that used for the other ballots, and that they were so folded that they might easily have been slipped together after being deposited in the box. This is the only evidence upon this point. Neither of the other inspectors makes any statement upon this evidence, and in view of the number of names on the poll list, I am of the opinion that the inspectors exceeded their authority in disregarding the 10 ballots referred to. It is more likely that the names of some voters were not recorded or checked than that more were reported than voted. If the votes in the box exceeded the names upon the poll list, the excess should have been withdrawn at random and cast aside, unless a majority of the inspectors were satisfied that the excess was due to the fraudulent folding of ballots together before voting. In the latter case the inspectors should appear here to sustain their action, with the reason for it. One of them appears and disowns and discredits the idea of fraudulent double ballots, and the others are not heard from. It therefore seems to me that the appellant is entitled to be credited with the 10 votes in question.

2 The appellant presents a list of names of 31 persons who voted, and who, he says, "upon faithful inquiry and search, he is unable to ascertain, possess the necessary qualifications to make them voters in said district." He swears, upon information and belief, that more than enough of them voted against him to have changed the result. It seems to me that this is not sufficiently specific and certain to be of value to appellant's case. If the right of any of these persons to vote was in doubt, they should have been challenged and required to desist or take the statutory oath, and a foundation laid for subsequent criminal proceedings against them. Neglecting that, and raising the question at this late day, it is upon the appellant to show affirmatively that these persons do not own or hire real estate in the district, and were not assessed for more than fifty dollars of personal property on the last assessment rolls of the town, and were not the parents of children attending school during the last year, and did not meet any one of the other conditions which, under the statute, would qualify him to vote at a school meeting. Moreover, as it seems to me, even though he had made a prima facie case against the right of these persons or any of them to vote, he can not charge his opponent with the responsibility of defending or maintaining that right on their part without first showing by evidence more specific and substantial than information and belief, that such opponent had procured them to vote without right, or at least had profited by their unlawful votes. In other words, to make this point avail him, it was necessary for the appellant to show, affirmatively, by proof, that certain persons voted who had no right, and also that they voted for the respondent.

It is of interest in this connection, although it would not seem to be vital, that the respondent Ayres says under oath, that he has made inquiry in regard to this list of names and finds that nearly all of them were legal voters, but that he does not know whether they voted for him or not, and that he "has no knowledge or information that any vote was obtained for deponent by any person by reason of any corrupt or fraudulent practice on the part of any one." This seems to me to be certainly all it was necessary for him to say in answer to the general and unsupported allegations of the appellant upon this point.

3 In the third place, the appellant asserts and undertakes to prove that the bribery of voters was resorted to by his opponent. He presents the affidavit of Holder Snyder, who swears that one, Frank Conklin, told him he could get a dollar for voting the Ayres ticket, and that he promised to vote it but got there too late and did not vote. He also presents the affidavit of Bernard T. Barry, who swears that Morris F. Shepperd gave him an Ayres ticket to vote and that he voted it, and subsequently, Shepperd, in his presence, gave Howland Snyder one dollar to be divided between them for so doing, and Howland Snyder corroborates him. Appellant also presents the affidavit of Johnson Hewins, who swears Orville F. Randolph promised and paid him a dollar for voting the Ayres ticket. He also presents the affidavit of Frank Conklin to the effect that he was employed for the sum of three dollars by Samuel P. Burrill to purchase "floaters" for the Ayres ticket at one dollar each, and names Charles Stanton, John Farrell and Charles Newland as men whose votes he purchased according to the terms of the agreement. The affidavit of John Kelly, who swears that he was promised one dollar by Frank Conklin for voting the Ayres ticket, but omits to say that he got the money, is also presented. The affidavit of Charles Stanton, saying that he was promised one dollar by Conklin, if he would vote the Ayres ticket, that he did vote it and afterwards received the money is also presented.

Here is evidence to the effect that eight men at least were procured to vote against the appellant for pay. Although the number is not sufficient to wipe out the majority still standing against the appellant, I should be strongly inclined to deem it, if uncontradicted, sufficient to justify me in holding the election void in order to condemn such methods and rebuke persons who would be identified with or profit by them. I have, therefore, looked with considerable interest to see what answer the respondent makes upon this point.

Mr Ayres presents an affidavit by Holder Snyder, in which that worthy swears that there is no truth in his affidavit presented by the appellant, and that he signed it when intoxicated. The respondent also presents an affidavit by Bernard T. Barry, saying that there is no truth in the former affidavit made by him, and that he signed it when intoxicated and without knowing its contents. He also presents an affidavit by Howland Snyder, to the effect that he was asked by one William Sheldon to make an affidavit that he (Snyder) received money for his vote and that he refused to do so, as it would not be true; that Sheldon asked him to state what took place, and he did so, and Sheldon pretended to write it down; that Sheldon then read it to him, and that as he read it, it was that he did not sell his vote, and believing that to be the nature of the affidavit, he signed and swore to it. The affidavit of John Kelly is also presented, in which he swears that he did not vote at the election in question, and did not receive pay for so doing, and that he made the affidavit presented by appellant at the solicitation of Sheldon, and was paid seventy-five cents for so doing. Also the affidavit of Charles Stanton that he made his former affidavit at the solicitation of Sheldon, and without knowing what was in it, and that as it is now read to him, it is not true, and that he did not receive any money for his vote at such election.

This answer of the respondent to the third point of appellant's case, unfortunately does not reach and cover all the instances in which bribery is alleged, but it very seriously undermines his position. If some evidence of alleged bribery is shown to have been procured in the way this was, then we are left to speculate whether all is not of the same character. I am by no means satisfied that bribery was not resorted to. It is certain, however, that the appellant does not show enough of it to have changed the result of the election in any case, and outside of legal right, there would hardly be sufficient ground in view of the doubts thrown upon all the testimony concerning bribery, for the exercise of the discretionary powers of the Superintendent.

Whether bribery was resorted to or not, it is tolerably certain that other crimes were committed on one side or the other, if not by the principals, then by their zealous partisans, in connection with this school meeting. Such crimes should be ferreted out and punished, but this duty does not devolve upon this Department, and it has neither the facilities nor the time for doing it. The law provides the machinery and the officers for attending to this phase of the subject. The Department will cooperate with the proper officers in punishing crime, so far as it may be able, but farther than that it can not go.

The appeal must be dismissed.

5401

In the matter of the appeal of Robert Thompson, school district no. 10, Depeyster, St Lawrence county.

Ballot for trustee. Where two ballots for trustee were declared a tie, and a third ballot for the office was announced, votes cast on such ballot which stated that they were for a certain person for the office of collector, should not be counted, and if all the other votes were for a person named as trustee, he should be declared elected.

Resolution to change site of schoolhouse. A resolution adopted at a special meeting which provided for a change of the "location of the schoolhouse to the center of the district," and did not describe the proposed site by metes and bounds, is fatally defective.

Decided March 1, 1909

W. A. Stamp, attorney for appellant

Waterman & Waterman, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

This appeal is brought by Robert Thompson on a petition complaining of the proceedings of the annual meeting of school district no. 10, town of Depeyster, county of St Lawrence, held August 4, 1908, whereby Fred E. Hurlburt was declared elected trustee of such district. It is further alleged by the appellant that the said Hurlburt unlawfully moved the school building from its former site to a site across the highway therefrom. It appears that at a special meeting called for the purpose it was voted to change the location of the school building to a point at the corner of the district. The petition is defective and inadequate to inform as to the relief desired. It contains no prayer for relief, and it is not easily understood therefrom as to what is required.

It is alleged that Fred E. Hurlburt was not legally elected as trustee; that he is unlawfully performing the duties of that office. The appellant and respondent were both candidates for the office. There were two ballots, both of which resulted in a tie. It is claimed that one of the voters for Hurlburt was not a qualified elector. It does not appear that she was challenged and obviously was permitted to vote without question or protest. It is now too late to raise any such objection. Hurlburt was chairman of the meeting and it is claimed by the appellant that he had no right to vote for himself. This position is untenable. A chairman of an annual school meeting may vote for himself as trustee. The two ballots were therefore legally declared a tie. Upon the third ballot for trustee it appeared that four votes were cast for Hurlburt for trustee and four votes for another person as collector. It is apparent that Hurlburt's opponents misunderstood the purpose of the ballot. The appellant and his wife insist in their affidavits that the ballot was announced as for collector. The respondent and his wife are equally insistent that the ballot was announced as a third ballot for trustee. There is nothing to show which man and his wife are telling the truth. If this ballot was announced as for trustee, the votes cast for persons named as candidates for collector were properly excluded, and therefore the election of Hurlburt was valid. It certainly was in order to proceed with the balloting for trustee before voting for a collector. The persons voting should have known this. I am of the opinion that under the circumstances the respondent should be permitted to continue in office until the expiration of his term.

The official acts of Hurlburt are valid so far as they are within the legal scope of his office. The appellant complains that the respondent disregarded the resolution adopted at the special meeting held August 15th which provided for the change of the "location of the schoolhouse to the center of the district." It does not appear that the resolution described the proposed site by metes and bounds as required by law. From what is contained in the record of this case I have no hesitation in concluding that the resolution adopted at this meeting is fatally defective and did not bind the trustee. He may have exceeded his authority in moving the school building to a site across the highway from the former site. But it appears that the former site was leased to the district by Mary C. Thompson for a term of years; that it expired in June 1908 and that she refused to renew the lease. This condition may have justified the action of the trustee. It is unnecessary, however, to decide this question at this time. The schoolhouse should be permanently located on a site selected as required by law. The action of the special meeting in attempting to change the site was illegal. Another special meeting of the district should be called by the trustee at which a resolution should be voted upon describing definitely the location and boundaries of the site selected. A suitable site should be agreed upon. It should be located at a place as conveniently accessible as may be to the children of the district, having in view the accommodation of a majority of them. Swampy or badly drained places should be avoided even at the expense of accessibility.

The appeal herein is dismissed; but

It is hereby ordered, That Fred E. Hurlburt, trustee of district no. 10, town of Depeyster, county of St Lawrence, within 60 days after the filing of this decision as hereinafter directed, issue and cause to be served, as provided by law, a notice of a special meeting of the qualified electors of such district for the purpose of voting upon a resolution designating a site for the schoolhouse in such district.

5396

In the matter of the election in union free school district no. 1, of the town of Walton, Delaware county, held August 5, 1908.

Ballots for long and short term. When three trustees are to be elected for a full term, and one for the balance of an unexpired term, the ballots must designate the terms for which the candidates are to be elected. Ballots which do not specify the terms are void, in the absence of evidence to show for whom the persons voting such ballots intended to vote.

Defective ballots; intent of voter. A person who can identify a ballot cast by him for a school officer will be permitted to explain, on appeal, ambiguities and uncertainties contained therein, to the end that his intent may be ascertained and his vote counted in favor of the candidate of his choice. The voter's intent must, however, clearly appear by definite, positive and unequivocal statements.

Decided November 24, 1908

Draper, Commissioner

It appears from the papers in this appeal that at the annual school meeting held in union free school district no. 1, town of Walton, county of Delaware, nominations were made to fill the offices of three trustees, whose terms expired at that time, and to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of one of the trustees during the preceding year. John G. More, William F. White and William D. Burns were named at this meeting as candidates to fill the vacancies caused by the expiration of the terms of the three outgoing trustees. Rev. R. C. Reed and William M. Peck, the appellant, were nominated to fill the unexpired term of the trustee who had resigned. R. W. Scott was named as a candidate for district clerk. No other nominations were made at this meeting for any of these offices. The election of these officers took place on the following day, August 5th. In accordance with the nominations made at the meeting held on the evening of August 4th, two sets of printed ballots were prepared, and deposited near the ballot box at the voting place. These ballots were in the following forms, designated nos. 1 and 2:

No. 1
FOR TRUSTEES	FOR TRUSTEE
Full term	Short term
William F. White	R. C. Reed
John G. More
W. D. Burns
	FOR CLERK
	R. W. Scott
No. 2
FOR TRUSTEES	FOR TRUSTEE
Full term	Short term
William F. White	William M. Peck
John G. More
W. D. Burns
	FOR TRUSTEE
	R. W. Scott

When the polls were closed and the votes counted it appeared that two other sets of ballots had been prepared and voted. These ballots were in the following forms, designated nos. 3 and 4:

No. 3
FOR TRUSTEES	FOR TRUSTEE
Full term	Short term
E. W. Harris	William M. Peck
John G. More
W. D. Burns
	FOR CLERK
	R. W. Scott
No. 4
FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEES
John G. More	William M. Peck
W. D. Burns	R. C. Reed

Twenty-six electors voted ballot no. 1; 13, ballot no. 2; 13, ballot no. 3; and 6, ballot no. 4. One ballot was cast the same in form as no. 3, except that the name of R. C. Reed was written in the place of W. D. Burns. There were thus 59 ballots cast. The trustees acting as canvassers counted the votes for trustee and announced the result to be as follows: John G. More, 59; William F. White, 39; W. D. Burns, 57; E. W. Harris, 14; R. C. Reed, 33; William M. Peck, 33. They then declared that John G. More, William F. White and W. D. Burns had been elected as trustees for the full term, and that as R. C. Reed and William M. Peck had each received 33 votes there was no election of trustee for the short term.

The provision of the Consolidated School Law relative to ballots at elections of district officers in union free school districts having more than 300 children of school age, is as follows: "Such ballots shall contain the names of the persons voted for, and shall designate the office for which each one is voted. The ballots may be either written or printed, or partly written and partly printed." There were three trustees to be elected in this district for a regular term of three years. There was one trustee to be elected for an unexpired term of one year. To comply with the statute it was necessary that each elector should designate on his ballot the persons for whom he wished to vote for the full term, and the person for whom he wished to vote for the short term. He could only vote for three for the full term and for one for the short term. The three candidates receiving the greatest number of votes for trustees for the full term and the candidate receiving the greatest number of votes for trustee for the short term should have been declared elected. The first question pertains to the validity of the six ballots cast in the form above designated as no. 4. The names of both Reed and Peck, the two opposing candidates for the short term, appear upon these ballots, that of Peck being printed and that of Reed being written at the end of the ballot with the name of White marked off. The appellant contends that the striking out of the name of White, who was a candidate for trustee for the full term, and adding Reed's name at the end, and leaving on that of Peck, indicates the intent of the elector to vote for Reed for the long term in the place of White, and for Peck for the short term. I do not think this contention can be sustained. There is nothing on the face of these ballots indicating the preference of the voters in respect to the two opposing candidates for trustee for the short term. A person who can identify a ballot cast by him for a school officer will be permitted to explain, on appeal, ambiguities and uncertainties contained therein, to the end that his intent may be ascertained and his vote counted in favor of the candidate of his choice. The voter's intent must, however, clearly appear by definite, positive and unequivocal statements. In the absence of sufficient evidence to establish such intent these ballots must be declared fatally defective and therefore void. Four of the six persons voting these ballots have made affidavit to the effect that they intended to vote for More, Burns and Reed for trustees for the long term, and for Peck for trustee for the short term, and three of these four also made affidavit that they supposed the four candidates were all in the same class and that they did not know that some were candidates for the long term and others for the short term. I am of the opinion that these affidavits are not sufficient to explain the preferences of the voters casting these ballots and that they should not therefore have been counted.

The remaining question is in respect to the ballot in the same form as no. 3, on which the name of W. D. Burns was erased and that of R. C. Reed was written in place thereof. This ballot must be counted as a vote for Reed for trustee for the long term, and as a vote for Peck for the short term.

All the ballots actually cast at this election have been submitted by the respondents on this appeal and a recanvass is therefore possible. Applying the holdings heretofore made such ballots should have been counted as follows: Total votes cast 53. Trustees for long term, John G. More, 53; William F. White, 33; W. D. Burns, 52; E. W. Harris, 14; R. C. Reed, 1. Trustee for short term, William M. Peck, 27; R. C. Reed, 26. It thus appears that John G. More, W. D. Burns and William F. White were elected trustees for the full term of three years, and that W. M. Peck was elected trustee for the unexpired term, and I so decide.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is hereby ordered, That so much of the proceedings of the annual election of union free school district no. 1, town of Walton, county of Delaware, held August 5, 1908, as declared the vote for the office of trustee in such district, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. A. Holley, to be a tie, is hereby set aside.

It is hereby further ordered, That William M. Peck who is hereby declared to have been elected at such election to fill such vacancy, on and after the filing of this decision as hereinafter directed, shall be a member of the board of education of such district for a term to expire at the time of the annual election in 1909, and that he shall perform the duties and have the powers imposed or conferred by law upon the members of such board.

5299

In the matter of the appeal of Alva J. Sibbett from the action of a meeting of school district no. 13, towns of Manchester and Palmyra.

An election will be set aside when it is shown that all who desired to vote were not accorded that privilege.

Decided January 2, 1907

S. R. & B. C. Williams, attorneys for appellant
Durfee & Lines, attorneys for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

The last annual meeting of this district convened August 7th, the date set by law, elected a trustee and other officers, transacted the usual business coming before an annual meeting and adjourned to a future date to consider the question of erecting a new school building. Five meetings were held between the date of the annual meeting and October 18, 1906. There can be no doubt but that the meeting adjourned for a special purpose. No other business was considered at any of these meetings except that relating to the erection of a new building until the fifth meeting held on the 18th day of October. Mr Lines, one of the attorneys representing respondents, is clerk of the district and kept the record of the proceedings of these several meetings. His record of the proceedings of the meeting of August 21st states that the object of the meeting was as follows: "The purpose of the meeting being the consideration of the question of altering and repairing the schoolhouse or building a new one." Again in stating the object of the meeting held September 4th, Mr Lines said: "To consider the matter of building a new schoolhouse." It was generally understood that the meeting was to consider the question of erecting a new schoolhouse and nothing else. It is unnecessary, however, to determine whether an annual meeting adjourned for a special purpose may consider at the adjourned meeting any question which might come before the annual meeting in order to decide the real question involved in this appeal. At the fifth adjourned meeting it was voted to increase the number of trustees from one to three and the meeting elected two additional trustees. If this meeting had the right to elect such trustees it was necessary that the election should be held as the statutes require. Under the law the election of trustees must be by ballot and this means that each voter present must be allowed the privilege of voting for a trustee if he desires to do so. This Department has repeatedly held in appeal cases that a district meeting can not legally elect a trustee by directing the clerk or some other person to cast the vote of the meeting for a particular person. When an election has been held under such method of voting and an appeal therefrom has been brought to this Department such election has been set aside. It is claimed by appellant that in addition to the two nominees for whom the clerk cast a ballot two other persons, namely, Jordan Snook and William F. Garlock were nominated. Frank E. Blossom, a voter of the district, swears that he nominated Snook and Garlock. William Young, another voter of the district, swears that he seconded such nominations. Garlock swears that he heard his nomination and that of Snook made by Blossom and seconded by Young. Five other voters of the district swear that such nominations were made and seconded and that neither of such nominees declined. The pleadings of respondents contain several affidavits including that of the chairman of the meeting to the effect that they did not hear the nomination of Garlock. The chairman of the meeting also swears that at such time there was considerable talking in a low voice in the room. They admit Snook was nominated but claim he declined. Appellant claims that Snook declined when nominated for chairman of the meeting but he did not decline the nomination for trustee.

Respondents admit that after the clerk had cast a vote for the trustees the question of other nominations was raised and that it was claimed such nominations had not been seconded. It is not necessary that nominations shall be seconded. A voter may vote for any person he desires in an election of trustees even if such person has not been nominated. It is not necessary that all persons present at a meeting shall vote. They must, however, be given the opportunity to vote. Where it is apparent that there is no contest at an election it is unnecessary for all to vote. However, in such case even, the polls should be opened and one or more votes cast. The chairman might then ask if there are others who desire to vote and must give them ample opportunity to do so. He should also announce that if there are no others desiring to vote the polls will be closed. This action should be taken deliberately to the end that any person desiring to vote may do so. The polls may then be closed. All the requirements of subdivision 4, section 14, title 7 should be strictly followed. Elections which are not held in accordance with the statutes can not be upheld.

It appears from respondents' pleadings that the question of directing the clerk to cast the vote of the district for trustee was not voted upon. A motion to that effect was made but was not put by the chairman. It appears that the chairman directed the clerk to cast the vote. He announced that if there was objection a vote was necessary, but only waited 20 seconds for objection. The whole election appears to have taken place in about one minute and thereafter appellant inquired about the votes for the other nominees. Under all the circumstances it must be held that the election in question was illegal.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the action of a special school meeting of school district no. 13 of the towns of Manchester and Palmyra, held on the 18th day of October 1906, in electing Joseph Blossom and S. M. Short trustees of said district be and the same is hereby vacated.

3822

In the matter of the appeal of Charles P. Hills, Garit Van Vranken and others v. school district no. 7, of the town of Watervliet, county of Albany.

Proceedings of an annual school meeting set aside and new election ordered where it appeared that a large number of voters present thereat had no opportunity to vote upon the question of the election of a trustee.

Decided November 8, 1889

O'Brien & Addington, attorneys for appellants

John H. Gleason, attorney for respondents

Draper, Superintendent

The appellants allege that at the annual school meeting in the above named district, the chairman of the meeting arbitrarily declared one Jeremiah Sicker elected trustee for the ensuing year, without affording the voters present an opportunity to express their wishes in the matter. They say Sicker was first nominated and that Aaron Pease was also nominated, and that the chairman disregarded the last nomination, put the affirmative of the question on the election of Sicker, and without putting the negative, or affording the opponents of Sicker an opportunity to vote against him, declared him elected. The chairman and others deny this and say that both sides of the question, on the election of Sicker, were put to the assemblage, and that no one voted against him. It is alleged on one side, and denied on the other, that the proceedings were very disorderly. It is difficult to determine all the facts in the matter, so opposed are the statements of the parties. But it is evident from these conflicting statements, that there were two distinct parties present at the school meeting, each with a candidate for the office of trustee, and it is scarcely conceivable that the members of one of these parties would have suffered their opponent to be elected without casting a vote against him, if the opportunity had been afforded them. On the side of the appellants, 21 men swear that they were present at the meeting, intending to vote against Sicker, and were prevented from doing so by the arbitrary course of the chairman. They swear also that not more than 14 persons were present in his favor. The respondents fail to controvert this material and, I think, controlling fact.

In view of this, it seems to me that there should be a new election ordered, that the respective parties may at least have an opportunity for demonstrating which has a majority of adherents.

The appeal is sustained. The alleged election of Jeremiah Sicker, as trustee, is declared void, and the district clerk is directed to give legal notice of a special meeting for the purpose of electing a trustee, to be held not less than ten nor more than twenty days from the date hereof.

3314

In the matter of the appeal of Fred G. Batty v. Michael Moran, trustee of school district no. 2, of the town of Easton, county of Washington.

The arbitrary course of the chairman of a district meeting in declaring himself elected trustee will not be sustained.

Decided September 29, 1889

B. E. Center, attorney for appellant

L. S. Pratt, attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

At the annual meeting held in the above-named district on the 6th day of August 1889, Michael Moran was made chairman of the meeting. The appellant alleges that, immediately after organization, a motion was made that the said Moran be elected trustee for the ensuing year, when the appellant moved as an amendment that the meeting proceed to ballot for trustee; that the chair refused to entertain the amendment, and proceeded to take a vote on the original motion; that three or four voted in the affirmative and some twenty in the negative, but that the chairman declared the motion adopted and himself elected as trustee.

The respondent answers and denies these allegations. He says that there was no motion made to elect a trustee by ballot until after the motion that he be elected trustee had been adopted.

The appellant alleges that there were but twenty-five persons present at the meeting. This is not denied by the respondent. Twenty-two persons swear that they were present and sustain the state of facts as alleged by the appellant. Six persons swear to the facts as set forth by the respondent.

The preponderance of proof, therefore, is with the appellant. The fact that the chairman of the meeting was himself a candidate for trustee should at least have caused him to have desired that the manner of voting should be in accord with the wishes of his opponents.

It seems that the meeting was characterized by much disorder, and it is alleged that forcible possession of the meeting was taken by the opponents of Moran, who selected another chairman and proceeded to hold another election for trustee, and to elect other officers. In view of all the circumstances, I do not feel justified in upholding this last-mentioned meeting.

The appeal is sustained, the alleged election of Moran declared to be null and void, and the clerk of the district is directed to give public notice of a time and place for a special meeting of the district to transact the business of the annual meeting.

3656

In the matter of the appeal of John B. Aikens v. school district no. 9, town of Butler, county of Wayne.

Unless it can be shown that persons alleged to be illegal voters were such, and that their votes might have changed the result, the action of a district meeting at which they voted will not be disturbed.

Want of mental capacity to do ordinary business held not to disqualify a voter at a school meeting.

Decided December 10, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

At the last annual meeting in school district no. 9, town of Butler, county of Wayne, it was agreed to elect a trustee by ballot. Upon the first ballot the result was a tie, and the meeting proceeded to another ballot which resulted in a majority of one for Elias H. Cady. Upon this ballot two persons, namely, William Gould and Charles Cornell, upon offering to vote were challenged, and they each took the oath and deposited their ballots. The appellant insists that these persons were not qualified electors of the district at the time of the meeting, and that they had not mental capacity to transact ordinary business.

The appeal can not be sustained. It is not shown that the two persons whose votes are objected to voted for the prevailing side. It is claimed that they were not qualified electors of the district, but I am inclined to think that the proof submitted by the respondent establishes their right to vote, on the ground that they rent real estate liable to taxation, and reside in the district, and were of the statutory age. There is nothing in the claim that they had not sufficient mental capacity to transact ordinary business. Unfortunately that is no disqualification, if it were true, but whether it was or not it is not important to consider.

3652

In the matter of the appeal of Charles Schafer, a resident of school district no. 3, town of Clarence, Erie county, v. the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held in said district, August 30, 1887.

An election in a school district will not be overthrown because alleged legal voters did not vote or offer to vote.

Any voter may freely challenge the right of another offering to vote.

Decided December 8, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken by Charles Schafer, a resident of school district no. 3, town of Clarence, Erie county, from the proceedings of the annual school meeting in the election of a trustee, and from the ruling of the chairman of said meeting in excluding from voting the appellant, Fremont Danser and Henry Reigle, all of whom the appellant alleges were legal voters. It is claimed that the appellant and Danser were tenants of real estate and the parents of children of school age, who had attended upon the school the year previous, and that Henry Reigle was a person liable to assessment for personal property.

Had these men been permitted to vote, the result of the election would have been a tie vote between the opposing candidates. The respondent answers that these men did not offer to vote; that the chairman simply stated that all who did not pay taxes would be required to swear in their votes, intending to imply that he would challenge all such persons.

There was an irregularity at the election, which was held by ballot. One person voted whose right to do so was questioned and he consented that his ballot might be withdrawn, as he would not swear it in. This would vitiate the election if a single ballot would change the result. In this case it would not. The appellant and Messrs Danser and Reigle have not placed themselves in a position to criticise the election. If they claim the right to vote, they should have offered to vote, and if entitled to do so and challenged, they should have taken the prescribed oath. Any elector may challenge the right of another to vote. Indeed, only in this way may any illegal votes be kept from the ballot box. The law expressly provides the course which must be pursued by electors whose right to vote is disputed, and that course must be followed. Elections can not be overturned on the ground that persons had the right to vote and did not exercise, nor seriously attempt to exercise it. The appeal must be dismissed.

3820

In the matter of the appeal of Sylvester Espenscheid and George Robinson v. school district no. 8, of the town of Sodus, in the county of Wayne.

Where the proceedings of a district meeting are characterized by such disorder and confusion as to make it apparent that no fair expression of the opinions or preferences of the legal voters resulted therefrom, they will not be sustained, but a special meeting will be ordered.

Decided October 23, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought for the purpose of determining who was elected trustee, or the result otherwise of the annual school meeting held in the above-named district. The papers are voluminous. I have undertaken to read them with care. After such reading I am unable to determine which of the two contending parties is in the right. I am more inclined to believe that both sides are somewhat at fault for a most unfortunate controversy which exists in the district. It is claimed on one side that the annual meeting was organized before the legal time arrived, and by but seven persons who elected a trustee and transacted some other business, and that when some thirty or forty persons arrived at about the legal time and undertook to participate in the action of the meeting and made motions concerning district business, the chairman refused to recognize them, and that he finally declared the meeting adjourned without motion. On the other side this is all denied, and it is claimed that the meeting was not organized until the proper time and was conducted fairly. Numerous witnesses swear squarely against each other. But one thing seems clear to me, and that is that there was much confusion and disorder at the meeting — so much so as to make it impossible for the Department to sustain the proceedings which are claimed to have been taken either by one side or the other.

I have therefore concluded to hold that no district meeting was regularly held, and that a special meeting should be called for the purpose of transacting the business which devolved upon the annual meeting.

It is therefore ordered that the district clerk of said district no. 8, of the town of Sodus and county of Wayne, call a special meeting of the district for the purpose of transacting such business, not less than ten nor more than twenty days from the date hereof.

3752

In the matter of the appeal of Henry Fink v. Patrick Hopkins.

The official minutes of a district meeting show the election of a certain person as trustee, and also that the chairman so declared at the time of the election, although the action of the chairman is disputed. Held, that the official record will be accepted as true, unless impeached by clear evidence.

Illegal voting at school meetings is to be prevented by the exercise of the right of challenge and the exaction of the voter's oath as to his qualifications, and subsequent punishment for false swearing, if the person challenged is guilty of the same.

A person who merely occupies land for which he pays no rent, and which he does not own or hire, and upon which he is an occupant by mere sufferance; held, such occupant not to be qualified as a voter.

Decided January 17, 1889

Davies & Johnson, attorneys for appellant
James Gallagher, attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought for the purpose of determining who was elected trustee at the annual school meeting held in August 1888, in school district no. 10, of the towns of Camden, Oneida county, and Constantia, Oswego county. It seems that, soon after the organization of the district meeting, an informal vote was taken for the office of trustee. It was then ordered that a formal ballot should be taken, which was done. On this ballot 17 votes were cast, of which 8 were for Patrick Hopkins, 7 for Henry Fink, 1 for John Ford and 1 a blank. A second formal ballot was taken, of which 10 were for Henry Fink, the appellant, and 7 for Patrick Hopkins.

The official minutes of the meeting show the above facts, and that the chairman declared Fink elected. There is some controversy between the parties as to whether there was an official declaration of the result by the chair, and the chairman has made affidavits on both sides. I do not consider the question very material, but feel justified, under all the circumstances, in accepting the statement of the official record as the true one. Since the meeting, both Fink and Hopkins have claimed to have been elected. Mr Hopkins claims that Fink was not a qualified elector at the time the district meeting was held, and therefore not eligible to a district office; he also claims that one Henry G. Ford, who voted for Mr Fink, was not a qualified elector. On the other hand, Mr Fink, the appellant, claims that Charles Miller, Daniel Hopkins, George A. Cook and Vreeland Prest, who voted for the respondent, were not entitled to vote. No evidence is offered by the appellant to disprove the qualifications of either of the four persons named, except as to Vreeland Prest.

The case must, therefore, turn upon the right of the appellant and Henry Ford to vote on one side, and of Vreeland Prest on the other. The appellant swears that he hires real estate in said district liable to taxation, and did so during the year prior to the annual meeting referred to. The fact seems to be that he is living on a farm owned by his wife, but this is not inconsistent with his claim. Moreover, it seems that his right to vote was challenged at the annual meeting, and that he insisted upon it and voted. The law does not contemplate the determination of a disputed question of that character in a collateral proceeding. Its method of determining such a matter, where the right is insisted upon, is to confer the right of challenge, exact the oath of the voter, and punish him for false swearing.

I find no sufficient ground to sustain the claim that the appellant was not a legal voter and not eligible to the trusteeship. In the case of Henry G. Ford, whose right to vote is disputed, he swears that he was born and brought up in the town of Camden, and has resided in said school district no. 10 for the past six years, and has during that time held the office of trustee of said district for two years and the office of clerk for one year, and has voted at every school meeting held in said district during said time; that he has owned real estate, been assessed and paid taxes thereon, and has sent children to school in said district during all of said time, and that he is a legal and qualified voter. It is claimed by the respondent that Mr Ford lived in Canada for some time and that he became a naturalized citizen under the government of Great Britain. There is no proof of that fact offered, and in the absence of it, and in the face of his sworn statement showing his qualifications, and particularly in the face of the fact that for six years he has exercised the right of suffrage in the district school meetings, and during three years has held office in the district, the claim of the respondent against him can not be sustained.

On the other hand, it is claimed by the appellant that Vreeland Prest, who voted for the respondent, is not a legal voter. Prest claims the right to vote, and founds his right upon the fact that he rents real property. The facts regarding such rental do not very clearly appear. Mr Spencer J. Ford swears that he owns the land which Prest claims to rent. He admits that Prest lives upon said land, but swears that he pays no rent therefor, and that he is only there at sufferance. Prest, on the other hand, does not even say that he hires the same; he swears that he "occupies" it, and pays for the use by rendering services to the owner, in taking care of his stock, etc.

By the admission, therefore, of Prest himself, his occupancy at the most, is only at sufferance. He has no title in the land. The owner would not be obliged to serve notice of dispossession upon him. He could be unceremoniously ousted at any moment. It may well be doubted if this is such an owning or hiring as would confer upon him the right of suffrage at a school meeting under the language of the statute.

I therefore come to the conclusion that, of the votes cast upon the first formal ballot, there were seven legal votes cast for Mr Hopkins, seven legal votes for Mr Fink, and one for John Ford. It clearly required a majority to elect. Even if all the votes cast for the respondent had been legally cast by persons entitled to vote, he would not have been elected upon that ballot, for he had no majority of all the votes cast. This would be so considering the blank ballot as of no account. Upon the second formal ballot Mr Fink had ten legal votes and Mr Hopkins but six.

From these considerations it naturally follows that the appeal must be sustained and the appellant declared to be entitled to exercise the functions of the office of trustee in the district named.

In the matter of the appeal of Hambly T. Orchard v. Ransom Dodge and C. P. Vail, trustees of district no. 1. town of Beekman, Dutchess county.

The election of a person as trustee by a district meeting to fill a vacancy, held, that the person so chosen would be entitled to hold the office only for the unexpired term, and that the district meeting could elect for no shorter period than the unexpired term. Decided September 22, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought to determine the title of the appellant to the office of trustee in the district named. The respondents are trustees and refuse to acknowledge the right of the appellant to act with them in that capacity. The appellant sets forth the facts to be as follows:

At the annual meeting held in the district in 1886, Charles A. Stephens was elected a trustee for the full term of three years. He moved from the district in the spring of 1887, and the supervisor of the town appointed P. A. Skidmore to fill the vacancy thus created. At the annual meeting in 1887 Skidmore was duly elected to fill the vacancy. The appellant claims that the district meeting of 1887 elected Mr Skidmore for the term of one year. The minutes of the meeting seem to sustain this claim, but there seems to have been some controversy in the district as to whether the election of Skidmore in 1887 was for one year or for the balance of the term to which Stephens was elected in 1886. The district meeting in 1888 is shown to have considered the subject, and the meeting decided that Skidmore had been elected in 1887 but for one year, and thereupon it proceeded to elect the appellant for another year. The respondents interpose no answer, but have written a letter in which they admit the correctness of the statements of the appellant and ask for an immediate decision.

I am of the opinion that the appellant has no lawful claim to the office. When the supervisor appointed Mr Skidmore trustee in place of Mr Stephens, who had moved away from the district, that appointment was good until the next annual school meeting, but the school meeting in 1887 had the power to elect a trustee to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term. There were two years of the term yet to run and they had no power to elect a trustee for that place for one year. There is apparently some conflict of opinion as to whether there was any intent to elect for one year or for the balance of the term. In my judgment, it is not material. If the meeting elected at all, it must have been for the balance of the term. It is undisputed that there was an election and Mr Skidmore was chosen. That being so, there was no vacancy to fill in the year 1888, and the election of the appellant at the school meeting of 1888 is, therefore, void and of no effect.

The appeal is, therefore, dismissed.

3568

In the matter of the appeal of Louis Wolf v. John Schaible, jr, and others, inspectors of election of school district no. 2, towns of Middletown and Southfield, county of Richmond.

When a ticket voted at an election for trustee contained a name printed and another name written, the presumption is that the voter intended to vote for the latter, and neglected to erase the name of the former.

Where the ballots cast for trustee run two short of the poll list, and two trustee ballots are found deposited in another box at the same election, they should be counted for the person whose name appears thereon.

Decided May 3, 1887

Max Huebner, Esq., attorney for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken by Louis Wolf from the action of the inspectors of election of school district no. 2, towns of Middletown and Southfield, in the county of Richmond, in declaring the result of an election for trustee held in said district August 31, 1886.

The allegations of the appellant are, that at said election John Schaible, jr, Max C. Huebner and Squire Force acted as inspectors of election; that the appellant, one William Nulty and one Nelius were voted for for trustee; that the number of votes cast was 187; that the votes were canvassed as follows:

For Wolf, the appellant.....	92
For Nulty	84
For Nelius	8

That two ballots bearing the name of Louis Wolf for trustee were found in the box in which ballots for clerk were deposited, and two ballots for clerk found in the trustee's box; that one ballot for trustee contained the name of Louis Wolf printed thereon and the name of William Nulty written thereon; that if these three ballots had been counted, the vote would have exactly corresponded with the poll list kept at such election; that the ballot containing both the names of Nulty and Wolf was counted for Nulty, and the two ballots for Louis Wolf were rejected, and at no time included in the count. The chairman announced that no election had been held.

The respondent, Max C. Huebner, for answer to the appeal denies that the votes as counted exceeded the poll list, and while admitting that there were two trustee ballots found in the clerk's box, denies that they were opened or that anyone saw the contents of the said ballots. He admits that a ballot containing both the names of Wolf and Nulty was counted for Nulty. He alleges that all parties interested have not been made parties, and further alleges that at least six illegal votes were cast for Wolf, and asks that the matter be referred to the school commissioner of Richmond county to enable all parties in interest to give testimony therein.

On the 27th day of February 1887, an order was made, dated that day, that Commissioner Theodore Freat should give notice to both parties, appellant and respondent, of a time and place where the testimony of witnesses for the respective parties would be taken before him pursuant to law.

On March 8, 1887, at 7 p. m., the commissioner was attended by counsel for the appellant and by Max C. Huebner, one of the respondents, and the attorney who appeared herein for respondents, and by Squire Force, another respondent herein, and announced to them that he would attend at the Edgewater village hall on the 12th day of March 1887, at 7 o'clock p. m., to proceed to take evidence herein pursuant to said order. Both attorneys agreed to meet at the time and place so fixed. That at the date, place and time so named, the commissioner attended and the appellant appeared with his counsel and witnesses, but neither respondents nor counsel appeared. After waiting over three-quarters of an hour the matter was, on motion of appellant's counsel, adjourned until March 18, 1887, at 7 p. m. On the 18th day of March 1887, at 7 p. m., both appellant's and respondents' counsel appeared, and respondents' counsel applied for an adjournment, which was denied, and respondents' counsel retired. The commissioner states that "the motion was denied because appellant had six witnesses present, five of whom had been subpoenaed."

The evidence of the appellant was thereupon proceeded with.

At the close of appellant's evidence, the appellant's counsel asked that a notice be served upon the respondents, Max C. Huebner and Squire Force, to attend at the next session, to be held on Saturday, March 28, 1887, at 9 a. m., which was done.

After waiting some time on the adjourned day, one of the respondents, Squire Force, appeared, but stated that he had no counsel, did not want any and did not wish to be examined and had no witnesses he wished examined.

Mr Huebner, although in the building and personally notified, did not appear before the commissioner.

Thomas W. Fitzgerald, an attorney, appeared, and stated that he did so by direction of Mr Huebner, and asked for an adjournment. After waiting two hours, the commissioner declared the hearing closed, and has duly returned the evidence taken to me.

From the testimony taken, I find the facts to be as follows:

The poll list kept at the annual election showed that 187 votes were cast for trustee. In canvassing the votes deposited in the trustee's box, it was found that the appellant received 92 votes, Nulty 84 and Nelius 8. There was one defective ballot, which was probably intended to be cast for Nulty, and I so find. This would increase his vote to 85.

There were two ballots for trustee in the clerk's box, placed there by mistake, which were cast for Louis Wolf, and as the counting of these two ballots would make the vote cast correspond exactly with the poll list, they should have been counted for him. This would have increased his vote to 94, and the result would then appear as follows: Wolf, 94; Nulty, 85; Nelius, 8; giving Louis Wolf a clear majority of 1.

I therefore sustain the appeal and hold that Louis Wolf was duly elected trustee of school district no. 2, towns of Middletown and Southfield, county of Richmond, at the annual meeting held in 1886.

3533

In the matter of the appeal of O. B. Kelsey and others from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held August 31, 1886, in school district no. 2, towns of Little Valley and Salamanca, Cattaraugus county.

An election of trustees set aside where it appeared that but twenty-two persons voted. Yet the ballot showed twelve for one candidate and eleven for another, one illegal ballot having been deposited, and it is not made to appear for whom.

Decided January 7, 1887

Coxe & Whipple, attorneys for appellants

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by residents and voters of school district no. 2, towns of Little Valley and Salamanca, Cattaraugus county, N. Y., from the action of the annual school meeting held August 31, 1886, in said district, at which an election for trustee was held and James Whalen was declared elected.

For the appellants, it is alleged that but 22 persons voted, and yet the result showed 23 ballots cast, of which one Charles Easton was credited with 11 and James Whalen 12. The names of 11 persons, alleged to be qualified voters, are signed to the appeal. The respondents allege that 23 persons were present and that the vote as announced was correct, giving among others as having been present at the meeting one Alexander Stein; that said Whalen was declared elected trustee by the chairman; that upon information and belief two of the persons, Messrs Jones and Watkins, who signed the appeal and are alleged to have voted for Easton, were not qualified voters at the meeting, and that one Chamberlain, whose signature is attached to appellants' papers, voted for Whalen, repeatedly promised to do so, and has admitted he did.

The appellants reply and produce affidavits of Messrs Jones and Watkins, which prove that they are qualified voters, and also several affidavits of persons who swear that Chamberlain stated to each of them that he voted for Easton at the meeting. Also, several affidavits that Alexander Stein did not vote at the meeting, and that he admitted he did not vote.

From the proofs presented, it would appear that only 22 voted at the annual meeting, and the result which showed 23 ballots, proved that one illegal ballot may have been cast for either candidate. I can not determine for which candidate it was cast.

I have reached the conclusion that the appeal must be sustained and the election of James Whalen set aside and a new election held.

I therefore direct the district clerk to give notice within fifteen days from the date of this decision of a special meeting to elect a trustee.

3937

In the matter of the appeal of M. H. Murray v. William T. Wilson, as trustee of school district no. 4, town of Newfane, county of Niagara.

At an election for trustee five persons voted, and the right of each to vote was promptly challenged. The presiding officer was requested to administer the prescribed oath, but declined to do so. The alleged illegal votes were received.

These votes determined the election. Held, that the action of the presiding officer was illegal and reprehensible, and a special election ordered.

Decided December 3, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

Appeal by an elector of school district no. 4, Newfane, Niagara county, from the action of the above-named William T. Wilson, in assuming to be trustee of said district, and from the proceedings of a special meeting held in said district August 12, 1890, and the action of the chairman of said meeting.

The appellant alleges that a ballot for trustee at said meeting resulted as follows: For William T. Wilson, 14; for appellant, 9; blank, 1; that five persons voted for Wilson for trustee who were not qualified electors; that each was promptly challenged by appellant, and a request made that the prescribed oath be administered. This the chairman declined to do, and the illegal votes were received.

The chair made no declaration of the result of the ballot. Mr Wilson, however, has assumed the office. Deducting the five illegal votes cast for Mr Wilson from the total vote he lacked a majority, and consequently there was no choice or election. The action of the presiding officer in refusing to recognize legitimate challenges, was illegal and reprehensible.

The appeal is sustained. The district clerk is hereby directed to forthwith give notice of a special meeting to fill the vacancy in the office of trustee, as declared by this decision.

4395

In the matter of the appeal of Thomas H. Kavanaugh from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 10, town of Livonia, Livingston county, in the election of a trustee.

The method of school meetings in the election of district officers when but one candidate for an office is presented of authorizing the clerk or some other person to cast a ballot for such candidate is not approved and is not deemed to be an election of such officer by ballot as required by the provisions of the school law. The polls should be open for the reception of ballots for each of the officers to be elected and the vote of every qualified voter who presents his or her vote should be received. It is optional with any voter whether he or she will vote, and when but one candidate is presented for an office and it is apparent that all the qualified voters present desire his or her election and the poll is open and balloting has commenced, after all have voted who wish, the ballot may be closed by unanimous vote of those present and the vote canvassed and the vote announced.

Decided October 17, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

The appeal in the above-entitled matter appears to be intended as an appeal from the election of one P. G. Frutchey, as trustee of school district no. 10, town of Livonia, Livingston county, at the annual meeting of the district held on August 6, 1895.

The appellant, as stated in his appeal, appeals from the proceedings and decision of the chairman of said annual meeting, one George L. McDonald, alleging that said chairman's name does not appear on the assessment roll, and said chairman did not send children to school in said district; that at said meeting, under the head of "nominations in order for trustee" a Mr Frutchey was nominated for trustee, and a motion was then made and seconded that the secretary be empowered to cast one ballot for Mr Frutchey; that the appellant herein moved to amend said motion that we proceed to ballot for trustee, and the amendment was declared lost by the chairman; that the chairman did not put the original motion but ordered the secretary to cast one ballot for said Frutchey against the remonstrance of the appellant and other legal voters present at said meeting. The contention of the appellant, as stated by him in his appeal is, that the chairman not being a legal voter, disqualified him as chairman, and his ruling made a material difference in the conduct of said meeting under the statute; that under the school law, all district officers shall be elected by ballot, and the chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot as announced by the inspectors, etc.; that the defeat of the amendment of the appellant, asking that the meeting proceed to ballot for trustee, did not amount to the election of a trustee, as it simply asked that the meeting proceed to elect officers as required by the statute, and in the event of any officer being elected in any other manner, said election must necessarily be void.

No copy of the proceedings of said annual meeting accompanied the appeal nor is there any affidavit in support of said appeal annexed thereto or presented therewith.

One Wilbor C. Turner, claiming to be the clerk of said school district has filed an answer to said appeal, which answer consists of a verified copy of the proceedings of said annual meeting, and annexed is an affidavit, signed and sworn to by seven persons who allege they are legal voters of said district, and attended said annual meeting, and that said minutes of said meeting are correct to the best of their memory and belief.

By said copy of the minutes of the proceedings of said annual meeting it appears that said meeting was called to order by the clerk of the district for the preceding school year, and that L. M. Coe was nominated as chairman, but he declining to act, one George L. McDonald was nominated and elected chairman; that W. C. Turner was elected district clerk and L. H. Chamberlin collector; that a motion was made and seconded that the clerk cast one ballot for P. G. Frutchey for trustee, which motion was amended so as to read "that the meeting proceed to ballot for trustee" and such amendment was lost; that the original motion, that the clerk cast one ballot for P. G. Frutchey for trustee, was unanimously carried, and the said clerk cast a ballot for said Frutchey for trustee who was declared elected by the chairman, and thereupon the meeting adjourned.

The burden is upon the appellant to establish his appeal by a preponderance of proof.

The appellant has failed to sustain his allegation in the appeal that the chairman of said meeting was not a qualified voter of the district. It was incumbent upon the appellant herein, in charging that said chairman was not a qualified voter in said district to show by evidence the lack of qualifications on the part of said chairman in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that he could be qualified under either of the heads stated in section 11, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894. The appellant alleges in his appeal that the "chairman's name does not appear on the assessment roll and said chairman does not send children to school in this district." A person whose name does not appear on the assessment roll and does not send children to school in his district may notwithstanding be a qualified voter in the district under the provisions of said section 11, above cited. Under the provisions of the Consolidated School Act of 1864, chapter 555, of the Laws of 1864, prior to April 29, 1893, no method was prescribed as to the election of school district officers, except in districts having more than three hundred children. By chapter 500, of the Laws of 1893, which was approved by the Governor on April 29, 1893, and became operative on that date, subdivision 4, of section 16, of title 7, of said chapter 555, of the Laws of 1864 was amended requiring that such district officers shall be elected by ballot. Section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, which took effect on June 30, 1894, enacts that all such district officers shall be elected by ballot and prescribes the manner in which such elections shall be conducted.

It does not appear that at said annual school meeting in said district that a suitable ballot box was provided by the trustee, nor that two inspectors of election were appointed in the manner determined by the meeting, nor that a poll list was kept containing the name of every person whose vote was received was kept by the district clerk or the clerk for the time of the meeting, nor that written or printed or partly written and partly printed ballots containing the name of the persons voted for for the respective offices of trustee, district clerk and collector were cast by the qualified voters of the district present at such meeting and desiring to vote, nor that any such vote was canvassed by such inspectors of election and the result of the ballot announced to the chairman of the meeting, and by said chairman to the meeting. The copy of the proceedings of said meeting, as set out in the answer to the appeal, fails to state that two inspectors of election were appointed or that a poll list was kept. It is stated that W. C. Turner was elected clerk and L. H. Chamberlin was elected collector, but it does not state how either of them was elected. The statement therein relative to the election of a trustee is as follows: "A motion was made and seconded 'that the clerk cast one ballot for P. G. Frutchev for trustee for one year,' which motion was amended so as to read, 'that the meeting proceed to ballot for trustee.' The amendment was lost. The original motion 'that the clerk cast one ballot for P. G. Frutchev for trustee for one year' was then unanimously carried, whereupon the clerk cast a ballot for P. G. Frutchev for trustee, who was declared elected by the chairman."

The appellant alleges that under the head "nominations in order for trustee" said Frutchev was nominated by one of the voters present for trustee, and then a motion was made and seconded that the secretary be empowered to cast one ballot for said Frutchev, whereupon the appellant made the following amendment to said motion, namely, "that we proceed to ballot for trustee;" that the chairman declared the motion lost; that neither at that time, nor at any other time during the meeting did the chairman put the original motion to vote, but ordered the secretary to cast one ballot for Mr Frutchev, notwithstanding an exception was then taken by the appellant and by other legal voters present. It will be seen that the only conflict between the appellant and respondent as to what actually occurred relative to the election of trustee, is as to whether or not the chairman, after announcing the defeat of the amendment offered by the appellant, put to vote the original motion. The respondent admits that the election of a trustee was not had and conducted as required by section 14, of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, above cited; he admits that a motion was made and entertained by the chairman that the clerk cast one ballot for said Frutchev for trustee, and that the appellant offered an amendment, that the meeting proceed to ballot for trustee. Under the provisions of the school law every qualified voter present at any school district meeting at which an election of a district officer or officers is had, has the right to vote for the person or persons he desires to fill such office or offices, and neither the chairman of the meeting nor any voter or voters present has or have the legal power, directly or indirectly, to deprive him or her of such right.

The method of school meetings in the election of district officers, when but one candidate for an office is presented, of authorizing the clerk or some other person, to cast a ballot for such candidate, is not approved, and is not deemed to be an election of such officer by ballot as required by the provisions of the school law. In a few instances in which it has been indisputably established that all the voters present desired the election of a person nominated for a district office, and no voter asked that a ballot be taken I have sustained such election; but I am satisfied that even when there is no question but that the voters present at a meeting are unanimously in favor of a candidate for a district office, that to comply with the provisions of section 14, of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, the polls should be open for the reception of ballots for said office, and the vote of every qualified voter who presented his or her vote should be received. It is optional with the qualified voter whether he will vote, and when but one candidate is presented for an office and it is apparent that all the qualified voters desire his or her election, and the poll is open and balloting has commenced, and all have voted who wish, by unanimous consent of the voters present, the ballot may be closed, and the votes canvassed and the result announced.

From the papers presented in the appeal herein I am satisfied that it was not the unanimous wish of the qualified voters present at said annual meeting in said district that Frutchey be elected trustee of said district, and that the appellant herein by his said motion, or amendment to a motion, to the effect that the meeting proceed to ballot for trustee, was a request upon his part that a ballot be taken for trustee under the provisions of the school law, and such request should have been complied with.

I find and decide that said P. G. Frutchey was not legally elected as trustee of said district at said annual meeting, nor was said Wilbor C. Turner legally elected district clerk of said district, nor was L. H. Chamberlin legally elected collector of said district.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at said annual school meeting, held on August 6, 1895, in said district no. 10, town of Livonia, Livingston county, relating to the election of a trustee, district clerk and collector of said district, and of each of them, be, and the same are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That the trustee of said district in office at the time said annual school meeting in said district convened, be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district qualified to vote at school meetings of said district for the purpose of electing a district clerk, a collector and a trustee of said district for the present school year.

4637

In the matter of the appeal of William Wendell and others from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 2, 1898, in district 1, Greenfield, Saratoga county, and the decision of the chairman of the meeting that Dudley J. Wait was elected trustee.

At a school district meeting at which school district officers are elected it is the duty of the chairman of the meeting to declare to the meeting the result of each ballot as announced to him by the inspectors of election, and the person or persons having the majority of votes, respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected. Such chairman has no legal authority to decide who is elected as such officer or officers.

Decided October 17, 1898

S. M. Richards, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal relative to the proceedings taken at the annual school meeting held August 2, 1898, in district 1, Greenfield, Saratoga county, and from the decision of the chairman of the meeting that Dudley J. Wait was elected trustee.

Dudley J. Wait and John B. Easton, the chairman of said meeting, have answered such appeal.

The appellants and respondents herein admit that at such annual school meeting, Calvin Hopkins and Dudley J. Wait were each nominated for the office of trustee of said district, and thereupon a ballot was taken for the election of a trustee; that such ballot resulted as follows: Whole number of votes cast, 31, of which Calvin Hopkins received 18 and Dudley J. Wait 13; that upon each of the 13 ballots cast for Wait were written "For trustee, D. J. Wait," and upon each of the 18 ballots cast for Hopkins was written "Calvin Hopkins" only, without the word "trustee" or the words "for trustee;" that after the result of the canvass of the ballots so cast was announced, the chairman of the meeting was asked to render a decision as to who was elected trustee, the said Wait and Hopkins each claiming to have been elected, and thereupon the said chairman decided and declared said Dudley J. Wait elected to the office of trustee of said district.

The respondent, Wait, contends that the ballots cast for Calvin Hopkins not having thereon the word "trustee" or the words "for trustee" were blanks and were not counted in favor of Hopkins, as they did not contain the name of the office for which they were cast, namely, trustee. This contention is not tenable.

A "ballot" is a written or printed paper that expresses a voter's choice. A "blank" is a paper containing no written or printed matter, intended for some special use, as an unwritten or unprinted paper to be cast as a ballot. In the ballot had for trustee there was not found in the ballot box any paper or papers containing no written or printed matter; but on the contrary, there were found 18 papers each containing the name of Calvin Hopkins. The respondent, Easton, alleges that as the school law, as contained in a circular of instruction issued by this Department, how to hold annual school meetings, a copy of which was handed to him at such meeting, requires that the ballots cast must contain the name of the office for which they were cast, he decided that Wait was elected trustee. It is clear that the respondent, Easton, did not correctly interpret such instructions.

It is true that on page 2 of said circular of instructions it is stated, under the heading "Election of school district officers" "the votes should be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, and contain the names of the person voted for as well as the office, and be deposited in the ballot box"; but on page 8 of such circular, after stating the provisions of the school law relative to ballots for school officers, substantially the same as above quoted from page 2, it is further stated, namely, "The meeting may vote for persons for all the district offices on one ballot, or may vote for each officer separately. If the meeting decides to vote for each district officer separately, as for example, for trustee, a ballot with the name of a person thereon, but without the designation 'for trustee' will be legal."

In decision 4271, made by State Superintendent Crooker, October 5, 1894, in the appeal of Charles Lamoreaux and others from proceedings of annual school meeting held in district 7, Schoharie, Schoharie county, on August 7, 1894, Superintendent Crooker said: "The ballot should be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for and designating the office for which each is voted. This latter provision has especial reference to where all the district officers are elected upon one ballot. When each district officer is balloted for separately the ballot will be valid, having thereon only the name of the person voted for, as each voter has knowledge of the office for which the ballot is being taken and the ballot is for that office only." See page 237, etc. volume 1 of the report of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for 1895.

At the annual school meeting held August 2, 1898, in district 1, Greenfield, Saratoga county, no ballot was taken for the election of all the officers of such district at one and the same time, and upon one ballot containing the name of a person for each office, and designating the office for which each was voted. A ballot was taken for the office of trustee only, and each voter present and voting at the meeting had knowledge that the ballot so taken was for the office of trustee only.

The chairman of a school meeting at which district officers are balloted for, has no legal authority to decide who is elected such officer or officers. Under the provisions of subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that after a canvass of the votes cast the inspectors of election shall announce the result of the ballot to the chairman; that the chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot as announced to him by the inspectors, and the persons having the majority of votes respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected. The chairman can only declare to the meeting the result of the ballot as announced to him by the inspectors of election; the school law determines and declares who are elected, namely, the person or persons having a majority of the votes.

I decide:

1 That in the ballot had at such annual school meeting for a trustee for the district, the 18 ballots found in the ballot box, containing on each the name of Calvin Hopkins, under the consolidated school law and the decisions of this Department, were valid ballots for said Hopkins as trustee of the district; that the inspectors of election in their canvass of the ballots cast for trustee should have counted said 18 ballots for Calvin Hopkins for trustee, and should have announced to the chairman of the meeting as the result of such canvass as follows: Whole number of votes cast for trustee, 31; of which Calvin Hopkins received 18 and Dudley J. Wait 13.

2 That at such annual school meeting, Calvin Hopkins having received, in a ballot had thereat for trustee, a majority of the votes cast, was duly and legally elected trustee of such district.

3 That the decision or declaration made by the chairman of such meeting that Dudley J. Wait was elected trustee of the district was without authority of law, and was void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the said decision or declaration made by John B. Easton, as chairman of the annual meeting held on August 2, 1898, in district 1, Greenfield, Saratoga county, after the ballot had thereat for trustee, and the announcement by the inspectors of election of the result of such ballot that Dudley J. Wait was elected trustee of said district be, and the same is hereby, vacated and set aside.

4392

In the matter of the appeal of John R. Welch and John F. Converse, trustees of school district no. 14, town of Ellisburgh, Jefferson county, from proceedings of annual school meeting held in district no. 14, town of Ellisburgh, Jefferson county.

Where at any school district meeting a district officer is elected by the color or form of an election although not strictly in accordance with the school law, such person becomes a de facto officer of the district and as such is authorized and required to perform the duties of his office until by an order of the Superintendent of Public Instruction such election is declared to be illegal and void. A person elected as trustee of a school district by color of an election and no appeal having been taken from his election, he will be deemed to have been duly elected for the term of time provided for in the school law. The action of a school district meeting, under the assumption that such election was invalid and thereupon electing a person to fill the vacancy assumed by the meeting to exist, without any order of the Superintendent declaring such election invalid, will be illegal and void.

Decided December 17, 1894

A. M. Leffingwell, attorney for appellants

H. B. Pierson, attorney for respondents

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the action of the annual school meeting, held on August 7, 1894, in school district no. 14, town of Ellisburgh, Jefferson county, in the election of a trustee of said district to fill a vacancy in place of one F. A. Wood; and from the election of one Mrs Mary E. Wood as such trustee to fill such vacancy.

The main ground upon which the appeal is taken, as alleged in the appeal, is that there was no vacancy in the office of trustee of said district to be filled by said district meeting, the said appellant, Welch, having been elected by color of an election, at the annual school meeting in said district held on August 22, 1894, as a trustee for the term of three years, and no appeal having been taken from such election, and the said Welch never having resigned or refused to serve or otherwise legally vacate said office.

From the proofs presented the following facts are established: At the commencement of the school year of 1893, to wit, the first Tuesday of August 1893, school district no. 14, town of Ellisburgh, Jefferson county, had the trustees, namely, the appellant, John R. Welch, whose term of office would expire on August 23, 1893, H. D. Laird, whose term of office would expire on the first Tuesday of August 1894, and J. F. Converse, whose term of office would expire on the first Tuesday of August 1895; that some time in August 1893, and prior to the time of the annual school meeting in said district, to wit, on the fourth Tuesday of August 1893, the appellant, John R. Welch, resigned to S. W. Maxson, then school commissioner of the commissioner district in which said school district was situate, said office of trustee then held by him, which resignation was duly accepted by said Maxson; that no special meeting of said school district was called or held for the purpose of supplying the vacancy created in the office of trustee by said resignation of said Welch; that on August 22, 1893, the annual school meeting in said district was held, and among other acts and proceedings had and taken thereat, a motion was made that the clerk be instructed to cast one ballot for John R. Welch, the appellant, for trustee for three years, and the chairman put the motion to a viva voce vote, and not being able to decide, he called for a rising vote, when 16 persons present voted for the motion and 14 against: whereupon the chairman declared the motion adopted, and thereupon the clerk of the meeting cast one ballot for said Welch as trustee of said district for three years, and said Welch was declared elected as such trustee; that no appeal has ever been taken from the said action and proceedings of said annual school meeting to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, nor any submission to him of the question as to the legality of said election of said Welch as trustee upon an agreed statement of facts relative to such election, signed by the contesting parties; that on December 4, 1893, said School Commissioner Maxson, assuming that there was a vacancy in the office of trustee of said school district caused by said resignation of the appellant, Welch, as aforesaid, and the failure of the annual school meeting in August 1893, to elect a trustee, and that such vacancy had existed for more than thirty days, appointed one F. A. Wood as trustee of said school district to fill the vacancy in said office so assumed by him, said Maxson, as existing; that said appellant, Welch, was present at said annual meeting, held on August 22, 1893, and did not then nor has he since declined said office of trustee, nor has he refused to serve as such trustee, and he has not resigned said office or otherwise legally vacated said office, but, on the contrary, has during the time since said annual school meeting acted, to some extent, as such trustee; that the said F. A. Wood, between December 4, 1893, and August 7, 1894, did or performed acts as such trustee; that at the annual school meeting held in said district on August 7, 1894, a motion was made that the meeting proceed to ballot for a trustee to fill vacancy in the place of F. A. Wood who had been so, as aforesaid, appointed by School Commissioner Maxson to fill an assumed vacancy, and the appellant, Welch, offered an opinion by A. M. Leffingwell and a letter of this Department in regard to the annual school meeting held on August 22, 1893, both of which were read to the meeting, whereupon a vote was had upon said motion and the motion was declared adopted, and thereupon a ballot was taken for trustee, and one Mrs Mary E. Wood declared elected; that from such election of Mrs Wood this appeal is taken.

Under the provisions of subdivision 4 of section 15, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1864 as amended, which were in force on August 22, 1893, school district officers were required to be elected by ballot. It is clear from the proofs that the appellant, John R. Welch, was not elected a trustee of said school district at such annual meeting in accordance with the provisions of the school law then in force. Every qualified voter at a school meeting has the right to vote by ballot for whom he or she desires for any school district office, and such voter can not be deprived of such right by the action of such meeting, either directly or indirectly. The method of electing a trustee pursued at said meeting, if allowed at all, should only be allowed when such motion is the unanimous wish of the qualified voters present at such meeting. Under the school law, the only person who has the power to decide whether or not school district officers have been legally elected is the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the only method in which the question can be brought before him for a decision that will be binding upon all parties and the school district is by an appeal from the action and proceedings of the school meeting on the election of such officers, or by a submission to him of the question of the legality of such election by the contesting parties upon a statement of facts agreed upon and signed by such contestants. No appeal or submission, as above stated, has been taken or made relative to the action or proceedings of said annual school meeting held August 22, 1893, nor relative to the election of the appellant, Welch, as trustee, and, therefore, no decision has been made by me that the election of said Welch was illegal.

Where at any school district meeting a school district officer is elected by the color or form of an election, although not strictly in accordance with the provisions of the school law, such person by such color of election becomes a de facto officer of the district, and as such de facto officer is authorized and required to perform the duties of the office until by an order of the Superintendent of Public Instruction such election is declared to be illegal and void. Until a decision is made declaring void the proceedings of the meeting that elected him, he is to all intents and purposes a legal officer of the district so far as the public and third persons are concerned while acting in his official capacity for the district.

After said Welch, in August 1893, and prior to the annual meeting of said district, resigned the office of trustee and such resignation was accepted, there was a vacancy in said office which could have been supplied by a special meeting of the qualified voters of said district for the balance of the unexpired term. No such special meeting was had; but at the annual meeting of the district, held on August 22, 1893, the appellant, Welch was, by the color or form of an election, elected a trustee of the district for the term of three years. When on December 4, 1893, Commissioner Maxson made his order appointing F. A. Wood as trustee of said district to fill a vacancy, there was no vacancy in the office of trustee of said district existing then; and said commissioner erred in assuming there was such vacancy, or that the annual meeting held in August, 1893, failed to elect a trustee for the full term of three years.

I find and decide. That upon the facts established herein and the reasons hereinbefore stated, the action of the annual school meeting held in said district on August 7, 1894, in the election of Mrs Mary E. Wood, as trustee of said district, was illegal and void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That so much of the action and proceedings of the annual meeting held on August 7, 1894, in school district no. 14 of the town of Ellsburgh, Jefferson county, as relates to the election of Mrs Mary E. Wood, as a trustee of said district, to fill a vacancy in place of F. A. Wood, or any vacancy, be, and the same hereby is, vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

4375

In the matter of the appeal of John Hollenbeck from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 3, town of Erin, Chemung county.

An informal ballot for district officers is not recognized in the school law, but there is no provision of said law which forbids the qualified voters at a district meeting at which any district officer or officers are to be elected, from taking an informal ballot to ascertain the views or wishes of such voters as to the person or persons to hold said office or offices. When said meeting adopts a resolution to take such informal ballot, such ballot is not a ballot under the school law for the election of a person to fill the office, and the ruling of the chairman of the school meeting that the person receiving the majority of votes was elected trustee of the district was error.

Decided September 27, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

The appeal and affidavits in support thereof, in the above entitled matter, were filed in this Department on August 26, 1895. No answer to said appeal having been filed in this Department, the allegations contained in the appeal and proofs are taken as admitted.

The allegations contained in the appeal herein, and affidavits relating to proceedings taken in the election of a trustee and voting taxes, are substantially as follows:

That an annual school meeting was held in district no. 3, town of Erin, Chemung county, on August 6, 1895; that a chairman and secretary of the meeting and two inspectors of election were chosen; that the trustee had neglected to furnish a suitable ballot box to receive the ballots cast in the election of district officers; that a motion was duly made, seconded, entertained by the chairman and unanimously adopted that the meeting proceed to take an informal ballot for a trustee of said district; that such informal ballot was taken, two candidates being voted for, at which 43 votes were cast, of which one person received 20 votes and another person received 23 votes; that on said informal ballot at least four qualified voters of said district, then present, did not vote but intended to vote when a formal ballot for trustee should be taken; that after the result of said informal ballot was announced a motion was made and seconded that the meeting proceed to a formal ballot for trustee for the district; but the chairman of the meeting ruled said motion out of order and refused to put the said motion to a vote; that said chairman was asked to set aside the proceedings had in said informal ballot, and that the meeting proceed to the election of a trustee, which was denied, and said chairman declared the person who received a majority of the votes cast at said informal ballot duly elected as trustee of the said district. It further appears that two propositions for a levy of a tax, for two different purposes, were brought before said meeting for action, and that the vote thereon was not taken by ballot, or by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters of the district present and voting upon each of said propositions, as required by the school law; but such vote was taken viva voce.

By section 14, of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, all school district officers shall be elected by ballot, and the trustees of each school district are required to provide a suitable ballot box at elections of district officers.

An informal ballot for district officers is not recognized in the school law, but there is no provision of said law which forbids the qualified voters at a district meeting at which any district officer or officers are to be elected, from taking an informal ballot to ascertain the views or wishes of such voters as to the person or persons to hold said office or offices. When said meeting adopts a resolution to take such informal ballot such ballot is not a ballot under the school law for the election of a person to fill the office, and the ruling of the chairman of the annual school meeting, held in said district no. 3, town of Erin, that by and under said informal ballot the person receiving the majority of votes was elected trustee of the district was error, as it was apparent that no voter was misled, but all the voters present clearly understood that in and by such ballots they were simply giving expression of their choice for trustee, or putting candidates for the office in nomination, to be voted for when a regular ballot for the election of a trustee should be had. By such wrongful exercise of power on the part of the chairman of said meeting, in refusing to put the motion for a formal ballot for trustee, the qualified voters of said district present at said meeting were prevented from exercising the right accorded them under the school law in the election of a trustee for said district.

In subdivision 18, of section 14, article 1, title 7, of said Consolidated School Law of 1894 it is enacted: "In all propositions arising at said district meetings, involving the expenditure of money, or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, the vote thereon shall be by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such district meetings."

It appears that in the action of said annual meeting in authorizing the levy of two taxes the vote thereon was not taken by either of the methods required by the provision of law above cited.

I find and decide that at the annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in school district no. 3, town of Erin, Chemung county, no one was legally elected a trustee of said district; that no legal authorization of a levy of a tax or taxes for any sum whatever was made at said annual meeting; that all proceedings had and taken at said meeting, relating to the election of a trustee of said district, should be vacated and set aside as illegal and void; that a special meeting of the district should be held for the purpose of electing a trustee of the district, and to act upon propositions for raising money for school purposes and authorizing the levy of a tax upon the taxable property of said district therefor.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at said annual meeting held on August 6, 1895, in said district no. 3, town of Erin, Chemung county, in the election of a trustee of said district, and in authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes in said district, be, and the same are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district no. 3, town of Erin, Chemung county, be called for the purpose of electing a trustee of said district, and to act upon propositions for raising money for school purposes and authorizing the levy of a tax upon the taxable property of said district therefor.

4200

In the matter of the appeal of W. A. Roedel, F. J. Tolles and Walter C. Reid, from proceedings of annual meeting in union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county.

At an annual meeting of a union free school district for the election of trustees, three persons were elected, when only two persons should have been elected for a full term of three years. Held, that the person elected to fill an alleged vacancy, no such vacancy existing, such election was illegal and void. The voters in a union free school district have no authority, under the school law, to elect a district clerk.

Decided November 15, 1893.

Herbert B. Lent, attorney for respondents

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellants, three members of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, appeal from action and proceedings of the annual meeting of said district in the election of three persons as trustees of said district, and of a person as district clerk. The appellants ask for my decision to questions relative to the action of said meeting in relation to other matters before said meeting. Nathan Johnson, a member of said board of education, has interposed an answer to said appeal, and the appellants have filed a reply to such answer. Both the appeal and answer herein have annexed to them, a copy of the proceedings of said annual meeting, signed by the chairman and secretary of said meeting.

It appears that said meeting was called to order at 7.30 p. m., on August 22, 1893, and Nathan Johnson was duly elected chairman, and W. E. Heyward, secretary; that a motion was made and adopted to elect two trustees for full term, and one trustee to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Mr Belmont; that two tellers were appointed and a ballot was taken with the result as follows: Theodore D. Rich received 109, and Fred H. Hart 108; Thomas Beattie received 56, and Lawrence B. Holler 55, for the full term of three years; Lawrence B. Holler received 108 votes to fill vacancy, one year; and E. L. Tourmine received 108 votes for district clerk; that upon the result of the ballot being announced the chairman declared Theodore D. Rich, Fred H. Hart and Lawrence B. Holler to be duly elected to fill the offices of trustees, and E. L. Tourmine, as district clerk.

The contention of the appellants is that there were but two trustees to be elected, to wit, for the full term of three years, and that the election of Mr Holler, as trustee, was illegal and void, as there was no vacancy in the board of trustees to be filled; also, that the meeting had no power to elect a district clerk.

It is admitted by the appellants and respondent that the board of trustees of said union free school district, as constituted at the establishment of said union free school, consisted of six members, and it does not appear that such number has been changed.

It appears that in 1889, Thomas R. Hodge and Edward Cordial were elected trustees for the full term of three years, and their terms of office would expire in 1892; that in 1890, Theodore D. Rich and L. B. Halsey were elected trustees for the full term of three years and their terms of office would expire in 1893; that Halsey resigned March 8, 1892, and Mr Reid was appointed in place of Halsey; that in 1891, Nathan Johnson and William Hitchcock were elected trustees for the full term of three years, and their terms of office would expire in 1894; that Hitchcock resigned April 15, 1892, and Mr Roedel was appointed in place of Hitchcock; that in 1892, it was necessary, at the annual meeting, to elect three trustees for three years in place of Messrs Hodge and Cordial, one trustee for two years in place of Hitchcock, and one trustee for one year in place of Halsey; that at the annual meeting in 1892, W. A. Roedel and Walter C. Reid were elected trustees for the full term of three years; F. J. Tolles for trustee for the term of two years, and F. W. Belmont for the term of one year; that after said annual meeting of 1892, said board consisted of the following: Roedel and Reid, each for three years; their respective terms expiring in 1895; Johnson and Tolles, for two years; their respective terms expiring in 1894, and Rich and Belmont for one year; their respective terms expiring in 1893; that Belmont removed from the district in the spring of 1893, and School Commissioner Noxon appointed Mr Yale as trustee, to fill the vacancy caused by such removal of Mr Belmont. It appears from the foregoing that at said annual meeting, held in said district, in August 1893, the terms of office as trustees of Messrs Rich and Belmont respectively expired, and said meeting had the legal right, and it was its duty to elect two trustees for the full term of three years in place of said Rich and Yale, appointed in the place of Belmont; that said meeting did elect Theodore D. Rich and Fred H. Hart as trustees for the full term of three years; that said board of trustees of said district, since August 22, 1893, is constituted as follows: Nathan Johnson and F. J. Tolles, whose respective terms of office will expire in August 1894; W. A. Roedel and W. C. Reid, whose respective terms of office will expire in August 1895, and Theodore D. Rich and Fred H. Hart, whose respective terms of office will expire in August 1896.

I find and decide that the action of said annual meeting of said district, in voting for L. B. Holler, as trustee, for an unexpired term, was illegal and void, there not then existing any vacancy in the unexpired term of any trustee that the meeting had the legal power to fill, said meeting having the authority and power only to elect two trustees for a full term of three years in place of Messrs Rich and Yale; said Yale having been appointed in place of Belmont, who had removed from the district, before the expiration of his term of office.

Section 7 of title 9 of the Consolidated School Law of 1864, as amended by chapter 161 of the Laws of 1877, provides that boards of education of union free school districts may, with the advice and consent of a majority of the legal voters entitled to vote on questions of taxation, to be had at an annual meeting of the inhabitants, appoint a clerk to the board. Such appointed clerk must be a resident of the district, and a person other than a trustee or a teacher in the employ of the board. The clerk so appointed shall be the general librarian of the district, and also perform all the clerical and other duties pertaining to his office. For his services he shall be entitled to receive a salary, which shall not be greater than twenty-five cents a year for each scholar, to be computed from the actual average daily attendance for the previous year, as set forth in the annual report to the school commissioner, or less, as in the best judgment of said legal voters to be had at such annual meeting; such consent and approval not to be for a longer period of time than one year. In case no provision is made at an annual meeting of the inhabitants for the appointment and payment of a clerk, then, and in that case, the board will appoint one of their own number to act as clerk.

Prior to the amendment of section 7, 1877, said section provided that said board should elect one of their number clerk thereof, who should also be the general librarian of the district. It seems that said union free school district no. 1, of East Chester, has for a number of years elected a "district clerk" and did, at the last annual meeting, elect one E. L. Townine "district clerk;" and the said board of education have elected annually one of their number as clerk.

Under section 7, above referred to, the board of education can appoint a clerk, not a member of said board, who will be entitled to a salary when so authorized by an annual meeting. The annual meeting does not "appoint," but may "advise and consent" to the appointment of a clerk at a certain salary, which salary is limited to twenty-five cents for each pupil of the number in actual average daily attendance, as stated in said section. Such authorization of the meeting to such appointment is valid for one year only. The clerk so appointed does not hold over after his term of office, which is one year from the date of the annual meeting. If no provision is made by the annual meeting for a clerk, the board shall appoint one of their own number as clerk; but no salary or compensation can be paid for his services.

The annual meeting in said district did not "advise and consent" to the appointment of a clerk at a certain salary; it elected a clerk, but that it had not the legal right to do, for by section 7, the appointment must be made by the board. Not having advised and consented to the appointment of clerk at a certain salary in the manner provided by said section 7, the election of the meeting of said Toumine as district clerk was illegal and void, and the board of education had the legal authority to elect one of said board as clerk, but who can not be paid any salary or compensation for his services.

By section 15 of title 9 of the Consolidated School Law of 1864, it is provided that it shall be the duty of boards of education, at the annual meeting of the district, besides any other report or statement required by law, to present a detailed statement in writing of the amount of money which will be required for the ensuing year for school purposes, exclusive of the public moneys, specifying the several purposes for which it will be required, and the amount of each. By section 16 of said title 9 it is provided that after the presentation of such statement, the question shall be taken upon voting the necessary taxes to meet the estimated expenditures, and when demanded by any voter present, the question shall be taken upon each item separately, and the inhabitants may increase the amount of any estimated expenditures, or reduce the same, except for teachers' wages, and the ordinary contingent expenses of the school or schools.

At said annual meeting in said district said board submitted to the meeting a detailed statement in writing of the amount of money which would be required for the year ensuing for school purposes, exclusive of public moneys, specifying the several purposes for which it will be required, and the amount for each, and the said several sums amounted in the aggregate to $4400. No voter present at the meeting demanded that the question should be taken upon each item separately. A motion was made that the amount to be raised be the sum of $3800, without specifying the several purposes which it was for or the amount of each, and upon a ballot taken upon this motion 93 votes were cast, of which 58 votes were for an appropriation of $3800 and 35 votes were against any appropriation. The meeting had the legal right to reduce the amount estimated by the board to be required for the year then ensuing for school purposes, except for teachers' wages and the ordinary contingent expenses of the schools, and the vote to raise the sum of $3800 was legally adopted. The action of the meeting in voting the sum of $3800 can not be ignored by the board, nor can the board assess the amount of $4400 as presented by it to the meeting. The meeting failed to designate the specific purposes for which the sum of $3800 should be expended and the amount for each purpose, and I can not direct the board as to the expenditure thereof, nor indicate in what items submitted by the board the reduction is to be made.

Section 17 of title 9 of the Consolidated School Law provides that, if the inhabitants shall neglect or refuse to vote the sum or sums estimated necessary for teachers' wages, after applying thereto the public moneys, and other moneys received or to be received, for that purpose, or if they shall neglect or refuse to vote the sum or sums estimated necessary for ordinary contingent expenses, the board may levy a tax for the same, in like manner as if the same had been voted by the inhabitants. A motion was made at said meeting to raise $625 in addition to the sum already voted for the purpose of reimbursing the various funds overdrawn by reason of the establishment of the new school, and for other expenses not provided for in the appropriation of last year, and said motion was laid upon the table. It was optional with the voters present to lay the motion upon the table or to have taken a ballot upon it. The meeting decided to lay the motion upon the table, and their action was legal. There is no provision of the school law which required that a ballot should be taken upon it. The proposed appropriation of $625, in addition to the sum already appropriated, not having been voted for by the meeting, there is no legal authority in the board to include the same in the tax list and assessment of the district.

Section 20 of title 9 of the Consolidated School Law provides that it shall also be the duty of said boards of education, respectively, to have reference in all expenditures and contracts to the amount of moneys which shall be appropriated, or subject to their order or drafts, during the current year, and not to exceed that amount. The qualified voters in union free school districts, duly and legally assembled, only, under the school law, have authority to make appropriations of money and vote taxes for maintaining schools in their respective districts. Boards of trustees have no authority, under the school laws, to assess and levy taxes, other than for such purposes and such sums as they are so directed by the district meetings, except when such meetings neglect or refuse to vote sums necessary for teachers' wages and for ordinary contingent expenses. Said boards have no legal authority to exceed in their contracts and expenditures the sums appropriated and voted at the district meeting. When the district meeting votes a specific sum for a specific purpose, no part of sum so voted can be legally expended by said boards for any purpose other than that for which it was appropriated; nor can said boards legally transfer unexpended balances in any of such funds to make good a shortage that may exist in any other fund except by consent of the district meeting, as said boards have no legal authority to exceed the sums appropriated for special purposes, and, hence, there should not be any shortage.

So much of the appeal herein as is taken from the action and proceedings had and taken at the annual meeting held in union free school district no. 1, East Chester, Westchester county, relative to the election of Lawrence B. Holler as trustee of said district for an unexpired term, and the election of E. L. Toumine as district clerk, is sustained, and, as to the other matters, said appeal is dismissed.

It is ordered that so much of the action and proceedings of the annual meeting held on August 22, 1893, in union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, as relates to the election of Lawrence B. Holler as a trustee of said district, and the election of E. L. Toumine as district clerk, be, and the same hereby is, vacated and set aside as illegal and void; and the election of said Holler as trustee and said Toumine as district clerk is, and each of them is, hereby declared to be illegal and void.

4183

In the matter of the appeal of John B. Russell and others, from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held August 22, 1893, in union free school district no. 2, Wawarsing, Ulster county, in the election of trustee.

Where, at an annual school meeting for the election of a trustee, 67 ballots were cast, of which Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek received 33 votes, Louis A. Hoornbeek received 32 votes, S. A. Hoornbeek received 1 vote and "C. D. B." received 1 vote, and the one vote for S. A. Hoornbeek was given to Louis A. Hoornbeek, and the ballot with "C. D. B." was given to Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek, and said Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek declared to be elected. Held, that there was no election of trustee and a special meeting of the district was ordered for the purpose of electing a trustee.

Decided September 22, 1893

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is from the proceedings of the annual meeting, held in union free school district no. 2, Wawarsing, Ulster county, held on August 22, 1893, in the election of a trustee.

It appears, from the papers presented upon this appeal, that 67 ballots were cast for the office of trustee, as follows: Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek received 33 votes; Louis A. Hoornbeek received 32 votes; S. A. Hoornbeek received 1 vote, and "C. D. B." received 1 vote. In the canvass of the ballots so received the one vote for S. A. Hoornbeek was given to Louis A. Hoornbeek, and the ballot with "C. D. B." upon it was given to Lewis D. Hoornbeek, and result of the ballot declared by the chairman of the meeting was that there were 67 votes cast, of which Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek received 34, and Louis A. Hoornbeek received 33.

Trustees of the school districts of the State must be elected by ballot and, except in school districts where the election of trustees is had under chapter 248, of the Laws of 1878, and the amendments thereof, the persons having a majority of votes respectively, shall be elected.

At the annual meeting held in district no. 2, Wawarsing, Ulster county, 67 persons voted for trustee, a majority of which would be 34 votes. It appears that no one received 34 votes. The counting of the ballot for S. A. Hoornbeek for Louis A. Hoornbeek and the ballot for "C. D. B." for Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek was error on the part of the officers of such meeting. The ballot for S. A. Hoornbeek should have been counted as a vote for the person whose name appeared upon said ballot, and not for Louis A. Hoornbeek. The ballot for "C. D. B." was a defective ballot and could not be counted for Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek, nor for any person, as there was not upon said ballot the name of any person. The ballot for trustee at said meeting should have been reported as follows: whole number of votes cast, 67; necessary to a choice, 34; Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek received 33; Louis A. Hoornbeek, 32; S. A. Hoornbeek received 1, and one ballot was defective.

No person having received a majority of the votes cast, there was no election of a trustee, and another ballot should have been taken.

It has been repeatedly held by the courts of this State, that a canvassing board has no power to determine that votes returned as cast for one man were, in fact, intended for another person, bearing another and different, although similar, name, and has no power to count and allow such votes for such other person.

It is clear the ballot, having upon it the letters "C. D. B." was defective, and that the officers of the meeting had no authority of law to count the ballot for Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek; neither had they authority to count the ballot cast for S. A. Hoornbeek to Louis A. Hoornbeek, nor for any other person than the one whose name was written thereon.

In my opinion the appeal herein should be sustained.

I do find and decide:

That Louis D. B. Hoornbeek was not elected as a trustee of union free school district no. 2, town of Wawarsing, Ulster county, at the annual meeting of said district, held on August 22, 1893, and that no person was elected a trustee of said district at said meeting. That the appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That so much of the proceedings of the annual meeting of said union free school district no. 2, town of Wawarsing, Ulster county, held on August 22, 1893, as declared and decided that Lewis D. B. Hoornbeek was elected a trustee of said district, be, and the same hereby is, vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That a special meeting of the qualified voters of said union free school district no. 2, town of Wawarsing, Ulster county, be forthwith called, under the provisions of school laws, for the purpose of electing a trustee for said district to fill the vacancy in the office of trustee, created by the failure of said district to elect a trustee at the annual meeting held therein on August 22, 1893.

3844

In the matter of the appeal of Lewis S. Turner v. Charles A. Davis, trustee of school district no. 7, of the town of Mount Sinai, Suffolk county.

An election of a trustee at a school meeting at which there were rival candidates, and no sufficient opportunity was afforded to get the expression of the voters, set aside and a new election ordered.

Decided December 9, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant, a voter in school district no. 7, of the town of Mount Sinai, county of Suffolk, appeals from the proceedings had at the last annual meeting held in said district, so far as they relate to the election of trustee.

The facts, which are not disputed, are that both appellant and respondent were placed in nomination for trustee at the annual meeting. The chairman, a brother of respondent, put the question in the manner, "all those in favor of Charles A. Davis for trustee, say aye," and several responded, "all those opposed, say no," to which no one responded, and the chairman therefore declared Mr Davis elected.

This manner of voting for district officers, when two persons are placed in nomination, almost invariably produces dissatisfaction and discord in school districts.

As my predecessor, Judge Ruggles, observed in a case similar to this, such elections are irregular. A vote for rival candidates should be taken by ballot, calling the roll, by a division of the house, count, or some method by which the will of each individual voter shall be ascertained, a reasonable opportunity afforded for interposing challenges, and a fair expression of the voters secured.

In the case before me, I do not consider there was a fair expression given — at most, but few of those present voted, and it would seem that a majority did not vote upon the question.

I conclude that the election of respondent must be set aside, and a new election ordered. The appeal is sustained. The district clerk is hereby ordered and directed to give notice of a special meeting to elect a trustee within ten days from the date of this decision.

3647

In the matter of the appeal of John A. Strong v. joint district no. 1, of the towns of Harriestown, Franklin county, and of North Elba and St Armand, in Essex county.

A person was chosen trustee, and because but few persons voted he asked that another election be had, in order, as he said, to determine the sense of all voters present. This was done and another was elected. Thereupon the person first chosen claimed the office under the election first held. Held, that he was estopped from setting up his claim.

Decided December 2, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

At the annual school meeting held in the district above named, a controversy arose in reference to the election of trustee, which it is sought to settle by means of this appeal. It seems that, after action upon the report of the trustee, it was moved and carried that John A. Strong, the appellant, be elected trustee for the ensuing year. Upon this motion, but a small portion of the persons present voted, and Mr Strong stated in substance, that he preferred that there should be another vote taken and have an expression of the sentiments of the district, and, at his instance, the action was rescinded. It was then agreed to take a vote by ballot. The statements of the different parties disagree as to the understanding of the meeting touching the ballot which was taken. The appellant insists that it was a ballot to determine the election of a trustee. Others say that it was agreed that the voters present should signify by a secret vote, whether or not they would have Strong for trustee. The result of the vote seems to support the latter claim, for, of the 17 votes which were in the box, 5 were for Strong, 8 were marked "no," 2 were marked "against," and 2 were blank. Following this, it was moved and carried that the meeting proceed to ballot for trustee. A ballot was taken and 15 votes were cast, of which A. S. Wright received 11 and John Strong 4.

Mr Strong now claims that he was elected by acclamation when the meeting first voted by the uplifted hand, and again by rising, upon the motion to elect him trustee. This claim can not be sustained. Whether he was elected at that time or not is immaterial, for he waived any right which he might have gained to the office. It was at his instance that the meeting proceeded to determine the matter in another way. The appellant also claims that he was elected upon the first written ballot taken. This claim would undoubtedly be sustained if there was sufficient reason for believing that it was the purpose of the meeting to elect a trustee upon that ballot, but the proofs do not sustain such a position. The fact that the meeting had just been voting aye and no upon a motion that Strong be trustee, and the fact that, when the written ballot was taken, 5 votes were for Strong and 10 indicated the opposition of that number of persons to him, while they did not vote for another person, sustain the claim that it was understood that that ballot was taken for the purpose of determining whether or not Strong should be elected trustee, and not who should be chosen if he was not. The proceedings are somewhat irregular. The records are not complete, but I feel bound to sustain the manifest will of the majority of the voters present in the district meeting, as it is clearly indicated by the several votes which were taken, and particularly by the last one, in which Mr Wright received 11 votes and Mr Strong 4.

The appeal is, therefore, dismissed.

4261

In the matter of the appeal of James C. Dillon v. the election of trustees of union free school district no. 2, town of Newtown, Queens county, May 31, 1894.

Where at a school district meeting district officers are elected it is the duty of the inspectors of election, after the polls shall be closed, to count the ballots found in the ballot box without unfolding them except so far as to ascertain that each ballot is single, and by comparing the ballots found in the box with the number shown by the poll list to have been deposited therein. If the ballots found in the box shall be more than the number of ballots shown to have been deposited therein, such ballots shall all be replaced without being unfolded in the box from which they were taken and one of the inspectors shall, without seeing the same, publicly draw out as many ballots as shall be equal to said excess, and without unfolding them place them in some place apart from the other ballots. If two or more ballots shall be found in the ballot box so folded together as to present the appearance of a single ballot, they shall be destroyed if the whole number of ballots in such ballot box exceeds the whole number of ballots shown by the poll list to have been deposited therein, and not otherwise.

Decided July 25, 1894

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellant in the above entitled matter appeals from the action and decision of the officers of an adjourned school district meeting held on May 31, 1894, in school district no. 2, town of Newtown, Queens county, to consider the question of the establishment of a union free school therein, that one C. H. George was elected a trustee or member of the board of education of said district.

The following facts appear to be established: That on May 24, 1894, a duly called special meeting of the inhabitants qualified to vote, of school district no. 2, of the town of Newtown, Queens county, was held at the schoolhouse in Corona in said town, to act upon the proposition for the establishment of a union free school therein; that a resolution for the establishment of a union free school in said district was unanimously adopted; that it was voted that the board of education of such union free school district consist of five members, and thereupon the meeting adjourned to May 31, 1894; that on May 31, 1894, said meeting convened pursuant to adjournment and it was voted that one of said trustees or members of said board of education serve for one year, two for two years, and two for three years; that four tellers or inspectors of election were chosen and the meeting proceeded to the election by ballot of said five trustees or members of the board of education, all of said five trustees being voted for at once on one ballot, but designating the term of office of each class respectively; that after the polls were closed a canvass of the votes was made by the inspectors, and it was found that the poll list had 355 names recorded of persons who had voted, and the votes in the ballot box were counted without opening any ballot that was folded, and without unfolding any of said ballots so far as to ascertain that each ballot was single, and the number of said ballots was 355, thus agreeing with the number of names upon the poll list; that said inspectors then proceeded to unfold the ballots and canvass the same, when they found two ballots so folded together as to present the appearance of a single ballot, and they decided that said ballot was fraudulent and ought not to be counted and did not count the same; that said two ballots so folded as one had thereon and on each the name of the appellant herein as a trustee for the term of three years; that the result of the said election, so far as related to the election of two trustees for the term of three years as ascertained and declared by said inspectors and the chairman of said meeting, was as follows: That C. F. Schwartz received 207 votes and was elected, and that the appellant herein, J. C. Dillon, received 172 votes, and C. H. George, 173 votes, with certain votes for sundry persons, and that said C. H. George was elected.

By chapter 680 of the Laws of 1892, being "An act in relation to the elections, constituting chapter 6 of the general laws," article 5, section 114, relating to the canvass of votes by inspectors, it is enacted: As soon as the polls of an election are closed . . . the inspectors of election thereat shall publicly canvass and estimate the votes and not adjourn or postpone the canvass until it shall be fully completed. They shall commence by comparing the two poll lists with each other, correcting any mistakes therein, and by counting the ballots found in the ballot boxes without unfolding them, except so far as to ascertain that each ballot is single, and by comparing the ballots found in each box with the number shown by the poll lists to have been deposited therein. If the ballots found in any box shall be more than the number of ballots so shown to have been deposited therein, such ballots shall all be replaced, without being unfolded, in the box from which they were taken, and one of the inspectors or canvassers shall, without seeing the same, publicly draw out as many ballots as shall be equal to such excess and, without unfolding them, deposit them in the box for unvoted ballots. If two or more ballots shall be found in a ballot box, so folded together as to present the appearance of a single ballot, they shall be destroyed, if the whole number of ballots in such ballot box exceeds the whole number of ballots shown by the poll lists to have been deposited therein, and not otherwise."

I hold that the foregoing provisions of law relative to the canvass of votes by inspectors at elections in the State should govern the canvass of votes by inspectors or tellers at elections held in the school districts in the State.

It is clear that the inspectors at the school meeting in school district no. 2, town of Newtown, held on May 31, 1894, in the canvass of votes cast for members of the board of education, did not follow the provisions of the law above cited. There was one ballot box and poll list. In counting the ballots found in the box, to compare the number therein with the names contained on the poll list, the inspectors should have unfolded such ballot so far as to ascertain that each ballot was single. This they did not do. Had they done this, they would have ascertained the fact of the two ballots folded together as one, and on separating them, and then counting the ballots, they would have ascertained that there were 356 ballots, which would have been an excess of one over the number of voters shown upon the poll list, and it would then have been their duty to replace all of the ballots in the box, and one of the inspectors, without seeing the same, should have publicly drawn out one ballot, which ballot should have been destroyed. The action of the inspectors in treating the two ballots found folded together as one, as fraudulent or defective, and rejecting them, was not lawful, and hence there was no legal or valid election of one member of said board of education for three years, and said C. H. George was not duly or legally elected a member of the board of education for said district for the term of three years from the first Tuesday of August, 1894, nor for any term of time. Neither Dillon nor George could be legally elected a trustee unless one of them received a majority of the whole number of votes cast. There were 355 votes cast, of which 178 is a majority, and neither of them received that number of votes.

The election of Mr Sandford for one year, Messrs Howard and Weed for two years and Mr Schwartz for three years is not in any manner affected by the action of inspectors in rejecting the two ballots.

There is no proof whatever that said inspectors, or either of them, in rejecting said two ballots containing the name of the appellant, did so knowingly or wilfully, nor that they did so in order to defeat the election of the appellant as trustee; nor is there any proof that said inspectors, or either of them, was or is inimical or hostile to the appellant.

I am satisfied that said inspectors, in the canvass of said ballots, acted in good faith.

I find and decide that C. H. George was not elected a trustee or member of the board of education for the term of three years at said meeting of the inhabitants qualified to vote in school district no. 2, town of Newtown, Queens county, on May 31, 1894, and that but one person, to wit, Mr Schwartz, was legally elected at said meeting as such trustee for the term of three years; and that but four of the five members which it was voted at the meeting, held on May 24, 1894, the board of education of said district should consist of, have been legally elected.

The appeal herein is sustained.

3662

In the matter of the appeal of Suel Chaddock and others, from the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held August 30, 1887, in school district no. 3, town of LeRoy, Genesee county.

In an election for trustee it was found that the ballots overran the number of qualified electors present by two. Thereupon two ballots were withdrawn. Afterward it was found that one blank ballot was cast and this was thrown out and one of the two withdrawn was put in its place. A candidate was then declared elected by a majority of one. Held, that the proceedings were irregular and a new election must be ordered. Decided January 24, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the annual election of trustee in school district no. 3, town of LeRoy, Genesee county, and recites as the grounds thereof the following:

1 That when a ballot was taken it was discovered that the votes cast were in excess of the number of names upon the poll list; that thereupon two ballots were withdrawn from the pile of ballots cast and that subsequently one ballot remaining was found to be a blank, when one of the two ballots withdrawn was replaced and the blank thrown out and then the vote gave one Albert Anderson, a majority of one vote for trustee and he was declared elected.

2 That said Anderson was not a qualified voter at said annual meeting and therefore ineligible to the office of trustee.

3 That one person voted who was not a qualified voter.

No answer has been interposed and in deciding this appeal I do not consider it necessary to go into the second or third grounds of appeal.

The proceedings of the meeting in first withdrawing two ballots from those which had been voted, then replacing one for a blank ballot found, can not be upheld.

The election of Anderson is held to be void and it is hereby ordered that a special meeting be called within fifteen days from the date of this decision to fill the vacancy existing in the office of trustee.

4410

In the matter of the appeal of Michael Dippold and others, from proceedings of a school meeting held on August 7, 1895, in district no. 3, city of Kingston, Ulster county, in the election of school district officers.

Where at the annual election of school district officers in a common school district having more than 300 pupils therein, the trustees, as inspectors of election, appointed one Powers, a qualified voter of the district, to take the votes from the voters and deposit such votes in the ballot box, no other power or duty intrusted to said inspectors by law being delegated, or given to, or exercised by said Powers. Held, that such appointment was an irregularity on the part of such inspectors, which is not approved by this Department, but does not warrant the setting aside of said election. Irregularities, mistakes or omissions on the part of election officers will not vitiate the election or defeat the will of the electors as shown by their votes.

Decided December 18, 1895

Brinnier & Newcomb, attorneys for appellants

G. D. B. Hasbrouck, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellants in the above-entitled matter appeal from the election of officers of school district no. 3, city of Kingston, at a meeting held in said district on August 7, 1895, but from an examination of the appeal and the statements contained in the affidavits annexed thereto, it is in fact an appeal from the election of Henry Beck as a trustee of said district.

The grounds upon which the appeal is brought, in substance, are, that the trustees of the district, although present, did not act as inspectors of such election, nor did they designate any one of their number to act as chairman or to receive the votes cast; that they did not act as inspectors and receive the votes as required by statute, nor lawfully appoint or designate any other person to act as inspector and receive the votes; that one Henry Powers, the principal of the school in said district, unlawfully acted as an inspector and unlawfully received and rejected votes; that said Powers refused to receive the votes of persons duly qualified to vote, and refused to permit persons offering to vote to make the declaration under the law, and threw ballots to the number at least of from forty to sixty, handed him by legal voters, upon the floor, refusing to deposit such votes in the ballot box; that at least seventy-five to one hundred illegal votes were received and counted for Henry Beck, who was unlawfully and fraudulently declared elected as trustee.

The affidavits of five persons other than the appellants in support of some of the allegations contained in the appeal, and the affidavits of forty persons, each of whom alleges that he or she was a qualified voter in said district and who offered to vote and was not permitted to vote or swear in the vote, are annexed to the appeal.

Trustees Beck and Weiss, two of the three trustees of said district, with sixty-eight qualified voters of the said district, have filed answer to said appeal, and to which answer are annexed the affidavits of Martin J. Sweeney, Henry Powers, George M. Zellmar and seventeen others, qualified voters of the district, in support of the statements contained in said answer.

The proofs filed herein establish the following facts:

That an election of a trustee, clerk, and collector of school district no. 3, city of Kingston, Ulster county, was held on August 7, 1895, between the hours of 12 o'clock noon and 4 o'clock p. m.; that Messrs Beck, Weiss and Mulholland, then trustees of said district, and George M. Zellmar, then district clerk, assembled at the place designated for holding said election just prior to 12 o'clock noon, and said Trustee Weiss was selected as chairman of the board of inspectors of election; that said trustees or a majority of them, acting as such inspectors of election, appointed Henry Powers, a qualified voter of said district, to assist them in said election by receiving the ballots from the voters and depositing the same in the ballot box provided by the said trustees; that at 12 o'clock noon, the said trustees, or a majority of them, being present and acting as inspectors of said election, and the district clerk being present, opened the poll of said election and received the votes, the said Powers receiving the votes of each voter and depositing the same in the ballot box, under the instruction of the said trustees as such inspectors of election, the district clerk recording the name of each person whose vote was received until 4 o'clock p. m., when the poll was closed and said inspectors of election proceeded to canvass the votes cast, first counting the ballots to find if they tallied with the number of names recorded by the clerk; that the whole number of votes cast was 737, and the poll list kept by the district clerk contained the names of 737 persons as having voted; that Henry Beck received 429 votes for trustee for three years and Michael Dippold received 308 votes, and the result of the ballot was announced by the said inspectors of election, and the result of such ballot and election as announced by said inspectors of election was recorded by the district clerk.

It also appears that said trustees, or a majority of them, acting as inspectors of election, decided all questions arising at said election relative to the qualifications of voters, and as to whether any vote should be received or refused, and as to all other questions which arose, and that said Powers took no part whatever therein, but simply received such votes as said inspectors directed them to be received and deposited such votes in the ballot box.

The burden is upon the appellants to sustain the allegations in their appeal by a preponderance of proof. The answer and affidavits annexed to the appeal deny that said Powers refused to receive the vote of any person or refused to permit persons whose votes were challenged to make the declaration required by the school law, or threw any ballot of any person whose vote was received, upon the floor, except under the direction of said inspectors of election. The proofs on the part of the respondents deny that said Powers said in substance, "that he was running the meeting to suit himself."

The forty affidavits annexed to appeal of persons who allege that their votes were rejected were verified the latter part of August 1895, but not one of them alleges that he or she was a qualified voter in said district on August 7th. Neither does any one of them state the facts relative to his or her alleged qualifications as a voter so that it can be ascertained whether he or she possessed on August 7, 1895, any one or more of the qualifications required by the school law. Fourteen of these affiants state that they are taxpayers in the district, twelve that they are householders in the district, seven that they have children who attend school, but do not state that such children have attended school for eight weeks during the year prior to said election. The affidavits of Sweeney and Powers, annexed to the answer, which affidavits are not answered, show that the names of those claiming to be "taxpayers or freeholders" are not, nor is either of them, upon the tax lists of said districts for the years 1894 and 1895. The affidavit of Powers shows, from an examination of the school register for the year preceding the election, that none of the persons claiming to vote by reason of sending children to school in the district had any child or children of his or her own, or residing with him or her, who attended the school in said district for the period of eight weeks within one year previous to said election.

Admitting that each of these forty persons were qualified voters and each had voted for Dippold, still Beck would have been elected by eighty-one majority. The allegation in the appeal, that from seventy-five to one hundred illegal votes were received and counted for Henry Beck is indefinite and uncertain. The appeal does not give the name of any one of the seventy-five or one hundred that it is alleged voted illegally, nor do the appellants show by evidence the lack of qualifications of any one or all of said seventy-five to one hundred, in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such persons could not be qualified to vote under the provisions of the school law. This allegation is not supported by any evidence whatever.

The rule is well settled that an election will not be vitiated by illegal votes unless a different result would have been produced by excluding such votes. To warrant setting aside an election, it must appear affirmatively that the successful ticket received a number of illegal votes which, if rejected, would have brought it down to a minority.

The election in said school district on August 7, 1895, was held under the provisions of section 15, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894. Such section provides who shall be inspectors of election. It does not permit, neither does it prohibit, such inspectors from appointing a person simply to perform the mechanical act of receiving votes from persons whom the inspectors have decided are entitled to vote, and depositing such votes in the ballot box. The trustees or inspectors of election, it seems, expected from the interest taken in said election that a large vote would be polled, and in order to enable them to act upon questions that might arise relative to the election and the qualifications of voters, they appointed Powers, a qualified voter of the district, to take the votes from the voters and deposit such votes in the ballot box. No other power or duty intrusted to said inspectors by law was delegated or given to or exercised by said Powers. It was an irregularity on the part of said inspectors which I do not approve, but one which I do not think warrants me in setting aside the election. Irregularities, mistakes or omissions on the part of election officers will not vitiate an election, or defeat the will of the electors as shown by their votes.

The appellants have failed to sustain their appeal by a preponderance of proof and the appeal should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

4053

In the matter of the appeal of John H. Innes, Frederick Mark and others v. school district no. 11 of the town of Newtown, in the county of Queens.

It is the business of school meetings and of presiding officers thereof, to undertake to ascertain the intent of the electors and give expression of their ballot as they intended.

When one Joseph B. Johnson was nominated as one of two trustees to be elected at an annual meeting, and there was no pretense that any other person by the name of Johnson was a candidate or voted for at the meeting, votes cast for "Mr Johnson" and "Johnson" should be counted for Joseph B. Johnson.

Decided January 12, 1892

Draper, Superintendent

The school district above named is under the operation of a special act of the Legislature, being chapter 535 of the Laws of 1879. This act provides that the district shall hold its annual school meeting on the second Wednesday of October each year. Pursuant to this act the district held the annual meeting on the 14th day of October 1891, and proceeded to elect a trustee to succeed

Edward H. Weber, whose term of office had expired. Edward H. Weber and Joseph B. Johnson were duly nominated for the position and nominations were declared closed. The meeting then proceeded to ballot and the result was announced as follows:

	Votes
Edward H. Weber.....	51
Joseph B. Johnson.....	40
Mr Johnson	15
Johnson	3
Bernard Becker	2
Charles Klosset	1
G. T. Bauman.....	1
O. H. Green.....	1
T. McGowan, jr.....	1
Defective	3

Upon the announcement of the result it was moved and seconded that the votes cast for Mr Johnson be counted for Joseph B. Johnson. This motion was declared out of order by the chair. An attempt was then made to secure another ballot and this was refused by the chair. The chairman then declared that Edward H. Weber was elected. From this action this appeal is taken. The respondent offers several objections which are technical if not frivolous. He insists that if the proceeding was to have been commenced at all, it must have been commenced by Mr Johnson, and that the appellants here are not parties in interest. I think he is mistaken in this. Any elector in the district is sufficiently interested in such a matter to bring it before the State Department.

Again, the respondent insists that there are over 300 children of school age in this district and that the election therein must be governed by the provisions of chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878 as amended. I think he is in error in this position also. The school district is operating under a special act and is specially exempted from the provisions of the general act by section 10 thereof. As a matter of fact, the district did not proceed under the provisions of the general act. If the contention of the respondent was to be upheld, it would be fatal to his claim that he was elected. I am of the opinion that it required a majority of all the legal votes cast to elect. I think the chair was in error in refusing to permit the house to pass upon the question as to whether the votes cast for "Mr Johnson" and for "Johnson" were not intended for Joseph B. Johnson. Indeed, I think that the chair would have been justified in so holding without the direction of the meeting, and in declaring Joseph B. Johnson elected.

The 3 ballots which are returned as defective should not have been counted at all in determining the number which constituted a majority. Excluding these 3 votes, 58 votes constituted a majority. It is idle for the respondent to say that the 18 votes cast for "Mr Johnson" and "Johnson" were not intended for

Joseph B. Johnson, because there are one or two other persons in the district by the name of Johnson. There is no pretense that any other person by the name of Johnson was a candidate or was voted for at the meeting. Counting these ballots for Joseph B. Johnson, he received 58 votes and was elected. It is the business of school meetings and of presiding officers thereof to undertake to ascertain the intent of the electors and to give expression to their ballot as they intended.

Upon the papers presented, I entertain no doubt but that a majority of the electors at this meeting who saw fit to vote for trustee, intended and attempted to vote for the election of Joseph B. Johnson.

The appeal is therefore sustained and Mr Joseph B. Johnson is held to have been elected at the school meeting held in the above named district on the 14th day of October 1891.

4265

In the matter of the appeal of Joseph Holmes and William Hummiston from proceedings of the annual school meeting held in district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county, on August 7, 1894, in the election of the officers of said district.

Where at an annual school meeting the election of district officers was not by ballot but by a viva voce vote of those present and voting; that no suitable ballot box was provided by the trustees of the district for such election, nor were any inspectors of election appointed, and no poll list kept by the clerk of the meeting containing the names of persons whose votes were received; held, that such election was illegal and void, and a special meeting ordered for the election of such district officers.

Decided September 24, 1894

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellants in the above-entitled appeal state that at the annual school meeting held on the first Tuesday of August 1894, in school district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county, one Jacob Snyder was placed in nomination for the office of trustee of said district and was declared elected; that said election of said Snyder as trustee was not by ballot but by a viva voce vote of those present and voting; that no suitable ballot box at the election of the district officers of said district was provided by the trustee of said district, nor were any inspectors of election appointed; that none of the officers of said district were elected by ballot.

A copy of the appeal herein was personally served upon the said Jacob Snyder on August 25, 1894, and said appeal, with proof of service of a copy thereof upon said Snyder, was received at this Department on August 28, 1894. No answer to said appeal having been received by me, the allegations contained in said appeal are deemed by me to be admitted.

Under subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, all district officers in the common school districts of this State must be elected by ballot. At such elections the trustee or trustees of such district shall provide a suitable ballot box. Two inspectors of election shall be appointed as the meeting shall determine, who shall receive the votes cast and canvass the same and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman of the meeting. A poll list containing the name of every person whose vote shall be received shall be kept by the clerk of the meeting. The ballots shall be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for and designating the office for which each is voted. The chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot, as announced to him by the inspectors, and the persons having the majority of votes, respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected.

Upon the facts stated in the appeal herein, it is clear that the officers of said school district were not, nor was either of them, elected pursuant to the provisions of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

The appeal herein is sustained.

I do find and decide, that the said Jacob Snyder was not, nor was any one, legally elected as trustee of said school district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county, at the annual meeting of said district, held on the first Tuesday of August 1894, nor was any person legally elected as district clerk or collector of said district at said meeting.

It is ordered, That so much of the action and proceedings of the annual meeting of said school district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county, held on the first Tuesday of August 1894, had and taken in the election of the officers of said district, be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That Wilson Wylie, a qualified voter in and of said school district no. 10, and who is now acting as clerk of said district under the assumption that he was elected such clerk at said annual meeting, be, and he hereby is, directed to forthwith call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county, entitled to vote at school meetings in said district, in the manner prescribed in sections 2 and 6 of article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, for the purpose of the election of a trustee, district clerk and collector of said district, said election to be conducted in the manner provided in subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

It is further ordered, That said Jacob Snyder be, and he hereby is, enjoined and restrained from further acting as trustee of said district, and from doing any act as such trustee of said district.

4379

In the matter of the appeal of John Mulvihill from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 3, town of Campbell, Steuben county, in the election of a trustee.

Where a ballot has been taken for a district officer and such vote canvassed by the inspectors of election and the result of the canvass announced showing that some one has received a majority of the votes cast, the power of the meeting in the election of such officer has been exhausted. Such ballot can not be reconsidered nor a recount had or the ballot impeached by the affidavits or statements that the canvass of the votes was not a correct one, or by the affidavits of persons that in such ballot they voted for a particular person for said office.

Decided September 27, 1895

Francis E. Wood, attorney for appellant

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellant in the above-entitled matter appeals from so much of the proceedings had and taken in school district no. 3, town of Campbell, Steuben county, at the annual meeting held on August 6, 1895, as relates to the election of a trustee.

It appears from the papers presented herein that the said annual meeting was duly organized by the choice of one Chase as chairman and John Wilcox, district clerk, acting as clerk; that John S. Curtis and Patrick Mulvihill were appointed inspectors of election; that the appellant and George D. Turnbull, the respondent, were nominated for trustee; that a ballot was taken for trustee, the ballot cast being received by said inspectors and when such ballot was closed, the votes were canvassed by said inspectors who reported the result of such ballot to the chairman of the meeting as follows: Whole number of votes cast 25, of which George D. Turnbull received 13 and John Mulvihill 11, and 1 blank; that said result was announced by the chairman to the meeting, and no objection relative thereto was made at the time such result was announced by the chairman; that the said meeting proceeded to elect other district officers and transact other business; that one Michael Lyon jr, who was not a voter in said school district, went to the table used by the inspectors of election and upon which several persons had written ballots for the various district officers who had been voted for, upon which also ballots were lying, and after some time passed in examining the said ballots, etc., lying upon said table, stated that there was a mistake and that the ballot for trustee was twelve for each of the candidates, and one blank; that upon the statement being so made by said Lyon the chairman stated that a ballot having been had and the votes cast having been canvassed and the result announced and recorded the meeting could not act thereon; that no motion was made in regard to the matter of the election of trustee, either to reopen or reconsider the ballot or for a recount of the vote, or that anything be done in reference thereto, and the meeting adjourned.

The appellant in his appeal alleges, upon information and belief, that twelve votes were actually cast for him for trustee, and that only twelve votes were cast for said Turnbull, and that the blank vote was cast and intended to be cast for him (the appellant) for trustee; that annexed to said appeal is an affidavit of twelve persons, including the appellant, who allege that each of them voted for the appellant for trustee, and an affidavit of Simon Mulvihill that he voted for the appellant.

The respondent avers in his answer, upon information and belief that the persons named by him therein voted for him for trustee and the names of thirteen persons, including his own, is given; that also annexed to said answer are the affidavits of L. L. Chase, the chairman, and John Wilcox the clerk, of said meeting, averring that said answer is true, and also the affidavit of John S. Curtis, one of the inspectors of election at said meeting, averring that the affiant and Patrick Mulvihill were such inspectors of election and together canvassed the votes cast for trustee and both agreed in the result of the ballot as so canvassed and announced by them as follows: Whole number of votes cast 25, of which Turnbull received 13, John Mulvihill 11 and blank 1; that he knows of his own knowledge that such result as announced was correct; that there was no recanvass of said votes after such result was announced by the inspectors to the chairman; that the facts stated in the answer by Turnbull of what occurred at the meeting are true. No affidavit by Patrick Mulvihill, the other inspector, in reply to the allegation contained in said affidavit of Curtis has been presented. There is also annexed to said answer the affidavit of nine qualified voters each of whom was present at said meeting, that the statement of facts as to what occurred at said meeting, contained in said answer, is true.

The statement of the man, Lyon, is the only statement presented in conflict with the announcement of the inspectors of election of the result of the ballot had for trustee. Lyon does not state at what time he examined the ballot, and it appears by the affidavit of thirteen voters of the district verifying the statement of facts and of what took place at the meeting, contained in the answer of Turnbull, that Lyon did not go to the table on which the votes for trustee were canvassed and until the other officers of the district were elected and other ballots other than those for trustee were lying upon the table with other papers.

Where a ballot has been taken for a district officer and such vote canvassed by the inspectors of election, and the result of the canvass announced, showing that some one has received a majority of the votes cast, the power of the meeting in the election of such officer has been exhausted. Such ballot can not be reconsidered nor a recount had, or the ballot impeached by the affidavits or statements of persons that the canvass of the votes was not a correct one, or by the affidavits of persons that in such ballot they voted for a particular person for said office.

It is difficult to reconcile the affidavit of thirteen persons who swear they voted for Mulvihill, with the affidavit of Lyon who swears Mulvihill received but twelve votes.

The burden is upon the appellant to sustain his appeal by a preponderance of proof and in this he has failed.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4392

In the matter of the appeal of H. H. Wendell and others, from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 3, town of Herkimer, Herkimer county, in election of trustee.

When at any school district meeting for the election of officers said meeting has voted to proceed to ballot for a trustee or other officer, votes cast for said officer having the name of some person thereon, but not having written thereon the name of the office for which the person is voted, said ballot is a legal ballot. The mere circumstance that improper votes are received at an election will not vitiate it. The fact must be shown affirmatively that a sufficient number of improper votes were received for the successful ticket to reduce it to a minority if they had been rejected; or the election must stand.

A party knowing a person to be unqualified and permitting him or her to vote without challenge will not be allowed on appeal to object to the proceedings of the meeting because said unqualified person participated therein.

Decided October 12, 1895

W. C. Prescott, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellants in the above-entitled matter appeal from so much of the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held in district no. 3, town of Herkimer, Herkimer county, had and taken in the election of a trustee, and from the election of Miss Kate Coffin as trustee of said district, and allege that her election was illegal.

The grounds, as alleged in the appeal, upon which the election of Miss Coffin as trustee is claimed not to have been legal, are, in substance, that illegal votes were cast for her, and she did not receive a majority of the votes of the qualified voters cast at such election; that one Charles Ely was prevented from voting for the appellant, H. H. Wendell, who was one of the candidates for the office of trustee; that no notice was given of the closing of the polls, and that the ballots cast did not designate the office for which the persons written thereon respectively were voted for.

The appeal is signed and verified by sixteen persons, seven of whom were not present at said annual school meeting, and annexed to the appeal are two affidavits in support of the allegations contained in said appeal. Miss Kate Coffin has answered said appeal, denying the allegations in the appeal that she did not receive a majority of the legal votes cast at said meeting for the office of trustee, and was not legally elected trustee of said district; denying the allegation that one Charles Ely was prevented from voting for trustee at said meeting, and denying the allegation that no notice was given of the closing of the polls in the election of trustee. To her answer are annexed the affidavits of thirteen persons in support of the statements made in said answer.

To said answer the appellants have made a reply. The following facts are established:

That the annual school meeting in district no. 3, town of Herkimer, Herkimer county, was held on August 6, 1895, and was duly organized by the election of George P. Gunn as chairman; C. W. Arnolds, district clerk, acting as clerk; that Eddy J. Clark and John W. Coffin were duly appointed inspectors of election; that the appellant, H. H. Wendell, and respondent, Miss Kate Coffin, were each nominated for the office of trustee and a ballot for trustee was taken, said inspectors of election receiving a ballot from each of the persons offering to vote and the name of each person whose vote was received was recorded by the district clerk upon the poll list kept by him; that two persons offering to vote for trustee were challenged, namely, M. J. Richards and Alice Ely, each of whom made the declaration required by the school law, and the vote of each was received; that after the ballots of those desiring to vote were received the chairman asked if all had voted who desired, and hearing no response, declared the polls closed; that the votes cast were then canvassed by said inspectors of election, and the result, as announced to the meeting by the clerk at the request of the chairman, was as follows: Whole number of votes cast, 25, of which Miss Kate Coffin received 15 and H. H. Wendell 10.

It also appears that the ballots for trustee were written, and upon about three were the words "For Trustee, H. H. Wendell," but the words "For Trustee" were not upon the other twenty-two votes; that upon said ballots were written respectively, "Mr Wendel," "Mr Wendal," "Mr Windel," "Windell," "H. Windell," "Miss Kate Coffin," "Miss Coffin," "K. Coffin," "Kate Coffin" and "Cate Coffin;" that there were residing in said district at the time of said annual school meeting therein two persons by the name of Wendell, namely, Herman H. Wendell and Earl D. Wendell, and two unmarried ladies by the name of Coffin, namely, Kate Coffin and Emma Coffin, who are sisters, and Kate Coffin being the elder is known as Miss Coffin.

It is admitted by the respondent that Mrs Joseph Dudleston, Mrs J. A. Shaw, Mrs G. P. Gunn, Mrs Walter Davidson and Mrs Jennie Worden, whose votes were received for the office of trustee at said annual meeting, were not, nor was either of them, qualified to vote at said meeting; and it is established that Jennie Worden voted for the appellant, Wendell, and the four other ladies voted for the respondent, Kate Coffin. The appellants have failed to establish that Alice Ely, whose vote was challenged, but who made the declaration and voted, was not qualified to vote at said meeting.

The appellants herein have failed to establish the allegation made by them that said Charles Ely was prevented from voting at said meeting.

By subdivision 4, of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that the ballots for school district officers shall be written or printed or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for and designating the office for which each is voted. The words "designating the office for which each is voted" applies when at a district meeting for the election of officers persons for more than one office are to be elected, i. e., for a trustee, district clerk, etc., and upon one ballot, and is not intended to apply in a case where a ballot is ordered for the election of a trustee. At the annual meeting in said district no. 3, Herkimer, a ballot was ordered for the election of a trustee and the voters present were informed and knew that only a trustee of the district was to be voted for, and no one was misled. A vote cast in such ballot having upon it the name of a person and without the words "For Trustee" thereon, was a legal ballot under the school law. The votes cast were properly canvassed and counted for Miss Kate Coffin, and H. H. Wendell respectively for trustee. But two persons were put in nomination for trustee, to wit, said Miss Kate Coffin and H. H. Wendell, and such persons were well known to the voters present, and it was clearly the intention of each person who voted, to vote for the one or the other of the two persons nominated, and it was the duty of the inspectors of election in canvassing the votes cast to ascertain that intent and to count such ballots as such voters intended, whether the ballot had H. H. Wendell, Wendel or Mr Wendell, or Miss Kate Coffin, Kate Coffin, or Miss Coffin thereon. No one of the five persons who, it is admitted, voted at said meeting for trustee, and who, it is also admitted, were not qualified voters in the district, were challenged when offering to vote. This Department has held that "A party knowing a person to be unqualified and permitting him to vote without challenge will not be allowed to object to the proceedings of the meeting because said unqualified person participated in them."

The Supreme Court of this State held, in ex parte Murphy and others, 7 Cowen 153, that the mere circumstance that improper votes are received at an election will not vitiate it. The fact should be shown affirmatively that a sufficient number of improper votes were received for the successful ticket, to reduce it to a minority if they had been rejected; or the election shall stand. The Court of Appeals in the People v. Pease, 27 N. Y., page 57, said: "It is a paradox to say that a vote can be given by one not a voter, and as it is the greatest number of votes which elects a candidate and gives title to the office, it follows logically that those ballots given or handed in by persons not voters are not votes and can not, therefore, be rightfully estimated or have any influence upon the result." Judge Andrews of the Court of Appeals said in the People ex rel. Frost v. Wilson, 62 N. Y., page 179: "The 43 votes cast by persons not registered were plainly illegal. If, however, they are taken from the vote of the defendant the result would not be changed, and for this reason the fact that they were illegally received is immaterial." It is conceded that 25 votes were received at said annual meeting for trustee, of which the appellant, Wendell, received 10 and the respondent, Coffin, received 15. It is admitted that 5 votes were received from persons not qualified voters at such meeting, 1 of which was for the appellant, Wendell, and 4 for the respondent, Coffin. The 5 illegal votes must be deducted from the 25 votes received, leaving 20 legal votes cast for trustee. Of said 5 illegal votes, 1 was for the appellant, Wendell, and 4 were for the respondent, Coffin. It follows, therefore, of the 20 legal votes cast the respondent, Coffin, received 11 and the appellant, Wendell, 9, and that the respondent, Coffin, having received a majority of the legal votes cast was duly and legally elected trustee of said district.

Admitting for the purpose of argument only, that Miss Alice Ely, who voted for the respondent, Coffin, was not a qualified voter, the whole number of legal votes cast would be 19, of which the respondent, Coffin, received 10 and the appellant, Wendell, 9, giving a majority of 1 to the respondent, Coffin, who thereby was duly and legally elected trustee. The burden is upon the appellants herein to sustain their appeal by a preponderance of proof, and in this they have failed.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4315

In the matter of the appeal of W. R. Harris and others from proceedings of annual school meeting in district no. 3, town of Southfield, Richmond county, in election of trustees.

In the election of school district officers the mere circumstance that improper votes were received will not vitiate the election. The fact must be shown affirmatively that a sufficient number of improper votes were received for the successful ticket to reduce it to a minority if they had been rejected; that a person believing or knowing a person offering to vote at a school meeting to be unqualified and permitting him or her to vote without challenge, such person will not be allowed to object to the proceedings of such meeting upon appeal, because such unqualified person voted therein. That in appeals from the proceedings and decision of a school meeting on the ground that the same was secured by illegal votes, it is incumbent upon the appellants not only to allege the illegal voting or the disqualifications of certain persons, but to show by evidence the lack of qualifications in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that the voter or voters could be qualified under either of the provisions of the section of the school law prescribing the qualifications of voters at the school district meetings in this State.

Decided January 28, 1895

W. H. H. Ely, attorney for respondents

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the action of the annual school meeting, held on the first Tuesday of August 1894, in school district no. 3, town of Southfield, Richmond county, in the election of H. S. La Vaud, Elizabeth A. Britton and James Simpson as trustees of said district.

The sole ground alleged in the appeal is that such election was secured by illegal votes.

The pleadings and proofs are very voluminous, but much stated therein is not relevant to the question as to whether the election of the persons hereinbefore named as trustees of said school district was secured by illegal votes. Such pleadings and proofs have received careful examination.

The burden is upon the appellants to establish their contention by a preponderance of proof.

In ex parte Murphy and others, 7 Cowen 153, the Supreme Court of the State held that the mere circumstance that improper votes are received at an election, will not vitiate it. If this were otherwise, hardly an election in the State could be sustained. The fact should be shown affirmatively that a sufficient number of improper votes were received for the successful ticket to reduce it to a minority if they had been rejected; or the election shall stand.

This Department has uniformly held in accordance with the decision of the court above stated, in appeals taken from the election of school district officers in the contention that such election was secured by illegal votes. This Department has uniformly held that a person believing or knowing a person offering to vote at a school meeting to be unqualified and permitting him or her to vote without challenge, will not be allowed to object to the proceedings of such meeting because such unqualified person participated therein.

This Department has also uniformly held that in case of an appeal from the proceedings had and taken at a school meeting, on the ground that the same were secured by illegal votes, it is incumbent upon the appellant not only to allege the illegal voting or the disqualification of certain persons, but to show by evidence the lack of qualifications in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that the votes or voters could be qualified under either of the provisions of the section of the school law prescribing the qualifications of voters at the school district meetings in this State.

The question for my determination, upon the papers presented is, have the appellants established by evidence the lack of qualifications of certain persons who voted at the annual meeting in said school district, in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such persons could be qualified voters under either of the provisions contained in section 11, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and that a sufficient number of votes cast by such unqualified persons in favor of the successful ticket were received to reduce said ticket to a minority if said improper votes had been, or should be, rejected.

The proofs presented herein show that at said annual meeting three trustees were to be elected for the term of one, two and three years respectively; that six persons were put in nomination for trustees, to wit: William R. Harris for three years, Thomas Smith for two years and John Smith for one year, and H. S. La Vaud for three years, Elizabeth A. Britton for two years and James Simpson for one year; that printed ballots were furnished to the voters, the ballot headed for La Vaud having also thereon a candidate for the office of clerk and collector respectively; that it was decided to ballot first for trustees, and then for clerk and collector, which decision rendered it necessary for the supporters of La Vaud and others for trustees, to eliminate from their ballots the names thereon of the candidates for clerk and collector; that inspectors of election were appointed, a ballot for trustees was taken and a poll list kept containing the names of each person whose vote was received, on which poll list were recorded the names of 119 persons; that upon a canvass of the ballots cast there were found 118 single ballots, and 2 ballots folded together, each of which contained the names of Harris and Thomas and John Smith; that upon 2 ballots were found respectively the names of James Simpson for trustee for one year and that of William E. Cruise for clerk and August Wenske for collector; that 1 of said ballots contained the name of Harris for trustee for three years, La Vaud for trustee for two years and John Smith for one year; that another ballot contained only the names of Harris for trustee for three years and John Smith for trustee for one year; and another ballot contained only the name of Harris for trustee for three years; that the 2 ballots found folded together were laid aside until 118 single ballots were canvassed and said 2 ballots, notwithstanding objections made, were allowed to and counted for Messrs Harris and Smith; that the result of the ballot was then announced, as follows: H. S. La Vaud, 60 votes; Mrs Elizabeth A. Britton, 61 votes; James Simpson, 63 votes; William R. Harris, 58 votes; Thomas Smith, 55 votes and John Smith, 55 votes; that it does not clearly appear what persons offering to vote at said meeting were challenged aside from the four persons noted upon the copy of the poll list attached to the appeal.

The appellants allege in their appeal that "upon investigation we believe that more than 10 votes cast for H. S. La Vaud and E. A. Britton and James Simpson were voted by persons not having a legal right to vote at said meeting, hence should be stricken from the list and not counted," and then follow the names of eleven persons who voted, with allegations, stating the grounds upon which they claim that said persons were not qualified voters at said meeting. The appellants also allege, in papers filed by them subsequently to said appeal, that August Wenske, W. L. McCarthy and August P. M. Helmeyer, who voted at said meeting were not legal voters. The appellants do not show affirmatively that the votes cast by said persons were for the successful ticket for trustees at said meeting.

The respondents in their answer to the appeal allege that nine persons who voted at said meeting were not legal voters, and state the grounds upon which said allegations are made. One of said nine persons, it is admitted by the appellants, was not a legal voter. I have grave doubts, upon the proofs presented, as to whether several of the eight other persons named were at said annual school meeting qualified voters in said district. But I am of the opinion that upon said proofs I can not find that the respondents have shown by evidence the lack of qualifications of said persons in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that said persons could be qualified under some one of the provisions of section 11 of title 7 of the school law.

I find that Mr and Mrs Reggonet, Richard King and Jacob Swain were not legal voters, nor was any one of them a legal voter, at said meeting; but the appellants have not shown affirmatively that their votes or the vote of any one of them was cast for the successful ticket for trustees at said meeting.

I find upon the admission of the appellants, that August Smultz, or Schmultz, was not a qualified voter at said meeting, but that he voted at said meeting and for Harris, Smith and Smith for trustees, as appears by his affidavit, sworn to on December 12, 1894, which affidavit has been filed by the appellants in the appeal herein.

I find that the two ballots folded together should have been destroyed by the inspectors, and it was error in counting said two ballots for Messrs Harris, Smith and Smith for trustees. It appears that 119 persons voted, and there were 120 votes in the box, and where two or more ballots shall be found in a ballot box folded together as to present the appearance of a single ballot, they shall be destroyed, if the whole number of ballots exceeds the whole number of ballots shown by the poll list to have been deposited therein.

The appellants state in their appeal, "Aside from our interest in the school, the appeal is brought to put an end to illegal voting in the district, etc., etc." Under the provisions of the school law, any qualified voter in a school district has the right, at any school district meeting, to challenge the vote of any person offering to vote, upon the ground that he or she is disqualified; that upon such challenge the chairman presiding at such meeting shall require such person to make the declaration required in section 12, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law; that if such person makes the declaration his or her vote must be received; but if such person refuses to make the declaration then his or her vote shall be rejected. Under section 13, same article and title, any person who shall wilfully make a false declaration of his or her right to vote after such vote shall have been challenged, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. If, at the school meeting, the above provisions of the school law should be brought to the attention of the persons attending said meeting, and any person challenged shall make and file a false declaration, and such person be proceeded against and punished for the misdemeanor committed, that illegal voting in the district would be stopped.

I find and decide that there must be deducted from the votes counted at said annual meeting for Harris, Smith and Smith, the two votes folded together, and also one vote cast by Smultz, or Schmolt; that William R. Harris received 55 votes, Thomas Smith 52 votes and John Smith 52 votes; that H. S. La Vaud received 60 votes, Mrs Elizabeth A. Britton 61 votes, and James Simpson 63 votes, and that said La Vaud, Britton and Simpson were, and each of them was, duly elected trustees of said school district.

Assuming for the purpose of argument that Mr and Mrs Regonnet, Richard King and Jacob Swain each voted for La Vaud, Britton and Simpson, it would not change the result of said election, for the reason that deducting the four votes as cast for La Vaud, Britton and Simpson, La Vaud received 56 votes, Mrs Britton 57 votes, and James Simpson 59 votes, as against 55 votes for Harris, 52 votes for Thomas Smith, and 52 votes for John Smith.

The appellants have failed to establish their appeal herein and the appeal should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

4397

In the matter of the election of school district officers in school district no. 8, town of Hounsfield, Jefferson county.

At an annual school meeting the several district officers were declared elected upon a vote for each taken by acclamation or viva voce and not by ballot. That the trustees elect, assuming that said election was not legal, called a special meeting of the district for the election of such district officers; that at such special election some person other than the one assumed to be elected at the annual meeting was elected trustee. Held, that at the annual meeting the district officers were elected by the form or color of an election and as such were entitled to perform the duties of their respective offices until by an order of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction such election was declared illegal and void. That the special meeting held in said district was illegal and void. That the election of said district officers was vacated and set aside, and a special meeting of the district called for the election of said officers, excepting for the office of librarian. That the trustee, under the school law, must appoint the librarian.

Decided October 18, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

In the above-entitled matter Levi Bowles and George W. Stetson each claiming to have been legally elected trustee of school district no. 8, town of Hounsfield, Jefferson county, have presented to me an agreed statement of facts, signed by them, as to the proceedings taken relative to the election of school officers in said district, and have submitted the same to me for my consideration and decision.

The following is a statement of the facts as so agreed upon:

On August 6, 1895, the annual school meeting was held in said school district no. 8, town of Hounsfield, Jefferson county. Jefferson Baker was elected chairman and George H. Weaver acted as clerk; a vote was taken by acclamation and the following named persons were declared elected as officers of said school district, namely, George H. Weaver district clerk, Samuel Hicks collector, Levi Bowles trustee, and Lester Lamson librarian; that after the meeting had adjourned, Mr Bowles was informed by one or more electors of said district that the election of the said persons by acclamation, as such school district officers, was not a legal election, and that they should have been elected by ballot; that after considering the matter Mr Bowles announced that he thought the proper course to pursue was to call a special meeting of the district for the purpose of electing thereat by ballot the officers of the district for the school year and suggested to Mr Weaver, the clerk, that he call such special meeting; that such special meeting was called and held and at said meeting George W. Stetson was declared elected trustee by ballot; that three ballots for trustee were had at such meeting each of which resulted as follows: first ballot, whole number of votes cast was 11, of which Levi Bowles received 3, William Dunbar 4 and George W. Stetson 4; second ballot, whole number of votes cast was 11, of which Levi Bowles received 2, William Dunbar 4 and George W. Stetson 5; third ballot, whole number of votes received was 11, of which William Dunbar received 4 and George W. Stetson 7; that at said special meeting the other district officers were not balloted for and no action was taken thereat to declare such other officers elected; that at the annual school meeting there was no dissenting vote against any of the candidates named.

Levi Bowles claims to be de facto trustee of said district, and George W. Stetson claims that he is the lawfully elected trustee of said district.

By section 14, of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, the annual school meeting held in said school district had the power, and it was its duty, to appoint a chairman of the meeting and if the district clerk was absent, to appoint a clerk for the meeting; to elect a trustee, a district clerk and a collector; that all such district officers should be elected by ballot; that the trustee should have provided a suitable ballot box; that two inspectors of election should have been appointed in such manner as the meeting determined, who should have received the votes cast, and canvassed the same, and announced the result to the chairman; a poll list containing the name of every person whose vote was received should have been kept by the district clerk, or the clerk for the time of the meeting; that such voters should have used ballots written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for, and if said meeting decides to vote for all of such officers upon one ballot, designating on said ballot the office for each person named on said ballot was voted for; that the chairman should have declared to the meeting the result of each ballot as announced to him by the inspectors, and the persons having the majority of the votes respectively, for the several offices, should have been elected.

It appears, from said statement of facts, that said annual meeting complied with the provisions of law above cited in electing a chairman and having the district clerk act as clerk of the meeting; but in all other matters there was a total disregard of the said provisions. No ballot was had for any of the district officers and none of such district officers were legally elected. Said meeting had no legal authority to elect a librarian, as by the provisions of section 2, of title 13, of said Consolidated School Law of 1894, the trustee of the school district shall appoint a teacher of the school of the district as librarian of the school library.

The only person authorized under the school law to render a decision as to whether a school district officer is or school district officers are legally elected is the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the matter can be brought to him for decision either by an appeal from the proceedings of the district meeting taken in such election, or by submitting the question to him for decision upon an agreed statement of facts, signed by the contesting parties. Mr Bowles had not, nor had any other officer or voter of said district, the legal authority to assume or decide that the election of district officers at said annual meeting was illegal, and to call a special meeting for the purpose of electing such district officers or any of them. The special meeting called and held after said annual meeting, for the purpose of electing officers of said district, was illegal, and all proceedings had and taken thereat were illegal and void.

This Department has uniformly held that, when at a school district meeting, district officers are elected by the form or color of an election, but not in accordance with the provisions of the school law, the said officers so elected are de facto officers, and are authorized and empowered to perform all the duties imposed upon them respectively by law, until by an order of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction the election of said officers or any of them, is declared to be illegal and void. The persons elected to the respective district offices by the color or form of an election at said annual meeting, except the person elected librarian, became de facto officers, and all contracts made, or expenses incurred by them or any of them, authorized by law, are valid and a charge upon said district.

As the special meeting held after the annual meeting was illegal and void, Mr Stetson, who claims to have been elected trustee at said meeting did not become by the action of said meeting a trustee either de facto or de jure, and hence had no authority whatever to do or perform any act as trustee of said district.

It is ordered, That all action and proceedings had and taken at said special meeting held in said school district at which George W. Stetson claims to have been elected trustee of said district be, and the same are and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at the annual school meeting, held in said district, relating to the election of trustee, district clerk, collector and librarian, or of any of them be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside, as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That George H. Weaver, the district clerk of said school district for the school year of 1894-95 be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district, qualified to vote at its school meetings for the purpose of electing a district clerk, a collector and a trustee of said district for the present school year; that he cause a notice of said special meeting to be served upon each of the qualified voters of said district; that the proceedings of said special meeting when convened shall be in accordance with section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

4414

In the matter of the appeal of Cassius B. Lynde from proceedings of annual school meeting held August 6, 1895, and special school meeting held August 31, 1895, in district no. 7, town of Antwerp, Jefferson county; and acts of Arthur Gleason as trustee.

Where at an annual meeting in a common school district in the election of a trustee thereof no person received a majority of the votes cast in the ballot taken for said office, but the chairman of the meeting declared the person receiving the highest number of votes elected trustee, and a special meeting of the district having been called upon the assumption that there was no valid election of a trustee and which meeting assumed to elect a trustee; held, that it was error on the part of the chairman of the meeting in declaring the person having a plurality of the votes only as elected trustee. That such meeting should have proceeded to ballot until some one received a majority of the votes cast. That such special meeting was null and void. That the tax list and assessment made and issued by the person claimed to have been elected trustee at such meeting be vacated and set aside, and that a special meeting of the district be called for the purpose of electing trustee and district clerk.

Decided December 18, 1895

A. W. Orvis, attorney for appellant

Skinner, Superintendent

At the annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in school district no 7, town of Antwerp, Jefferson county, a ballot was taken for trustee of the district for the school year of 1895-96, and said ballot resulted as follows: whole number of voters cast 12, of which H. H. Kelsey received 6, Milo Paddock 3, and Frank Hicks 3, and said Kelsey was declared elected; that a ballot was then taken for district clerk, which resulted as follows: whole number of votes cast 12, of which Arthur Gleason received 6, Frank Hicks 4, and George Wood 2, and said Gleason was declared elected; that after such meeting James McRobbie, the trustee of the district for the school year 1894-95, delivered to said Kelsey the books and papers pertaining to said office of trustee; that a few days after said annual meeting, a special meeting of the inhabitants of the district was called for the evening of August 31, 1895, the notices for said meeting being given by Kelsey, the clerk of said district for the school year 1894-95, with the consent of said McRobbie; that at said meeting on August 31, 1895, a ballot was taken for trustee that resulted in Arthur Gleason receiving a majority of the votes cast; that a ballot was taken for district clerk that resulted in George Wood receiving a majority of the votes cast; that the said Gleason received from Kelsey the books and papers, and assumed to act as trustee of said district; that on November 7, 1895, said Gleason delivered to the collector of said district a tax list, with the warrant, for the collection of the taxes assessed therein.

The appellant herein has appealed from the tax list issued by said Gleason, assuming to act as trustee of said district. An answer by Gleason has been filed in which the material facts in the appeal are admitted.

Subdivision 4, of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, enacts that in the election of school district officers the person having the majority of votes, respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected. It is the majority of the votes cast for a school officer that elects such officer, not the declaration of the chairman of the meeting.

It is clear that at the annual school meeting in said district there was no election of a trustee or district clerk for said district. It was the duty of the meeting to have balloted until some one received a majority of the votes cast for trustee and clerk respectively, and the meeting having failed to do so, the trustee and district clerk in office at the time the said annual meeting convened respectively, continued to hold office until their successors should be elected or appointed. The special meeting held in said district on August 31, 1895, at which it is claimed said Gleason was elected trustee, and said Wood was elected district clerk, was illegal and void. There was no vacancy then existing either in the office of trustee or clerk of said district that a special meeting of the district could supply.

I find and decide that said Arthur Gleason is not legally a trustee of said district, not having been legally elected to said office; that for like reasons George Wood is not legally the district clerk of said district; that the tax list and warrant issued by said Gleason is illegal and void; that James McRobbie is the legal trustee of said district and that H. H. Kelsey is the legal clerk of said district.

It also appears that said McRobbie, as trustee of said district, prior to August 6, 1895, employed one James O'Brien to teach the school in said district.

I find and decide that said McRobbie, as such trustee of said district, had authority, under subdivision 9, of section 47, article 6, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law, to contract for the employment of said O'Brien as a teacher therein, if such employment was not for more than one year in advance; and that such contract is binding upon the successor or successors in office of said McRobbie and upon said district.

As it appears, the qualified voters of said district have been misled by the action of the chairman of said annual meeting, and the provisions of the school law, a special meeting of such district should be called for the purpose of electing a trustee and district clerk of said district.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the tax list and warrant made and delivered to the collector of said school district no. 7, town of Antwerp, Jefferson county, on or about November 7, 1895, by Arthur Gleason, assuming to act as trustee of said district, be, and they are, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That the action and proceedings had and taken at special meeting of said district, held on August 31, 1895, be, and they are, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That James McRobbie, trustee of said district, be, and he is, hereby authorized and directed to call a special meeting of said district for the purpose of electing a trustee and a district clerk of said district for the present school year.

4101

In the matter of the appeal of F. A. Dutton and others from the proceedings of the annual meeting held on August 2, 1892, in union free school district no. 9 of the town of Gainesville, Wyoming county.

At a meeting in a union free school district in which the number of school children does not exceed 300, after the nomination of three persons for trustees for three years, a motion was made that the clerk be instructed to cast the ballot of the meeting for the three persons nominated for trustees. Such motion was put by the chairman, whereupon responses of "aye" were made, and thereupon the chairman called for the nays and responses of "nay" were made, and the motion was declared carried, and the ballot was cast by the clerk and the persons named in said ballot declared elected. Held, that there was no valid and legal election of trustees by said meeting; and that the trustees whose terms of office expired at such meeting held office until their successors were elected or appointed, and that there are no vacancies in the office of trustees, that a special meeting of the district can fill.

Decided September 22, 1892

Crooker, Superintendent

This is an appeal from certain proceedings had and taken at the annual meeting held on August 2, 1892, in union free school district no. 9 of the town of Gainesville, Wyoming county.

The appeal alleges improper and arbitrary decisions and action on the part of the chairman of the meeting, and his refusal to recognize and permit certain qualified voters to speak at such meetings; and that the election of three trustees for said district was not valid or legal. The appeal is verified by fourteen of the voters of the district, but no copy of the proceedings had and taken at said meeting is contained in or annexed to said appeal.

Milton R. Brown has filed an answer to said appeal, in which answer he denies the allegations contained in the appeal relative to decisions and actions of the chairman of the meeting and the refusal to recognize and permit qualified voters to speak at such meeting, and sets forth the proceedings had and taken at such meeting. Annexed to said answer are the affidavits of about thirty-two of the voters of the district as to the truth of the statements contained in the answer, and a certified copy of the proceedings had and taken at said meeting relative to the election of trustees.

The appellants have failed to establish their allegations relative to the decisions and actions of the chairman, and his refusal to recognize and permit qualified voters to speak at said meeting.

The facts clearly established by the papers presented upon the appeal relative to the election of trustees for said district are as follows:

That Mr M. R. Brown, the chairman of the meeting, stated that nominations for candidates to fill vacancies in the board of education were in order; that one G. S. Skiff placed in nomination M. R. Brown, J. W. Bristol and William Canning for members of the board of education for the ensuing three years; that, no other nominations being made, said Skiff moved that the clerk be instructed to cast the ballot of the meeting for M. R. Brown, J. W. Bristol and William Canning to be members of the board of education for the ensuing three years; that said motion was seconded by one John Hickey; that the chairman of said meeting put the said motion, saying, in substance, "All who are in favor of said motion, say 'aye,'" whereupon responses of "aye" were made; the chairman then said, "Contrary, 'nay,'" whereupon responses of "nay" were made, and the chairman declared the motion carried; that thereupon the clerk cast one ballot for M. R. Brown, J. W. Bristol and William Canning for members of the board of education for the ensuing three years; that no other ballots were cast; that the chairman declared the persons so voted for elected; that thereupon a motion was made and seconded that the meeting adjourn, which motion was put and declared carried by the chairman, and said chairman declared said meeting adjourned.

The only question to be decided in this appeal, upon the papers presented, is whether there was or there was not a valid and legal election of trustees or members of the board of education at the annual meeting held on August 2, 1892, in union free school district no. 9 of the town of Gainesville, Wyoming county.

School district no. 9 of the town of Gainesville, Wyoming county, is a union free school district; its board of trustees or of education consists of seven members; the terms of three of said members expired at the annual meeting of the district on the first Tuesday of August 1892; the terms of two members will expire on the first Tuesday of August 1894. In said district the number of children of school age does not exceed 300, and the provisions of chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878 in relation to the election of officers in certain school districts do not apply; but under the school laws said district must hold its annual meeting on the first Tuesday of August in each year, and elect trustees in place of persons whose terms of office expire at the time of such annual meeting. Such election must be by ballot. The qualifications necessary to be possessed by persons to entitle them to vote at any school meeting in said district are defined in the school law, and a majority of the votes of those present and voting at the meeting who are qualified to vote, is requisite to elect such trustees.

Every person duly qualified to vote at any school meeting held in said district, present at said annual meeting on August 2, 1892, had, under the school laws of this State, the right to vote by ballot for whom he or she desired, for three persons as trustees in place of the persons whose term of office as trustees expired at such meeting, and such voter can not be deprived of such right by the action of the district meeting, either directly or indirectly.

Persons who were qualified voters at said meeting were deprived of their legal right to vote by the act of said meeting in the attempted election of three trustees of said district by the ballot of the clerk, cast, upon a motion adopted by an aye and no vote, on the decision of the chairman of the meeting that such motion was adopted.

If the method of electing district officers pursued at said meeting of said district should be allowed at all, it should only be allowed where the method is the unanimous wish of the qualified voters of the district present at said meeting. The fact that voters present at said meeting voted "no" upon the motion requesting the clerk to cast a ballot for the three persons whose names were presented to the meeting for trustees, shows that it was not the unanimous wish of the voters.

It is not shown in the appeal papers how many of the voters voted "aye" nor how many voted "no," nor is it shown whether or not all those present and voting "aye" or "no" were qualified voters. The motion was declared adopted by the chairman of the meeting, it seeming to him that a majority voted "aye" and that the "noes" were in the minority.

The legal method of electing members of the board of trustees or board of education in union free school districts is by ballot by the qualified voters of the district, presented to and received by the tellers, duly appointed by the meeting, and the name of each voter as she or he votes to be recorded by the clerks or secretaries of the meeting. A reasonable time should be given for taking the vote. After the polls are closed the votes should be canvassed and result recorded and announced and such result duly certified to by the board of education. No declaration by the chairman of who is elected is required. It is not the declaration of a chairman, but the fact that a person or persons received a majority of the legal votes cast, which constitutes an election.

The method and proceedings relative to the election of trustees or members of the board of education which were had and taken at said meeting are contrary to the letter and spirit of the school law governing such elections in union free school districts; resulted in depriving the qualified voters of the district present at the meeting of the right of expressing his or her choice for trustees by his or her ballot, and can not be sustained.

I do decide and determine:

That no valid and legal election of trustees or members of the board of education of union free school district no. 9 of the town of Gainesville, Wyoming county, was had at the annual meeting of said district held on August 2, 1892; that all proceedings had or taken at said meeting relative to the election of trustees are void.

There having been no valid and legal election of trustees or members of the board of education in said district at its annual meeting, and under section 25 of title 7 of the school law the trustees whose several terms expired at said annual meeting hold office until their successors are elected or appointed, there are no vacancies in the office of trustees that a special meeting of the district can fill.

So much of said appeal herein as is taken from the action and proceedings of said annual meeting relative to the election of trustees or members of the board of education is sustained; as to all other matters contained in said appeal, the said appeal is dismissed.

In the matter of the appeal of Michael Mitchell from proceedings of annual school meeting in district no. 11, town of Annsville, Oneida county.

All school district officers must be elected by ballot in the manner prescribed by section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the persons having the majority of votes respectively for the several offices shall be elected.

Decided October 19, 1894

Silas L. Snyder, attorney for appellant

P. H. Fitzgerald, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellant in the above-entitled matter appeals from the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held on the first Tuesday of August 1894, in school district no. 11, town of Annsville, Oneida county, on the ground that such proceedings were irregular and in violation of the school law of this State. The appeal alleges that no inspectors of election were appointed to receive and canvass the votes and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman; that only a partial poll list of the names of the persons who voted was kept; that the chairman of the meeting nominated a candidate for the office of trustee, received the votes cast, canvassed the same and announced the result of the ballot; that persons voted who were not qualified voters in the district. An answer by Harry W. White to the appeal has been received, and sundry affidavits in support of the appeal and answer have been received. There is some conflict in the affidavits filed as to the number of ballots cast for the office of trustee, and the qualification of certain persons who voted for trustee at said annual meeting.

The following allegations contained in the appeal are not denied by the respondent, namely: that the annual meeting of school district no. 11, town of Annsville, Oneida county, was held on August 7, 1894, at the schoolhouse in said district at 7.30 p. m.; that Benjamin Ballard was elected chairman and William Stedman, clerk; that the chairman nominated Harry W. White for the office of trustee, and James Duffy and William Stedman were placed in nomination for said office; that no inspectors of election were appointed or elected, but the chairman of the meeting received the ballots cast for trustee, canvassed said ballots and announced the result to the meeting; that the clerk of the meeting kept a poll list; that the whole number of persons residing in the district claiming to be qualified voters in said district are 33 and that 16 persons claiming to be qualified voters were present at said meeting.

The appellant alleges in his appeal that 16 ballots were cast for trustee, and upon the canvass of the ballots by the chairman it was discovered that the number of ballots exceeded the number of names on the poll list by one, there being 16 ballots and but 15 names on the poll list (the appellant's name not appearing upon said poll list) whereupon the chairman cast out a ballot and declared Harry W. White duly elected, he having received 8 votes; that appellant voted at said meeting for William Stedman as trustee.

In support of these allegations the appellant filed his own affidavit, in which he states he voted at said meeting for said Stedman and was the third person who voted; that after the voting was over the chairman counted the votes and said there were 16 votes and asked the clerk how many names there were on the poll list and the clerk replied 15; and Ballard, the chairman, said he would have to throw one out, and did take up a vote from the table and threw it on the floor at his feet; that the deponent stood close to said chairman, almost touching him. He also files the affidavits of four other persons who were present at said meeting who each swear they saw the appellant vote at said meeting; three of whom swear that the chairman of the meeting received the vote of the appellant. He also files the affidavit of the clerk of the meeting, that after the voting was concluded he (the affiant) heard the chairman say there were 16 votes cast, and said chairman asked deponent how many names were on the poll list and deponent counted the names and informed said chairman there were 15, and the appellant's name was not among them. He also files the affidavit of three other persons present at the meeting, each of whom swears that he heard the chairman, who counted the ballots, declare that there were 16 votes cast, and also heard the clerk say there were only 15 names on the poll list.

The respondent, White, alleges in his answer to the appeal that the poll list at said meeting contained the names of 15 persons as having voted for trustee, the name of the appellant not appearing therein; that at the close of the polls the names on the poll list were counted and also the number of ballots cast and that both corresponded, each being 15; that the respondent received 8 of the 15 votes and was declared elected. Annexed to said answer and in support thereof is the affidavit of the respondent and six other persons in which it is alleged that the ballots were counted and found to be 15 and the names on the poll list counted and found to be 15; that no ballot was eliminated, thrown away or destroyed; that none of said deponents remember having seen the appellant vote at said meeting; that they verily believe that if the appellant had voted at said meeting they would have seen and remembered it. The respondent also files in support of his answer the affidavit of three lads of the age of 11, 14 and 16 years respectively, who each swears he was present at said meeting; that there were 15 votes cast at said meeting, and there were only 15 votes; that there were 15 names on the poll list, and that the names on the poll list and the number of votes cast at the meeting correspond; that in the presence of each deponent the votes were counted by Ballard and found to be 15.

Both the appellant and respondent allege that certain persons voted at said meeting who were not qualified voters. When such allegations are made it is incumbent upon the party making the allegations to show by evidence the lack of such qualifications in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that person or persons could be qualified under either of the heads stated in section 11, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law. Both parties to this appeal have failed in this regard. A party knowing, or having good reason to believe, a person to be unqualified, and permitting him to vote without challenge, will not be allowed to object to the proceedings of the meeting because such unqualified person participated therein.

From the uncontroverted facts established in this appeal it is clear that the election of a trustee at the school meeting, held on August 7, 1894, in district no. 11, Annsville, was not in conformity with the provisions of subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law. It does not appear affirmatively that any ballot box was furnished; no inspectors of election were chosen or appointed. The chairman of the meeting, in contravention at least of the proprieties, nominated a candidate for trustee; he assumed the duties of inspectors of election and received the ballots cast; canvassing the same and declaring the result.

The main questions presented by this appeal for decision are: first, How many ballots were cast at said meeting for the office of trustee?; and, second, Did any person receive a majority of the votes cast for the office of trustee?

It is conceded by the respondent that there were fifteen votes cast, and it is claimed by the appellant that there were sixteen votes cast. The appellant swears positively that he voted for Stedman for trustee, and was the third person who voted; one Cornelius Mitchell swears he saw the appellant vote for trustee. Hall, Downey and Corcoran each swear they saw appellant vote, and Ballard (the chairman) received such vote. In answer to this proof on the part of the appellant, the respondent, White, and six other persons, in a joint affidavit, one of the affiants being Ballard (the chairman), say "that none of them remember having seen Michael Mitchell vote at said meeting." Five persons swear positively to a fact, to wit, that the appellant voted for trustee at said meeting; and seven persons swear that none of them remember having seen the appellant vote. The appellant, the clerk, Stedman, and three other persons swear that the chairman, after counting the ballots, said there were 16, and asked the clerk how many names were on the poll list, to which the clerk replied 15; the appellant swears positively that he was standing close to the chairman and almost touching him; he saw the chairman, after receiving said reply from the clerk, take up a vote from the table and throw it on the floor at his (the chairman's) feet.

I am of the opinion that it is established herein by a preponderance of proof, that the appellant herein voted at said meeting for William Stedman for trustee; that the appellant handed his said ballot to the chairman of the meeting, who received said ballot; that said chairman failed to give the name of the appellant to the clerk for entry upon the poll list; that 16 ballots were cast for the office of trustee at said meeting and said 16 votes should have been canvassed and the result of said canvass announced to said meeting.

As to the second proposition, I am of the opinion also, that no one received a majority of the votes cast at said meeting for the office of trustee. There having been 16 votes cast a majority of said vote is 9. The respondent herein received 8, and the remaining 8 votes cast were given for either Stedman or Duffy. Therefore, no one was legally elected trustee of said district at said meeting.

The appeal herein is sustained.

I find and decide, That at the annual school meeting, held on August 7, 1894, in district no. 11, town of Annsville, Oneida county, Harry W. White, the respondent herein, was not, nor was any person, legally elected a trustee of said district.

It is ordered, That the trustee of said school district no. 11, town of Annsville, Oneida county, in office on August 1, 1894, be, and he is, hereby authorized and directed forthwith to call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district qualified to vote at its school meetings, for the purpose of electing a trustee of said district, the last annual meeting of said district having failed to elect a trustee. That notice of said special meeting be served upon said inhabitants in the manner prescribed in section 2, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894; and that the proceedings of said special meeting when assembled, in organizing and in the election of said trustee, shall be in accordance with the provisions of section 14, article 1, title 7 of said Consolidated School Law of 1894.

4881

In the matter of the appeal of Charles H. Simmons and others from proceedings of annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district no. 6, Springfield, Otsego county, relating to the election of district officers.

Under the Consolidated School Law of 1894 all school district officers must be elected by ballot; at such election the trustee shall provide a suitable ballot box; two inspectors of election shall be appointed in such manner as the meeting shall determine, who shall receive the votes cast and canvass the same, and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman; a poll list, containing the name of every person whose vote shall be received shall be kept by the district clerk or the clerk for the time of the meeting; the ballots shall be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for and designating the office for which each is voted; the chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot as announced to him by the secretary, and the persons having the majority of votes respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected.

Said law also exacts that in all propositions arising at school district meetings, involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, the vote thereon shall be by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters, present and voting at such district meeting. Taking and recording the ayes and noes means that the clerk of the meeting shall record the name of each person whose vote is received and set opposite to each name whether such person votes aye or no. No person can vote at any school district meeting unless he or she possesses the requisite qualifications as prescribed in section 11 of article 1, title 7 of said Consolidated School Law of 1894.

Decided September 22, 1900

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings of the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district 6, Springfield, Otsego county.

The appellants allege as the grounds for bringing their appeal, that no inspectors of election were appointed in such manner as the meeting should determine, who should receive the votes cast and canvass the same, and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman; that no ballot was had for a district clerk or a collector; that the vote upon the appropriation of money for school purposes or the levy of a tax was not taken by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters attending and voting at such annual meeting.

An answer has been made to the appeal.

The following facts are established by the proofs filed herein:

That the annual meeting was held in school district 6, Springfield, Otsego county, August 7, 1900, and George Eckerson was elected chairman and George W. McRorie, the district clerk, acted as clerk; that the proceedings of the last meeting were read and accepted; that the report of the trustee was read and accepted; that a motion was adopted that they proceed to ballot for trustee; that upon the suggestion of one S. M. Ingalls, no motion being made or any vote taken in that regard, the chairman and clerk acted as inspectors of election, the clerk keeping a poll list containing the names of the persons whose votes were received for trustee; that the trustee, not having provided a ballot box, a hat was used in which the ballots cast for trustee were deposited by the chairman, who received such ballots from the persons voting; that the poll list kept by the clerk contained the names of 25 persons whose votes had been received, but by the count made of the votes in the hat there were found to be 26 votes cast; that a motion was made and seconded that one ballot be withdrawn, to which said Ingalls objected, and upon his suggestion the names upon the poll list were called by the clerk, and thereupon Charles H. Simmons, one of the appellants, declared that he had voted, and Simmons' name was entered by the clerk upon the poll list; that the votes in the hat were then canvassed by the chairman and clerk, and the result of the count reported as follows: Whole number of votes cast, 26, of which S. M. Ingalls received 17, J. L. McKellip received 7, and Henry C. Sheldon received 2; that G. W. McRorie was elected district clerk by a viva voce vote; that A. T. McRorie was elected collector by a viva voce vote; that upon a motion made and seconded, and adopted by a viva voce vote, the sum of $40 was ordered to be raised by tax for wood and other expenses, and upon a like motion and vote the further sum of $17.98 was directed to be raised by tax to pay a note given for the purchase of a globe.

In subdivision 4 of section 14 of article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, it is, among other things, enacted that all district officers shall be elected by ballot; that at elections of district officers the trustee shall provide a suitable ballot box; that two inspectors of election shall be appointed in such manner as the meeting shall determine, who shall receive the votes cast, and canvass the same, and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman; that a poll list containing the name of every person whose vote shall be received shall be kept by the district clerk, or the clerk for the time of the meeting; the ballots shall be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for and designating the office for which each is voted; that the chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot, as announced to him by the inspectors, and the persons having the majority of votes respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected.

In subdivision 18 of section 14, article 1, title 7, of said Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that in all propositions arising at said district meetings, involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, the vote thereon shall be by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters present and voting at such district meetings.

Taking and recording the ayes and noes means that the clerk of the meeting shall record the name of each person whose vote is received and set opposite to each name whether such person votes aye or no.

The provisions above cited have been the law since June 30, 1894, and it is time that school district meetings should be conducted in accordance with said provisions.

The proceedings with reference to the election of district officers and authorizing the levy of taxes taken at the annual meeting in school district 6, Springfield, Otsego county, with the exception of keeping a poll list by the clerk in the ballot taken for trustee, were not as required by the school law.

The trustee failed to provide a suitable ballot box; the meeting failed to appoint two inspectors of election, and the chairman and clerk assumed, without any authority of law or vote of the meeting, but upon the suggestion of the respondent, Ingalls, to act as such inspectors. The ballots cast for trustee exceeded the number of names of persons recorded by the clerk upon the poll list kept by him, by one; that instead of placing all the votes in the hat and drawing out one ballot and destroying it and then proceeding to canvass the votes remaining, as was proposed by a motion made and seconded, but which was not put to vote, on the objection of said Ingalls, upon the suggestion of said Ingalls the clerk called the names upon the poll list and each person so called responded, when Simmons, one of the appellants herein, stated that he had voted, and thereupon his name was added to the poll list, and the canvass of the votes was announced by the chairman. Neither the district clerk nor the collector was elected by ballot, and the vote authorizing the levy of a tax was not taken by ballot or ascertained by the clerk recording the name of each person who voted and setting opposite to each whether such person voted aye or no.

This Department has held that where the trustee or trustees of a district have failed to provide a ballot box, the use of a hat for the reception of ballots will not of itself invalidate an election.

It is alleged by the appellants that Mrs Carrie Smith, the wife of Fred W. Smith, who at the time of said annual meeting was a citizen of the United States, upwards of 21 years of age and who with her husband had resided in such school district for more than 30 days prior to such meeting, and who had residing with them four children of school age, some one or more of whom had attended the school in such district for at least eight weeks during the school year ending July 31, 1900, offered to vote, but her vote was rejected by the chairman upon the opinion expressed by the respondent Ingalls that she was not a qualified voter in the district. Said Ingalls in his answer admits that the statements made by Mrs Smith as to her qualifications as a voter are true, but denies that she offered to vote. He, however, admits that he stated to the meeting that in his (Ingalls') opinion she was not a qualified voter. Under section 11 of article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the uniform rulings of this Department, Mrs Smith was a qualified voter in said district at said meeting.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered:

That all proceedings taken at said annual meeting, held on August 7, 1900, in school district 6, town of Springfield, Otsego county, subsequent to the acceptance of the report of the trustee of the district for the school years 1899-1900, be, and the same are, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered:

That Henry C. Sheldon, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of school district 6, Springfield, Otsego county, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, for the purpose of electing a trustee, a clerk and a collector of said district, and for considering and acting upon the question of the appropriation of money, and the levy of a tax for school purposes for the present school year; that the notice of such special meeting be given in the manner required by sections 2 and 6 of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894; that in the election of such district officers the proceedings taken shall conform to the provisions contained in, and the methods prescribed in, subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, relating to the election of school district officers, that the vote appropriating money or authorizing the levy of a tax for school purposes, must be made in the manner required by subdivision 18 of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

3448

The candidate for collector was not eligible. It not appearing that knowledge of his disqualification was brought home to the electors, the opposing candidate can not be declared elected, and a new election must be ordered.

Decided October 22, 1885

Ruggles, Superintendent

At the annual school meeting in district no. 3, Philipstown, Putnam county, upon a ballot for the election of district collector, James S. McIlravy received 86 votes and Thomas Smythe received 79. The appeal is brought to set aside the election of McIlravy upon the ground that at the time of the election he was not a qualified voter at school meeting in the district. The allegation of the appellant, that the respondent did not at the time of said election possess any of the qualifications necessary to make him a qualified voter at such election, is not successfully controverted by the respondent, who alleges that he was a qualified voter solely upon the ground that he owned upwards of $50 worth of personal property liable to taxation for school purposes. This is not a legal qualification. The statute provides that a resident of the district, twenty-one years of age "who owns any personal property assessed on the last preceding assessment roll of the town, exceeding fifty dollars in value, exclusive of such as is exempt from execution," is a qualified voter. McIlravy not having been so assessed was, therefore, disqualified to hold the office of collector.

It is a well-settled rule of law that had the disqualification been known to a sufficient number of electors to constitute a majority for McIlravy, and had they, notwithstanding this knowledge, cast their ballots for him, their votes would have been a nullity, and it would follow that Smythe, if duly qualified, must be declared the legally elected collector of the district. But there is no proof that the disqualification of McIlravy for the office of collector was known to any of the electors prior to the election, nor that any elector, before voting, received notice that McIlravy was disqualified. Knowledge of the disqualification not having been brought home to the electors who voted for McIlravy, it only remains for me to decide that there was not a legal election of collector on the 26th day of August last in said district. A new election ordered.

Upon evidence tending to show that illegal ballots were cast at an election for officers of a district, it will not be assumed that the illegal votes were cast for the successful candidate.

Decided February 26, 1869

Weaver, Superintendent

At an annual meeting the result of the first ballot for trustee was declared to be 80 votes cast, 50 for Casey, and 30 for Bierce.

Upon the ballot taken immediately thereafter for a second trustee, there being two to elect, the result was 55 ballots cast, of which 50 were for Wilson, 3 for Casey and 2 for Smith.

The same number of persons was in the room at the taking of each of these ballots and the conclusion is reached that upon the first ballot, 25 votes in excess of the voters were cast or counted.

The Superintendent says: "No charge is made and no proof is given that any such votes were cast for the persons declared elected, and it is a notable circumstance that upon each balloting the successful candidate received just 50 votes. Under these circumstances I can not assume that illegal votes were cast for the person who received the highest number on the first ballot. 7 Cow. 153 clearly lays down the law applicable to the facts of this case. 'To warrant setting aside the election it must appear affirmatively that the successful ticket received a number of improper votes which if rejected would have brought it down to a minority. The mere circumstance that improper votes were received will not vitiate an election.' "

4407

In the matter of the appeal of Charles W. Dutcher from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in union free school district no. 3, town of East Chester, Westchester county.

Where at an annual school meeting in a union free school district a vote is cast upon each of certain resolutions involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of tax or taxes by the secretary or some other person, under a motion adopted by the meeting upon a viva voce vote, whether such motion is declared to be adopted unanimously or not, it is not a vote upon such propositions or resolutions as is required by the provisions of the school law, and upon such action and proceedings will be vacated and set aside.

The fact that the votes of persons not qualified were received at a school meeting in any ballot taken thereat will not vitiate such ballot; but to warrant setting aside said ballot it must appear affirmatively that the resolution balloted for received a sufficient number of improper votes for it to reduce such vote to a minority if they had been rejected, otherwise the vote adopting the resolution would stand.

It is incumbent upon the party appealing, not only to allege the illegal voting or the disqualification of persons who voted upon such resolution, but to show by evidence the lack of qualification in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such voters could not be qualified under either of the heads stated in the sections of the school law, describing the qualifications of voters at school meetings in the respective school districts of the State.

Decided December 2, 1895

William P. Fiero, attorney for appellant
Jared Sandford, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellant in the above-entitled matter appeals from the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held on August 6, 1895, in union free school district no. 3, town of East Chester, Westchester county, first, in the election of W. F. Jeffers as a trustee, on the ground that his election was not in accordance with the provisions of the school law. Second, in voting to appropriate the sum of $25,000 for the purchase of a new schoolhouse site and the erection of a new schoolhouse in Waverly-on-the-Hill, same to be raised in annual instalments, on the ground that persons not qualified voted upon said proposition. Third, in voting to appropriate $1500 for the building of an addition to school building no. 2, Upper Tuckahoe, and in appropriating $5000 for a site and new school building in the vicinity of the Harlem Railroad depot, on the ground that the votes thereon were not taken by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the voters attending and voting; that the new sites voted for were not described by metes and bounds; that the board of trustees failed to cause to be published an account of moneys received and expended, as required by section 18, article 4, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law.

Annexed to the appeal and in support of the allegations therein are the affidavits of two persons who allege that the statements in said appeal, are, from the recollection of the affiants of the occurrences and proceedings at said meeting, true.

The five persons constituting the board of education of said school district have answered said appeal, and annexed thereto are the affidavits of Matthew Horan, the chairman of said annual school meeting and four other persons in support of said answer; that also annexed to said answer and forming a part thereof, is annexed a copy of the proceedings of said annual school meeting as recorded in the records of said district certified by the clerk of the board of education of said district.

From such appeal and answer the following facts are established:

That at said annual meeting Matthew Horan was elected chairman and that two persons were appointed inspectors of election; that William Rickard and Walter F. Jeffers were placed in nomination for the office of trustee to succeed William Rickard, whose term of office expired at the time of said meeting; that Rickards declined the office and no other nominations being made a motion was adopted that the secretary cast one ballot for said Jeffers for trustee; that said secretary thereupon cast one ballot for said Jeffers for trustee for the term of three years, and the result of the ballot being announced the chairman declared said Jeffers elected as such trustee; that a resolution was submitted to the meeting that there be appropriated the sum of $25,000 to be levied and raised by tax on the taxable property within school district no. 3, town of East Chester, for the purchase of a new site in Waverly-on-the-Hill, and for erecting, completing and furnishing a new school building therein; and that said sum be raised by annual instalments, the last instalment to be paid in the year 1916, and a vote thereon was taken by ballot, the result thereof, as declared, being as follows: Whole number of votes cast 129, of which 89 were for the resolution and 40 against the resolution; that a resolution was adopted that the board of trustees of said district be authorized and empowered to purchase a new site on which to erect a new schoolhouse, and that we recommend the selection for said site the following described lot or premises, to wit, 200 feet front on the old White Plains road adjoining and north of Matthew Horan's property, and 500 feet deep, known as the Morgan property; that a resolution was adopted that $1500 be raised by tax, in annual instalments, the last instalment to be paid in the year 1916 for the purpose of building an addition to schoolhouse no. 2, Upper Tuckahoe, and that the vote thereon was taken by the secretary casting one ballot for the resolution, under a resolution to that effect adopted by the meeting; that a resolution was offered to raise by tax the sum of $5000 in annual instalments, the last instalment to be paid in the year 1916, for the purchase of a site in the vicinity of the Harlem Railroad depot, and for the erecting, completing and furnishing thereon of a new school building, said site to be thereafter designated; that the appellant herein moved to increase the amount to $10,000, and one Mulvy moved to amend the amendment that only the amount advertised be voted on, which was adopted, and the vote upon said resolution was taken by the secretary casting one ballot for the resolution, under a resolution to that effect adopted by the meeting; that a resolution was adopted that the board of trustees of said district be authorized and empowered to purchase a new site on which to erect a new schoolhouse in the vicinity of the Harlem Railroad depot.

It appears that two persons were put in nomination for the office of trustee of the district for three years, and one of them declined to be a candidate, thus leaving but one person in nomination before the meeting. The appellant alleges that after the declination of Rickard one R. T. Young was attempting to place in nomination another person for trustee, but was prevented by the summary action of the meeting. After the declination of Rickard, there being but one person put in nomination, a motion was made and unanimously adopted, by a viva voce vote, that the secretary be directed to cast one ballot for Jeffers (the only nominee before the meeting) and the secretary cast such ballot and the result of the ballot was announced.

This Department has held, in some special cases, in which it was indisputably established that it was the unanimous wish of the meeting that a certain person nominated for a district office should be elected, that a vote cast by the clerk, or some other designated person for the meeting, should be sustained. I do not, however, approve of such method of electing district officers, and in my opinion such method is not a compliance with the provisions of the school law, in the election of school district officers. Under said law, a ballot for each officer should be had, and if after the ballot has commenced it appears all present are favorable to the election of the person or persons being voted for, and no other voter present desires to vote, the ballot may be closed and the votes cast be canvassed and the result announced. In this appeal I sustain the action of the meeting in the election of Jeffers, as it is not affirmatively shown that any qualified voter present was opposed to such election or desired a ballot. No other voter of the district has appealed from such election, and the appellant does not allege that he was opposed to Jeffers, or to the motion that the secretary cast the ballot for Jeffers. Upon the proofs presented I am of the opinion that the resolutions alleged to have been passed at said meeting raising by tax the sum of $1500 and $5000 respectively, were not, nor was either of them, passed in accordance with the provisions of the school law. All propositions arising at a school meeting, involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes in one sum or by instalments the vote thereon shall be by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such meetings. A vote cast for such resolutions, or either of them, by the secretary or any other person, under a motion adopted by the meeting upon a viva voce vote, whether such motion is declared to have been adopted unanimously or not, is not a vote upon such propositions or resolutions as is required by the provisions of the school law.

Under the school law the designation of a site or sites must be made by the district meeting. Such meeting can not delegate the selection or designation of such sites to the board of trustees. Such designation must be made at a district meeting and by a written resolution or resolutions, containing a description thereof by metes and bounds, and such resolution must receive a majority of the votes of the qualified voters present and voting at such meeting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes. The action of said annual meeting relative to new school sites at Waverly-on-the-Hill and the Harlem Railroad depot was not a legal designation of school sites, and such action can only be held to be an expression of opinion of the voters present at said meeting in relation thereto. It is clear that it will require the further action of a district meeting, in accordance with the provisions of the school law, to designate new sites in each of said localities. The appellant alleges that the report of the trustees of said district, required by section 18, article 4, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, was not published. Whether such report was or was not published is not material as to the legality of the annual meeting, or the validity of the proceedings of said meeting.

The only other ground of appeal herein remaining for consideration is, that in the vote of said meeting appropriating the sum of $25,000, to be levied and raised by tax for the purchase of a new site in Waverly-on-the-Hill and for erecting, completing and furnishing a new school building thereon, the votes of persons not qualified were received. The appellant alleges, in substance, that the persons favoring the purchase of said new site and the erecting of such new schoolhouse, "packed and crowded said school meeting, as the appellant is reliably informed and believes, and from an examination of the alleged voters at said meeting he is satisfied, with nonresidents of said district and with 74 voters out of a total of 129 voting at said meeting who were not then and there legally entitled to vote thereat upon the question of bonding aforesaid or otherwise." The respondents deny this allegation, and allege that the persons who voted at said meeting were residents of said district and entitled to vote upon all matters presented thereat upon which a vote was required.

The burden is upon the appellant to sustain his appeal by a preponderance of proof. This the appellant has failed to do with regard to his allegation that the votes of persons not qualified to vote were received.

The fact that the votes of persons not qualified were received in the ballot had upon said resolution will not vitiate such ballot. To warrant setting aside said ballot, it must appear affirmatively that said resolution received a sufficient number of improper votes for it to reduce such vote to a minority if they had been rejected; or otherwise the vote adopting the resolution stands. It is incumbent upon the appellant in this appeal, not only to allege the illegal voting, or the disqualification of persons who voted upon such resolution, but to show by evidence the lack of qualifications in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such voters could not be qualified under either of the heads stated in the section of the school law prescribing the qualifications of voters at school meetings in said district.

No evidence is produced by the appellant showing that any one of the 129 persons who voted upon said resolution was not qualified to vote thereon, and hence has failed to establish affirmatively, that said resolution received a sufficient (or any) number of improper votes for it to reduce such vote to a minority for such resolution if such improper votes, if any, had been rejected.

I find and decide, That so much of the appeal herein as is taken from the action and proceedings of the said annual meeting, held in said district as relates to the appropriation of $1500 for the addition to a school building in Upper Tuckahoe, and the appropriation of $5000 for a site and new school building in the vicinity of the Harlem Railroad depot, and as relates to two sites, is sustained; and as to all other matters, the appeal herein is dismissed.

It is ordered, That the action and proceedings had and taken at the annual school meeting, held August 6, 1895, in union free school district no. 3, town of East Chester, Westchester county, appropriating $1500 for an addition to school building no. 2, Upper Tuckahoe, and the appropriating of $5000 for a site and the erection of a new school building in the vicinity of the Harlem Railroad depot, be, and the same are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside.

4930

In the matter of the appeal of Kenner G. Gifford and J. N. Mumpton from proceedings of special meeting held November 9, 1900, in union free school district no. 7, Cheektowaga, Erie county.

In an appeal from the election of school district officers the appellant must not only allege the disqualifications of persons whose votes were received, but must show by evidence the lack of qualifications of such persons in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that they were qualified to vote.

Under the school law every person of full age who has resided in a school district for a period of thirty days preceding an annual or special meeting held therein, and a citizen of the United States, who owns or hires, or is in possession under a contract of purchase of real property in the district liable to taxation for school purposes, is entitled to vote for school district officers, and upon all matters brought before the school meeting. The tax law of the State defines the term "real property" to include the land itself, above and under water, all buildings and other articles and structures, substructures and superstructures erected upon or above, or affixed to, the same.

The school law does not define the quantity of real property necessary to be owned, hired, or in the possession under a contract of purchase, subject to taxation for school purposes in the district, of a person to entitle him or her to vote, provided he or she possesses the necessary qualifications of residence, age and citizenship. Such real property may consist of a small parcel of land, or a tract of many acres, or of a room, or a flat in a building, or a dwelling house, or a block of buildings, and the rent may be payable in work, money, taxes or improvements.

Decided February 28, 1901

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings of a special meeting, held on November 9, 1900, in union free school district 7, Cheektowaga, Erie county, in the election of Eugene J. McGuire as a trustee of the district.

The appellants allege, in substance, as the grounds for bringing their appeal, that they feel and believe that there were at least 30 votes cast by men not entitled to vote; that they challenged voters until they saw that each person challenged would make the declaration required by the Consolidated School Law; that they name 24 persons whose votes were received, none of whom, from the best knowledge and belief of the appellants, was a qualified voter under the school law.

'Annexed to the appeal is a copy of the proceedings of said special meeting, verified by the district clerk who acted as clerk of such special meeting.

An answer to the appeal herein has been made by a committee appointed at a special meeting held in such district February 1, 1901, to consider such appeal, which answer, upon the information and belief of the respondents therein, denies each and all of the allegations made by the appellants in the appeal.

It appears that a special meeting was held the evening of November 8, 1900, in said union free school district 7, Cheektowaga, Erie county, for the purpose of electing a trustee of such district for the term of three years from the first Tuesday of August 1900; that the meeting was duly organized by the election of a chairman, the clerk of the district acting as clerk of the meeting, and the appointment of two inspectors of election; that Eugene J. McGuire and Kenner G. Gifford were each nominated as candidates for the office of trustee; that a ballot was thereupon taken for a trustee, and the poll being closed and the inspectors of election having canvassed the vote cast, announced to the chairman the result of the election, as follows: whole number of votes cast 159, of which Eugene J. McGuire received 85, Kenner G. Gifford received 73 and Jacob B. Williams received 1; that the chairman of the meeting then announced that Eugene J. McGuire was elected trustee of the district for the term of three years from August 1900, and the meeting adjourned.

It also appears that during the ballot taken for trustee, only five persons offering to vote were challenged, and each of said persons made the declaration required by the Consolidated School Law, and their votes respectively were received; but it does not appear for whom such persons, or either of them, voted, nor is there any evidence presented that such persons were not, or that either of them was, not qualified, under the school law, to vote at such meeting.

Under the provisions of section 12, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, any legal voter present at a school district meeting has the right to challenge any person offering to vote. Neither the chairman nor the inhabitants assembled at the meeting can act as judges of any person's qualifications. All that lies in their power is to make the challenge and accept the vote if the person makes the declaration, or reject it if he or she refuses.

Section 13, article 1, title 7 of such law provides that any person who shall wilfully make a false declaration of his or her right to vote at any school meeting, after his or her right to vote has been challenged, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

This Department has uniformly held that any legal voter present at a school district meeting, and knowing or having reason to believe, that any person or persons offering to vote thereat, is or are, not a legal voter or voters, and permitting such person or persons to vote without challenge, will not be allowed to object to the proceedings taken at such meeting because such unqualified person or persons participated in such proceedings.

The rule is well settled that the proceedings taken at a school meeting will not be vitiated by illegal votes unless a different result would have been produced by excluding such votes. It lies upon the party objecting to show that fact, even if the nature of the proceedings (as in the case of a vote by ballot) is such as to deprive him of the power. For aught that appears in the proofs filed herein the ballots cast by the person claimed by the appellants not to have been qualified voters were for Gifford, the minority candidate. To warrant setting aside an election it must appear affirmatively that the successful ticket received a number of illegal votes which, if rejected, would have brought it down to a minority.

It is incumbent in case of appeal from the election of school district officers, for the appellant not only to allege the illegal voting, or the disqualification of certain persons whose votes were received, but to show by evidence the lack of qualification of such persons in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such persons could be qualified under the provisions of the school law prescribing the qualifications necessary to be possessed by persons to entitle them to vote at school district meetings.

Under the provisions of section 8, article 2, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that every person of full age, residing in any union free school district, and who has resided therein for a period of thirty days next preceding any annual or special meeting held therein, and a citizen of the United States, who owns or hires or is in possession under a contract of purchase of real property in such school district liable to taxation for school purposes, is entitled to vote at any school meeting held in said district.

The tax law of this state defines the term "real property" to include the land itself above and under water, all buildings and other articles and structures, substructures and superstructures erected upon, under or above, or affixed to the same.

The school law does not define or declare the quantity of real property necessary to be owned, hired or to be in the possession of a person under a contract to purchase, subject to taxation for school purposes to entitle such person to vote at a school district meeting, provided he or she possesses the necessary qualifications of citizenship, age and residence. Such real property may consist of a small parcel of land or a tract of many acres, or of a room, or a flat in a building, or of a dwelling house, or a block of buildings, and the rent may be payable in work, money, taxes or improvements.

The appellants herein have failed to establish their appeal herein by competent evidence, and their appeal must be dismissed.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4885

In the matter of the appeal of William Skutt, Edward M. Van Deusen and William Clark from proceedings of annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district no. 16, Elbridge, Onondaga county.

In the election of school district officers the chairman and clerk of the meeting can not legally act as inspectors of election; but two qualified voters of the district must be appointed as such inspectors, in such manner as the meeting shall determine. When the trustee has failed to provide a suitable ballot box, the use of a hat in which to deposit the votes cast will not of itself vitiate an election. When the meeting decides to vote for a district officer separately, as for example, for trustee, a ballot with the name of a person thereon, without the designation "for trustee" will be legal.

Decided September 29, 1900

J. C. McLaughlin, attorney for appellant
Barton C. Meays, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings of the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district 16, Elbridge, Onondaga county, upon the grounds that such proceedings were not in accordance with the provisions of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the acts amendatory thereof.

In subdivision 4 of section 14 article 1 title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that all school district officers shall be elected by ballot; that at such elections the trustees shall provide a suitable ballot box; that two inspectors of election shall be appointed in such manner as the meeting shall determine, who shall receive the votes cast, and canvass the same, and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman; that a poll list containing the name of every person whose vote shall be received, shall be kept by the district clerk, or the clerk for the time of the meeting; that the ballot shall be written or printed or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for and designating the office which each is voted for; that the chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot, as announced to him by the inspectors, and the persons having a majority of the votes, respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected.

In subdivision 18 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of said Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted, that in all propositions arising at district meetings, involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, the vote thereon shall be by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such district meetings.

This Department has uniformly held that ascertaining a vote by taking and recording the ayes and noes means that the clerk of the meeting shall record the name of each person whose vote is received, and by setting opposite to each name whether such person voted aye or no.

This Department has uniformly held that under the provisions contained in subdivision 4 of section 14 of article 1 title 7 of said Consolidated School Law, above referred to, when the trustee has failed to provide a suitable ballot box, the use of a hat for a ballot box will not of itself vitiate the election; that in the election of district officers the ballots may have names for all of said officers, or each officer may be voted for separately; that when the meeting decides to vote for a district office separately, as for example for trustee, a ballot with the name of the person thereon, without the designation "for trustee" will be legal, and that two inspectors of election to receive and canvass the vote cast, must be elected or appointed by the meeting; that the chairman and clerk can not act as such inspectors, or receive or canvass the votes cast in any ballot taken at any school meeting.

Frank Spaulding has filed an answer to the appeal herein, and to such answer the appellants have filed a reply.

The following facts are established by the pleadings and affidavits filed herein:

The annual meeting in school district 16, Elbridge, Onondaga county, was held August 7, 1900, and John W. Barnett was elected chairman, and John D. Cory acted as clerk; that two inspectors of election to receive the votes cast in any ballot or ballots had and taken at the meeting, canvass the same and announce the result of each ballot to the chairman, were not appointed by the meeting; that the chairman and clerk acted as inspectors of election and the clerk received the votes cast in all ballots taken at such meeting, and canvassed the same and announced the result to the chairman who announced such result to the meeting; that no poll list containing the name of each person whose vote was received in the ballot for trustee was kept by the clerk; that a ballot was taken for trustee, such ballots being received by the clerk and deposited in a hat, the trustee not having provided a suitable ballot box to receive such ballots; that 17 ballots were declared by the clerk to have been cast for trustee, of which 9 were said to have been for Frank Spaulding and 8 for William Skutt, and the chairman announced such result to the meeting, and declared Spaulding elected trustee. It does not affirmatively appear that any ballot was taken for district clerk; that the clerk on a vote of the meeting, cast one ballot for Ed. Van Deusen for collector, and the chairman declared Van Deusen elected for collector; that the vote, appropriating the sum of $80 for teachers' wages, $20 for contingent expenses, $15 for fuel and 50 cents to reimburse the collector for United States revenue stamp, was not ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the persons voting thereon, but such vote was taken viva voce.

The respondent alleges "that no inspectors of election were appointed at such meeting because the meeting and each voter waived such requirement, no one asking for the appointment of tellers, and no objection was made to the method or the result." This claim is not tenable, for the reason that the meeting in the aggregate or the individual voters thereof could not waive the requirement of the school law in regard to the appointment of such inspectors of election.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered:

That all the proceedings taken at the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district 16, Elbridge, Onondaga county, except the election of John W. Barnett as chairman, and the acceptance of the report of the outgoing trustee, be, and the same are, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered:

That William Skutt, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of school district 16, Elbridge, Onondaga county, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, for the purpose of electing a trustee, a clerk and collector of such district, and for considering and acting upon the question of the appropriation of money and the levy of a tax for school purposes for the present school year of 1900-01. That the notice of such special meeting be given in the manner required by sections 2 and 6 of article 1 title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894; that in the election of such district officers the proceedings taken shall conform to the provisions contained in, and the methods prescribed in subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, relating to the election of school district officers; that the vote appropriating money or authorizing the levy of a tax for school purposes, must be made in the manner required by subdivision 18 of section 14 article 1 title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

4366

In the matter of the appeal of Elvin A. Barrett from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 12, town of Alabama, Genesee county.

Where at an annual school meeting a motion is made and adopted that the meeting proceed to ballot for a trustee, and such ballot was taken, and on a canvass of the ballots it was found that on some of the ballots the words "For trustee" were not written, and the chairman of the meeting rejected said ballots as being illegal; held, that the ballots were legal and the rulings and decision of the chairman vacated and set aside.

Decided September 20, 1895

Tyrrell & Ballard, attorneys for appellant

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellant in the above-entitled matter appeals from the action and proceedings of the annual school meeting, held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 12, town of Alabama, Genesee county, in the election of a trustee.

George Daniels, who claims to have been elected trustee at said meeting, has filed an answer to the appeal.

The following facts are established: that the annual school meeting in and for said district no. 12, Alabama, was held on August 6, 1895; that said meeting was organized by the choice of a chairman and clerk, and two tellers or inspectors of election were appointed; that after the reading of the reports of the trustee and collector, a motion was made and adopted that an informal ballot be taken for trustee of the district, and such informal ballot was taken which resulted, as announced, as follows: whole number of votes cast 37, of which E. R. Greene received 18, George Daniels 11, Hale Wright 5, Theron Ames 2 and Mrs E. A. Barrett 1; that a motion was then made and adopted that the meeting proceed to ballot for a trustee and such ballot was taken and the result thereof, as announced, was as follows: whole number of votes cast 39, of which E. R. Greene received 18, George Daniels 11, Hale Wright 9 and Theron Ames 1; that after the announcement of the result of said ballot it was claimed that as 24 of the ballots cast did not have thereon the name of the office for which the person or persons whose name or names were written thereon were voted for, to wit, "For trustee," that such ballots were illegal and therefore the chairman of said meeting declared said 24 ballots so received and cast were illegal, and stated that of the legal votes cast the whole number was fifteen of which George Daniels received 11 and Hale Wright 4, and that said George Daniels was elected trustee; that a motion was then made and seconded and put by the chairman to the meeting, that another ballot be taken for trustee and declared by the chairman to be carried, but no other or further ballot was taken for trustee and the meeting adjourned. It does not appear that any poll list was kept or that any ballot box was provided in accordance with the provisions of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law. It is not claimed that any person not a qualified voter of the district voted at such meeting.

It is clear that the chairman of said meeting had no legal right to reject the twenty-four votes cast, for the reason that said ballots did not have thereon the words "For trustee." The provisions of subdivision 4, section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, requiring that ballots for school district officers shall designate the office for which each is voted, applies to ballots for more than one office, namely, for trustee, district clerk, etc., and not to ballots cast for a single office, namely, that of trustee, as was the motion adopted at said district meeting. The ballot taken at said meeting in which the whole number of votes cast was 39 was for the office of trustee, and a ballot so cast, having the name of a person was a legal ballot for that person for the office of trustee of said district.

It follows, therefore, that the decision of the chairman that but 15 legal votes for trustee were cast and that George Daniels having received 11 votes was elected trustee of the district, was without authority of law.

From the facts established in the appeal herein I find and decide that the annual school meeting, held in said district no. 5, town of Alabama, Genesee county, on August 6, 1895, failed to elect a trustee for said district for the present school year; that the decision of the chairman of said school meeting, rejecting 24 of the ballots cast at said meeting as illegal ballots, was illegal and void; that the decisions of the chairman of said meeting that but 15 legal ballots for trustee were received and that George Daniels, having received 11 of the said 15 votes, was elected trustee of said district were, and each of them was, illegal and void; that said George Daniels was not, by the form or color of an election, elected trustee of said district at said annual meeting; that there was no legal election of a trustee of said school district at said annual meeting and that the trustee of said district in office on August 6, 1895, hold over as trustee of said district until his successor in office shall be legally elected or appointed; that there is no vacancy in the office of trustee of said district which can be supplied at a special meeting of said district.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the rulings or decisions made by the chairman of the annual school meeting, held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 12, town of Alabama, Genesee county, in rejecting 24 of the 39 ballots cast for trustee of said district at said meeting is illegal, that but 15 legal ballots for trustee were cast and that George Daniels was elected trustee of said district are, and each of them, is illegal and void, and they are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside.

4371

In the matter of the appeal of William M. Chapman from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 2, town of Catherine, Schuyler county.

When at an annual school meeting in a common school district a ballot has been had for a trustee of the district, and such ballot has been canvassed and the result announced by which it appears that one of the candidates voted for had received a majority of the votes cast; held, that the power of said meeting in the election of a trustee was exhausted, and said meeting had no legal power or authority to recanvass the ballots cast upon such formal ballot, nor to reconsider said ballot, nor to take another ballot for trustee.

Decided September 20, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

The appeal in the above entitled matter is taken from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in school district no. 2, town of Catherine, Schuyler county.

John Pelham and others have answered said appeal. It appears from said appeal and answer that the annual school meeting in said district was held on August 6, 1895, and that Owen Gardner was chosen chairman and James Woodard, clerk; that one William Larue was appointed an inspector of election; that the report of the trustee was read and accepted; that the chairman announced that the election of a trustee was in order and upon a motion made and adopted the meeting proceeded to an informal ballot for trustee; that thereupon said inspector of election passed around the room and collected the ballots and after counting them announced that 22 votes were cast, of which William M. Chapman received 11 and John Pelham 11; that a motion was then adopted that the meeting proceeded to a formal ballot for trustee, and such ballot was had in like manner as the informal ballot; that the result of the ballot, announced by the chairman as received from the inspector, was that 23 votes were cast of which William M. Chapman (the appellant herein) received 12 and John Pelham 11, and the said Chapman thereupon accepted said office of trustee; that the meeting then ballotted in like manner for collector and John Pelham was announced as having received a majority of the votes cast; that in canvassing the votes for collector the chairman and clerk acted with said inspector, Larue, pursuant to a vote of the meeting; that a motion was then adopted that the votes cast upon the second (formal) ballot for trustee be recounted by the chairman, clerk and inspector of election, which recount was had and the result announced that the total vote was 19, of which William Chapman received 9 and John Pelham 10; that a motion was then adopted that the ballot for trustee be reconsidered and a new ballot for trustee be taken; that said new ballot was taken in like manner as the previous ballots and the votes so received were canvassed by the inspector of election, chairman and clerk and the result thereof announced as follows: Whole number 18, of which John Pelham received 13 and William M. Chapman 5, and said Pelham was declared elected trustee of the district; that after said announcement said Pelham declined to accept the office of collector to which he had been previously elected, and thereupon said meeting elected John Woodard as collector; that after the transaction of other business the meeting adjourned.

It appears that no poll list was kept containing the names of the voters whose votes were received; but it is not claimed that any but persons duly qualified voted in the election of such district officers.

School district officers and voters should, in the election of officers, comply strictly with the provisions of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and prevent contentions from arising in such districts, like those present in the appeal herein.

I find and decide that the method had and taken at the annual meeting in said district no. 2, town of Catherine, in the formal ballot for trustee was a sufficient compliance with the provisions of the school law and that the appellant herein, William M. Chapman, was legally elected trustee of said district, he having received a majority of the votes cast; that upon such election the power of said meeting in the election of a trustee was exhausted, and said meeting had no legal power or authority to recount the ballots cast upon said formal ballot, nor to reconsider said formal ballot, nor to take another ballot for trustee; that all proceedings taken at said meeting after said formal ballot was taken and the result thereof announced relative to said ballot or any ballot for the office of trustee was illegal and void and must be set aside.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at said annual meeting, held in said school district no. 2, town of Catherine, Schuyler county, relating in any manner to the election of a trustee of said district, after said formal ballot for trustee was taken and the result thereof announced be, and the same are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

3711

In the matter of the appeal of William H. Gardner v. school district no. 6, town of North Salem, Westchester county.

A person receiving a majority of the votes cast for the office of trustee will be held to have waived his right to the office by participating without a protest in a second ballot, upon which another was chosen as trustee.

Decided October 1, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant alleges that, at the election for trustee held at the annual meeting in school district no. 6 of the town of North Salem, Westchester county, a vote was taken with the following result: Martin Todd 10, Leander Mead 11. The respondent alleges that one vote was also cast upon this ballot for Isaac C. Wright, but I do not consider the variance in the allegations of the parties in reference to this one vote as very material. After the result of the ballot was announced, one William McCoy alleged that he had not voted and that he was entitled to do so, whereupon the clerk ordered another ballot to be taken. This second ballot resulted as follows: Leander Mead 12, Martin Todd 13, and Mr Todd was thereupon declared elected. The appellant now claims that Mead was elected on the first ballot, and that the meeting had no right to proceed to a second ballot.

The respective parties now allege that persons voted against them who were not lawfully entitled to vote. It is claimed that challenges were interposed at the time of taking the second ballot, which were disregarded by the chair, and that the persons challenged were allowed to vote without making the declaration required by law in such cases. The clerk's minutes of the meeting are not found in the papers, and no proof is offered beyond the bare allegations of the parties. This being so, I am obliged to disregard this phase of the matter. If Mr Mead received a majority of the votes cast on the first ballot he was undoubtedly entitled to the office of trustee in consequence, unless he waived his right under said ballot. If it appeared in the papers that he or his friends interposed objections to the taking of a second ballot, and had insisted upon their rights under the first one, I should feel bound to sustain him; but the papers clearly indicate that the second ballot was taken by mutual consent and agreement in the meeting with a view to allaying feeling and straightening out a confused state of affairs. This being done, the parties are bound to abide by the result. They could not proceed to the taking of a second ballot and avail themselves of the benefit of it if they succeeded, and, at the same time repudiate the consequences of it if they failed.

For these considerations, I have arrived at the conclusion that the appeal must be dismissed.

3713

In the matter of the appeal of Peter H. Keller v. school district no. 5, town of Roseboom, county of Otsego.

A person chosen trustee will be held to have waived his right to the office by consenting to the taking of a second ballot upon which ballot another was elected to the office.

Decided October 1, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

At the annual meeting held August 28th, 1886, in district no. 5 of the town of Roseboom, county of Otsego, the appellant and one Clark Sisum were candidates for the office of trustee. A ballot was taken, which was announced as follows: Keller 7 votes and Sisum 6 votes. The chairman then stated that he had not voted, and insisted upon doing so, and voted for Mr Sisum, which made the votes of the two men a tie. Another ballot was taken, which resulted in Mr Keller's getting 6 votes and Mr Sisum 8, and Mr Sisum was declared elected. Mr Keller appeals from this action, and contends that he was elected upon the first ballot. The chairman had the right to vote with the others when the ballot was taken. He had no right to vote after the ballot was closed and the result announced. I should hold that Mr Keller was elected upon the first ballot and entitled to the office of trustee but for the fact that he states in his appeal that he consented to the taking of the second ballot. If he did so, he is bound to abide the result of that ballot. His act must be held to waive any rights which he acquired under the first ballot.

The appeal is therefore dismissed.

3736

In the matter of the appeal of F. S. Houseknecht v. Daniel T. Bennett, trustee of school district no. 4, towns of Alden, Erie county, Darien, Genesee county, and Bennington, Wyoming county.

A person who claims to have been elected trustee upon a ballot about which there is a dispute, who acquiesced and participated in subsequent ballots and until another person was chosen for the office will be deemed to have waived his right to the office.

Decided November 28, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the annual meeting, held in district no. 4, of the towns of Alden, Erie county, Darien, Genesee county, and Bennington, Wyoming county, in electing a trustee. The appellant alleges that, at that meeting he was duly elected to the office of trustee upon a vote taken by ballot, the result of which was 10 for the appellant, one for A. C. Nichols, and 7 for Daniel Bennett. It further appears that no declaration of an election was made by the chairman, and that a second ballot, which resulted in no election, was taken, and thereupon, a third ballot was taken, which resulted in the election of the respondent, and he was so declared by the chair.

The respondent avers that the first ballot was informal, and that after the vote on the third ballot, and the declaration of his election as trustee, the appellant, who had held the office of trustee the preceding year, gave the key of the schoolhouse to the respondent and notified him that the trustee's book was at one place, and that by calling at his residence he could have the code at any time. This appeal was not taken until long after thirty days after the meeting was held, and no excuse is shown for this delay.

Ordinarily, I should dismiss this appeal upon this ground, but in order to settle any misunderstanding, I shall determine the case upon its merits. It is not claimed by the appellant that, after the first ballot was taken and the second ballot was about to be proceeded with, any objection thereto was made by him or any of his supporters. On the other hand, it is averred by the respondent and his witnesses that no objection was made to the taking of a second and third ballot, or to the declaration of the chairman that the respondent was elected, and from the evidence before me it would appear that the appellant and his supporters participated in the second and third ballots, and, as it appears from the pleadings, acquiesced in the result.

In view of these facts, I have concluded to dismiss the appeal and to hold that the respondent was duly elected trustee of the above-mentioned district at the annual school meeting aforesaid.

EQUALIZATION OF VALUES

3490

Apportionment of railroad property; jurisdiction of Superintendent over assessors; proper basis of apportionment.

Decided March 31, 1886

Morrison, Superintendent

The appeal is taken in behalf of district no. 6, Hamburg, Erie county, from the action of the assessors of said town, in apportioning the property of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad between the different school districts of said town.

It appears that there are nine and twenty-nine one-hundredths miles of track belonging to said company in the said town of Hamburg, of which 379 feet, about two acres in area, belongs to district no. 6. Included in the above 379 feet of track is an immense and costly culvert, one of the largest in the country, which cost, it is alleged, about $200,000. The total valuation of the railroad in Hamburg, as appraised by the assessors for the present year, is $340,000, and in said assessors' apportionment to the district in question, the sum of $2625, giving as their reason that said district is only entitled to its proportion of a mile.

The appellants claim, and with seeming justice, that the proportion of the assessment to which district no. 6 is entitled should range from $30,000 to $40,000.

It appears that in 1881 an appeal was taken from the action of the assessors of that year, in apportioning only $10,200 to said district no. 6, the assessors then claiming, as they do now, that the district is only entitled to its proportion of a mile of valuation; that the amount of railroad property in the town should be regarded as a unit, and that the district is only entitled to that proportion of the assessment which the length of the railroad in the district bears to the total length of the railroad in the town. The Superintendent, in 1881, did not agree with this view of the case, but sustained the appeal and directed a new apportionment to be made by the assessors.

The fact that the Superintendent passed upon this question as early as 1881, renders it unnecessary for me to discuss the point raised by the respondents, that the Superintendent is without jurisdiction in the case.

The acts of the assessors proceeding within the statute are judicial and not ministerial. But the conclusive character of their act is only while they confine themselves within the statute.

It is admitted in this case that the assessment was not based upon the actual value of the railroad property in the school district, but was based upon the theory that one mile of railroad was equal in value to any other value. By adopting this plan of apportionment, the assessors failed to confine themselves within the statute, which provides that it shall be their duty to apportion the value of the property of each and every railroad company, as appears on the assessment list, among the several school districts in their town in which any portion of said property is situated, giving to each of said districts their proper proportion, according to the proportion that the value of said property in each of said districts bears to the value of the whole thereof in said town.

It may be that interference, at this late day, with an apportionment which has already gone into effect in eight districts of the town, would create confusion which would impair rather than protect the interests of the schools. I am, therefore, induced, though very reluctantly, to abstain from according the relief sought by the appellants in this instance; but the assessors of the town of Hamburg are directed, within ten days after notice to them of the filing of this decision, to meet and again apportion the valuation of the property of every railroad company "as appears on the assessment list among the several school districts of their town in which any portion of said property is situated, giving to each of said districts their proper proportion according to the proportion that the" actual value of said property in each of said districts bears to the actual value of the whole thereof in said town, in accordance with the provisions of section 1, chapter 694 of the Laws of 1867; and that hereafter in the assessment and collection of taxes in any of the school districts of the town, the apportionment then made shall be followed by local school authorities until the completion of the next annual assessment.

5446

In the matter of the appeal of James T. Morris, Clarence C. Donelson and Edwin Morton for relief from excessive taxation upon that part of the real property of union free school district no. 1, lying in the town of Greenburgh, as compared with that lying in the town of White Plains.

Equalization of taxes by supervisors A determination of the supervisors of towns, a portion of which is included in a school district, is not binding upon the board of education of such district unless made as required by law. It is not sufficient for the supervisors to state in their order that a specified reduction should be made upon the assessment of real property of one of the towns. The order of the supervisors is fatally defective unless it determines the relative proportion of taxes that ought to be assessed upon the real property of the parts of such district lying in different towns.

Decided May 13, 1910

Draper, Commissioner

This appeal was filed in this office January 5, 1910, having been served on the president of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Greenburgh, county of Westchester, on January 4, 1910.

The appellants allege that some time in April 1909 they appeared before the board of education of such district and requested that some action be taken to secure an adjustment of the assessment of school taxes between the portions of the districts lying respectively in the towns of White Plains and Greenburgh. The board of education passed a resolution directing notice to be given to the supervisors of such towns to meet at the office of the supervisor of White Plains April 30, 1909, "to proceed to inquire and determine whether the valuation of real property upon the assessment rolls of the towns of White Plains and Greenburgh are substantially just as compared with each other, so far as union free school district no. 1 of the town of White Plains is concerned, and if ascertained not to be so, that they shall determine the relative proportion of taxes that ought to be assessed upon the real property of the parts of such district lying in said towns of White Plains and Greenburgh." A certificate signed by the supervisors of these towns is attached to the petition which states that they met on the day specified in the notice, namely, April 30, 1909, and that "it was agreed that in order to equalize the taxes for school purposes upon the real property lying in the respective towns, a reduction should be made upon the assessment of the real property made by the town of Greenburgh of 22 per cent as shown by the table of equalization and assessments, 1908, board of supervisors." It does not appear that the board of education was ever informed of this determination or that copies were filed in the town clerks' office or the office of the district clerk.

The appellants complain of the board's action in failing to conform its assessments to the determination of the supervisors. If the determination of the supervisors was properly made and was duly brought to the board's attention, it was their duty to make their assessment in accordance therewith. The certificate attached to the papers shows that a legal determination was not made by the supervisors of the towns. It is not sufficient to state that a specified "reduction should be made upon the assessment of the real property" of one of the towns. The supervisors, in such a proceeding, must determine "the relative proportion of taxes that ought to be assessed upon the real property of the parts of such district lying in different towns." In this case the supervisors of White Plains and Greenburgh should have stated in their order the portion of the taxes to be collected in the entire district, which should be assessed upon the real property in each town. In making such determination the supervisors must ascertain the actual value of the real property in the school district situated in the town of White Plains, and the actual value of the real property in such district in the town of Greenburgh. After deducting the tax to be paid in the district on account of personal property assessments, the balance is to be assessed upon the real property in the part of the district in each town, in the proportion that the actual value of the real property in such part of the town bears to the actual value of the real property in the entire district. It is evident that the supervisors failed to observe any of these rules in making their determination. For this reason this appeal must be dismissed.

It is evident from the certificate of the two supervisors above referred to, that the valuation of real property upon the assessment rolls is not "substantially just as compared with each other," within the meaning of section 414 of the Education Law of 1910 (former Education Law, § 384). The appellants, as taxpayers of the town of Greenburgh in such district, are entitled to the privileges conferred by such section. They may serve upon the supervisors of the two towns the notice required, and such supervisors may then be compelled by a legal proceeding in court, if need be, to determine as to the relative valuation of real property in the parts of the towns constituting the joint district.

The statute relative to the equalization of real property values in joint district has been in force since the Consolidated School Law of 1864. The practice thereunder is well established. There must be a substantial compliance therewith. For the method of computation and the procedure, reference may be made to the Code of Public Instruction of 1887, pages 380-82. When the relative proportion of taxes to be assessed upon the real property of the parts of this district lying in the towns of White Plains and Greenburgh has been legally ascertained the board of education of such district may be compelled by a proper proceeding to comply with the determination of the supervisors.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

3550

William N. Callender from the action of the trustees of joint school district no. 1, towns of Greenbush and East Greenbush, Rensselaer county, N. Y., in levying and apportioning a school tax upon an illegal valuation of real property in said district.

EQUALIZATION OF VALUES IN JOINT DISTRICTS

Supervisors have no power to change the values as fixed in the town assessment rolls.

Their duty is to determine what proportion of a school district tax shall be paid by each town forming a joint district, so that relatively each shall pay the same.

Trustees, in preparing a tax list, must use the last town assessment roll after correction by assessors.

Decided December 24, 1886

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by William N. Callender, a taxpayer of the town of East Greenbush, Rensselaer county, N. Y., a portion of which town forms a part of joint school district no. 1, towns of East Greenbush and the village of Greenbush, which is a portion of the town of Greenbush, in the county aforesaid, from the action of the supervisors of the said towns in assuming to change the assessed valuations of property from the valuations placed thereon by the respective town assessors, and from the action of the trustees of said district in using as a basis of valuations of real property the tax roll of the assessors of the town of East Greenbush for the year 1885, as altered by said supervisors, instead of the assessors' last roll, which was filed in 1886, and asking to have said assessment and the apportionment of school taxes for said district thereon and the warrant dated December 2, 1886, which accompanies it, set aside, and the receiver of taxes of the village of Greenbush enjoined and stayed from enforcing the collection thereof. The errors alleged as above set forth are substantially admitted by the trustees, who appear as respondents herein. For the errors assigned, this appeal is sustained.

The supervisors and trustees in preparing the tax list, should have used the last assessment rolls of the towns, after correction by the assessors, as the basis of valuation for the tax list. This, it appears, they did not do.

The supervisors of the towns composing this district had no authority under the law (§ 69, title 7, ch. 555 of the Laws of 1864), to change the valuation of any piece of real property appearing in said tax list as they assumed to do. Their duty under the law was simply to determine the basis upon which the respective town assessors had proceeded in determining values for their assessment, and if found not to be ratably the same, to determine what proportion of a school tax to be collected should be apportioned to each town. Having failed so to do, their action was manifestly irregular and illegal, and can not be sustained.

I, therefore, sustain the appeal and set aside the action of the supervisors in changing the assessed valuations, and the apportionment of taxes by the trustees made thereon, and the tax list upon which such apportionment was made.

The receiver of taxes of the village of Greenbush is perpetually stayed and enjoined from the collection of the tax as at present apportioned; and said receiver of taxes is hereby ordered and directed to refund all sums which may have been collected by virtue of the aforesaid warrant upon said tax list to the persons from whom the same were collected.

3763

In the matter of the equalization of the assessments in school district no. 11, of the towns of Middleburgh and Broome, in the county of Schoharie.

In a school district composed of parts of more than one town the equalization of assessments for school purposes by supervisors will be set aside when it appears that the supervisors merely rode through the district and listened to interested parties, and then made their equalization by the vote of two of three supervisors, and it also appears from the town assessment rolls, and the affidavits of the assessors and others that the valuations fixed by the assessors were substantially just as compared with each other, and that the real property of each town was assessed at its full value. The evidence of sworn officers, chosen with special reference to the particular duty of determining values, will be given more weight than the unofficial declaration of residents of a neighborhood.

Decided February 16, 1889

Engle and Getter, attorneys for appellants

W. H. Albro, attorney for respondents

Draper, Superintendent

School district no. 11, of the towns of Middleburgh and Broome, is situated partly in each of said towns. That part of the district in the town of Broome contains 1183 acres and that part of the town of Middleburgh 1416 acres. There is a little dispute about the entire accuracy of these figures, but they are sufficiently correct for present purposes, certainly. In December 1888, the supervisors of the towns met, upon application as provided by statute, for the purpose of inquiring whether the valuations of real property upon the assessment rolls of the two towns were substantially correct as compared with each other. Being unable to agree, they called in the supervisor of the adjoining town of Schoharie. After riding through the district and hearing what several interested parties had to say, the third supervisor joined with the supervisor of the town of Middleburgh, and on the 26th day of January 1889, made an order declaring that the assessments in the two towns were not just as compared with each other, and directing that one-half of the school taxes should be levied upon the 1183 acres in one town and the other one-half upon the 1416 acres in the other town.

From this determination this appeal is taken. The affidavits submitted are many and long, but I have read and considered them as carefully as I am able.

There is no question about which opinions will more widely differ, or none upon which sworn statements can more easily be procured, than upon the values of real property. I have found it the safer course to rely upon the valuations fixed by the assessors, who are officers chosen with special reference to the particular duty of determining values, and who are sworn to perform their work fairly and justly, than upon the unofficial declaration of residents of the neighborhood. There certainly must be a very clear and overwhelming case presented to impeach the facts set forth in the assessment rolls, or they must be given full faith and credence. In the present case, the assessment rolls of the two towns purport respectively to assess the real property of each at full value. Outside of the rolls, the assessors in each town swear that they did so. It is clear to me that the determination of the supervisors upon a casual observance of the lands, in the winter season, as against the assessment rolls and the affidavits of the assessors, is scarcely to be relied upon, and particularly so, when they only assume to find the differences in the values as compared with each other so very slight as in this case. There is no pretense that competent proof was presented to the supervisors, outside of their inspection, to establish the fact. It is a material fact, moreover, that the assessment rolls of Middleburgh, the town favored by the majority of the supervisors, for the year 1888, show a not inconsiderable reduction in values over the year 1887.

Taking all the circumstances together, I am unable to find any sufficient ground for the supervisors finding that the valuations fixed by the respective town assessors were not substantially just, as compared with each other. If there was not, then they had nothing farther to do. If their determination of that fact can not be upheld, then their subsequent proceedings must fall to the ground.

The appeal is sustained, and until the making of new assessment rolls, the trustees of the district will use the values fixed in the last assessment rolls of the towns after revision, in levying school taxes.

In the matter of the appeal of C. R. Bowen of school district no. 6, Almond and Hornellsville, v. Nelson Ayers, Dwight Bardeen and Thomas Burrows, as assessors of town of Hornellsville, Steuben county.

When town assessors, under the provisions of chapter 694 of the Laws of 1867 and the amendments thereof, apportion the valuation of property of any railroad, telegraph, telephone and pipe line company as appears on the assessment roll of the town among the several school districts in the town, make such apportionment upon a different rule or basis than that specified in said chapter, an appeal to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction may be taken, and he has jurisdiction of such assessors, and may set aside their action and direct a new apportionment to be made by them in the manner directed in said chapter. When, however, said assessors proceed within the provisions of said chapter, their acts are judicial.

Decided July 9, 1895

Near & Rathbun, attorneys for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The above-named appellant, as a qualified voter in school district no. 6, Almond and Hornellsville, appeals from the assessment and decision of the above-named respondents as assessors of the town of Hornellsville, made in September 1894, in apportioning the valuation of the property of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad as it appeared on the last assessment roll of the town of Hornellsville, in school district no. 6, Almond and Hornellsville, situated in said district in said town of Hornellsville, in the sum of $7000, under the provisions of section 1, of chapter 694, of the Laws of 1867, as amended by section 1, of chapter 414, Laws of 1884, upon the grounds, as alleged in the appeal, that said respondents as such assessors did not give, in such apportionment, to said school district no. 6, its proper portion according to the proportion that the value of said property of said railroad in each of school districts lying in the town of Hornellsville bears to the value of the whole thereof, in said town, as required by section 1, of said chapter 694, Laws of 1867, and the amendments thereof, but that said assessors made such apportionment upon the establishment by them of a unit of value of said railroad at a certain sum per rod, and apportioned the valuation of said railroad in said town as it appeared upon their town assessment roll, among the several school districts in said town, including said district no. 6, Almond and Hornellsville, in accordance with the number of rods in length of said railroad in said school districts respectively at the unit of value per rod as so established by them; that is, in effect, that the amount or assessed value of the property of said railroad within said town, should be regarded as a unit, and that said school district no. 6, Almond and Hornellsville, is only entitled to that proportion of such assessed value which the length of the railroad in that part of said district situate in the town of Hornellsville bears to the total length of the said railroad in said town; the theory of the assessors being that any rod or mile of said railroad in the town of Hornellsville was equal in value to any other rod or mile thereof.

The appeal herein was filed on October 9, 1894. An answer was received October 16, 1894, and not being properly verified was returned to respondents for proper verification. On October 27th, a reply of the appellant to said answer was received. On March 8, 1895, upon taking up the appeal herein for examination and decision, no answer was found and the respondents were written to inquiring what had become of said answer, and it was ascertained that it was lost, and respondents had permission to file an answer in place of the one lost, which they did on March 23, 1895. On April 12, 1895, the appellant filed a reply to said answer, and on June 25th additional affidavits in support of the answer were filed. The only papers which I can consider in deciding this appeal are the appeal, answer received March 23, 1895, the reply thereto received April 12, 1895, and the additional affidavits of respondents received June 25, 1895. The answer filed October 16, 1894, was never returned to me by respondents. The reply of the appellant to the lost answer can not be considered.

It appears from the papers presented to me that the respondents in making up the assessment roll of the town of Hornellsville in August 1894, assessed and valued the property of said New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad within the town of Hornellsville at the aggregate sum of $175,000; that on September 15, 1894, said respondents filed in the office of the town clerk of Hornellsville a certificate of apportionment of the valuation of the property of the several railroad, telegraph, telephone and water companies, as appeared on the assessment list or roll of said town of Hornellsville for the year 1894, among the several school districts of said town in which any portion of said property is situated, and that from said certificate it appears that the apportionment made by said assessors of the property of the said New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad, as aforesaid, upon said assessment roll of said town to said school district no. 6, Almond and Hornellsville, for that portion of said railroad situate in said district, was the sum of $7000.

Aside from the statements contained in the appeal the appellant has not furnished any affidavits or other proof sustaining the allegations made by him as to the methods adopted by said assessors in making the apportionment of valuation of said New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad to said school district no. 6.

The respondents in their answer deny the most of the allegations contained in the appeal, and they deny that they regard the amount of railroad in the town as a unit and give each district only that proportion of the assessment which the length of the track in the district bears to the total length of the road in the town; they deny that they have admitted to the appellant or any other person that the apportionment appealed from is not based upon the actual value of the road, but upon the length of it. The respondents allege that in apportioning the valuation of said railroad as appeared on the assessment roll of said town of Hornellsville in 1894, among the several school districts of said town in which any portion of said railroad property was situate, they gave to each of said districts including said district no. 6, their proper portion according to the proportion that the value of the property in each of said districts bears to the value of the whole of said railroad property in said town.

The appellant alleged that the respondents did not apportion the property of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad as valued and assessed on the assessment roll of 1894, among the school districts in said town, in accordance with the provisions of section 1, chapter 694, of the Laws of 1867. The respondents explicitly deny said allegations of the appellant, and specifically aver that such apportionment was made strictly in accordance with the provisions of the law as above cited. The onus is upon the appellant to sustain his appeal by a preponderance of proof, and in this he has failed.

The Department has held that when town assessors, under the provisions of section 1, chapter 694, Laws of 1867, make the apportionment to school districts referred to therein upon a different rule or basis than that specified therein, that upon appeal to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction from such action and decision he has jurisdiction of said assessors, and may set aside their action and direct a new apportionment to be made by them in the manner directed in said section 1; that the acts of town assessors proceeding within the said chapter 694 are judicial; the conclusive character of their act, however, is only while they confine themselves within the statute. In the appeal herein the appellant has failed to show that the respondents, in making the apportionment, did not confine themselves within the statute, but went outside of it and acted upon a rule or method adopted by them, ignoring the provisions of said statute.

In my opinion the appeal herein must be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

LIBRARY

Decided September 17, 1839

Spencer, Superintendent

That part of the district library purchased with money raised by tax upon the district may be sold.

Trustees may exchange old library books for new ones.

Decided April 20, 1854

Randall, Deputy Superintendent

Trustees of districts may legally exchange old books belonging to the district library for new, paying the difference, if any, in price from the library money.

In regard to exchanging library books.

Decided September 8, 1854

Rice, Superintendent

No objection might be raised, if a district so determine by unanimous vote, to the exchanging of books in a library for others more appropriate to the wants of the people.

That part of district library which was purchased by a tax on property of district belongs to district, and may be disposed of by its voters as they shall direct. But that part bought with public money belongs to the State, and the district can not sell it.

Decided November 23, 1865

Rice, Superintendent

That part of the district library which had been purchased by a tax upon the property of the district belongs unqualifiedly to the district, and may be disposed of by the voters thereof as they may see fit to direct. But in that which has been purchased with the public money apportioned to the district it has only a qualified property. This portion of the library really belongs to the State, and the district is the bailee and not the owner of it. As such bailee it has no power to sell or otherwise dispose of the library.

MEETINGS

5151

In the matter of the appeal of Clinton Mudge and Glen Stone from proceedings of school meeting held in and for school district no. 9, town of Lima, Livingston county.

In conducting school district meetings a wide latitude must be accorded officers in the enforcement of parliamentary rules.

A refusal or neglect on the part of the trustee to call a special meeting of the voters of a district as required under subdivision 4 of section 13 of title 5 of the Consolidated School Law is a wilful violation of the school law.

When a schoolhouse has been regularly condemned by the school commissioner the district has not the legal right to vote a tax for repairs or equipments of any character to such building.

The expenses incurred by a trustee in his wilful determination to evade the provisions of the law are not a legitimate charge upon the district and a meeting of the district can not legally authorize the payment of the bills therefor.

A trustee is barred by the Penal Code from making a contract with his minor son who is not emancipated, to act as janitor.

Decided November 17, 1904

Albert H. Stearns, attorney for appellants

George W. Atwell, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The appellants request the Department to declare illegal the proceedings of the annual school meeting of school district no. 9, town of Lima, held on the second day of August 1904, and especially to declare illegal the action of such meeting in voting certain appropriations which will hereafter be specifically enumerated and considered.

It is alleged by the appellants that the school meeting was disorderly and that the chairman of the meeting was arbitrary and unfair in his rulings and that such meeting was not conducted in the manner provided by the Consolidated School Law and in accordance with the usual parliamentary practices of such bodies.

Patrick Hendrick, the sole trustee, by direction of a special meeting of said district, has filed an answer to this appeal. He states in his answer that the meeting was held in the town hall in said district and that such hall has a seating capacity for not more than 150 persons, but that more than 250 persons were in attendance at the meeting. He also claims that the meeting was as orderly as could be expected under the conditions, and that such meeting was regularly and legally conducted. In proof of this a certified copy of the proceedings of such meeting is offered.

It is clearly true that the meeting was somewhat disorderly, that many irregularities occurred, and that parliamentary practices were not carefully observed. In conducting school district meetings a wide latitude must be accorded officers in the enforcement of parliamentary rules. The appellants have failed to satisfy me that the disorder or irregularities were sufficiently grave to warrant the setting aside of all the proceedings of the meeting on the ground that material rights of electors were denied or that the proceedings do not reflect the will of the majority of the voters attempting to participate.

The annual meeting in question voted appropriations for the following purposes: $500 for heating apparatus, $93.50 for professional services to George W. Atwell, $20 to School Commissioner McNinch, $165.80 for professional services to George W. Atwell, $53.04 to reimburse Trustee Hendrick, $54 to Martin Hendrick for janitor services.

On the 21st of March 1904, Scott L. McNinch, the school commissioner having jurisdiction over school district no. 9, town of Lima, regularly issued an order condemning the schoolhouse in said school district and providing that such order should take effect June 1, 1904. No appeal from such order of the school commissioner has been brought. In issuing such order the school commissioner showed that the total resident population of children between 5 and 18 years of age was 191 and that the number of resident children between the ages of 8 and 16, or those children coming within the provisions of the compulsory education law was 130. Such order of the school commissioner also showed that the schoolhouse in such district had seating capacity for only 60 pupils and that such building was unfit for use and not worth repairing. Although the order of the school commissioner was issued March 31, 1904, it did not take effect until June 1, 1904, thus allowing the school district ample time to make the necessary arrangements for the erection of a new building.

Under subdivision 4 of section 13, title 5 of the Consolidated School Law, it was the duty of Trustee Hendrick, immediately upon receiving the order of School Commissioner McNinch, condemning the schoolhouse of that district, to call a special meeting of the legal voters of the district to consider the question of building a new schoolhouse. If the district failed or refused to vote the necessary tax to build such schoolhouse within thirty days from the date of such meeting, it was then the duty of said Trustee Hendrick to contract for the building of such schoolhouse and to levy a tax for the same. A refusal or neglect on his part to call a meeting of the voters of the district for such purpose is a wilful violation of the school law. As the school building of the district was regularly condemned by the school commissioner, such district had not the power to vote a tax for repairs or equipments of any character to such building. The action of the annual meeting of such district in voting $500 for a system of heating was not within the power of such district and was, therefore, illegal.

The said annual meeting held in 1904 voted to pay the Atwell bill of $93.50. This bill was for professional services of said Atwell in defending appeal no. 5049 before the Department of Public Instruction and known as the Bates appeal.

The district at a special meeting held June 9, 1903, authorized the payment of this bill, but Warren I. Johnson brought appeal no. 5140 to the Department of Public Instruction to set aside the action of the district in voting to pay such bill. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in a decision rendered March 30, 1904, sustained such appeal. It is claimed by the respondents in the appeal under consideration that the State Superintendent of Public Instruction sustained the Johnson appeal on the technical ground that the vote authorizing the payment of the Atwell bill of $93.50 was at a special meeting of the district called for another purpose and that the notice of such special meeting did not state that one of the questions to come before the meeting was the consideration of the Atwell bill. This is true, but it is also true that in his opinion on such Johnson appeal the State Superintendent of Public Instruction expressly held, as pointed out in appellant's brief: "Mr Atwell, who is employed by Mr Hendrick to answer the Bates appeal, was the attorney for Trustee Sylvester in the appeal of Ferris and others and when employed by Hendrick knew that the acts of Hendrick appealed from were contrary to the decisions of the Department and that Hendrick had no valid or legal defense to such appeal." "In my opinion Mr Atwell has no legal claim against school district no. 9, town of Lima, for any services performed by him for Hendrick in the appeal of Alfred K. Bates. Such claim is for services performed for Hendrick personally, Hendrick knowing that the acts performed by him as trustee were in violation of the rulings and decisions of this Department."

The decision of the State Department on that question was "final and conclusive and not subject to question or review in any place or court whatever," under subdivision 7 of section 1, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law. The district, therefore, had no legal power to authorize the payment of such bill at its annual meeting in 1904.

The special meeting of June 9, 1903, also authorized the payment of the McNinch bill of $20. The Johnson appeal also requested the Department of Public Instruction to set aside the action of the meeting in authorizing the payment of such bill and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in his decision of March 30, 1904, did set aside such action of the district meeting and in so doing held that the McNinch bill was not a proper charge against the school district. The district, therefore, had no legal power to authorize the payment of the McNinch bill of $20 at its annual meeting in 1904.

A change in the administration of this Department has taken place since the decision in the Johnson appeal was rendered. In view of such fact, I have carefully examined the pleadings in that appeal and am satisfied that the decision therein is based on sound legal principles and on a wise administration of school district affairs.

The Atwell bill of $165.80 is for professional services in three cases, namely: $50 for defending the Johnson appeal, $88 for defending the Miner appeal, and $27.80 for services rendered in an action entitled "Supreme Court, Nora O'Connor v. Patrick Hendrick as Trustee etc."

This Department has held that the Atwell bill in the Bates appeal was not a proper charge against the district. Atwell's defense in the Johnson appeal was to establish the claim that his bill in the Bates appeal was a proper charge against the district. If Atwell's claim in the Bates appeal was not legally chargeable to the district, his bill for services in an unsuccessful endeavor to give validity to such claim is certainly not chargeable to the district.

The Miner appeal for which Atwell claims $88 became necessary because of the action of Trustee Hendrick in refusing to comply with certain decisions and orders of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The conditions, therefore, under which Atwell rendered services in the Miner appeal are similar to those of the Bates appeal and his bill for such services is not a proper and legal claim against the district. If the bills of Atwell for services in the Bates and Miner appeals are not a valid claim against the district, then the bill for his services in the "O'Connor v. Hendrick" case in the Supreme Court is not a claim chargeable to the district. The services rendered in this case were in defense of the wrongful and illegal acts of Trustee Hendrick.

It was the persistent and intentional refusal of Trustee Hendrick to comply with what he knew to be the school law of this State and with what he knew to be the orders and decisions of the Department which led to bring the Bates, the Johnson, and the Miner appeals and subsequently to the O'Connor v. Hendrick case in the Supreme Court. The expenses incurred by him in his wilful determination to evade the provisions of the law are not a legitimate charge upon the district and the action of the annual meeting in authorizing the payment of the Atwell bill of $165.80 was, therefore, illegal. It also follows that the district meeting had not the legal power to vote to reimburse Trustee Hendrick to the amount of $53.04 for costs rendered by the Appellate Division against Hendrick in the appeal of the motion to intervene by Miner and others.

The said annual meeting also voted to pay a bill of $54 to Martin Hendrick for services as janitor and for taking care of the furnace. Martin Hendrick is the minor son of Trustee Hendrick. Section 473 of the Penal Code prohibits a trustee of a school district from being directly or indirectly interested in any contract made by him as trustee. It is clear that he is interested in a contract with his minor son. Trustee Hendrick claims that such son has been emancipated. It is a well-settled principle of law that emancipation is a question of fact to be determined from circumstances and from the conduct of interested parties. It can not be presumed but must be established by positive proof. In my opinion the respondent has not produced sufficient evidence to establish an emancipation. He was, therefore, barred by the Penal Code from making such contract with his minor son and under such circumstances the bill of $54 to Martin Hendrick is not legally chargeable to said district and the annual meeting could not authorize its payment.

The appellants also request that the action of the said annual meeting in authorizing Hendrick to employ counsel to defend the appeal of Killips v. Hendrick be set aside. It is agreed by the appellants and the respondents that the motion on the question was adopted by a viva voce vote. Subdivision 18 of section 14, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law provides that all propositions at school district meetings involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of a tax, the vote thereon shall be by ballot or by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters present and voting at such meetings. A motion to employ counsel to defend an appeal involves an expenditure of money and could not legally be adopted by a viva voce vote.

This district has the numerical and financial strength to maintain a good school provided its forces were wisely and harmoniously directed. It is to be regretted that such is not the case.

I decide, That the annual school meeting of district no. 9, town of Lima, county of Livingston, did not possess legal authority to authorize the expenditure of $500 for installing a system of heating in the condemned schoolhouse of such school district, and that such annual meeting did not possess legal power to vote appropriations for the payment of the Atwell bill of $93.50, the McNinch bill of $20, the Atwell bill of $165.80, the bill of $53.04 to reimburse Trustee Hendrick and the bill of Martin Hendrick of $54 for janitor services and that such bills are not properly or legally chargeable to the said school district.

I also decide that the action of said school district in voting by viva voce to authorize Trustee Hendrick to obtain counsel to defend the Killips appeal was illegal and no appropriation of the district's funds can be made thereon.

It is ordered, That Patrick Hendrick as trustee of school district no. 9, town of Lima, Livingston county, and his successor or successors in office, are hereby enjoined and restrained from making any expenditure for the installation of a heating system in the condemned schoolhouse of said district and from making any other repairs to said condemned school building and is also hereby enjoined and restrained from paying the bill of George W. Atwell for $93.50, the bill of School Commissioner McNinch for $20 and the bill of George W. Atwell for $165.80, the bill of $53.04 to reimburse Trustee Hendrick and the bill of Martin Hendrick of $54 for janitor services or any part or portion of each or any of such bills.

It is further ordered, That the said Patrick Hendrick, trustee of school district no. 9, town of Lima, Livingston county, shall refund and pay to such district any and all of such amounts paid by his direction or order from the funds of the said district no. 9, town of Lima, which are hereinbefore declared to be improper and illegal charges against said district.

So much of the appeal herein as relates to the action of the annual meeting of said district no. 9, town of Lima, in voting appropriations of $500 for heating apparatus, of $93.50 to pay the bill of George W. Atwell, of $20 to pay the bill of School Commissioner McNinch, of $165.80 to pay the bill of George W. Atwell, of $53.04 to reimburse Trustee Hendrick, of $54 to pay Martin Hendrick for janitor services, and the vote by which Trustee Hendrick was authorized to employ counsel to defend the Killips appeal, is sustained.

5153

In the matter of the appeal of J. E. Curtiss from the action of the board of education of school district no. 1, town of Elba, Genesee county, in adopting textbooks.

A board of education should have some definite system for calling special meetings and for the transaction of its business. The proper authority to serve the notice of a special meeting of a board of education is the clerk of that body unless the board has regularly designated some other person. It is not proper for a board of education to designate some one not a resident of the district to call its meetings.

Decided December 2, 1904

Wood & Dunham, attorneys for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

The papers in this appeal show that at a meeting of the board of education of district no. 1, Elba, Genesee county, on the 23d day of August 1904, such board authorized a change in certain textbooks to be used in the school of such district. Another meeting of this board was held on September 6, 1904, and a change was again authorized in textbooks on the same subjects. Another change was authorized in textbooks on the same subjects at a meeting of said board on the 24th day of September 1904. None of these meetings of this board of education appears to have been regularly held. In some cases all members of the board were not notified of the meetings. In other cases the notices of such meetings were served by a person not a resident of the district. In fact all of these meetings appear to have been held on the solicitation of representatives of certain publishers of textbooks and the notices of the meetings of the board in most cases were served by one of these representatives although not a resident of the district. These representatives of publishing houses may have shown much business enterprise, but the board of education has undoubtedly extended them a privilege beyond the courtesy to which they are entitled. A board of education should have some definite system for calling special meetings and for the transaction of its business. The proper authority to serve the notice of a special meeting of a board of education is the clerk of that body unless the board has regularly designated some other person. It is not proper for a board to designate some one not a resident of the district to call its meetings. If some definite system for calling meetings of a board is not adopted how shall its members know when a meeting is properly called?

It appears that this board of education adopted a resolution on September 9, 1902, providing that the clerk of the board be empowered to call special meetings when necessary, although the respondent claims the proof of such action is insufficient. The respondent also claims that if such resolution was adopted in 1902 it is not binding upon the present board. Any rule or by-law not in conflict with the law adopted by a board of education in 1902 to govern or regulate the business transactions of that body is binding upon successive boards until revoked or modified. The adoption of textbooks by a board of education is an important matter and will not be looked upon lightly by this Department. All proceedings in relation thereto must conform to the provisions of the school law. A failure to notify all members of a board of education of a meeting to consider the adoption of textbooks or the transaction of other business will be regarded as sufficient reason for setting aside the action of a board when the matter is presented to this Department upon appeal. In the adoption of textbooks a board of education should be governed by a desire to put in the possession of the children and teachers of its school the best textbooks to be procured, to the end that the greatest educational results possible may be achieved. In adopting textbooks a board of education should not be influenced by a proposition from publishers or their representatives to donate books to a certain value for the district library on the condition that the books are adopted. Textbooks should be selected upon their merits and then not changed except for decisive reasons. Books for the library should be selected because of their special fitness for that purpose.

It is unnecessary to enter into a discussion of the evils resulting from the frequent changing of textbooks. They are generally recognized. The school law provides that when a textbook has been adopted in a union free school district it shall not be changed within a period of five years except by a three-fourths vote of the board of education of such district. See article 2, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law.

In view of the irregularities in calling the meetings of said board of education in question in this appeal it must be held that such meetings were not properly called and therefore not legal meetings.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the action of the board of education of school district no. 1, town of Elba, Genesee county, in the adoption of textbooks at its meetings, held on the 23d day of August 1904, the 6th day of September 1904, the 24th day of September 1904, and the 19th day of October 1904, be, and the same hereby is, declared illegal and void.

In the matter of the appeal of William Davidson from the proceedings of a special school meeting in district no. 6, Marathon, Cortland county.

Regularity of annual meeting must be determined by the Commissioner of Education on appeal. Where it is alleged that an annual meeting was irregularly conducted, the trustees are not authorized to set aside such meeting and call a special meeting to transact the business which should have been transacted at the annual meeting. The Commissioner of Education is vested with exclusive authority to determine whether or not the officers declared elected at an annual meeting were legally elected and whether the proceedings thereof were legally conducted. The officers declared elected at such meeting are to be deemed the officers of the district until their election is set aside on appeal duly brought as provided in the law and rules of practice relating to appeals.

Decided December 29, 1909

L. R. Chase, attorney for appellants

Draper, Commissioner

This appeal concerns the legality of a special meeting held in district no. 6, town of Marathon, county of Cortland, on the 28th day of August 1909. Such meeting was called by a notice signed by two of the three trustees of the district for the purpose of transacting the business of the annual meeting. At such special meeting Fred Alexander was elected trustee, W. F. Brown was elected collector, David Wallace was elected clerk, and Earnest Maricle was elected treasurer. Certain appropriations were made at such meeting and a contract was let to furnish wood to the district. The appellant, William Davidson, appeals from the actions of such special meeting, and alleges in his petition that the annual meeting was regularly held in such district on August 3, 1909 and that the proceedings thereof were legally conducted. The appellant was elected as trustee at such meeting, and W. F. Brown was elected collector, David Wallace, clerk, and Frank Gardner, treasurer. An appropriation of $500 was made at such annual meeting for the payment of teachers' wages, $60 for the purchase of wood during the ensuing school year for school purposes, and $100 for the payment of janitor's services and incidentals.

The two members of the board of trustees who took upon themselves to issue the call for the special meeting to transact the business of the annual meeting, have not answered the allegations of the petition. There is nothing in the record which indicates in what respect the actions and proceedings of the annual meeting were irregular or illegal. A certified copy of the minutes of the annual meeting is attached to the petition. Such minutes do not specify whether the officers were elected by ballot or by acclamation, nor do they state how the votes upon the appropriations were taken. It is probable that the respondent trustees assumed that the proceedings of the annual meeting were illegally conducted and concluded that they had the right to call another meeting to elect district officers and transact the business of the annual meeting. It has been frequently decided upon appeals that the Commissioner of Education is vested with the exclusive authority to determine whether the officers declared elected at an annual meeting were legally elected and whether the proceedings thereof were legally conducted. The officers so declared elected are to be deemed the officers of the district until their election is set aside on an appeal duly brought as provided in the law and rules of practice relating to appeals. Until such time the official acts of such officers are valid and binding upon the district. The appropriations alleged to have been made at an annual meeting are deemed legally made unless it is decided on an appeal that they were unlawfully voted.

It must therefore be held in this case that the officers elected at the annual meeting are the officers of this district, and that the appropriations made at such meeting are legal and binding upon the district. The special meeting held in such district August 28, 1909, was illegal and the acts and proceedings thereof were of no effect.

The appeal is sustained.

It is hereby ordered, That the special meeting held in district no. 6, town of Marathon, county of Cortland, on August 28, 1909 be, and the same is hereby declared to be, illegal, and all the proceedings thereof are hereby set aside and declared of no effect; and

It is hereby further ordered, That William Davidson be one of the three trustees of such district, and that other officers of such district elected at the annual meeting be the officers of such district, to the exclusion of those persons declared elected as such officers at the special meeting held August 28, 1909.

5434

In the matter of the appeal of Alwin E. Powell and William C. Elmendorf from the proceedings of special meeting in school district no. 3, Hurley, Ulster county Appropriations for legal expenses. Appropriations to pay the expenses of an action which may be brought against a district and to provide for the expenses of the trustee in taking a trip to Albany to look after the welfare of the district, are not authorized where it is apparent that no action on appeal has been brought by or against the district. Subdivision 15, section 96 of the Education Law of 1909 does not authorize a resolution voting a tax to pay expenses which may be incurred in defending a suit or appeal which has not yet been commenced.

Decided February 14, 1910

Milton O. Auchmoody, attorney for appellants

Charles F. Prescott, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The appellants appeal from the proceedings of a special meeting held in district no. 3, town of Hurley, county of Ulster, on the 17th day of September 1909, and from the tax list and warrant issued by the trustee of said district, based upon certain resolutions adopted at such meeting. It is insisted by the appellants that the meeting was illegally held, since the notices calling such meeting were not served as required by law. The respondent trustee admits that the notices of the meeting were not served on the appellants, but states that they were posted in three conspicuous places in the district ten days before the meeting was held. This is not sufficient to constitute legal notice of the meeting, unless a resolution had been adopted at some annual meeting prescribing that such method of giving notice of a special meeting should be followed. It does not appear from the papers in the case whether or not such a resolution had been adopted. It is not necessary to determine the question of the sufficiency of the notice in rendering a decision on this appeal.

The minutes of the meeting show that three resolutions were adopted, all of which are attacked by the appellants. The first resolution appropriated $100 to be "raised by taxes to defend any action which may come against said district." The second resolution directed a Mr Bundy to employ a lawyer to defend the district at a cost not to exceed $15. The third resolution directed the trustee, Charles Prescott "to go to Albany to look after the welfare of said district no. 3 and that he may take with him whom he may deem necessary and that said district shall pay his and their expenses." It is apparent that the appropriation of $100 was to cover all the expenses incurred under these resolutions including the expenses of the proposed trip to Albany. It was apparently contemplated that an action or appeal might be brought by or against the district which would make it advisable for the trustee to go to Albany in behalf of the district. At the time the appropriation was made no action or appeal was pending either against the district or any of its officers. There is nothing in the petition or answer which shows the purpose of the proposed trip to Albany, or how the interests of the district were to be thereby promoted.

Subdivision 15 of section 96 of the Education Law authorizes a district meeting to vote a tax "to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them for their official acts, or in prosecuting suits or appeals by direction of the district against other parties." This provision does not authorize a resolution voting a tax to pay expenses which may be incurred in prosecuting or defending a suit or appeal which has not yet been commenced. There is no other provision of the Education Law which authorizes a tax to pay expenses to be incurred in a threatened suit or appeal by or against the district or its officers. It must therefore be held that the resolution voting a tax of $100 "to defend any action which may come against said district" was illegal. The tax list and warrant issued by the trustee for the collection of such tax was invalid, and the taxes collected thereunder were illegally paid.

The appeal herein is sustained.

3765

In the matter of the appeal of James Riley v. Evan O. Prichard, trustee of joint school district no. 5, towns of Deerfield, Oneida county, and Schuyler, Herkimer county.

A trustee in a school district in which the schoolhouse had been destroyed by fire, and who had received insurance money thereon and who neglected for a considerable time to respect a petition of the inhabitants requesting the calling of a special meeting to act upon the question of building a new schoolhouse, held remiss in his duty. The district clerk directed to call a special meeting for the consideration of the question above referred to.

Decided February 21, 1889

Jones & Townsend, attorneys for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken by a resident taxpayer of joint district no. 5, towns of Deerfield, Oneida county, and Schuyler, Herkimer county, from the refusal of the respondent, a trustee of said district, to call a special meeting of the inhabitants upon the request of a reasonable number of electors, for the purpose of providing for the rebuilding of a schoolhouse in said district, which was destroyed by fire on the 18th day of October 1888. The property so destroyed was insured for the sum of $200, which amount was, on the 11th day of December 1888, paid over by the insurance company to the said trustee, who still retains said amount. A majority of the taxpayers in said district, on the 21st day of December 1888, joined in a petition requesting said trustee to call a special meeting as above stated.

The appeal was duly served upon the respondent on the 25th day of January 1889, and although more than ten days have elapsed, no answer thereto has been received. It appears from the pleadings of the appellant that the weather has been favorable for holding a district meeting and for proceeding to build a schoolhouse, and the only obstacle in the way has been the refusal of the trustee to respect the petition of the voters.

I conclude, therefore, to sustain the appeal, and hereby order and direct the district clerk, Mr Milton Dainard, upon receipt of a copy of this order, to give notice for a special meeting of the district to consider the questions proposed in the petition above referred to.

5147

In the matter of the appeal of Philip Best, Crawford Rockefeller, Arthur Rockefeller and Edward Rockefeller jr, qualified voters in school district no. 5, town of Germantown, Columbia county, N. Y., from the proceedings of a special school meeting alleged to have been held in said district.

The failure to hold a district meeting or to properly adjourn it terminated the meeting and had the same force and effect upon the meeting as an adjournment without date would have.

Decided October 25, 1904

Draper, Commissioner

The object of this appeal is to set aside the action of a special meeting of the district held September 7, 1904, in school district no. 5, town of Germantown, Columbia county, on the ground that notice of such meeting was not given in accordance with the provisions of the Consolidated School Law. The parties to this appeal are agreed upon the essential facts relating to this point. It is, therefore, unnecessary to enter into a discussion of the other questions involved.

The trustee of this district called a special meeting to be held on August 27, 1904, for the purpose of raising the sum of $500 for repairs to the schoolhouse. It is claimed by the appellants that several legal voters of the district did not receive notice of the meeting and that the notices which were given were not given in the form and by the method prescribed in sections 2 and 6 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law. The technicalities raised on this question are not sufficient in themselves to cause this Department to hold that the meeting was not legally called. The meeting was held on August 27th, but regularly adjourned until Saturday evening, September 3, 1904. The appellants show, and it is admitted by the respondents, that Saturday evening, September 3, 1904, was a stormy evening and no meeting was held. None of the officers of the meeting or district, or any of the qualified voters of the district appeared at such meeting. The schoolhouse was not even opened. The failure to hold such meeting or to properly adjourn it terminated the meeting and had the same force and effect upon the meeting as an adjournment without date would have had. It was not proper, or lawful to convene such meeting again under the original call for the meeting of August 27th. The only way by which a meeting could have been held after September 3, 1904, was by the trustee issuing another call for such meeting and causing due notice of the same to be served on all the legal voters of the district in accordance with the provisions of sections 2 and 6 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law. The action of the trustee in telling the voters of the district whom he met that a special meeting would be held on September 7, 1904, and directing others to spread such information throughout the district was not a proper or legal method of convening the voters of the district in a special meeting.

The desire of the district to maintain suitable school buildings and to make proper repairs is commendable. Meetings for commendable purposes must, however, be called and held as the law directs. It will be necessary to issue a new call.

Decision. The meeting of September 7, 1904, in district no. 5, town of Germantown, Columbia county, was not a legal meeting of the district, and all business transacted at such meeting was irregular and without legal effect.

The appeal herein is sustained.

5300

In the matter of the petition of voters of school district no. 4, town of Windsor, for the removal of Bert E. Brown as trustee of said district.

Notice of an adjourned annual meeting is not required when such meeting is adjourned for less than thirty days.

An adjourned annual meeting may transact any business which might legally be transacted at an annual meeting.

The practice of a trustee in drawing district funds from the collector and holding the same for the purchase of incidentals as needed is not founded upon any legal right or upon proper business methods. The procedure contemplated is that such purchases shall be paid by order of the trustee upon the collector of the district.

A trustee will not be removed for pursuing the established custom in vogue in the district for several years, even if such custom is contrary to the statutes, when the act does not proceed from a wilful intent and no wrong or injustice is perpetrated.

Decided January 3, 1907

H. S. Williams, attorney for petitioners

U. C. Lyons, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The petitioners herein allege that the respondent was not legally elected to the office of trustee. They also allege that he drew orders upon the collector payable to himself to the amount of $25 and that he did not use such money for the purposes for which it was collected. It is further alleged that he did not require the collector to give a bond before putting the tax list in his hands.

It was stormy on the evening on which the annual meeting occurred and the trustee and one other resident of the district were the only persons present. The annual meeting was adjourned for one week. The respondents claim that the notices of such adjourned meeting were posted in conspicuous places in the district. One of these was at the creamery where many of the residents of the district drove daily with milk. Personal notice was given many residents of the district and many were notified by telephone. The adjournment of such meeting was talked over by the residents of the district as they met during the week and appears to have been generally known. The meeting was adjourned for only one week and the law does not require notice to be given of a meeting adjourned for a period less than thirty days. It is claimed by petitioners that such meeting was a special meeting and that legal notice thereof was not given. The clerk entered upon the records that it was an adjourned annual meeting and it appears that the meeting was generally regarded as an adjourned annual meeting. The trustee made his report; officers were elected for the ensuing year and the other business of an annual meeting transacted. No objection was raised by anybody. The proceedings appear to have been regular. No objection has been raised since the election until now — four months after the meeting occurred and after the trustee had acted for that period of time. If there had been irregularities in such election a proceeding to set it aside should have been instituted within thirty days from the date on which it occurred. Some of the petitioners were also present at the meeting and participated in the election. Under all conditions such persons are barred from raising objection now. The meeting must therefore be regarded as having been legally held and respondent as having been legally chosen trustee.

On September 17th, respondent issued a tax list for $191.85. This tax was raised for the following purposes: teachers' wages $160, fuel $16.50, to pay balance due teacher of last year $9, other expenses $6.33. The respondent should have required the collector to give bond in double the amount to be collected with acceptable sureties before placing the tax list and warrant in his hands for collection. He failed to do this. He alleges that he did not require such bond because it had not been the custom of former trustees to require it and states that he previously served as collector in the district and did not give bonds. The right of a collector to proceed with the collection of taxes without giving bond was questioned by certain residents of the district. The respondent thereupon directed the collector to give bonds as the law provides. The collector refused to give such bonds. Thereupon the trustee very properly declared the office of collector vacant and filled such vacancy by appointment. Under the law he had full authority and under the circumstances it was his duty to take such action. The new collector gave a bond and the retiring collector turned over to him the funds of the district which were in his possession. The conduct of respondent in this whole proceeding appears to have been that of an honest man and an official who wanted to do right and to conform to the law according to his best understanding of it.

Respondent acknowledges that he drew an order of $5 on the collector, payable to himself. He states that it has been the practice of trustees in previous years, as a matter of convenience, to draw such a sum as was necessary to purchase small supplies from time to time and to make a detailed report of such expenditures to the annual meeting. This is not denied by petitioners. The sum of $6.33 was raised by the trustee for the purchase of such supplies. The practice of the trustee drawing district funds from the collector and holding them for purchase of incidentals as needed is not founded upon any legal right or upon proper business methods. Where the amount is small such method will undoubtedly serve as a convenience, but the plan may lead to abuses and misunderstandings. A trustee should therefore adhere to the procedure contemplated by the law and when such purchases are made, pay for them by order upon the collector of the district. In this particular case respondent should pay to the collector of the district any unexpended portion of the $5 in question and should make an accounting to the annual meeting of the portion which he has expended, submitting vouchers therefor.

Respondent also admits that he drew an order upon the collector for $20 payable to himself. He claims that this money was drawn for the purchase of blackboards, repairs to windows, etc., but that the school commissioner had made an order relative to the size of the blackboard which had caused a delay in placing it in the school and that he has paid the $20 to the present collector of the district. The trustee should purchase the blackboard and pay for the same by order upon the collector. It involves more labor but it is the usual and proper method in dealing with public funds.

The procedure of respondent may have been somewhat irregular but not altogether unusual. It is not shown that there was any intentional act committed with a wrongful purpose. The petitioners simply claim that the method pursued by the trustee, although it appears to be the usual one for this district, is unauthorized. They do not allege a wilful intent on the part of the petitioner to wrong the district or improperly expend its funds. Pursuing the established custom in vogue in the district for several years, even if such custom is unauthorized is not in itself sufficient ground for removal. There must be some wrong or injustice done or some wilful act to warrant such action. None is shown in this case and on the moving papers this proceeding should be dismissed.

It is charged that respondent has contracted to supply wood to the district. He had a right to make such contract. He did not as trustee purchase from himself wood for the district. The district at the annual meeting usually lets a contract for wood to the lowest bidder. It pursued the same course this year. Respondent was the lowest bidder and the annual meeting awarded him the contract.

It appears that this proceeding is instigated as the result of a district quarrel over repairing the schoolhouse. The school commissioner has endeavored to get this district to make proper repairs to its buildings. The annual meeting took no action. A special meeting was held thereafter and certain repairs authorized, which in the judgment of the school commissioner were insufficient. The matter was reported officially to this Department. School Commissioner Hurlburt came to the Department and agreed with the Third Assistant Commissioner upon the repairs which should be made. The school commissioner made an order accordingly on the 3d day of November and directed certain repairs at an expense not to exceed $200. It then became the duty of the trustee to make such repairs irrespective of any action taken at the special meeting of the district. The trustee did undertake to make such repairs. Certain residents of the district were opposed to the repairs which the commissioner ordered. It appears that some of the petitioners in this proceeding called at the schoolhouse and insisted that respondent should stop work on such repairs and make those only which the district had authorized. They claimed so many irregularities in the procedure that the trustee ceased work to ascertain definitely what his duty in the matter was. It also appears that thereafter certain residents of the district entered the schoolhouse and made, so far as possible, the repairs voted at the special meeting. The school commissioner had requested this Department to send an inspector to examine the building and it appears to have been the desire of those opposed to the repairs ordered by the commissioner to make the repairs voted by the special meeting before an inspector from the Department arrived.

Without further delay the trustee should proceed to make such repairs as the order of the school commissioner, made on the 3d day of November last, directed. He may utilize so far as possible any material supplied by residents of the district and any repairs which have already been made. He may not only expend the $200 directed in the order of the school commissioner but he may on his own motion expend an additional sum of $50 if necessary. The school commissioner is hereby directed to report to this Department within the next thirty days the progress being made in such repairs.

If the school commissioner has made an improper order and petitioners are aggrieved the law affords them adequate remedy for relief.

The petition herein is dismissed.

5287

Roland W. Pattee and others from an assessment levied by school district no. 10, town of Greece, county of Monroe.

In certain instances the judgment of the voters of a district as to the necessity of erecting an iron fence around the school ground is conclusive.

Decided October 22, 1906

Draper, Commissioner

The annual meeting of school district no. 10, town of Greece, county of Monroe, held August 7, 1906, voted an appropriation of $1000 for the erection of an iron fence around the school grounds. An appeal from such action was filed at this Department September 29, 1906, and a petition for a restraining order filed with such appeal. The order was granted October 10th. The answer made by the trustee of the district shows that William Patterson, one of the appellants, was at the annual meeting and voted in favor of the appropriation. This being the case, Mr Patterson is estopped from raising an objection. Respondent also claims that the appeal is brought too late as the action complained of took place at the annual meeting held August 7, 1906, and that the appeal was not brought until September 29th, or more than thirty days after the appropriation was voted. The answer also shows that the annual meeting appointed a committee of three taxpayers to let the contract to the lowest bidder and that such contract was let on August 22d for the sum of $585.49 or more than $300 less than voted. It also appears that the fence is nearly completed and that the district through its action has created a district liability.

The district is a wealthy one having an assessed valuation of more than $378,000. It also appears that large corporate interests are heavily assessed in this district and that the expenditure for this purpose will not result in a burdensome tax upon the individual taxpayers of the district. It also appears that the schoolhouse is located on Charlotte boulevard, the most prominent thoroughfare out of Rochester and leading direct to Lake Ontario. For this reason it is claimed that the children are exposed to the dangers of automobiles, electric cars and all kinds of moving vehicles. Under all the conditions I think the question was one on which the judgment of the voters of the annual meeting should be conclusive. It also appears that the vote in favor of erecting such fence was almost unanimous. I must therefore hold that sufficient irregularities do not exist to warrant my interference and that it was clearly within the discretion of the meeting to make the appropriation authorized.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the restraining orders made by me on the 10th day of October in this proceeding be, and the same hereby are, vacated.

5190

In the matter of the appeal of David H. Allen from the proceedings of a special school meeting held in school district no. 12, town of Yates, Orleans county, on April 6, 1905.

That a majority of the voters of a district are willing to assume an improper and illegal claim against the district does not confer the power or right to do so. A small minority might be unwilling to assume such illegal and improper claims and in the administration of school affairs and the interpretation of school laws a minority must be given full protection.

Decided July 10, 1905

Ryan & Skinner, attorneys for appellants

Edward Posson, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

— This appeal grows out of a controversy in this district which originated at the annual meeting in 1903, and a special meeting held August 11, 1903. Charles Houseman was elected trustee at the annual meeting in August 1903. It was alleged that he refused to serve and that he publicly declared he would not serve. At a special meeting held August 11, 1903, Rollin T. Bayne was elected trustee. Each of these men claimed to be the legally chosen trustee of the district. The said Bayne and one Morrison brought an appeal to this Department for the purpose of establishing Bayne's title to the office of trustee. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction dismissed the appeal and decided Houseman to be the trustee of the district.

Bayne and Morrison employed Harry Cooper as attorney to prepare the papers in such appeal. At the annual meeting in 1904 Bayne was elected trustee. He directed a special meeting of the district to be called for September 6, 1904, to authorize the payment of a claim of $30 presented by Cooper for services in the appeal brought by Bayne and Morrison. Such special meeting directed the payment of Cooper's bill for these services. Charles Houseman and David H. Allen appealed from the action of the special meeting in auditing the claims of Harry Cooper and of the annual meeting in auditing certain other claims against the district. Edward Posson, an attorney, was employed by Trustee Bayne in defending such appeal. In decision no. 5163, rendered January 10, 1905, this Department held as follows: "The appeal of Bayne and Morrison in 1903 was not authorized by the district. It was not brought to subserve or protect any interest or right of the district. It was brought through the influence of Bayne to establish his title to the office of trustee. The decision shows him to have been in error. There are no legal grounds or principles of equity upon which Bayne and Morrison can properly ask the district to pay the expenses of an appeal brought to gratify their personal desires. Such expenses are not a legal charge against the district and the district meeting could not legally vote to pay such expenses."

This Department also issued an order restraining Trustee Bayne or his successors in office from paying to Cooper or any other person the $30 claimed for services or any portion thereof.

Bayne called a special meeting of the district April 6, 1905, and that meeting authorized the payment of a bill of $55 to Edward Posson for professional services in defending the appeal of Houseman and Allen from the action of the district meeting in auditing the Cooper claim. As shown above, this Department held that the Cooper claim was not a district liability. If the claim of Cooper for his services to Bayne and Morrison was not a district obligation the claim of $55 in question, presented by Posson for services in an attempt to compel the district to pay an unjust claim is certainly not chargeable to the district. The special meeting of April 6, 1905 in authorizing the payment of $55 to Edward Posson for professional services in defending the appeal brought by Houseman and Allen exceeded its authority. The following principle laid down in deciding that appeal applies to the appeal under consideration: "That a majority of the voters of the district were willing to assume such expense does not confer the power to do so. A small minority might be unwilling to assume such illegal and improper charges and in the administration of school affairs and the interpretation of school laws a minority must be given full protection."

It is claimed by respondents that questions other than the Cooper claim were involved in the appeal of Houseman and Allen. This is true. However, the principal question involved in that appeal was the Cooper claim. It may well be doubted whether such appeal would have been brought had it not been for the action of the district meeting in authorizing the payment of Cooper's bill.

The appellant herein alleges that Posson's bill of $55 is excessive for the services rendered. He also alleges that an understanding has been reached by which Cooper's claim of $30 is to be paid out of the $55 provided it is paid to Posson. The proof on this point is not conclusive but is sufficient to lead to the belief that such is the case. However, this is unimportant as the services of Posson were not to protect or defend the interests of the district and not chargeable thereto.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That Rollin T. Bayne, the trustee of district no. 12, town of Yates, Orleans county, and his successor or successors in office, be, and they are, hereby enjoined and restrained from paying to Edward Posson or any other person from the funds of said district no. 12, town of Yates, the sum of $55 or any portion thereof, for legal services rendered by the said Edward Posson in the appeal of Charles Houseman and David H. Allen from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held on August 2, 1904, and a special meeting held September 6, 1904, in said school district, and decided by this Department January 10, 1905; that if said Rollin T. Bayne had already paid the said $55 or any portion thereof to the said Edward Posson or to any other person, he shall refund the same to district no. 12, town of Yates, Orleans county, on or before July 20, 1905.

It is also ordered, That the said school district no. 12, town of Yates, Orleans county, be, and it hereby is, enjoined and restrained from authorizing the payment of any amount whatever, or raising any tax therefor, to Edward Posson or any other person for the services rendered by said Posson in defending this appeal.

3304

Reimbursing the collector's bondsmen for money lost by the collector

The district can not vote a tax to reimburse the bondsmen of a collector for moneys lost by the collector and paid by them.

Decided January 16, 1884

Ruggles, Superintendent

At the annual meeting in October 1882, Robert J. Martin was elected collector of the district, and he duly qualified by giving his bond with F. J. Heath and George D. Bement as sureties. The collector thereafter collected certain moneys upon a tax list and warrant duly placed in his hands, which moneys were deposited by the collector with F. J. Heath, one of his bondsmen. Eight hundred and seventy-five dollars of this money was deposited by the said Heath in the bank of William C. Moore in the village of Victor, and in the name of Heath. On the 25th of November, $165 of this money was withdrawn from the bank to pay an order in favor of R. A. Kneeland. On or about the 18th of December 1882, the bank suspended payment, and the said Moore made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, and his assets are now in the hands of his assignee unsettled. Since the failure of the bank whenever the collector received orders for moneys from the trustees, he brought them to Messrs Heath and Bement, his bondsmen, and they furnished the money to pay them, and continued to do so until the sum of $710 had been paid by them.

The annual meeting held October 9, 1883, adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the trustees of school district no. 1, raise the sum of $710 in addition to the sum already voted to be raised for the ordinary expenses; the said sum of $710 to be paid to George D. Bement and Frank J. Heath, bondsmen for Robert J. Martin, collector of said district, to reimburse them for money lost by said collector by the failure of Moore's bank, in the village of Victor, December 19, 1882."

The trustees issued a tax list with the amount included.

The appeal is taken from the action of the meeting adopting the resolution, and asking that all proceedings thereunder be restrained.

It does not appear from the evidence in this case that the bondsmen did anything more or less than would be legally required of them by their bond, and I know of no principle, either in law or in equity, which would justify a tax, the purpose of which is to relieve the bondsmen and the collector from the obligations they have assumed.

The action of the annual meeting is set aside, and the issuing of a tax list and warrant for the $710 restrained.

5192

In the matter of the appeal of L. A. Havens and C. Southard from the acts and proceedings of a special school meeting of the inhabitants of school district no. 12, town of North Hempstead, Nassau county, held on the 27th day of March 1905.

This Department will not interfere with the action of a district meeting where such action appears to have been legal and regular and when good cause is not shown to demand such action.

Decided July 15, 1905

George B. Stoddard, attorney for appellants

John Lyon, attorney for respondents.

Draper, Commissioner

A special meeting of district no. 12, North Hempstead, Nassau county, held on the 27th day of March 1905, voted an appropriation of $8000 for the erection of a new schoolhouse and directed the trustees to issue bonds for that amount and providing that the last instalment of such bonds shall be payable in 1925.

The appellants allege several irregularities of procedure. They allege that the vote by which this appropriation was made and authorizing the issuance of bonds, was not made in accordance with the provisions of law governing the same. Subdivision 18 of section 14 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law provides that the vote on all propositions at school district meetings involving an expenditure of money shall be by ballot or by taking and recording the ayes and noes. Section 18 of title 7 provides that the vote on a proposition to raise by instalments appropriations for the erection of a school building shall be by taking and recording the ayes and noes. The certified records of the proceedings of the meeting in question show that such meeting adopted a resolution providing for an appropriation of $8000 to be raised in 16 annual instalments. The method by which the vote was taken was as follows: Each voter came to the desk at which the clerk and chairman were seated and stated that he voted aye or no. The clerk entered the name of each voter as he came to the desk and if he voted "aye" the figure "1" was placed opposite his name and in a column having "ayes" at its head. If a voter voted "no" the figure "1" was placed opposite his name and in a column having "noes" at its head. After all persons had voted the clerk counted the several marks in the column headed "aye" and recorded the number as the number voting "aye." The clerk entered a record in the same manner for those voting "no." Appellants object to this method of taking the ayes and noes. Their objection is not valid. The records clearly show who voted and how each voter voted on the resolution. It was a full and complete compliance with the law.

Appellants also claim that inspectors or tellers were not appointed and that the recording of the names of those voting was done by John Lyon who was not a resident of the district. There was no necessity for appointing tellers or inspectors. The vote on the question before the meeting was not taken by ballot. The vote on such questions was taken by the "ayes" and "noes" and the clerk of the district was the proper person to keep a record of the names of the voters and the record of how each person voted. The pleadings show that the clerk of the district was present and discharged his duty in this respect. It appears that for a portion of the time while the voting was occurring John Lyon who sat at the side of the clerk entered on the records the names of some of the voters. The clerk had a lame wrist and Mr. Lyon did the work to relieve said clerk. The entering which he did was under the immediate direction and supervision of the district clerk. A practice of this kind is not to be encouraged. If the clerk was physically unable to perform such work he should have so stated to the meeting and have permitted that body to select a suitable person to assist him. It was not proper to permit Mr Lyon to do such work, but it is not an irregularity sufficient to set aside the action of the meeting providing the other proceedings were regular.

It is also claimed by appellants that the schoolhouse is not centrally located and will thus operate a hardship upon a portion of the residents of the district.

The schoolhouse is to be erected on the old site. The proof offered by appellants on this point is not sufficient. The respondents contend that the schoolhouse is centrally located and easily accessible from all parts of the district.

The principal object of this appeal appears to be for the purpose of preventing a bond issue. A portion of this district desires to be formed into a new district or transferred into an adjoining district. A school district having an outstanding bonded indebtedness can not be divided. If appellants could prevent a bond issue those favoring a division of the present district would institute proceedings for the erection of a new district or to be transferred to an adjoining district. Vacating the action of the meeting in question would not enable appellants to accomplish the result desired. These bonds have already been sold and the purchasers of such bonds have an interest and claim which they could undoubtedly enforce in the courts. If valid reasons existed for preventing the district from issuing bonds appellants should have filed a petition for an order restraining the trustees of the district from issuing such bonds.

A petition for this relief was not filed.

The necessity of a new schoolhouse is not denied. The proceedings appealed from appear to have been proper and legal in every respect. There does not appear to be any good cause which demands action from this Department.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

5188

In the matter of the appeal of certain residents of union free school district no. 1, town of Hadley, Saratoga county, and town of Luzerne, Warren county, from the decision of a meeting of the electors of said district in selecting a schoolhouse site.

This Department has uniformly refused to interfere with the action of a district meeting legally and regularly taken unless it is clearly shown that such action is detrimental to educational interests or imposes a hardship upon a resident of the district requiring relief through the action of this Department.

Decided June 13, 1905

William T. Moore, attorney for appellants

Frank Gick, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

At a special meeting of union free school district no. 1, towns of Hadley and Luzerne, regularly held on the 26th day of September 1904, the voters of such district legally designated a new site for the schoolhouse. Such site is known as the Riverview site.

This appeal is brought for the purpose of setting aside the action of the district in selecting such site. Rule 5 of the Rules of Practice Relating to Appeals to the Commissioner of Education provides, "Such original appeal and all papers etc. annexed thereto with proof of service of copies, as required by rules 3 and 4, must be sent to the Education Department within thirty days after the making of the decision or the performance of the act complained of or within that time after the knowledge of the cause of complaint came to the appellant, or some satisfactory excuse must be rendered in the appeal for the delay." The acts herein complained of occurred nearly nine months ago. Appellants have had knowledge of such acts since their occurrence. No excuse is given for failing to bring this appeal within the time prescribed by the rule above quoted. This itself is sufficient ground for dismissing the appeal. See decision of this Department rendered March 3, 1905, in Henderson v. the Board of Education of New York City.

The grounds on which appellants ask that the action of this district in selecting the site in question be set aside are that such site is unsafe for school purposes and that the price paid is exorbitant. The burden of proof on these questions rests upon the appellants. They must sustain affirmatively their allegations in this respect. This they have failed to do. This Department has uniformly refused to interfere with the action of a district meeting legally and regularly taken unless it is clearly shown that such action is detrimental to educational interests or imposes a hardship upon a resident of the district requiring relief through the action of this Department. These conditions are not shown to exist in this case.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

5208

In the matter of the appeal of William Hulse et al. from the action of the annual meeting of school district no. 1, town of Islip, Suffolk county, in the election of trustees and in increasing the number of members of the board of education.

An annual meeting will be set aside when the proceedings are characterized by confusion and irregularities.

An annual meeting of a union free school district whose boundaries do not coincide with the boundaries of an incorporated village or city can not change the number of its trustees unless the notice of such meeting states that the proposition to change the number of trustees will be voted upon at such meeting.

Decided October 24, 1905

W. H. Robbins, attorney for appellants

Ackerley & Miles, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

School district no. 1 of the town of Islip, Suffolk county, is a union free school district whose boundaries do not coincide with the boundaries of an incorporated village or city. Section 31 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 as amended by chapter 463 of the Laws of 1903 provides that the number of trustees in a union free school district whose boundaries do not coincide with those of an incorporated village or city shall not be changed unless notice is given in the notice of the annual meeting that the proposition to change the number of trustees will be presented to the annual meeting for consideration. The pleadings herein show that the notice of the annual meeting did not contain any notice whatever of a proposition to be presented to such meeting to change the number of trustees. The annual meeting could not, therefore, legally increase the number of trustees in this district. It appears, however, that such action was taken at the annual meeting of the district on August 1, 1905, and the number of trustees increased from five to nine. This action being illegal the election of four additional members was void.

It appears that the term of office of Dr E. S. Moore expired at the time of the annual meeting. The chair announced that nominations were in order to fill this vacancy. Arthur Dominy was placed in nomination but before other nominations were made Mr Dominy moved that the number of members on the board be increased from five to nine. This motion was then considered and adopted. Three other nominations for trustee for a term of three years were then made as follows: W. A. Hulse, J. M. Howell and L. G. Homan. The chair announced that each voter could vote for three trustees for three years. It was not determined by the meeting that any one of these four nominees should be regarded as being the successor of Doctor Moore.

It is to be presumed that one trustee was chosen to succeed Doctor Moore and two to fill additional offices created by the action of the annual meeting in voting to increase the number of trustees. It is not shown that those at the meeting generally regarded Mr Dominy as being the trustee chosen to succeed Doctor Moore. There does appear much doubt that such was the understanding. It is also impossible to determine which one of these nominees would have been chosen had there been but one trustee to be elected.

The meeting then proceeded to nominations for trustees for two years. Several nominations were made. The four members of the board of education whose terms had not expired then presented their resignations. These resignations were accepted. Three trustees were elected for two years and three for one year. It does not clearly appear which of these trustees were chosen to fill the additional offices created or which were chosen to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of the four members whose terms had not expired.

It is contended by respondents that the Consolidated School Law distributed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1903 does not contain the amendment to section 31, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law made by chapter 463 of the Laws of 1903, requiring that notice shall be given of the intention to bring a proposition to increase the number of members on a board of education before the annual meeting. It is alleged that the board of education relied upon that law as distributed by the former Department of Public Instruction for their guidance and that failure to give such notice should not therefore vitiate the proceedings of the annual meeting. This contention is not well founded. Neither the ignorance of the provisions of law on the part of a board of education nor the negligence or carelessness of Department officials is sufficient to excuse a school district meeting from fulfilling the requirements of the law. If the district meeting could be regarded as excusable from the law requiring the notice in question, other irregularities and illegal procedure occurred in the conduct of the annual meeting sufficient to warrant an order from this Department to vacate the proceedings of such meeting. Section 31 of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law, since its enactment in 1894, has provided that the vote authorizing an increase in the number of members on a board of education in a union free school district of this class shall be by taking and recording the ayes and noes. The proceedings of the annual meeting of this district do not show that the vote on such proposition was taken by this method. Such proceedings show such vote to have been taken by ballot which was not a compliance with the provisions of law (See decision no. 4465 of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, also, decision no. 4487). The same section of law also provides that when a district meeting shall elect such additional number it shall divide such number into three several classes, the first to hold office for one year, the second two years and the third three years. No such action was taken at this meeting. This is also sufficient ground for setting aside the election in question. (See decisions above cited.)

The whole proceeding is characterized by confusion and irregularity. This is due to the illegal action of the meeting in voting to increase the number of trustees. The inhabitants of this district are entitled to have a board of trustees chosen in accordance with the provisions of law by a majority of the legal voters of the district. It is necessary to set aside the action of the annual meeting in voting to increase the number of trustees and in electing four additional trustees. Since it is not clearly shown which of the trustees elected at the annual meeting were elected to fill these additional places created and which to fill vacancies, it appears for the interest of all concerned to set aside the entire election and direct the district to hold a special election for the purpose of electing five trustees. This action will also afford the voters of the district an opportunity to elect in a legal manner an entire new board of education.

I decide, That the election of all trustees chosen at such meeting was illegal and therefore void; that under the provisions of the Consolidated School Law and the decisions of this Department the trustees of a district or the members of a board of education hold office until their successors are legally elected or appointed; that as the election in question was illegal it operates as though an election had not been held and the trustees of the district at the time of the annual meeting are hold-over trustees except such as have resigned; and that as all of such trustees or members of the board of education, except Dr E. S. Moore, resigned, the said Dr E. S. Moore is at the present time the only legal trustee or member of the board of education of said school district no. 1, town of Islip, Suffolk county.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all proceedings taken at the annual meeting of union free school district no. 1, town of Islip, Suffolk county, held August 1, 1905, in relation to increasing the number of members of the board of education of said district be, and the same are, hereby vacated; that all proceedings of said annual meeting by which Arthur Dominy, John M. Howell, Leander G. Homan, William S. Downs, Fred C. Hendrickson, George W. Abrams, Clarence A. Wicks, George C. White and William H. Vail are alleged to have been elected trustees or members of the board of education of said district be, and the same are, hereby vacated.

It is further ordered, That Dr E. S. Moore, a trustee of said district, shall without unnecessary delay and in accordance with the provisions of section 10, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law, call a special meeting to elect one trustee for the remainder of the current school year and the ensuing two school years to fill a vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of office of Dr E. S. Moore, and to elect two trustees for the remainder of the current school year and the ensuing school year to fill the two vacancies caused by the resignations of the two trustees whose terms would not have regularly expired until the annual meeting of 1907, and to elect two trustees for the remainder of the current school year to fill the two vacancies caused by the resignations of the two trustees whose terms would not have regularly expired until the annual meeting of 1906.

3910

In the matter of the appeal of John Van Buren, from the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held in district no. 12, of the town of Volney, county of Oswego.

A chairman of a district meeting, if he is a qualified voter, is entitled to vote when a ballot is taken upon any question before the meeting. He has no right to vote after the result has been ascertained, for the purpose of breaking a tie vote.

Decided September 23, 1890

Mead, Stranahan & Spencer, attorneys for appellant
Piper & Rice, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

At the annual school election for trustee, held in district no. 12, of the town of Volney, Oswego county, the voting was by ballot. There were two candidates voted for. The ballot resulted in a tie vote whereupon the chairman voted for one of the candidates, the respondent herein, and declared him elected. From this result this appeal is taken. The chairman of the meeting, if he was a qualified elector of the district, was entitled to one vote upon the question, but that vote should have been cast when the vote was being received, and before the poll was closed, the ballots counted, and the result ascertained. Whether he voted at that time, and then again, to break the tie, does not appear, but in any event, his ballot or vote after the result was ascertained, was improper. It follows that there was no choice of trustee.

The appeal is sustained. The district clerk will forthwith give notice of a special meeting to be held for the selection of a trustee.

3909

In the matter of the appeal of DeEtte Adsit from the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held in school district no. 5, towns of Hanover and Sheridan, county of Chautauqua.

The Department must not be expected to grant relief to persons who, through their own neglect or indifference, do not attend school meetings until long after the hour designated.

Decided September 22, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

Appeal from the proceedings of the annual meeting, held August 5th, last, in school district no. 5, of the towns of Hanover and Sheridan in the county of Chautauqua.

The appellant alleges that the custom in the district has been to hold the annual meeting at 8 o'clock p. m.; that on this occasion the meeting was held at about 7 o'clock, in consequence of which but three voters were in attendance, and at which the respondent was chosen trustee, with the several other officers. Some evidence is presented of persons intending to be present at the meeting, that the meeting was held before 7.30 o'clock.

The respondent shows by the affidavit of all three of the persons who participated in the meeting that the organization was not perfected until nearly 8 o'clock, and the meeting was not concluded until after that hour. It does not appear that notice of the meeting was given. The law designates the hour, 7.30 o'clock p. m. Each side of the controversy presents a communication signed by about an equal number of alleged voters favoring one side or the other, the respondent, with those who actually attended the meeting, showing the greatest number.

But this informal way of testing the question is not at all concluding. If I were convinced that any undue haste characterized the meeting, and it occurred before the legal hour of meeting, I should sustain the appeal, but such does not seem to be the fact.

Electors who do present themselves at school meetings upon time are not expected to be subjected to unnecessary delay to accommodate persons who are so dilatory or indifferent as to attend meetings more than a half hour after the designated time. Such persons come to the Department and expect relief for their own neglect. I do not feel warranted in granting it.

The appeal is overruled.

3908

In the matter of the appeal of John R. Archibald and others v. school district no. 4, in the town of Portville, in the county of Cattaraugus.

Failure to give public notice of the time and place for holding the annual school meeting would not vitiate the proceedings of the meeting.

Decided September 18, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought to set aside the action of the last annual school meeting, on the ground of irregularity in proceedings. It is alleged that there was no sufficient notice given of the meeting, and that votes were cast for trustee and collector by persons who were not entitled to vote, and that the person elected collector of the district was not eligible to the office.

As it was the annual school meeting, failure to give notice would not vitiate its proceedings. I have examined the papers, and find that the allegation that persons voted who were not entitled to vote, is not well sustained. It was alleged that eight persons not qualified to vote participated in the election of trustee. This certainly was not the fact. It is not shown that enough illegal votes were cast to change the result. It is admitted that the collector who was elected was not eligible to the office. There is not enough in the case to justify me in sustaining the appeal. It is dismissed.

3905

In the matter of the appeal of W. A. Cleveland v. the trustees of district no. 3, Middletown and Southfield, in the county of Richmond.

Refusal of trustees to call a special meeting when requested, sustained, when it is made to appear that the trustees are acting in good faith, and no apparent benefit would come to the district by such meeting.

Decided September 5, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

A new schoolhouse is now in process of erection in the above-named district. The appellant is a builder by occupation, and with other builders submitted proposals in July last for the construction of such building. He was not the lowest bidder and the contract was awarded to another. Since that time he has raised objections to the size and character of the school building to be erected, and has demanded that a special meeting of the district be held to consider the matter. This appeal is from the refusal of the trustees to call a special meeting.

This Department will ordinarily require trustees to call a special meeting in a school district, where there seems to be any general desire for such a meeting. Even where a respectable minority in the district makes known a desire for a special meeting it should be accorded, unless circumstances are such as to justify the belief that the persons demanding a meeting are not altogether disinterested or well disposed. It is true that the appellant in this case, with several others, requested that a meeting be called. Some of those who joined with him in this request have since withdrawn their request. At the annual school meeting, held August 6th, the appellant made a statement to the meeting, setting forth his complaint for grievances, but no action was taken. I have carefully examined the records of the proceedings of the trustees touching the work in hand. It seems to me that they have proceeded with due deliberation and much caution. The plans of the building were submitted to no less than six builders who presented proposals. Time was taken for investigating the business qualifications and financial standing of the lowest bidder. When satisfied of his responsibility the contract was awarded to the lowest bidder. I am unable to see why the trustees have not exercised every care in the discharge of their duties. The building is now in process of erection, except that a stay of proceedings, granted on the 4th day of August last, was granted. I find no sufficient ground for further interrupting the work of the trustees. Indeed, there would seem to be every reason why it should be facilitated. The appeal is dismissed and the stay of proceedings heretofore granted is revoked and set aside.

3855

George E. Soper v. John H. Smith, sole trustee of school district no. 5, of the town of Smithtown, county of Suffolk.

Appeal from the neglect or refusal of a trustee to call a special meeting of the electors of the district for the purpose of considering the advisability of building a new schoolhouse, and, if deemed necessary, to consider a change of site upon request of a large number of inhabitants. No reason for such neglect or refusal appearing, appeal sustained, and district clerk ordered to give notice for meeting, as requested.

Decided February 8, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a resident elector of school district no. 5, of the town of Smithtown in the county of Suffolk, from the refusal of the trustee of said district to call a special district meeting upon the request of a large number of the inhabitants of said district, for the purpose of considering the advisability of building a new schoolhouse, and, if deemed necessary, to consider a change of site. The request, a copy of which I find among the appellant's papers, was served upon the trustee on the 16th day of September 1889. This appeal was taken by service of a copy of the same upon the trustee of said district on the 6th day of December 1889, and although sufficient time has elapsed for the trustee to answer the same, no answer has been received.

I must, therefore, conclude that the grounds of appeal are truly stated, and that a special meeting of the inhabitants should have been called as prayed for by the petitioners. The appeal is sustained and the district clerk of district no. 5, of the town of Smithtown in the county of Suffolk, is hereby directed to give notice of a special meeting of the electors of the district, to consider the questions proposed in the petition above referred to within ten days from the service of a copy of this decision upon him.

4327

In the matter of the appeal of Reuben Britten from proceedings of special meeting held on October 9, 1894, in school district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county.

This Department, when asked to set aside proceedings of school meetings, will always inquire into the bonæ fides thereof. Were the things done, such as it was proper to do at said meeting? Has any one been misled, imposed upon or wronged? If mistakes and irregularities have occurred, will the greater hardship be imposed upon individuals by setting aside or sustaining such acts? Notices of special meetings in common school districts, unless any such district at its annual meeting shall, by resolution, prescribe some other method, is by reading said notice in the hearing of each inhabitant of the district qualified to vote at its meetings or in case of his or her absence from home, by leaving a copy thereof or so much thereof as relates to the time, place and object of the meeting, at the place of his or her abode at least five days before the day of the meeting. No district meeting shall be held illegal for want of a due notice to all persons qualified to vote thereat unless it shall appear that the omission to give such notice was wilful and fraudulent.

Decided February 21, 1895

J. F. Terry, attorney for appellant

George B. Lawrence, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

The above-named appellant appeals from the proceedings of a special meeting held on October 9, 1894, in school district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county, upon the grounds in substance: That the notice of said meeting was not duly and legally given, and that said meeting could not legally elect a treasurer of said district. An answer to said appeal has been interposed by Joseph Holmes, who claims to have been elected as trustee of said district at such special meeting.

The following facts are established. In August 1894, an appeal was brought by Joseph Holmes and another from the election of school district officers at the annual school meeting held in said district on August 7, 1894, upon the ground that none of said officers were elected by ballot as required by the school law, but were elected by a viva voce vote; that no answer was made to the appeal, and on September 24, 1894, the appeal was sustained by me; that in and by my decision I held and decided that no one was legally elected at said annual meeting as trustee, district clerk or collector, and so much of the action and proceedings of said annual meeting had and taken in the election of district officers was vacated and set aside; that in said decision I ordered Wilson Wylie, a qualified voter in said district, and then acting clerk thereof, to forthwith call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district, entitled to vote at school meetings in said district, in the manner prescribed in sections 2 and 6 of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, for the purpose of electing a trustee, district clerk and collector of said district, said election to be conducted in the manner provided in subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894; that said decision was filed with said Wylie on October 1, 1894, and on that date said Wylie posted in a conspicuous place in five public places in said school district a written notice, signed by him as acting clerk of said district, that a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, would be held at the schoolhouse in said district on October 9, 1894, at 7.30 p. m., for the purpose of the election of a trustee, district clerk and collector of said district, that said Wylie did not notify every other inhabitant of said district qualified to vote at the meeting, by reading said notice of said meeting in his hearing, or in case of his absence from home, by leaving a copy thereof, or so much thereof as relates to the time, place and object of the meeting, at the place of his abode, at least six days before the time of the meeting; but it is not alleged, nor does it appear, that the omission on the part of said Wylie, to so, as aforesaid, give notice of said special meeting, was wilful and fraudulent; that said special meeting was held on said October 9, 1894, at which there were present and voting two-thirds of the qualified voters of said district, and a trustee, district clerk and collector of said district were elected in the manner prescribed by section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law; that said special meeting went through the form of electing treasurer of said district, although the election of such treasurer was not specified in the notice of said special meeting as one of the purposes for which said meeting was called; that the appellant herein was present at and took part in the proceedings of said special meeting.

It is also established by the proofs herein that Joseph Holmes and Jacob Snyder were each candidates for the office of trustee of said district, and that both of them canvassed said district for support by the qualified voters thereof for said office; that said Holmes personally saw and consulted with every qualified voter in said district, except fifteen, in relation to said special meeting, the time and place when the said meeting was to be held, and the object and purpose of said meeting, and urged said voters to be present thereat; that of the fifteen persons that he did not see personally, seven of them were present and took part in the proceedings of said meeting; that of the remaining eight, at least three of them had notice of said meeting, but purposely absented themselves therefrom, and of the others, who were married women, the husband of each was present at such meeting; that the said Wylie saw fully two-thirds of the qualified voters of said district prior to said meeting and personally informed them of the said meeting, the time when and the place where the same was to be held, and the object and purpose thereof, and also personally called the attention of many of them to the notice posted by him; that the fact that a special meeting in said district was to be held and the purposes for which it was to be held was printed in a newspaper published in the village of Stillwater, about two and one-half miles from said school district.

In the direction to Wylie to call a special meeting of said district no. 10 of Stillwater, as contained in my decision in appeal no. 4265, and in the manner prescribed in sections 2 and 6, of article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it was a direction that said notice be served in the manner provided by the school law, and the citation of the sections, article and title, was to inform him where the law upon the subject could be found. Wylie in his affidavits stated that he was ignorant of the law, and was not in possession of a copy of the school laws. A copy of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 was printed in the appendix to volume 2 of my report for 1894 and a copy of that report was sent to, and should have been in the possession of, the school district. Besides, he could have applied to this Department for information. Had he exercised due diligence to inform himself as to the law and his duties in the matter, the appeal herein would not have been taken.

Under the provisions of the school law, the service of all notices of special meetings in common school districts, unless any such district at its annual meeting shall, by resolution, prescribe some other method, is by reading said notice in the hearing of each inhabitant of the district qualified to vote at the meeting, or in case of his or her absence from home, by leaving a copy thereof, or so much thereof as relates to the time, place and object of the meeting, at the place of his or her abode, at least five days before the day of the meeting.

Said school law also contains the provision that the proceedings of no district meeting, annual or special, shall be held illegal for want of a due notice to all persons qualified to vote thereat unless it shall appear that the omission to give such notice was wilful and fraudulent. It is clear that the qualified voters of said school district did not receive due notice of said special meeting of October 9, 1894, under the school law; but it is not claimed or proved that the omission to give such due notice was wilful and fraudulent.

I am of the opinion, from the proofs established herein, that all of the qualified voters of said district had notice of said special meeting, and the purposes for which it was called, and that if any voter failed to attend said meeting it was for some other reason than that he or she had no notice thereof. Indeed, the appellant herein has failed to show that a single voter of said district did not have notice of said meeting, his contention being that the notice of said meeting was not served in accordance with the provisions of the school law, and hence the meeting was illegal. It is clear that the appellant herein has not been injured by reason of a failure to serve notice of the meeting as required by the school law, as he was present at such meeting and took part in the proceedings.

This Department, when asked to set aside the proceedings of school meetings, will always inquire into the bonæ fides thereof. Were the things done such as it was proper to do? Has any one been misled, imposed upon or wronged? If mistakes and irregularities have occurred, will the greater hardship be imposed upon individuals by setting aside or sustaining such acts?

I find and decide that the contention of the appellant, that said special meeting was not legally held for the reason that the notice of said meeting was not served in the manner provided by the school law, is not tenable, it appearing that the omission to give such notice was not wilful and fraudulent, and it further appearing that all the qualified voters of said district received in some manner a notice thereof.

The election at such special meeting of a treasurer of said district was clearly void, for two reasons: First, because in the notice of the meeting it was not stated therein that said meeting would be called upon to act relative to the election of a treasurer; and, second, that under the school law no school district can elect a treasurer of the district unless at the first meeting of the district after it shall have been formed, or at any subsequent annual meeting thereof, or at any special meeting duly called for that purpose, a resolution shall be adopted to elect such treasurer. It does not appear that any such resolution has been adopted.

I find and decide, That the special meeting held on October 9, 1894, in school district no. 10, town of Stillwater, Saratoga county, was legally held; that the election at said special meeting of a trustee, district clerk and collector of said district was legal and valid; that the election at said special meeting of a treasurer of said district was illegal and void.

The appeal herein is sustained as to so much thereof as appeals from the action and proceedings of said special meeting in the election of a treasurer of said district; and that as to all other matters therein, said appeal is dismissed.

In the matter of the appeal of Henry W. Wolf and others v. school district no. 4, town of Westfield, county of Richmond.

Proceedings of a district school meeting will not be disturbed when regularly and fairly taken at the proper time only for the reason that absent voters did not attend at the time designated.

Appropriations of a district meeting set aside, the meeting having failed to indicate the purpose money was to be raised for.

Decided September 21, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

The appellants allege that the proceedings of the annual meeting in the above-named district were very irregularly taken. It seems that John J. Vaughan was elected trustee over the appellant Wolf by a vote of 14 to 9. Mr Wolf claims that there was not sufficient time afforded to permit the qualified voters of the district to vote. There were but 23 votes cast. The district is small. He admits that 15 or 20 minutes of time were occupied in taking the ballot. This would seem to be sufficient. There is no pretense that the meeting was held before the proper time. Residents of the district should have been on hand when the time arrived, if they desired to vote. It is not shown that any one desiring to vote was prevented from doing so. I think no sufficient ground appears to invalidate the election of Vaughan.

There is a claim set forth in one of the affidavits presented that Vaughan is not eligible to the position of trustee, on the ground that his name does not appear upon the assessment rolls. But he may be eligible for other reasons, and it is not shown that he is not.

The election of Mr Vaughan must therefore be sustained.

The appellants claim that the sum of $350 was appropriated at the annual meeting for general expenses of the district, without indicating precisely what it was to be used for. This is not denied by the respondents. If this allegation be true, the action of the meeting was irregular. Such action is therefore set aside, and the trustees are advised to call a special meeting for the purpose of acting upon estimates for the year's expenses.

The appeal is dismissed so far as it relates to the election of a trustee, but sustained so far as it refers to the appropriation of $350, without indicating the specific purpose for which it is to be used.

3699

In the matter of the appeal of Samuel A. Childs v. the action of a joint meeting of residents of districts nos. 2 and 5, town of Scott, Cortland county.

Proceedings of a district meeting involving important matters, marked by riotous conduct and consequent confusion, set aside.

Decided July 24, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

It appears that on the 25th of April 1888, a meeting was held in the town of Scott, Cortland county, at which were present numerous qualified electors of school districts nos. 2 and 5, of said town, for the purpose of taking action relative to the formation of a union free school district. The meeting was organized by the election of F. O. Burdick as chairman, and Jared E. Babcock and William N. Babcock as secretaries. The appellant states that immediately following the organization, the chairman announced that the meeting would proceed to ballot upon the question, without giving any person an opportunity for an expression of opinion relative to the merits of the proposition. It is manifest that there was great disorder at the meeting. At one time during its progress, it was announced that there was great danger of the floor of the hall breaking down. The appellant claims that, in consequence of this statement, thirty persons left the hall and that many of them did not return. Two constables were called in to preserve the peace, and two persons were arrested by them. The respondents claim that the riotous conduct was on the part of the appellants; that they precipitated turmoil and confusion upon the meeting for the purpose of breaking it up. The vote as declared by the chair was strongly in favor of establishing a union free school district, and it seems reasonably clear that the larger part of the persons present were in favor of that course.

But I have determined, after considerable reflection upon the matter, to take that course which will necessitate another meeting. If I should uphold the proceedings which are appealed from, the result would unquestionably be that antagonisms in the district of the fiercest character would continue indefinitely. Moreover, an action of so much importance ought to be determined upon deliberately after full opportunity for discussion, and by the free and untrammelled judgment of the people interested. The people of these two districts ought to be sufficiently advanced in the ways of organized and civilized society to enable them to meet in a public gathering, compare views, treat each other decently, although they may differ in opinion, and finally reach a conclusion through the vote of a majority of their number; and it would furthermore seem that, when that has been done, the minority must submit to the determination in good spirit. In the hope that such may be the case, I sustain the appeal.

3710

In the matter of the appeal of Thornton A. Niven v. school district no. 1, town of Thompson, county of Sullivan.

A district voted at its annual meeting to appropriate money for the purpose of adding instruction in vocal music to the school; held, the proceeding was regular and will not be set aside.

The fact that many voters were not present at the meeting; held, to be no ground for setting aside the proceedings of an annual meeting.

The law fixes the time and place for the annual meeting; those who attend can legally transact the business of the district.

Decided October 1, 1888.

Draper, Superintendent

At the annual school meeting held in district no. 1 of the town of Thompson, Sullivan county, in 1888, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That an additional appropriation of $300 be added to the required appropriation for the purpose of adding instruction in vocal music to the school."

The appellant objects to this resolution, and in his appeal raises the question whether a school district has the right to raise money by tax for the purpose specified in the resolution. He also alleges that, while there are more than 250 qualified electors in the district, there were not more than 25 or 30 present at the meeting at which the resolution was adopted, and insists that the majority of the people of the district are opposed to it.

The law gives no direction as to what studies shall be pursued in the common schools. It has always been left discretionary with the people of each district or with the trustees in each case. Of course, if it should be attempted to raise a tax for the purpose of employing teachers to teach branches of subjects incompatible with the work of the common schools, the Department would be obliged to hold that such action was irregular and could not be upheld. Whatever is done in the schools must be done with a view to subserving and promoting the general purposes for which the schools are operated. It is not possible for me to say that the teaching of vocal music is inconsistent with the general purposes of the schools. I am, therefore, of the opinion that the district had the legal right to take the action appealed from if it chose to do so. The fact that not one-tenth of the voters of the district were present, is of no consequence. The action was taken at the annual meeting, of which all had notice. No special notice of such action was required to be given in advance of the annual meeting.

For these considerations I am obliged to dismiss the appeal.

Where the clerk names a wrong hour in his notice of an annual meeting, and part of the inhabitants assemble at that hour and transact business, and part assemble at the hour of adjournment, and also transact business, both meetings may be set aside, and a new one ordered.

Decided November 30, 1857

Van Dyck, Superintendent

It appears that an annual meeting in 1856 adjourned to October 5, 1857, at 7 o'clock, and the same is so recorded. By error, the clerk in the written notices of the meeting named 6 o'clock as the hour. A part of the inhabitants met at that hour, and transacted the ordinary business; a part, relying upon the adjournment, met at 7 o'clock, organized, and proceeded to business. The latter appeal from the action of the former.

Held, that 7 o'clock was the proper hour for meeting, but, a part of the inhabitants having been misled by the written notices, no advantage should be taken of such an official error, to deprive a considerable number of the inhabitants of a voice in the regular proceedings.

The proceedings of both meetings are therefor set aside, and the clerk of last year is directed to give notice of a new meeting within ten days after the receipt of this decision.

3726

In the matter of the appeal of Eugene H. Tiffany from the proceedings of a school district meeting held in district no. 8, town of Martinsburgh, county of Lewis, on the 5th day of June 1888.

At the time and place designated in the call for a special school district meeting the inhabitants assembled and after waiting a reasonable time for the presence of the trustee and district clerk, organized and adjourned, and many left for their homes, when later the officers of the district appeared and with those remaining organized and proceeded to transact business of importance to the district; held, that the action of the school meeting can not be upheld.

Decided November 14, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal brought by a legal voter of school district no. 8 of the town of Martinsburgh, county of Lewis, from the proceedings of a district meeting held under the following circumstances:

The trustee of the district had given notice of a special meeting to consider a change of schoolhouse site, to be held on the 5th day of June 1888, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., at the schoolhouse in said district; that at the time mentioned in said notice, a large number of the inhabitants and voters of said district assembled at the place designated and remained until after 8 o'clock; that neither the trustee nor the district clerk was then present; that, after 8 o'clock, the meeting was organized by the election of a chairman and a clerk pro tem., and subsequently adjourned, and most of the inhabitants left the building and departed for their homes. Subsequent to such adjournment the trustee and district clerk appeared, and, with the persons who remained, proceeded to organize a meeting and transact business of considerable importance to the voters of the district. It is claimed and can not very well be denied, that, at the time the second meeting was organized, the trustee and the persons present were well aware of the previous meeting and of the adjournment, and that many of the voters had left the building. With this state of facts before me, I can not uphold the action of the second meeting.

The appeal is sustained and the proceedings of the second district meeting held on the night of June 5, 1888, are set aside, and any action there taken is declared null and void.

3563

In the matter of the appeal of J. W. Rood v. John Latimer, as trustee of school district no. 16, town of Pomfret, Chautauqua county.

A sole trustee should call a special meeting when requested by a reasonable number of the voters of his district, to consider plans for building etc., even after a site has been secured and plans adopted.

Decided February 10, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a taxpayer and resident of school district no. 16, town of Pomfret, Chautauqua county, N. Y., from the action of the sole trustee of said district, in refusing to call a special meeting of the inhabitants when requested by a reasonable number of the same, for the purpose of considering a change of site and plans for building a schoolhouse in the district, and the manner of building the same.

The trustee, answering the appeal, seeks to justify such refusal by the allegation that a site has already been purchased, a deed accepted and plans secured and adopted in pursuance of authority conferred by a meeting held in the district.

My opinion is that the trustee should have granted the prayer of the petitioners and called a special meeting in accordance therewith. Of course, liabilities incurred by the trustee for the district in pursuance of such authority, can not now be evaded, but if a majority of the electors desire to give expression to their wishes as to the work still to be done, or if they desire to make changes which they can properly make, and are willing to pay the expense involved, they should be accorded that privilege.

I sustain the appeal and order the trustee to call a special meeting of the inhabitants for the consideration of any question in relation to the building of a new schoolhouse not already disposed of.

3919

In the matter of the appeal of John Decker v. the Port Richmond union free school district.

Annual meeting sustained which was held at the schoolhouse (the place designated by law), and at the established time, although some irregularity about the notice of the meeting is shown. It does not appear that a sufficient number of electors were misled by the notice, or that a sufficient number of illegal votes were cast to have affected the result. Decided October 20, 1890

Robert G. Scherer, Esq., attorney for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought to set aside the action of the last annual school meeting in the district above named. Two reasons are alleged in support of the appeal.

1 It is said that the board of education caused a notice to be posted, that the annual meeting would be held at a place other than the schoolhouse, and within three or four days prior to the meeting changed this notice so as to provide that the meeting should be at the schoolhouse. It is claimed that this fact misled voters.

2 It is alleged that persons were intimidated from voting by reason of announcements made at the meeting concerning the alteration of the district.

The same rule applies to this case as obtains in all similar cases. The law provided that the school meeting should be held at the schoolhouse. It was held there. It also provided that it should be held at a given time. It was held at that time. The presumptions are, therefore, in favor of the regularity of the proceedings. These presumptions must be overcome by positive proof on the part of the appellant before he can succeed in his appeal. He must show by affirmative evidence that a sufficient number of persons voted at the meeting who had no legal right to vote, or that a sufficient number of persons were misled as to their rights and refrained from voting, or stayed away from the meeting under a misapprehension, to have changed the result before he can succeed. There were 304 votes cast upon the election of the member of the board of education. The successful candidate received 162 votes. The next candidate received 73 votes. The appellant entirely fails to show a state of facts which would justify me in setting aside this election. Nothing appears in the proofs submitted by the appellant which is of sufficient consequence to invalidate the meeting.

It therefore follows that the appeal must be dismissed.

3924

In the matter of the appeal of Patrick H. Ludlow v. Michael Bennett, trustee of school district no. 19, town of Watervliet, Albany county.

Special school meeting called by a notice of but two days. Held, invalid. Proceeding taken thereat set aside.

Decided November 13, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken by one of the members of the board of trustees of school district no. 19, of the town of Watervliet, county of Albany, from the action of Michael Bennett, another member of said board of trustees, in calling a special meeting of the electors of said district to fill a vacancy in said board, caused by the resignation of one James J. Peyton, to be held on September 30, 1890.

The grounds upon which the appeal is based are:

1 That but twenty-four hours' notice was given of such meeting.

2 That the meeting was called by the said Michael Bennett without consultation with his remaining associate trustee. No answer has been interposed.

The appeal must be sustained. At least five days' notice of a special meeting is necessary in order to comply with the statutory requirement.

The calling of the meeting could only be legally directed by a majority of the trustees in meeting duly assembled. Any proceedings of the meeting held September 30, 1890, are therefore of no effect, and are hereby set aside.

The appeal is sustained.

3925

In the matter of the appeal of P. Phelps and others from the proceedings of a special school meeting, held June 28, 1890, in school district no. 5, town of Camden, county of Oneida.

Proceedings of a special school meeting in voting to rescind the action of a former meeting which had decided to postpone the building of a schoolhouse, will not be set aside because of a failure to state specifically in the notice of the last meeting that a proposition to rescind the vote of the previous meeting would be submitted.

The object stated in the notice was "to take action on building the schoolhouse and to provide means to build the same." Held, to be in effect a proposition to rescind, and the vote to build adopted at the last meeting was a substantial rescindment of the vote to postpone building, passed at first meeting.

Decided November 31, 1890

Alpha F. Orr, attorney for appellants

A. C. & E. C. Woodruff, attorneys for respondents

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken by electors of school district no. 5, town of Camden, from the proceedings of a special meeting, held June 28, 1890. The appellants also ask for the removal of the trustee from office. The grounds of the appeal are, that at the said meeting, a vote taken at a previous meeting, to postpone the building of a new schoolhouse until fall, was rescinded without notice of such proposed action in the call for the meeting. It appears from the proofs submitted, that the object of the meeting, as stated in the notice, was "to take action on building the schoolhouse and to provide means to build the same."

The ground upon which the removal of the trustee is sought is that the trustee requested the district clerk to make a false record of the proceedings of the meeting in the clerk's book. At the meeting of June 28th, of which due notice had been given to the inhabitants, it appears that the action of the former meeting to defer action, in regard to building a new schoolhouse, was, by a unanimous vote, rescinded. It also appears that the meeting directed the trustee to proceed with the building of the new schoolhouse, and to advertise for proposals to do the work, and authorized him to levy a tax to raise the necessary amount to pay for the construction thereof. It also appears that the district clerk kept no record of the proceedings of the meeting, and prepared his minutes afterwards from memory, and that he omitted from such record some part of the proceedings; that the trustee who participated in the meeting and offered certain resolutions, supplied the clerk with a memorandum of the same, in order that he might perfect his minutes.

It is contended by the appellants that, because of the fact that the notice for the special meeting of June 28th, did not state that the action of a former meeting at which it was decided to postpone building, would be reconsidered, that the vote to reconsider was in consequence illegal. This I can not hold because of the fact that the vote of the meeting directing the trustee to proceed with the construction of the new building, and of which action due notice had been given, was in effect a rescinding of the action of the previous meeting. The evidence shows that the district was without a schoolhouse, and the action of the meeting of June 28th directing the construction of one, was justifiable, and should be upheld.

I am not satisfied that the trustee of the district sought to induce the district clerk to insert in the proceedings of the district meeting, anything which should not have appeared therein, and in this position I am supported by the affidavit of the district clerk himself, which is submitted by respondent, and which is somewhat contradictory of his affidavit presented by the appellants.

In view of the foregoing consideration, I dismiss the appeal.

3926

Plinny Phelps and others from the proceedings of the annual meeting held in school district no. 5, town of Camden, county of Oneida, August 5, 1890.

Proceedings of annual meeting held at the place where the school had been taught, and where previous meetings of the district had been held. Sustained, although a district clerk, without authority, had posted notices for the meeting to be held elsewhere, in which latter place a few electors assembled, but transacted no business. Those assembled at the former place greatly exceeded the number of those at the latter, and were unanimous in the selection of officers and the transaction of business. It does not appear that the trustee and others who attended the meeting at the schoolhouse were cognizant of the clerk's notice.

Decided November 21, 1890

Alpha F. Orr, attorney for appellants

Davies & Johnson, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

Appeal by electors of school district no. 5, town of Camden, county of Oneida, from the proceedings of the last annual school meeting.

The grounds of the appeal are that the appellants were misled as to the place for the holding of the annual meeting, by a notice which the district clerk had posted. It appears from the evidence submitted that the schoolhouse had been destroyed by fire; that temporary quarters for the school had been hired by the trustee in order to complete the school year; that several school meetings had been held in such temporary quarters; that, without any direction by the school trustee, the district clerk posted notices for the annual meeting at another place about a hundred yards distant from such temporary school building. It is claimed by the appellants, and denied by the trustee, that he knew that the said notice had been given. Thirteen of the voters of the district assembled at the place at which the school had been held, and at which previous meetings had been called, on the night designated for holding the annual meeting, and proceeded to transact the business of the annual meeting. A smaller number met at the place designated in the notice of the district clerk, but it does not appear that they transacted any business, but proceeded to the building in which the other thirteen persons were transacting business.

It is claimed by the appellants that they were present at the latter place about half-past 7 o'clock, and that the business had then been transacted, and the meeting was about to adjourn. It is claimed by the respondents that it was nearly 8 o'clock when they came to the meeting. Immediately after the adjournment and the retirement of the thirteen who had participated in the meeting, the proceedings of which were unanimous, nine of the inhabitants who claim they were misled by the district clerk's notice, proceeded to organize a meeting and elect district officers.

The law makes it the duty of the trustee of the district, when the schoolhouse can not be used for the purpose of holding a district meeting, to designate the place therefor, and it would then become the duty of the district clerk to give notice accordingly. It does not appear that the trustee designated any place, but that the district clerk, upon his own motion, named a place in the notice, other than the place at which the school had been held, and in which previous meetings of the district had been held.

I should not sustain the proceedings of the first meeting if it were made to appear to me that there was any division of sentiment in the action thereof; or, if it appeared that a larger number of electors of the district constituted the second meeting. If this were the case, I should set aside the proceedings of the first meeting and order a new election; but it is clear to me that a majority of the electors who intended to participate in the annual meeting, participated in the first meeting. I conclude, therefore, to overrule the appeal, and sustain the action of the first meeting.

The appeal is overruled.

3569

In the matter of the appeal of Henry Chambers v. H. K. Salisbury, school commissioner of Montgomery county.

When the commissioners having jurisdiction over a joint district can not agree to make an alteration of the district, the State Superintendent will not interfere unless the propriety of the change is clearly manifest, and where a refusal to so order would necessarily work injustice.

Where an inhabitant of a joint district is inequitably assessed, his remedy is not by an alteration of the district, but by the proceeding provided by section 69, title 7 of the Consolidated School Act, and then by an appeal if he considers he has not been equitably dealt with.

Decided February 21, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant owns and resides upon a farm lying in joint school district no. 9 of the towns of Root and Charleston, Montgomery county, and of the town of Carlisle, Schoharie county. He desires to be set off from said district no. 9 and attached to district no. 6 of the town of Carlisle. The school commissioners of Montgomery county and of the second district of Schoharie county, within whose commissioner districts the school districts which would be affected by the change are situated, met at the house of the appellant on the 21st day of September 1886, for the purpose of considering the matter. After such consideration, Commissioner Mann, of Schoharie county, announced himself as in favor of the proposed change, but Commissioner Salisbury, of Montgomery county, refused to join in an order making the same. From such refusal this appeal is taken.

The alteration of a joint school district requires the approval of at least a majority of all of the school commissioners within whose districts the school districts to be affected are situated. The law leaves it to their discretion, and requires that their judgments shall concur in the wisdom of the proposed change before it shall be made. This is intended as a check upon frequent change or changes for slight reasons. In a case where it appears that the commissioners met and deliberately considered a proposed change and disagreed as to the propriety of it, this Department will not order the change to be made except where the propriety of the change is clearly manifest, and where a refusal to so order would necessarily work injustice to an individual or injury to the school system. In this case the commissioners met upon the ground, heard the interested parties, examined the circumstances and configuration of the territory affected, deliberately considered the whole subject, and failed to agree as to the wisdom of the proposed alteration. The trustee of one of the districts affected also refused to consent to the change. After such proceedings, with the opportunities thus afforded the commissioners for observation and for gathering the information upon which to act intelligently, and with an evident difference of opinion in the locality, a clear and strong case must be presented by the appellant in order to succeed in having the refusal of one of the commissioners overruled.

In my opinion, such a case is not here presented. The real reason why the appellant desires the alteration appears to be the fact that he deems himself inequitably and unfairly taxed in joint district no. 9. He says he is assessed at a higher valuation per acre than any other farm in the district, although there are several farms no less valuable and some more so than his. If this is so the law provides a remedy. Section 69, title 7, of the Consolidated School Act, provides a way for equalizing taxes in joint districts, and if the officers therein charged with the duty of correcting an unjust valuation refuse to afford relief, this Department will do so. But the remedy for such a wrong does not lie in the alteration of school districts. The appellant urges in addition to this that his residence is nearer the schoolhouse in district no. 6 than in no. 9, and that the road to the schoolhouse in no. 9 is steep and frequently blockaded with snowdrifts in the winter; but as it appears that he has no children of school age, it would hardly seem that this is the real cause of complaint.

The appeal is dismissed.

3564

In the matter of the appeal of Edward L. Riker, Floyd Gates and Charles Eaton from the proceedings of a special school meeting held in district no. 3, town of Ontario, county of Wayne.

The proceedings of a district meeting will not be set aside because a number of voters who knew of the meeting chose to absent themselves, nor because some who attended did not vote.

The fact that a list of voters was prepared and used at the meeting, which was incomplete, is no sufficient reason for setting aside the action taken, particularly when an opportunity was publicly given to all voters whose names had been omitted from the list, to vote.

Action of another district meeting, held six months previous to the appeal, can not now be questioned. Such action, if objected to, should have been appealed from within thirty days from the date thereof.

Decided February 14, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by residents of district no. 3, town of Ontario, county of Wayne, from the proceedings of the special school meeting held September 11, 1886, in said district, and demanding that the same be set aside. The following are the grounds stated by the appellants: that the trustee presented a list of voters which was only a partial list; that quite a number of voters did not attend the meeting because of the narrowness of the call; that several who attended the meeting did not vote, for the reason that they considered the call not sufficiently broad to admit them to vote as they saw fit; that there was a bill of costs included in the supplementary report of the trustee, incurred by said trustee in some action or proceeding affecting the district. The respondent, the trustee and other residents of the district, for answer to the appeal herein, allege: that the list of voters furnished by the trustee at such special meeting, were all that he could think of at the time and put those on the list, when the chairman announced that if any were present whose names had been omitted, they were now given an opportunity to vote; that if any voters of the district absented themselves from the meeting, it was probably due to the fact that the appellants had taken pains to inform them that no meeting would be held; that only two persons made this claim; that no exceptions were taken to the report of the former trustee when made at the special meeting; that the costs and expenses referred to were incurred by the trustee while acting in accordance with a resolution of a special meeting held in March last.

The following is the call for the special meeting, to which the appellants object:

NOTICE

By request of the supervisor of the town, I, the trustee of school district no. 3, order a special school meeting to be held in the schoolhouse, on Saturday evening, September 11, 1886, at seven o'clock p. m., for the sole purpose of accepting the supplementary report of the trustee, Emmet Teats.

JOHN H. ALBRIGHT

Ontario, N. Y., September 6, 1886

An additional pleading has been filed by each side to this controversy, but the statements contained therein do not materially change the allegations above stated.

After a careful examination of all the pleadings, affidavits and exhibits presented, I do not discover any sufficient reason why the proceedings of this district meeting should be set aside. The fact that several parties who had notice of the meeting saw fit to absent themselves, will certainly be no good reason, particularly as it is not claimed that these parties were kept away through any act of the respondents; nor is the fact that other residents of the district who attended the meeting and were entitled to vote thereat, declined to vote when they had an opportunity. The fact that a list was prepared by the trustee, which omitted some names of qualified voters, is not a sufficient ground to base a decision upon, setting aside the proceedings of a district meeting, particularly as the chairman of the meeting stated, after the list so prepared had been called, that, if any present had not voted, they then had an opportunity to vote. The only other point and the real secret of this appeal, as it appears to me, is the item presented by the former trustee of between twenty and thirty dollars for certain costs and disbursements incurred by said trustee in some proceeding relating to the school district. It is not claimed by the appellant and it does not appear from any papers before me, that this item of the trustee was disputed at the district meeting, and it does appear that the trustee was authorized by a vote of the district, held several months previous to this meeting, to defend a certain action which one Riker had brought against the trustee. It is claimed by the appellant that the meeting at which this resolution was passed was not properly called, a sufficient notice of the object thereof not having been given, but it is too late for me to pass upon that question now, as that meeting was held in March last, and it seems that the trustee acted in accordance with such resolution, and that no appeal was ever taken to this Department from the proceedings of that special meeting.

The conclusion I have reached is, that the appellants have not shown sufficient facts which would justify me in setting aside the proceedings of the special meeting held in September last, and I, therefore, dismiss the appeal.

3560

In the matter of the appeal of Frederick C. Plank, and others, from the proceedings of a special school district meeting held in district no. 17, town of Mayfield, Fulton county, N. Y., November 9, 1886.

Proceedings of a district meeting set aside, when it appears that service of notice of the meeting upon a majority of the voters was intentionally omitted, and in consequence but a minority attended the meeting and participated in its deliberations.

Decided February 4, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is taken by residents and taxpayers of district no. 17, town of Mayfield, county of Fulton, from the action of a special district meeting in voting to purchase new seats for the district school in said district.

The grounds of the appeal are: That legal notice of the meeting was never given to a number of the legal voters in said district.

That several received no notice whatever.

That several received a verbal notice the day of the meeting, but the object of the special meeting was not stated to them.

That the failure to give legal notice was wilful on the part of the trustee.

No answer has been interposed by the trustee, although ample time has been allowed him to controvert the allegations of the appellants, if he chose to do so.

It seems that 18 legal voters attended the meeting, of whom 12 favored the resolution to purchase new seats. A majority of the legal voters appear to be opposed to the purchase, on the ground that the present outfit is in good repair and suitable for the school.

With these facts only before me, I am compelled to sustain the appeal. The statute prescribes the notice to be given and the manner of giving it. It is not customary to set aside the proceedings of special meetings on the ground of insufficiency of notice, where good faith is evident or it is shown that an honest endeavor was made to give notice to all, particularly not unless the meeting was closely divided upon a proposition and a sufficient number of legal voters were absent for want of notice to have changed the result. But, I do not think that the evidence before me shows sufficient effort to notify all of the meeting, and the action taken thereat can not, under all the circumstances of the case, be upheld.

The appeal is sustained.

3552

In the matter of the appeal of Alva T. Decker and others, from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held in school district no. 6, town of Sanford, Broome county, N. Y., August 31, 1886.

Proceedings of a district meeting called to order at the appointed time, and conducted in an orderly manner, will not be disturbed because certain voters of the district who were aware that the meeting had been called to order, remained outside of the room for some time, and until the proceedings objected to had been concluded.

Decided January 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal taken by residents and school district electors of district no. 6, town of Sanford, Broome county, N. Y., from the action of the annual district meeting held August 31, 1886, in the matter of the election of a trustee for said district.

It is alleged as grounds for the appeal:

1 That the district has 18 voters; that at the annual meeting, notice was given that the meeting was open and ready to proceed to business, and that a majority of the voters were in attendance (but not in the room); that the appellants went into the room in less than five minutes from the time the meeting was opened, with no knowledge of what had been done, and one of the appellants then named a person for trustee, and was told by the chairman that one Benjamin H. Hobart had been elected by the votes of two or three persons.

2 That the chairman would not then entertain a motion to elect a trustee.

3 That said Benjamin H. Hobart is not a resident of the district or of the State of New York; that he owns no real estate, and sends no children to school; that appellants believe that said Hobart was declared elected trustee to insure the employment of a certain person as teacher, contrary to the wishes of a large majority of the district.

The appeal bears twelve signatures, but is verified only by one of the appellants.

The respondents, including the said Benjamin F. Hobart and 14 other alleged voters of the district, answer the appellant's allegation; the answer on the part of the trustee being verified by him, and the answer on behalf of the residents and voters being verified by George L. Talmage, who was chairman of said meeting. The trustee denies that he is a nonresident of the district; alleges he owns real estate and personal property, and pays taxes in the district, and has children, but not large enough to attend school, and that he has employed a duly qualified teacher, who is conducting the school. The residents and voters answer that they were present at the meeting in question. That the meeting was called to order at 8.10 p. m.; that a majority of the voters of the district were present; that the meeting was orderly, and a majority of those present voted; that Benjamin Hobart was unanimously elected trustee; that a good teacher has been employed, and is teaching a good school, and that a majority of the patrons are well satisfied with the trustee.

It is singular that these contrary statements should, in several instances, be made by the same persons, but such is the fact.

After a careful examination of the facts presented, I fail to discover any reason why the proceedings of the annual meeting should be disturbed or set aside. The meeting was not called before the usual hour of meeting, and appellants admit they knew the meeting had been called to order, and yet delayed to go into the room until considerable business had been done and a trustee chosen. The charge that the person chosen trustee is not a resident and a voter, is sufficiently answered by the verified answer of the trustee.

The appeal is overruled.

4000

In the matter of the appeal of William H. Huntley and others v. school district no. 6 of the town of Williamstown, in the county of Oswego.

Proceedings of an alleged annual school meeting set aside where a long established custom in the district for calling the people to assemble had been purposely and intentionally omitted, thus enabling a very small minority of those intending to be present at the meeting to assemble and transact the business of the annual meeting.

Decided September 14, 1891

—, E. Dixon, Esq., attorney for the respondents

Draper, Superintendent

The purpose of this appeal is to set aside the proceedings of an alleged annual school meeting in the district above named, on the 4th day of August last. The appellants allege that it has been the invariable custom in the district for a great many years, to ring the schoolhouse bell in order to call residents to special and annual school meetings, but that this was not done at the time of the last annual school meeting; that a few interested parties assembled together promptly at the time fixed by law for the meeting, and that in five or ten minutes hastened through the forms of an annual meeting, receiving and acting upon the report of the trustees, voting moneys for the next year, and electing trustees. It is alleged and not denied, that not more than 5 or 6 persons were present at the time of these proceedings; that the great majority of the people of the district relied upon the bell being rung, and many did not go to the meeting at all because it was not done; that others went to the number of 15 or 20 at least, to find that the proceedings had been hurried through. It is shown that there are some 95 voters in the district, 60 of whom petition me to order a new meeting, and allege that they were improperly and unfairly prevented from expressing their wishes at the annual meeting.

The respondents answer and present very technical and some frivolous reasons why the appeal should not be entertained. They allege that the law requires no notice of an annual meeting to be posted, and that it does not require the bell to be rung. They say that the meeting was held at the time fixed by law and that others should have been present at that time if they wished to participate in the meeting.

The only dispute between the parties, as revealed by their affidavits, is in relation to the precise time at which the meeting was called. The appellants put it earlier than the respondents. There can be no doubt upon the papers presented, that because of the circumstances set forth by the appellants, the majority of people who desired to attend and participate in the school meeting, were prevented from doing so. The respondents say that it was their own fault; that they were bound to know the law and to be on time. This may be true, generally speaking, yet it seems conclusive upon the papers presented, that the will of the majority of the district has been thwarted by sharp practice on the part of a few who saw fit to ignore a well-settled custom in the district, in order to promote their own purposes. I think that the law intends that the State Superintendent shall interfere in such a case, when presented to him, and I am confident that in giving the district another opportunity to hold an annual meeting, so that all who wish may be present and participate therein, I shall promote the best educational interests of the locality.

The appeal is therefore sustained, the action of the said meeting is held to be void and of no effect, and the clerk will post notices of a special annual meeting to be held not less than ten days nor more than twenty days from the date thereof.

3991

In the matter of the appeal of William H. Graham and others v. school district no. 3, of the town of Mount Pleasant, in the county of Westchester.

Certain proceedings in the nature of an annual meeting set aside where it is claimed that a majority of the electors of the district were misled as to the hour of meeting by the notices posted, and in consequence were not in attendance while the business was being transacted by a few specially interested persons.

Special meeting ordered.

Decided August 31, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought for the purpose of setting aside certain proceedings in the nature of an annual school meeting in the district above named, on the 4th day of August last. It is alleged on one side, that a portion of the notices posted called for a meeting at 8 o'clock. On the other side, it is alleged that all of the notices called the meeting at 7 o'clock. It is admitted on both sides that there was no action at the previous annual meeting fixing an hour for the next meeting. The law provides that in such cases the meeting shall be held at 7.30 o'clock. It is claimed by the appellant that a majority of electors in the district were misled as to the time of meeting, supposing that it would be in the neighborhood of 8 o'clock, and that a few specially interested persons assembled at 7.30 o'clock, or earlier, and rushed the business of the meeting through before the electors arrived; and that many arrived at 8 o'clock to find that the annual business of the district had been transacted.

I think the appellants make out a pretty strong case, sufficiently strong at least to justify me in setting aside the proceedings appealed from, and ordering another meeting, of which ample notice shall be given. The best educational interests of the district require that the substantial electors of the district shall have no good ground for feeling that they have been subjected to a trick, or intentionally misled. The appeal is therefore sustained, and notices will be issued by the district clerk for a special meeting to be held at a time and place therein mentioned, for the purpose of transacting all the business of the annual meeting. Notices of such meeting must be posted in the district for at least ten days.

3953

In the matter of the appeal of Charles C. Bagg and others v. union free school district no. 5, town of De Witt, county of Onondaga.

At a special district school meeting, an additional sum of money was voted to complete a new schoolhouse. The vote upon the question was close, it prevailing only by five majority. Unsatisfactory and contradictory evidence is offered to the effect that illegal votes were cast for the proposition. Held, that the proof not being satisfactory, the action of the meeting is sustained.

Decided January 8, 1891

Hoyt, Beach, Hancock & Devine, attorneys for appellants

J. B. Brooks, attorney for respondent.

Draper, Superintendent

On the 16th day of June 1890, the inhabitants of the district above named voted to erect a new schoolhouse in said district, and to issue bonds of the district for the sum of $17,000 for that purpose. The respondents issued said bonds and by the sale thereof realized their face value. On the 18th day of November 1890, a special meeting of the district was held for the purpose of voting to raise the further sum of $10,000 in order to complete the new schoolhouse, upon a plan adopted at a special meeting held August 19th. The vote to raise the additional $10,000 was close, there being 165 votes cast in all, of which 85 were in favor of the proposition, and 80 against it. The appellants seek to overturn the action of this special meeting by means of this appeal.

Different reasons are assigned for this, the only material one being that ten persons who are named, voted in favor of the proposition, when they were not qualified to vote at school meetings in the district. It turns out upon more complete investigation, that two who voted against the proposition were not entitled to vote, and it likewise turns out that several of the others who are named were entitled to vote.

The proofs do not sustain the allegation that enough illegal votes were cast in favor of the proposition to have changed the result. The appellants state that other illegal votes were cast in favor of it by the persons they name, but this allegation is too general to put the respondents to the necessity of answering it. It is made to appear in the papers, that just prior to the holding of the meeting referred to, a circular was published and distributed in the district, promising work to residents in case they would vote the proposition through. The members of the board swear that they had no knowledge of the authorship, and that they themselves were in no wise responsible for the publication. It is shown that the respondents have procured and paid for a site, and that a district meeting has adopted plans for a new schoolhouse, and that the common understanding in the district was that the new schoolhouse would cost considerably more than the sum appropriated for it. Sufficient ground is not shown for setting aside the action of the meeting of November 19th. That meeting was more largely attended than school meetings ordinarily are, and while the vote objected to was close, there is not sufficient proof that the majority in favor of the proposition was illegal.

I have been asked to send the matter to the school commissioner for the purpose of taking testimony, and have considered what I ought to do upon that request. The pleadings do not leave much at issue between the parties, and I can see no sufficient ground for granting the request, certainly not, when I consider the delay which will be involved, the expense which will be occasioned, and the ill-feeling which will inevitably be engendered by a contest over irrelevant matters before the school commissioner.

In view of these considerations, I must dismiss the appeal, and revoke the stay of proceedings heretofore granted herein.

3593

In the matter of the appeal of Smith Ovitt v. school district no. 4, of the town of Day, Saratoga county.

Proceedings of an annual meeting vacated and set aside for the reason that the meeting was disorderly and disgraceful.

Decided December 10, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought to set aside the proceedings of an alleged annual school meeting in district no. 4, of the town of Day, Saratoga county, held on the 30th day of August 1887. The papers are exceedingly irregular and poorly prepared, but they are sufficient to show that the proceedings at the alleged school meeting were disgraceful in the extreme. The meeting was called to order at between 7 and 8 o'clock in the evening, and was characterized by a bitter quarrel until 11 o'clock, when a motion was adopted that the district be annulled. Upon this, probably about half of the persons present went away, and upon going locked the door to the schoolhouse upon the outside. Those who were left in the building remained until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, and in the meantime assumed to transact the business of the annual meeting, by electing a trustee and directing repairs to the schoolhouse. It is not necessary further to specify the details, except to say that the papers show the whole proceedings from first to last to have been utterly disgraceful to the district.

I will not give the sanction of this Department to a district meeting characterized by such proceedings, and I hereby set aside and declare it to be null. The district clerk will call a special meeting of the district, to be held not more than fifteen days from the date hereof, for the purpose of transacting the business which should have been done at the annual meeting. If repairs have been made to the schoolhouse which have not yet been paid for, the meeting will make provision for defraying such expenses.

3655

In the matter of the appeal of William F. Andrews, from the proceedings of a special meeting held in school district no. 16, town of Denmark, Lewis county, February 9, 1887.

A district meeting may adjourn from time to time and may transact any business at an adjourned meeting which it could have done at the first meeting held under the call. When there was some question as to the regularity of an adjournment, the transactions of the adjourned meeting were upheld upon it appearing clearly that the voters of the district very generally attended, and that the action taken was supported by a large majority.

Decided April 22, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal taken by an elector of school district no. 16, town of Denmark, Lewis county, from the action of a school meeting which voted to change a schoolhouse site and construct thereon a new schoolhouse.

The grounds of appeal alleged by appellant are that the meeting was an adjourned one, and that at the previous meeting, when the adjournment was agreed upon, no hour or place was designated, and no time or place recorded upon the clerk's minutes, and that consequently the adjournment was without day and the adjourned meeting was illegal.

The respondent, the trustee, for answer to the appeal, alleges the fact to be that the time and place of adjournment were agreed upon and duly entered in the minutes, and that the time and place of the meeting was well understood by the voters, and that the proposed meeting was the subject of much talk in the district prior thereto.

It appears that there was a full attendance of legal voters present at the meeting and a large majority voted in favor of the change.

It is conceded by the appellants that a majority of the legal voters favor the change, but claimed that, of the tax-paying portion, the division is nearly equal.

It does not appear that any voter opposed to the change was misled as to the time and place of meeting, and in view of all the facts I must decline to find that the meeting of February 9th was illegal.

The appeal is dismissed.

3841

In the matter of the appeal of Lyman A. Colson v. Calvin S. Edwards, trustee of school district no. 6, town of Edinburgh, Saratoga county.

Proceedings of an annual meeting will not be disturbed upon an appeal because notice thereof was not given. The statute fixes the time and place for the same. Nor for the reason that a delay of fifteen minutes occurred in organizing the meeting; nor because the person who acted as chairman was a nonvoter; nor because the person elected to a district office is obnoxious to voters; nor because illegal votes were received, unless it is made to appear that they were cast for the successful candidate, and in a sufficient number to give him a majority, and this, appellant must show by competent proof.

Decided December 9, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant preceded the respondent as trustee of school district no. 6, town of Edinburgh, Saratoga county, his term of office having expired August 6th last.

He now appeals from the proceedings of the annual meeting and the election of respondent, upon the following grounds, namely:

- 1 That legal notice of the meeting was not given.
- 2 The district clerk was absent and the meeting was not called to order until long after 7.30 p. m.
- 3 The chairman of the meeting was not a voter; he was under age.

4 Illegal votes were received and counted.

5 A full and fair expression of the voters present was not allowed.

6 The respondent is obnoxious to a large majority of the inhabitants and voters of the district.

From the pleadings of the respective parties, it appears that the appellant, the outgoing trustee, called the meeting to order. A nonvoter was chosen chairman. Appellant and respondent were rival candidates for trustee. The chair appointed a representative of each candidate as tellers. A ballot was taken and 16 votes were cast. The tellers announced 11 for respondent and 5 for appellant.

In answer to appellant's grounds of appeal, respondent avers that due notice of the meeting was given by appellant's direction; that any delay in calling the meeting to order appellant was responsible for, as he performed that duty; that the organization was effected about 7.45 p. m. He admits that the chairman was a minor, but made an efficient and fair presiding officer. He does not deny that illegal votes were cast, but attempts to excuse this by precedent in the district. He denies all the other charges.

The first and last objection stated as grounds of appeal are not tenable. The statute fixes the time for holding annual meetings in school districts, and failure to give notice does not render the proceedings thereat void. A person may be obnoxious to a majority of the people and yet be a legal school officer.

The delay of fifteen minutes in calling the meeting to order is not an unusual occurrence at school meetings.

The chairman being no voter and not having attempted to vote, furnishes no sufficient ground to set aside the proceedings of the meeting. I believe persons voted who were not qualified to do so, but appellant seems to claim one such voter, James Jones, whom he alleges was not a qualified voter. The respondent insists that one Edwards, also claimed by appellant, was no more qualified than Jones.

The proofs before me do not satisfy me that an opportunity for a full and fair expression of the legal voters present was not afforded. The appellant claims 6 votes were cast for him, including a vote by Jones, whom he alleges was not a voter, and one by Edwards, who respondent avers was not. He mentions the names of three other persons who voted who were not legal voters, and as he does not claim their votes, they may have voted for respondent. Assuming then, that of the 11 ballots found for respondent, 3 were illegal ones, respondent would then have 8 remaining, and as appellant claims but 6 for himself, a clear majority is left respondent which would be increased by deducting Jones' and Edwards' votes from appellant's score.

I fail to see any substantial reason why I should disturb the result of this election.

The appeal is overruled.

374¹

In the matter of the appeal of Oliver H. White and other legal voters of school district no. 11, of the town of East Bloomfield, county of Ontario, from the proceedings of the annual meeting held in and for said district on the 28th day of August 1888.

Proceedings of an annual school district meeting set aside, when it appears that a large number of legal voters were unable to gain admission to the meeting and participate therein.

Decided December 15, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

The appellants, to the number of 23, allege that they are taxable inhabitants and legal voters in school district no. 11, of the town of East Bloomfield, county of Ontario; that the annual meeting was designated to be held at the schoolhouse on the 28th day of August last, at 7 o'clock p. m.; that at the time the schoolhouse was opened by the trustee, the approaches thereto were so crowded with persons that legal voters, including many of the appellants, were unable to gain access to the room in which the meeting was to be held; that a large number of persons who had gained access to the room proceeded with great haste to organize the meeting and select different district officers by acclamation; that the appellants had no opportunity of voting at that meeting; and that, if they had been able to secure admission to the schoolroom, they would have voted for other candidates than those declared elected by the person called to the chair.

The respondents allege that the meeting was not called until 20 minutes after 7 o'clock, and that the proceedings were regularly conducted and different officers elected, admitting that all but the librarian were elected by acclamation. The respondents deny that the appellants were prevented from entering the school building and participating in the meeting if they had so desired. They allege that the meeting was regularly conducted without undue haste, and that district officers were regularly elected.

The allegations and proofs of the respective parties are contradictory, and I do not reach a conclusion without some misgivings. But the fact is apparent that a large number of legal voters of the district did not get into the school building and participate in the election of officers, and there is a difference of opinion between the appellants and respondents as to whom the officers of the district should be.

Every legal voter of a school district should, if he desires to do so, have an opportunity to participate in district meetings and vote for persons of his choice to fill the several school offices. In order that an election, in the result of which all may acquiesce, may be had in this district, I have concluded to set aside the proceedings of the last annual meeting, and do hereby order and direct that a special meeting be held on the 28th day of December 1888, at the schoolhouse in said district, at 7.30 o'clock p. m.; that said meeting be called to order by

A. C. Aldridge Esq., school commissioner of the second district of Ontario county and that the election be conducted by ballot. At that meeting I hereby direct the officers of the district whose terms expired at the last annual meeting, to make their annual reports.

The trustee of said district, whose term of office would have expired on the 28th day of August 1888, had his successor been legally elected, is hereby ordered, within five days after notice to him of the filing of this decision, to call a special meeting of the legal voters in the manner prescribed by law, for the purpose of electing district officers and receiving the reports of district officers.

3740

In the matter of the appeals of John H. Albright v. district no. 3, Ontario, Wayne county, and Henry P. Brewer, trustee of said district.

Where it appears that although a district contracted for wood by the cord, but with the understanding that a cord should be 4 feet high, 8 feet long, and the length of the stick should be 2 feet, as required for the stove, and this dimension was shown to be the customary requirement of the district, and the price to be paid therefor sustains such an understanding, the contract will be upheld.

Decided December 14, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

Two appeals are taken by John H. Albright, a resident of school district no. 3, of the town of Ontario, Wayne county; one from the proceedings of a district meeting allowing a claim of $20 for fuel and authorizing a tax to be levied therefor, and one from the action of the trustee including such item of $20 in a tax levy.

The ground of the appeal is that the item is for eight cords of wood alleged to have been furnished, when, in fact, but one-half of the quantity was furnished. A further ground is, that in 1887, a tax of $10 was collected to pay for the wood.

As near as I am able to judge, there is no merit in this appeal. The contract to furnish the wood was let to the lowest bidder; to furnish wood 2 feet long, ready for the stove, and that it has been the custom for many years, in this and other districts, to consider wood cut as required for use a cord when the load is 4 feet high, 8 feet long and the length of the stick, required in this case, 2 feet. The contract to furnish the wood was let upon this understanding, and was so furnished, and the price, $2.50 per cord, would sustain such theory.

There is no allegation that the contractor has ever been paid for the wood. A claim therefor now exists against the district.

The district meeting has ratified the charge and ordered tax to pay it.

The action of the district meeting and of the trustees in levying a tax to pay for the wood is sustained, and the appeals are dismissed.

In the matter of the appeal of William Middlemist from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in district no. 10, town of Andes, Delaware county.

The hour for holding the annual and special school meetings must be strictly observed. No legal authority exists for holding such meeting before the hour designated by the school law, or by or in the notice of the meeting served, and no legal obligation rests upon the qualified voters who may have assembled at the proper hour to wait for others before organizing and commencing proceedings. When it is established by the weight of evidence presented that the annual school meeting was organized and much of its business transacted before the hour of 7.30 in the evening, the action and proceedings of said meeting will be vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

Decided November 25, 1895

Wagner & Fisher, attorneys for appellant
E. E. Conlon, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in school district no. 10, town of Andes, Delaware county. The appellant alleges, in substance, the following grounds of appeal:

That said meeting convened and much of the business thereat was transacted before the hour of 7.30 p. m.; that the trustee, who, it is claimed, was elected, if elected, before 7.30 p. m.; that no suitable ballot box was provided for said meeting and no inspectors of election were appointed to receive the votes cast for district officers, and to canvass such votes; that a majority of the legal voters of the district who attended at the time and place specified in the notice of said meeting, were deprived of a vote on account of said meeting being prematurely called to order, and the business rushed through before the time specified in the notice of said meeting.

The appellant, also, upon information and belief, alleges that persons were allowed to vote at such meeting who were not qualified voters at said meeting.

The pleadings herein consist of the appeal, answer, reply and rejoinder, to which are annexed respectively, affidavits in support of the allegations contained in such pleadings respectively.

The burden is upon the appellant to sustain his appeal by a preponderance of proof. A preponderance of proof does not necessarily mean the greater number of witnesses. In the consideration of the weight of the evidence produced, due regard should be given to the kind and quality of the evidence, the degree of credibility to which the testimony of the witness is entitled, the apparent probability or improbability of its truthfulness, and the interest of the witness in the matter at issue.

It appears from the proofs herein that at the time of said annual meeting in said district, and for some time prior thereto, dissensions existed in said district, causing factional quarrels and litigation, and that the qualified voters therein were divided, about equally, into two factions, one known as the "Middlemist," and the other as the "Titch" faction or party. It is evident that both of said parties were deeply interested in the action to be taken at said annual meeting, and each party intended to be present in full force for the purpose of controlling the administration of school affairs in said district for the present school year. All of the persons whose affidavits have been annexed to the pleadings herein, containing allegations material or relevant to the issues presented for decision in the appeal herein, were interested parties in this appeal, with the possible exception of those of Anthony Huntly, White Hammer, Wilbur Voorhees and William Scudder, each of whom alleges that he attended at the meeting only as a spectator and had no interest in the proceedings. It does, however, appear that each of the above-named affiants came to the meeting in company with some of the "Middlemist party," and it does not affirmatively appear that said affiants were wholly indifferent as to which party should control said meeting, or were impartial spectators of the action there taken, or, in other words, are disinterested witnesses in this proceeding.

I am of the opinion, from the proofs presented, that the appellant has failed to sustain the allegations made by him in his appeal that no suitable ballot box was provided and used in the election of district school officers, and that no inspectors of said election were elected or appointed. There is a conflict in the proofs as to what business was being transacted when the persons belonging to the "Middlemist party," or some of them, entered the schoolhouse. The witnesses for the respondent allege that a ballot was being had for a trustee of the district and the witnesses for the appellant allege that the result of a ballot for collector was being announced. The witnesses for the appellant state "that there was no ballot box," "that no ballot box was to be seen," "that no inspectors were canvassing the ballot," "neither were there any inspectors who received and canvassed the votes." The witnesses for the respondents state that a suitable ballot box was provided and used, and such ballot box was placed and kept on the teacher's platform in front of the room; that Lillie D. Titch and Annie T. Gavett were appointed inspectors of election and had charge of said ballot box, and received the votes of the persons present and voting, and when each ballot was closed, canvassed the votes, received and announced the result to the chairman of the meeting, who announced the result to the meeting; that the sworn copy of the record of said meeting shows that two inspectors of election were appointed and that the name of each person who voted for district clerk, trustee and collector was entered, as they voted respectively, by the clerk of the meeting. The Consolidated School Law requires that the trustee or trustees of each school district shall, at all elections of district officers, provide a suitable ballot box, and this Department has held that where the trustee has failed to provide a suitable ballot box, a hat or other receptacle for the ballots cast, in which the ballots may be safely kept apart from all other ballots and papers until canvassed by the inspectors of election, will be deemed a suitable ballot box under the school law.

I am also of the opinion that the appellant herein has failed in sustaining the allegation made in his appeal, upon information and belief, that persons were allowed to vote at such meeting who were not qualified voters at said meeting.

This Department has uniformly held that it is incumbent, in the case of an appeal from the proceedings of a school meeting on the ground that the votes of persons not qualified to vote were received, for the appellant, not only to allege the illegal voting or the disqualification of certain persons whose votes were received, but to show by evidence the lack of qualifications in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such voters could be qualified under any of the heads stated in the section of the school law prescribing the qualifications of voters at school district meetings. This the appellant herein has failed to do.

Section 11, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, prescribes the qualifications necessary to be possessed by a person to entitle him or her to vote at school district meetings. Every person, to be entitled to vote at school district meetings, must be of full age, a resident of the district and must have resided therein for a period of thirty days next preceding any meeting held at which he or she offers to vote, and a citizen of the United States. In addition to the foregoing qualifications he or she must own real property, or hire real property, or be in the possession of real property under a contract of purchase, which real property must be situate in the school district, and subject to taxation therein for school purposes; or must be the parent of a child or children of school age, some one or more of whom shall have attended the district school in said district for a period of at least eight weeks within one year preceding such school meeting, and in such case both the father and mother can vote; or must, not being the parent, be a person who shall have permanently residing with him or her, a child or children of school age some one or more of whom shall have attended the district school in said district for a period of at least eight weeks within one year preceding such school meeting, and in such case the words "him or her" limits the right to vote to one person only, i. e., the head of the household; or must own personal property assessed on the last preceding assessment roll of the town, exceeding $500 in value exclusive of such as is exempt from execution.

The appellant claims that certain persons who were present and voted at said meeting were not qualified voters, for the reason that their names do not appear upon the tax list of the school district, and that they have not paid school taxes. A person may be a qualified voter in a school district notwithstanding his or her name is not upon the tax list of the district, and he or she has not paid a school tax. If such person owns real property subject to taxation for school purposes in the district, or hires real property subject to taxation, although the trustee has omitted to place the real property upon the tax list, he is qualified to vote in the district. If A, a citizen of the United States, of full age, and a resident of a school district, owns real property situate in said district, which property is subject to taxation for school purposes in said district, and leases said property to B, a citizen of the United States, of full age, and a resident of the district, both A and B are qualified voters of the district, A as the owner, and B as the lessee of real property subject to taxation for school purposes in the district, although such real property has been omitted from the district tax list, and neither has paid any school tax thereon. The governing fact is the ownership or hiring of real property subject to taxation. Such ownership or hiring must be bona fide, not a mere colorable transaction to enable a person to claim a right to vote at a school meeting. The appellant alleges that five persons who voted at said school meeting were not, nor was either of them, a qualified voter at such meeting.

The courts of the State have held that an election will not be vitiated by illegal votes unless a different result would have been produced by excluding such votes. It appears that at the annual school meeting on August 6, 1895, there was but one candidate for each of the offices of district clerk, trustee and collector; that the whole number of votes cast for district clerk was 8, for trustee 9 and for collector 8, all being for Titch as clerk, Titch as trustee and Gavett for collector. Admitting, for the purpose of argument only, that said annual meeting was duly and legally held, and that five of the persons, who voted for said officers respectively, were not qualified voters, still Titch for clerk received 3 legal votes. Titch for trustee received 4 legal votes, and Gavett for collector received 3 legal votes, each respectively receiving all the legal votes cast, were each elected.

Under the school law it is the duty of any qualified voter at a school district meeting, when a person offers to vote thereat whom such qualified voter knows, or has good reason to believe, that the person so offering to vote is not qualified, to challenge such person. When a challenge is made it is the duty of the chairman of the meeting to require the person so challenged to make the declaration contained in the school law, and if the party makes the declaration his or her vote must be received; but if such person refuses to make the declaration his or her vote must be rejected. Any person so challenged who shall wilfully make a false declaration of his or her right to vote at such meeting shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. A party knowing or having reason to believe a person to be unqualified, and permitting him or her to vote without challenge will not be allowed, upon appeal, to object to the proceedings of the meeting because such unqualified person participated therein.

The main contention of the appellant herein is, that said annual school meeting in said district, convened, and much of the business transacted thereat was had and done, prior to the hour of 7.30 p. m.

By section 8, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that the annual meeting of each school district shall be held on the first Tuesday of August in each year, and unless the hour and place thereof shall have been fixed by a vote of a previous district meeting, the same shall be held in the schoolhouse at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. In the notice of the annual school meeting in district no. 10, Andes, as given by the clerk of the district, named the schoolhouse in said district as the place, and the hour of 7.30 in the evening of August 6, 1895, as the time for holding said meeting.

The hour for holding the annual and special school meetings must be strictly observed. No legal authority exists for holding such meetings before the hour designated by the school law or by, or in, the notice of the meeting served, and no legal obligation rests upon the qualified voters who may have assembled at such time to wait for others before organizing and commencing proceedings. The affidavits filed by the appellant and respondents relative to this main contention of the appellant are conflicting and contradictory. The appellant has filed the affidavit of himself and nine other persons, all of whom claim to be qualified voters in said school district, and who allege that they attended said meeting for the purpose of participating in the proceedings thereof, that they arrived at the schoolhouse where the meeting was to be held, on said August 6, 1895, before 7.30 p. m. The appellant in his affidavits alleges that he arrived at the schoolhouse with one George Shaver and others at 7.15 p. m. and found some nine persons therein, Harvey Titch, presiding, and that as near as he could ascertain, such persons there present were electing a collector of the district; that after he arrived there was no action taken to elect a trustee. One Edward B. Scudder alleges in his affidavit that he was the clerk of said district for the school year 1894-95; that he left his home on the evening of August 6, 1895, to attend the annual school meeting at a quarter before 7 and arrived at the schoolhouse at about 7.15 p. m., but alleges positively that it was before 7.30 p. m. when he arrived at said schoolhouse; that he found eight or nine persons in said schoolhouse and the chairman was then announcing the election of Jacob S. Gavett as collector of the district; that at about the time he entered the schoolhouse, and within five minutes thereof, some seven other voters of the district entered said schoolhouse, and soon after two other voters of the district arrived. In the affidavit of John Smith, Hiram Shaver, Agnes Middlemist, John Scudder, Ella Scudder, George Shaver and Calvin Smith, it is alleged that they are qualified voters of said district and each and all of them arrived at said schoolhouse on the evening of August 6, 1895, before 7.30 p. m.; that they found the meeting had been organized and the persons present were electing a collector of the district; that no election of a trustee was had after their arrival at the schoolhouse; that about the time said affiants entered the schoolhouse, the affiant George Shaver looked at his watch and said, "It is only a quarter past seven now, you had better hold on." Anthony Huntley and three others, in an affidavit, allege that they are not voters in said district, but attended said meeting as spectators only; that they went to the schoolhouse with other persons, and arrived there at about 7.15 and found nine persons present; that after they arrived the election of Jacob Gavett as collector was announced by Harvey Titch as chairman; that no election of a trustee was had by the meeting after the affiants entered the schoolhouse; that after the affiants and others arrived at the schoolhouse it was stated by one George Shaver that it was only a quarter past 7 o'clock.

In answer to the statements contained in the above-mentioned affidavits the respondent, Harvey D. Titch, has filed the affidavits of himself and seven others present at said schoolhouse on the evening of August 6, 1895, in which it is alleged that they are qualified voters of said district and were present and organized a school meeting at 7.40 p. m. by the election of said Titch as chairman, and the district clerk being absent, Lola R. Titch was elected clerk of the meeting; that the report of the trustee was read and accepted; that the report of the collector was read and accepted; that a ballot was taken for a trustee and Harvey D. Titch, having received 9 votes, being all the votes cast, was declared elected; that a ballot was taken for district clerk and Lola R. Titch, having received 8 votes, being all the votes cast, was declared elected; that a ballot was taken for collector and Jacob S. Gavett, having received 8 votes, being all the votes cast, was declared elected. Said Harvey D. Titch further alleges that he arrived at the schoolhouse at 7.20 p. m. and the meeting was organized at 7.40 p. m. by his watch; that Annie T. Gavett and Lola R. Titch, present at said meeting, each had a watch and each of said watches was compared with the watch of said Titch and that said watches were about three minutes faster than his; that when the appellant and others entered the schoolhouse it was 7.50 p. m. by his watch, and the ballot for a trustee was then being taken, and that when George Shaver said "You are rushing things, it is only half past seven now," said Titch replied, "You are mistaken; it is ten minutes to eight." It is also alleged by Clarence Shaver, in an affidavit made by him, that he went to the schoolhouse about 7 p. m. on August 6, 1895, and that all of the Titch party were not in the schoolhouse, some of them were tying their teams; that there were no seats in the schoolhouse, but the persons there were laying boards upon blocks for seats; that he remained in the schoolhouse but a few minutes and when he went out a part of the Middlemist party were on the highway near the schoolhouse coming to the schoolhouse from the direction of Calvin Smith's house; that he went down the road and met, about forty rods from the schoolhouse, three more of the Middlemist party going to the schoolhouse. John G. and William Scudder and Wilbur Voorhees allege, in an affidavit, that they went to the said schoolhouse near 7 p. m. and found said house locked; that they went to the house of Calvin Smith, about 40 rods from said schoolhouse, and waited for the Titch party to come and open the schoolhouse; that they saw the said Titch party going past the house of Smith to the schoolhouse, and the affiants started and walked to the schoolhouse, arriving there about five minutes after the Titch party.

Jacob S. Gavett, on the part of the respondent, alleges he saw Clarence Shaver at the schoolhouse when he (Gavett) and others were fixing seats in the schoolhouse and saw said Shaver leave the schoolhouse and start across the fields towards the house of Calvin Smith; that soon after said Shaver left, he saw a number of men and boys pass by the schoolhouse, down the highway, and he recognized John G. Scudder as one of them.

In my opinion Harvey D. Titch was in error in stating that he did not arrive at the schoolhouse until 7.20 p. m., and that the meeting was not organized until 7.40 p. m. It was, to state it mildly, an unusually rapid dispatch of business.

between 7.20 and 7.50 p. m. to arrive at the schoolhouse, light up, arrange seats, choose a chairman and clerk, read an act upon the report of the trustee and collector, appoint inspectors of election, and ballot for a trustee, a district clerk and collector.

From a careful examination of the papers presented herein, and a due consideration of the weight of the evidence presented, and its apparent probability, I am of the opinion that the appellant herein has sustained his contention, that said school meeting on August 6, 1895, was organized and much of its business transacted before the hour of 7.30 p. m., and for that reason the appeal herein should be sustained.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the action and proceedings had and taken at said school meeting, held in school district no. 10, town of Andes, Delaware county, on August 6, 1895, be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That Edward B. Scudder, the district clerk of said school district for the school year of 1894-95, be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed, without unnecessary delay, to call a special meeting of the inhabitants of school district no. 10, town of Andes, Delaware county, qualified to vote at school district meetings therein, for the purpose of transacting the business of the annual meeting of said district; that full six days' notice of the time and place of said meeting, and of the business to be transacted thereat, be given by him to each inhabitant of said district claiming to be a qualified voter in said district, as stated in section 2, article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

4839

In the matter of the appeal of Jay Jackson and Artemus S. Barton from proceedings of a special meeting held August 21, 1900, in union school district no. 1, Pine Plains, Dutchess county, in the increase of the number of members of the board of education.

Notice of special meetings in union school districts other than those whose limits correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, must be given by publishing such notice once in each week for the four weeks next preceding the time for holding such meeting in two newspapers if there shall be two, or in one newspaper if there shall be but one, published in the district; but if no newspaper shall be published therein said notice shall be posted in at least twenty of the most public places in said district twenty days before the time of such meeting. It is only at annual school meetings, held in a union school district whose limits do not correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, that the qualified voters therein may determine by a majority vote, of such voters present and voting thereat to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of such district.

Decided October 4, 1900

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings of a special meeting held August 21, 1900, in union school district 1, Pine Plains, Dutchess county, in increasing the number of members of the board of education from three to nine, and electing six members of such board. Annexed to such appeal is a printed copy of the call for such special meeting, as follows:

NOTICE

A special meeting of the inhabitants of school district 1, Pine Plains is hereby appointed, to be held at the union free school building in said district on the 21st of August 1900, at 7.30 p. m., to elect a trustee and treasurer for the coming school year.

J. J. JACKSON
A. S. BARTON
Board of Education

JOHN MYERS, Clerk
Dated August 10, 1900

Fred D. Slingerland and six others, claiming to be seven of the members of the board of education of such district, have answered the appeal herein, and allege that the notice of said special meeting, as posted in the district, contained the following: "and for the transaction of such other business as might come before the meeting."

It appears that at the alleged annual meeting held in such district August 7, 1900, William Jordan, then the supervisor of the town of Pine Plains, was voted for the office of trustee of the district and was declared elected as such trustee, and the call for a special meeting to be held August 21, 1900, was merely to elect a trustee in the place of said Jordan, as under the provisions contained in section 5 of article 1, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, neither a school commissioner nor a supervisor is eligible to be a member of any board of education.

It further appears that Fred A. Slingerland is alleged to have been elected a trustee of such district in place of said Jordan; that a motion was adopted that the number of members of the board of education be increased from three to six, and thereupon Chester Lasher, Jacob Bowman and William Sadler, upon motion, were declared elected for the term of two years, and upon motion William Bostwick, Frank Eno and Charles S. Wilber were declared elected for the term of three years.

In section 13, article 3, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law it is enacted that the board of education of union school districts other than those whose limits correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, shall have power to call special meetings of the inhabitants of their respective districts whenever they shall deem it necessary and proper, in the manner prescribed in section 10 of said title. Section 10, article 2, title 8 of said law enacts that such notices of meetings shall be published once in each week for the four weeks next preceding such meeting in two newspapers if there shall be two, or in one newspaper if there shall be but one, published in such district; but if no newspaper shall then be published therein, the said notice shall be posted in at least twenty of the most public places in said district twenty days before the time of such meeting.

It appears in proof of the appeal of Walter T. Wiltzie from the proceedings of the alleged annual meeting held in such district August 7, 1900, that two newspapers are published in said district. It is not alleged that the notice of the special meeting called for August 21, 1900, was published at all in either of the two newspapers. As the notice is dated August 10, 1900, and the meeting called for August 21, 1900, it is clear that the notice could not have been posted in at least twenty of the most public places in said district twenty days before the time of the meeting.

Due and legal notice of such special meeting called for August 21, 1900, not having been given, the meeting claimed to have been held August 21, 1900, was without authority of law, and hence the proceedings taken thereat have no legal force or effect whatever.

In section 31 of article 5, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that at any annual meeting held in any union school district whose limits do not correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, the qualified voters may determine by a majority vote of such voters present and voting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of such district.

Taking and recording the ayes and noes of the voters present and voting upon the question of increasing or diminishing the number of members of a board of education, means that the clerk of the meeting shall record the name of each person whose vote is received and set opposite to each name whether such person votes aye or no.

Admitting, for the purpose of argument only, that said alleged meeting, held August 21, 1900, was duly and legally called and held, the proceedings taken thereat, relative to the election of said Slingerland as trustee, and in increasing the number of trustees of the district from three to six, and the election of six trustees, were not in conformity with the requirements of the school law, and the uniform rulings of this Department, Slingerland was not elected a trustee in the manner required by the school law. A proposition to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of such district can only be presented and acted upon at an annual meeting of the district, that is, on the first Tuesday of August in each year. The vote upon the proposition to increase the number of members of such board was not ascertained as required by the school law, and the alleged election of the six persons was not in accordance with the provisions of the school law.

I decide that the special meeting held August 21, 1900, in union school district 1, Pine Plains, Dutchess county, was not a legally called special school meeting under the provisions of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the acts amendatory thereof.

That a proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district can not be legally acted upon until the annual meeting to be held therein for the school year of 1901.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that all proceedings taken at the meeting held in such union school district 1, Pine Plains, Dutchess county, August 21, 1900, be, and the same are, hereby vacated and set aside.

5094

In the matter of the appeal of Henry E. Town and others from proceedings of annual meeting held August 4, 1903, in school district no. 6, Nunda, Livingston county.

Section 8 article 1 title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 enacts that the annual meeting of each school district shall be held on the first Tuesday of August in each year, and, unless the hour and place thereof shall have been fixed by a vote of a previous district meeting, the same shall be held in the schoolhouse at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. Where there is no proof that at a previous district meeting any other time for holding the annual meeting of the district than at 7.30 in the evening was fixed, the hour designated for holding such annual meeting in common school districts must be strictly observed and no authority exists for holding such meeting before the hour designated.

Decided October 9, 1903

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the proceedings of an annual meeting claimed to have been held August 4, 1903, in school district 6, Nunda, Livingston county.

The principal grounds alleged by the appellants for bringing their appeal is that the entire alleged meeting was held and such meeting adjourned prior to 7.30 o'clock in the evening on August 4, 1903.

No answer has been made to such appeal and the material allegations contained in the appeal are deemed admitted.

It appears that notice was given calling the annual meeting in said school district to be held August 4, 1903, at 7.30 p. m. On August 4, 1903, and prior to 7.30 o'clock p. m. a few of the inhabitants of said district, including Mr and Mrs E. O. Brainard, Mr and Mrs F. A. Seager, O. B. Brainard and Thomas Turbush, assembled at the schoolhouse in district 6, Nunda and organized by the choice of E. O. Brainard as chairman and O. B. Brainard as clerk. Mrs E. O. Brainard and Mrs F. A. Seager were appointed inspectors; the trustee's report was approved; voted that F. A. Seager be trustee of 1903-4; Tom Turbush was elected collector and W. E. Petteys clerk, and it was voted that the expenses for the year 1903-4 be left to the judgment of the trustee, and such meeting adjourned. The entire proceedings of such alleged meeting took place and the meeting adjourned prior to 7.30 p. m., August 4, 1903. At 7.30 p. m. of said August 4, 1903, the appellant herein, and other qualified voters, arrived at the schoolhouse and were informed that such annual school meeting had been held.

In section 8, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that the annual meeting of each school district shall be held on the first Tuesday of August in each year, and, unless the hour and place thereof shall have been fixed by a vote of a previous district meeting, the same shall be held in the schoolhouse at 7.30 p. m.

There is no proof that at a previous district meeting any other time for holding the annual meeting of the district than at 7.30 p. m. was fixed.

This Department has uniformly held that the hour fixed for holding the annual meeting in the common school districts of this state must be strictly observed; that no authority exists for holding such meeting before the designated hour.

I decide, That no legal annual school meeting was held in school district 6, Nunda, Livingston county August 4, 1903.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at the meeting held in the schoolhouse in school district 6, Nunda, Livingston county, on the evening of August 4, 1903, be and the same are hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That Henry E. Town, an inhabitant of school district 6, Nunda, Livingston county and a qualified voter therein, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of such district qualified to vote at school meetings therein, in the manner prescribed in sections 2 and 6 of article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 for calling special meetings in such district for the purpose of transacting the business of the annual school meeting of such district.

4922

In the matter of the appeal of George G. French and Jedediah Hoose from proceedings of annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in union school district no. 7, Mexico, Oswego county, directing the board of education not to defend a certain action brought against it in the Supreme Court.

The qualified voters present and voting at an annual meeting in a union school district have the authority to adopt a resolution directing the board of education of the district not to defend an action brought in the courts against the district.

Decided December 31, 1900

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in union school district 7, Mexico, Oswego county, in the adoption of the following preamble and resolution, to wit:

Whereas, There is an action now pending in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, brought by Melzar C. Richards against the board of education of union school district 7, Mexico, to recover the amount of three promissory notes for $300 each and interest thereon since the 4th day of September 1895, made, executed and delivered by the said board of education on the 4th day of September 1895;

And whereas, It is the sense of this meeting that said notes, or the sum represented by them, is a just and valid claim against this school district, it is

Resolved, That the board of education of union school district 7, Mexico, N. Y., be, and hereby is, instructed and directed not to defend said action.

The appellants herein allege, as the principal ground for bringing the appeal herein, that said annual meeting had no authority, right or jurisdiction to instruct or direct the board of education of said district not to defend the action mentioned in said preamble.

Frederick A. Thomas, a resident, voter and taxpayer, has answered the appeal herein, and to such answer the appellants have made a rejoinder.

The sole question presented for my decision by the pleadings and proofs filed herein is, Did the qualified voters present at said annual meeting, held in said district August 7, 1900, have authority to adopt the preamble and resolution appealed from?

It is conceded that union school district 7, Mexico, Oswego county, was established in August 1895, under and pursuant to the provisions of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, and that the limits of such school district do not correspond to those of any incorporated village or city.

Section 13, article 3, title 8 of said Consolidated School Law enacts that in union school districts, other than those whose limits correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, the annual school meeting shall be held on the first Tuesday of August; that the boards of education shall have power to call special meetings of the inhabitants of their respective districts whenever they shall deem it necessary and proper, in the manner prescribed in section 10 of said title 8, and shall in like manner give notice of the time and place of holding the annual school meeting.

Section 10, article 2, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 enacts that notices by boards of education of school meetings shall be published once in each week for four weeks next preceding such district meeting, in two newspapers if there shall be two, or in one newspaper if there shall be but one, published in such district.

The appellants admit that on August 7, 1900, the annual meeting of said union school district 7, Mexico, was held pursuant to a printed notice thereof, duly published in the Mexico Independent, the only newspaper published in said school district.

Section 10, article 2, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law enacts that a majority of the voters of any union school district, other than those whose limits correspond to those of an incorporated village or city, present at an annual or special meeting of the district, duly convened, may authorize such acts and vote such taxes as they shall deem expedient, for making additions . . . or for such other purposes relating to the support and welfare of the school as they may, by resolution, approve.

This Department has uniformly held that the inhabitants of every school district, qualified to vote at school meetings held therein, assembled at the time and place fixed by the school law, for holding the annual school meeting, are authorized and empowered to act upon all questions presented for action thereat, relating to school matters and the support and welfare of the school therein, except such matters as are expressly forbidden to be acted upon by said school law.

This Department has also uniformly held that the school law having fixed the time for the annual meeting in the school districts the regularity of such meeting does not depend upon any call for, or notice of, such meeting by trustees or clerks.

There is no provision of the Consolidated School Law that requires any statement in the notice given of the annual meeting to be held in a union school district of the business to be transacted thereat, except that contained in subdivision 3 of section 13, article 3, title 8 as amended by section 1, chapter 195 of the Laws of 1897, that is, relating to the tax for the purchase of free textbooks to be used in the schools of the district.

It would seem, therefore, that there is no provision of the school law requiring the giving in the notice of the annual meeting to be held in a union school district, the presentation thereat of a resolution directing and instructing the board of education of the district not to defend an action brought in the courts against such board, that such resolution may be properly presented at such meeting, and the meeting would have the power and authority to adopt or reject such resolution.

A resolution not to defend an action brought against a union school district or its board of education is clearly a matter relating to and affecting the support and welfare of the school therein. Whatever would relate to or affect the finances of the school, its integrity and honesty, is a matter relating to and affects its support and welfare. If the annual meeting has not the power and authority to adopt a resolution directing the board of education not to defend an action brought against it then the anomalous condition is presented of an action being brought against it upon a claim which the majority of the qualified voters therein believe to be valid, and do not desire to defend, and the voters therein would be helpless if the board, for some reason of its own, insisted on defending.

The board of education of union school district 7, Mexico, has not appeared in any way in the appeal herein, or evinced any desire to disobey the resolution adopted at the annual meeting therein:

I decide that the annual meeting, held August 7, 1900, in union school district 7, Mexico, Oswego county, had the power and authority to adopt the preamble and resolution appealed from by the appellants herein.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4924

In the matter of the appeal of Thomas B. Chilton v. Fred C. Loucks as trustee of school district no. 18, Russell, St Lawrence county.

Under the provisions of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 a school district meeting, duly assembled, has the power to alter, repeal or modify its proceedings from time to time as occasion may require. A school district meeting does not possess the power to direct how the public money apportioned for teachers' wages shall be expended. When a school district, at a meeting duly called and held, has empowered the trustee to enter into a contract with the school authorities of some other district or districts by which all the children of school age in the district may be taught in the schools of the other district, for not less than 160 days in a school year, and the sum contracted to be paid is less than the district quota of $100, received from the state, the trustee may expend any surplus in the conveyance of children, under rules and regulations to be made by him, to and from the school in the district with which such contract is made.

Decided December 31, 1900

D. R. P. Parker, attorney for appellant

G. T. Chaney, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the refusal of Fred C. Loucks, as trustee of school district 18, Russell, St Lawrence county, to engage conveyance for the transportation of the children of school district 18, Russell, St Lawrence county, to the school in school district 1, Hermon, St Lawrence county, in conformity with a resolution to that effect, adopted at the annual meeting held in said district 18, Russell, August 7, 1900.

Trustee Loucks has answered said appeal and to such answer the appellant has replied, and to such reply the respondent has made a rejoinder.

A verified copy of the proceedings of the annual meeting in said district 18, Russell, and of a special meeting held therein October 19, 1900, has been filed in the appeal herein.

The following facts are established by the pleadings and proofs filed herein:

The appellant is a resident and qualified voter in school district 18, Russell, St Lawrence county, and has residing with him a son of the age of 9 years, and a grandson of the age of 5 years and upwards; that the residence of appellant is about two and one-half miles from the schoolhouse in district 1, village of Hermon, St Lawrence county; that in former years the appellant sent two of his children to the school in district 1, Hermon, and paid tuition although a school was maintained in district 18, Russell; that the appellant owns a horse and his son Henry, who resides with him, owns a horse, and the two are engaged in the business of teaming for a livelihood; that at the annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district 18, Russell, at which the appellant was chairman, a resolution was adopted that Trustee Loucks be empowered to enter into a written contract with the trustees of school district 1 of Hermon village, whereby all the children of school age in the district shall be taught in the public school of district 1 in Hermon village for the term of not less than 160 days, beginning with the school year of August 1, 1900. It was also resolved that the trustee of the district be directed to engage conveyance for the transportation of the children of this district to the school of Hermon village for the year. September 1, 1900, a contract between Trustee Loucks of district 18, Russell, and the president and secretary of the board of education of the union school of Hermon, was made whereby all the children of school age in said district 18 were to be taught for not less than 160 days during the school year of 1900-1901 in said union school district in Hermon, at the sum of two-thirds the amount of tuition established in said union school, and a copy of said contract was filed in, and duly approved by, the Department November 13, 1900; that at the date of said contract there were six children of school age, including the son and grandson of the appellant, residents of district 18, to be taught in the union school in Hermon, the tuition of whom would cost about $50, and the sum of $60 of the public money would be available for the purpose of providing for the transportation of such children to and from said school district in the village of Hermon; that Trustee Loucks contracted with the parents and guardians of each of such children, except the appellant, to carry such children to and from such school at times when it was not fitting for them to walk, and in consideration thereof the balance of the public money apportioned to the district after paying for the tuition of such children should be divided between the respective parents or guardians of such children according to their attendance at school; that the appellant demanded of Trustee Loucks that his son and grandson be conveyed from the residence of the appellant, each school day, to the school in Hermon village, and from said school to his residence; that said Trustee, being unable to make any arrangement with the appellant, called a special meeting to be held in said district 18 October 19, 1900, for the purpose of considering the matter of conveying the children of the district to and from the school in Hermon village; that such special meeting was held at which all the parents of children of school age of the district were present, including the appellant, and various propositions were made the appellant relative to the conveyance of his son and grandson all of which he rejected, and thereupon the following resolution was adopted, to wit: "Resolved, that the trustee be instructed to use the public money apportioned to the district, first, in paying the tuition of the children of school age attending the Hermon school for the present year; second, to divide the balance between the parents or guardians of such children according to their attendance in said school for getting them to school;" that at the time the appeal herein was brought there were six children of school age, including the grandson of appellant in said district 18, all of whom were attending the school in Hermon village, and had attended thereat since the contract of September 1, 1900, was made; that since the making of the contract one James Chilton, having a child of school age, has become a resident of district 18, and said child attends the school in Hermon village.

Section 14, article 4, title 15 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, as amended by section 1 of chapter 294 of the Laws of 1897, provides, that when the qualified voters of a school district duly empower the trustees of the district, they shall enter into a written contract with the trustees or board of education of some other district or districts, that all the children of school age in such district may be taught in the school of such other district for not less than 160 days in the school year.

This Department has held that when any such contract shall be duly made and the sum paid for teaching such children shall not amount to the sum of the district quota of $100, the trustee may use the surplus in transporting the children to the school in the district in which the children are taught.

Under subdivision 19 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law, which subdivision was added to section 14 by section 5, chapter 264, Laws of 1896, it is provided that when a district has contracted with another district to teach the children of the district, the qualified voters of such district are authorized that is, permitted, not directed, to provide by tax or otherwise for the conveyance of such children, etc.

A school district meeting does not possess any power to direct how the public money apportioned for teachers' wages, shall be expended.

The resolution was adopted at the annual meeting in district 18, directing the trustee to engage conveyances for the transportation of the children of the district to the school in Hermon village, did not provide by tax or otherwise for such conveyance, and was adopted prior to any contract being made with the school in Hermon village and, hence, is but an expression of opinion as to what action the trustee should take in the event of a contract being made.

The contention of the appellant that by the adoption of such resolution it was mandatory upon Trustee Loucks to engage such conveyance at the expense of the district, and that such resolution could not be altered, repealed or modified at a subsequent district meeting, is not well taken.

Subdivision 13 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law provides that a school meeting duly assembled has the power to alter, repeal and modify their proceedings from time to time as occasion may require.

The resolution adopted at the special meeting held in district 18, October 19, 1900, was an alteration and modification of the second resolution adopted at the annual meeting of such district and an expression of opinion of the persons present as to the action which should be taken by Trustee Loucks in providing for the conveyance of the children attending the school in Hermon village, under the said contract of September 1, 1900.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4445

In the matter of the appeal of Thomas Penney v. board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of North Greenbush, Rensselaer county.

- It is the duty of trustees of school districts, when requested by a respectable number of the inhabitants of their respective districts, to call a special meeting for the transaction of any proper and legal business which such petitioners might desire to bring before it.

Decided April 18, 1896

John S. Wolfe, attorney for appellant

Charles J. Buchanan, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the refusal of the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of North Greenbush, Rensselaer county, upon the applications of inhabitants of said school district qualified to vote at school meetings therein, to call a special school meeting or meetings therein for the purpose of considering and acting upon the proposition to change the schoolhouse site, and to designate a new schoolhouse site for said district upon which to construct a new schoolhouse of the district.

The appellant alleges in his appeal that during the month of September 1895, a committee of thirteen duly appointed by the legal voters of said school district, presented to the respondents herein a request that said respondents call a special meeting of the district for the purpose of considering a change of schoolhouse site, and the designation of a new site, and the question of whether the new schoolhouse should be constructed on the old site or not; that on or about January 15, 1895, a petition was presented to the board of education, signed by 210 of the legal voters of said school district, of which the following is a copy: "To the Honorable Board of School Trustees of Union Free School District no. 6, of the town of North Greenbush: Gentlemen:—We, the undersigned, would most respectfully request you to call a district meeting, at which the subject of a schoolhouse site may be considered, or that you call an election and submit the direct question, Shall the old site be used?" that said application of the committee of thirteen and said petition of 210 legal voters were, and each of them, refused by the respondents.

The respondents in their answer to the appeal herein deny that said appeal states facts sufficient to constitute an appeal against any action by the respondents, and that the same is not sufficient and does not in any wise constitute an appeal from any action by the respondents as stated therein. Said respondents admit that said application of said committee of thirteen, and the petition of the 210 legal voters were, and each of them was, received, and that they refused to call said meetings applied and petitioned for. The respondents deny that they were obliged legally or otherwise to submit any of the resolutions referred to in the appeal herein to the voters of said school district.

It appears that at a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district, held on June 17, 1895, among other proceedings taken thereat, a resolution was adopted by a vote of 155 in the affirmative and 129 in the negative, that the board of trustees of the said district raise by tax, to be levied by instalments, the sum of $25,000, for the purpose of building a new schoolhouse upon the site then owned by the district, provided no new site is purchased, and that bonds be issued and sold, as in said resolution specified. It does not appear that said resolution has ever been rescinded, reconsidered or amended, or that any appeal has been taken to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction from said action of said meeting.

Under the provisions of title 14 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that any person conceiving himself aggrieved in consequence of any decision made by any school meeting, by any other official act or decision concerning any other matter under said act, or any other act pertaining to common schools, may appeal to the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

This Department for forty years has entertained and decided appeals from the acts or decisions of trustees of school districts in refusing, when requested by a respectable number of the inhabitants of their district, to call a special meeting for the transaction of any legal and proper business which such petitioners might desire to bring before it.

It is clear from the action of the said special meeting, held in said district on June 17, 1895, authorizing a tax of $25,000 for a new schoolhouse upon the site then owned by the district, provided no new site is purchased, that the changing of the site and the designation of a new site, was being considered and might be made before the construction of the new schoolhouse was commenced. In fact, it appears that a proposition to designate the Wiggins property as a new schoolhouse site was acted upon at a special meeting of the district held on August 26, 1895.

The power to designate schoolhouse sites is given by the school law to district meetings and such meetings can not delegate that power to trustees.

I am clearly of opinion that the qualified voters of union free school district no. 6, North Greenbush, have the right and should have an opportunity to fully discuss and consider the question of a change of the schoolhouse site therein and to designate a new schoolhouse site upon which to construct their new schoolhouse, and it was the duty of the respondents herein to have granted the petition presented to them on January 15, 1896, and to have called a special district meeting to consider and act upon the matters stated in said petition.

I decide that the appeal herein is sufficient under the school law relating to appeals and the rules of practice of this Department relative to appeals, and that I have jurisdiction to entertain, hear and decide the same; that it was a violation of duty on the part of the respondents herein in refusing to call a special district meeting for the purposes asked for in the petition of the legal voters of the district presented to them on January 15, 1896.

On January 29, 1896, I made an order herein enjoining and restraining the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of Greenbush, Rensselaer county, from advertising for bids to construct a new school building upon the present schoolhouse site of said district; and from opening said bids should such advertisement have been made; and from making or letting any contract for the building of said new schoolhouse upon the present schoolhouse site of said district; and from doing any act, matter or thing in relation to the construction of said new school building until the hearing and decision by me of the appeal herein, or until any further order shall be made by me in the premises.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 6, town of North Greenbush, Rensselaer county be, and it is hereby, directed, without unnecessary delay, to call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said union free school district qualified to vote at school meetings therein, pursuant to the provisions of section 10, article 2, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, and the acts amendatory thereof, for the purpose of considering the proposition whether the new schoolhouse for said district shall be constructed upon the present schoolhouse site; and if such proposition shall be decided in the negative, then to consider the proposition of changing the present schoolhouse site, and the designation of a new schoolhouse site.

It is further ordered, That the order made by me herein on January 29, 1896, enjoining and restraining said board of education from advertising for and opening bids for the construction of the new schoolhouse, and from letting any contract for the building of such new schoolhouse, and from doing any act, matter or thing in relation to the construction of said new schoolhouse be, and the same hereby is, continued in full force and effect until a further order shall be made by me in the premises.

4465

In the matter of the appeal of John C. Runkle and Howard L. Waldo, from proceedings of annual school meeting held August 4, 1896, in union free school district no. 3, town of Castleton, Richmond county.

In union free school districts other than those whose limits correspond with those of an incorporated village or city, at the annual school meeting thereof, the vote to make appropriation for school purposes and to levy taxes therefor, must be taken by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters attending and voting at such meeting. Where at any such meeting the clerk of the meeting is instructed to cast a ballot for or against any such appropriation, by a viva voce vote, and thereupon the items were read and the clerk cast one ballot for each, such proceedings were not in accordance with the provisions of the school law; that a vote to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of any such union free school district can only be taken at an annual meeting of the district, and the proposition must be determined by a majority vote of the qualified voters of the district present and voting, and such vote must be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes. Where the vote upon a motion, that the members of the board of education be increased, was taken viva voce or by acclamation, such proceedings were not in accordance with the provisions of the school law. The trustees of such union free school districts must be elected by ballot, and a motion made, upon a vote taken viva voce or by acclamation, that the secretary of the meeting be instructed to cast a vote for each of the persons nominated for the office of trustees, is not a compliance with the provisions of the school law.

Decided September 14, 1896

J. L. Davenport, attorney for appellants

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellants in the above-entitled matter appeal from the following proceedings had and taken at the annual school meeting held on August 4, 1896, in union free school district no. 3, town of Castleton, Richmond county:

1 From the action and proceedings of said meeting, purporting to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district from five to nine.

2 From the action and proceedings of said meeting in the alleged election of six members of said board of education.

3 From the action and proceedings of said meeting in the alleged authorization of the levy of a tax or taxes for the items named in the budget presented by the board of education as necessary to defray the expenses incident to conducting the school in said district, etc.

4 From the action and proceedings of said meeting in the alleged election of a clerk of said district.

Annexed to the appeal is a copy of the minutes of the said annual school meeting, and annexed to said copy of minutes is the affidavit of Joseph Quinlan, clerk of said district, in which Quinlan alleges that the said copy of minutes is a true copy of the minutes of said meeting kept by Thomas J. Fetherstone, as secretary of said meeting, and as copied by said Quinlan into the minute book of the district.

An answer to the appeal has been made by George Sheridan, jr, who claims to have been elected at said annual meeting as one of the trustees and one of the members of the board of education for said district for the term of two years. Annexed to the answer are the affidavits of George Bowman, the chairman, Thomas J. Fetherstone, secretary of said annual meeting, and the joint affidavit of Andrew Fetherstone, and Michael Mahoney, who claim to have acted as inspectors of election at said annual meeting.

From the proofs presented in said appeal and answer, the following facts are established:

That on August 4, 1896, the board of trustees or education of said union free school district consisted of five members, the term of office of two of such members expiring on said August 4, 1896; that at the annual school meeting in said district held on August 4, 1896, George Bowman was elected chairman and Thomas J. Fetherstone secretary; that the financial report of the board of education was read and on motion was received as read; that the statement of money required for the ensuing school year for school purposes, exclusive of public moneys, was read, and motion made and seconded that the clerk be directed to cast one ballot in favor of each item as read, which motion was lost, and a motion duly seconded that the said items be voted on separately as read, was adopted; that a ballot was commenced to be taken on voting a tax to raise the sum of $13,000 for teachers' salaries and 66 votes received, when a motion that the motion to vote on appropriations separately be reconsidered and the clerk be instructed to cast one ballot for or against each item of the budget as read was made, seconded and adopted; that the items of said budget were read and the clerk cast one ballot for each item; that a motion was made and seconded that the board of education be increased to seven members, to which an amendment was offered that said board of education be increased to nine members, and that the vote upon the amendment was taken by dividing the house and the amendment declared by the chairman to have been adopted, and thereupon the motion as amended was put to a viva voce vote or to a vote by acclamation, and declared by the chairman to have been carried; that thereupon a protest was made by one E. J. Schriver that the action of the meeting in the increase of the number of members of the board of education was illegal; that the following persons were nominated for members of the board of education, namely, George Sheridan, jr and Michael Smith, for two years; Dr J. J. Van Rensselaer and Charles Schneider, for one year; and James McNally and Timothy P. Hurley, for three years; and thereupon the chairman declared the nominations closed, and motion was adopted instructing the clerk to cast one ballot for each of the said persons so nominated; the clerk cast one ballot for each of said persons so nominated and the chairman declared them elected as members of said board of education; that the following persons were nominated for district clerk, namely, Joseph Quinlan, William J. Edwards, James T. Ellets and D. J. Donovan; that a ballot was taken for district clerk, which resulted as follows: whole number of votes 273, of which Joseph Quinlan received 137, William J. Edwards 54, James T. Ellets 46, D. J. Donovan 30, and 6 scattering, and the chairman declared said Quinlan elected district clerk.

There is no contention between the appellants and respondents as to the action and proceedings of said meeting upon authorizing the levy of a tax for the items contained in the statement of the board of education for school purposes, or upon the proposition to increase the members of said board and the election of the members thereof, or in the election of the district clerk.

The papers in the appeal herein call for my decision upon the following matters:

1 Did said annual school meeting legally authorize the board of education to levy a tax for the items reported necessary to be raised by tax for school purposes, or any of said items?

2 Did said annual school meeting legally adopt a proposition or resolution increasing the number of members of the board of education thereof from five members to nine members?

3 Did said annual school meeting legally elect said six persons, or any of them, as members of said board of education?

4 Did said annual school meeting legally elect Joseph Quinlan as district clerk?

In section 18, article 4, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that it shall be the duty of the board of education, at the annual meeting of the district, besides any other report or statement required by law, to present a detailed statement in writing of the amount of money which shall be required for the ensuing year for school purposes, exclusive of public moneys, specifying the several purposes for which it will be required, and the amount for each.

By section 19, article 4, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that after the presentation of such statement the question shall be taken upon voting the necessary taxes to meet the estimated expenditures, and when demanded by any voter present, the question shall be taken upon each item separately, and the inhabitants may increase the amount of any estimated expenditure, or reduce the same, except for teachers' wages and the ordinary contingent expenses of the school or schools.

In section 10, article 2, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that in union free school districts other than those whose limits correspond with an incorporated city or village, on all propositions arising at the meetings thereof involving the expenditure of money, or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes in one sum, or by instalments, the vote thereon shall be taken by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such meetings.

The board of education presented to said annual meeting the statement required by section 18, article 4, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law, and thereupon it was the duty of the qualified voters attending such meeting to vote the necessary taxes to meet such expenditures, by ballot, or by the clerk or secretary of the meeting taking and recording the name of each qualified voter present and voting and setting opposite the name of each such person voting whether he or she voted aye or no. Such vote could have been taken upon the aggregate sum of the items in the statement, or, when demanded by any voter present, the vote could be taken upon each item separately. The method prescribed by the school law, as above quoted, was not pursued at said annual meeting. A ballot was taken upon the item of $13,000 for teachers' salaries, and after 66 votes had been received a vote theretofore taken to vote upon each item separately was rescinded and a motion instructing the clerk to cast a ballot for or against each item as read, was adopted by a viva voce vote, or a vote taken by acclamation, and thereupon the items were read over and the clerk cast one ballot for each item. It is clear that said proceedings were not in accordance with the provisions of the school law. Under the school law every qualified voter present at said meeting had the right to cast his individual ballot upon the question of authorizing a tax for the items contained in the statement of the board of education, or to have his or her name recorded and the fact set opposite to said name whether he or she voted aye or no. The chairman or any other officer of the meeting had not, nor had the voters present by a majority vote or otherwise, the lawful authority to deprive any qualified voter of such right. The ballots cast by the clerk for such items were not a compliance with the provisions of the school law.

I decide that the action and proceedings of said annual meeting relative to authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes for the items contained in said statement of the board of education required for school purposes, were illegal and void. That upon an appeal to me from any tax levied by the board of education under and pursuant to such proceedings, said tax would be set aside as illegal and void and not authorized under the provisions of the school law.

In section 13, article 5, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that at any annual meeting held in any union free school district whose limits do not correspond to those of an incorporated village or city, the qualified voters may determine by a majority vote of such voters present and voting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of such district. If such board shall consist of less than nine members, and such meeting shall determine to increase the number, such meeting shall elect such additional number so determined upon, the first to hold office one year, the second two years, and the third three years.

The proceedings to increase or diminish the number of members of the board of education of union free school districts whose limits do not correspond to those of any incorporated village or city, are provided by statute and the statute must be strictly complied with. Such proceedings must be taken at an annual meeting, and the proposition must be determined by a majority vote of the qualified voters of the district present and voting, and such vote must be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, that is, the clerk of the meeting must record the name of each qualified voter who votes upon the proposition, and must set opposite to the name of such voter whether he or she votes aye or no upon such proposition.

It is not claimed, and the facts established do not show, that, in the proceedings had and taken at said annual meeting, the vote upon the proposition to increase the number of the members of the board of education of the district was ascertained in the manner provided by the school law as above quoted. A motion was made and seconded that the number of members of the board of education be increased to seven; that thereupon motion was made and seconded that such motion be amended by increasing said number to nine; that the vote upon such amendment was taken by dividing the house and the amendment declared adopted; that the vote upon the motion thus amended was not adopted by a majority of the voters present and voting thereon, ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, but was declared adopted by a viva voce vote, or by acclamation. The said proceedings were not in accordance with the provisions of the school law. Under the provisions of the school law every qualified voter of the district present at such annual meeting had the right to vote upon said proposition, and it was the duty of the officers of said meeting to ascertain such vote by taking and recording the name of each qualified voter who voted thereon, and setting opposite to each name so recorded whether such person voted aye or no.

I decide that the action and proceedings of said annual meeting relative to, and upon, the proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district were illegal and void, and that no increase of the number of members of said board of education was legally made; but the number of members of said board remains as originally established, namely, to consist of five members.

Under the school law, members of the board of education of union free school districts must be elected by ballot, and receive a majority of the votes cast for each of said members, respectively. At the annual meeting in said district no. 3, Castleton, it is claimed by the respondents herein that six members of the board of education were elected and by ballot, namely, two for one year, two for two years, and two for three years; that the persons so claimed to have been elected were put in nomination at said meeting and the nominations being closed, and no other persons being nominated, a motion was made and adopted by a vote of the meeting, taken viva voce, or by acclamation, that the secretary of the meeting be instructed to cast a vote for each of the persons so nominated; that thereupon the secretary did cast such ballot for said persons, and that said persons were declared elected by the chairman of the meeting. The records of this Department show that at the meetings held at which a union free school was established the number of persons fixed upon for members of the board of education was five, and that John J. Santry was elected a member for the term of one year from the first Tuesday of August 1895, Thomas H. Harper and Charles D. Freeman for two years from the first Tuesday of August 1895, and John Seaton and John J. Travers for three years from the first Tuesday of August 1895. If since the election of the aforesaid persons as members of said board of education and prior to said annual meeting of the district, none of them has removed, died or resigned, said annual meeting had no legal authority to elect but one member of said board for a term of three years, in place of Santry, whose term expired on the first Tuesday of August 1896. If any member or members of said board have vacated his or their office, and such vacancy or vacancies have been supplied by the board, the annual meeting had authority to elect a person or persons for the balance of the unexpired term or terms of those removing, resigning or dying. It does not appear from the papers filed in this appeal whether or not said annual meeting had authority to elect more than one member of said board, namely, in the place of Santry. As stated above, I have decided that the proposition to increase the number of members of said board from five to nine was not legally adopted, and hence the election or attempted election of four additional members of the board by said annual meeting was illegal and void.

Admitting for the purpose of argument only, that the proposition to increase the board to nine members was legally adopted, and that there were two vacancies to be filled in the five members, the election of the six persons was not in accordance with the provision of the school law.

At said annual meeting, after the proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education was declared by the chairman to have been adopted, the chairman stated that the nominations for trustees were in order and thereupon six persons were nominated, two to hold two, two to hold one, and two to hold three years; that no other nominations being made, on motion, the chairman declared the nominations closed; that a motion was then adopted by a viva voce vote or acclamation, that the secretary cast one ballot for the six persons so nominated, which was done, and said persons declared elected, etc., etc.

The nomination of persons for school district officers at meetings at which any such officers are to be elected is not recognized in the school law, and its breach is more to be honored than its observance. Such nominations have no binding effect upon the qualified voters of the district who can vote for whom they desire for such offices regardless of such nominations; and such nominations furnish no evidence that a majority of the qualified voters present, or any considerable number of them, desire the election of the persons so nominated, or would vote for them upon the ballot which the school law requires shall be taken. On the contrary, the voters may have come to the meeting prepared with ballots containing names of persons either partially or entirely different from those put in nomination at the meeting. The contention that as no other than the six persons nominated could be voted for and that the failure of the meeting to put in nomination other persons, was proof that said persons were acceptable to the voters present or a majority of them, is untenable. The wishes of a majority of the voters present and voting could only be determined by a canvass of the ballots cast, and every qualified voter present had the legal right to vote and to have such vote received and counted.

The method taken at said annual meeting in the election of members of the board of education by which the secretary of the meeting, pursuant to a motion adopted by a viva voce vote, cast one ballot for the six persons nominated at the meeting, is not approved and is not deemed to be an election of such persons as such members by ballot, as required by the provisions of the school law. The school law nowhere authorizes the voters at a school district meeting to delegate to any one the power to elect such officers, or any of them, by directing any person to cast a ballot for such officers, thereby depriving all other voters of their right to vote for such officers.

I decide that the action and proceedings of said annual meeting relative to, and had and taken in, the election of trustees or members of the board of education of said district were illegal and void; and that the six persons declared by the chairman of the meeting to have been elected as such members were not, nor was either or any of them, legally elected, nor was any person at such meeting legally elected a member of the board of trustees or board of education of said district.

Under the provisions of section 7, article 1, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law, said district, at its annual meeting, had authority to elect a clerk of said district, who should also act as clerk of the board of education of the district, and that such clerk shall be elected by ballot and must receive a majority of the votes of the qualified voters of the district present and voting. At said annual meeting a ballot was duly taken for clerk of the district and Joseph Quinlan received a majority of the votes of the qualified voters of the district present and voting for clerk of said district. No proof is presented herein of the ineligibility of said Quinlan.

I decide that said Joseph Quinlan was duly elected clerk of said district at said annual meeting.

The said annual meeting of said district, held on August 4, 1896, adjourned sine die. As I decide, upon the appeal herein, that the action and proceedings of said meeting relative to authorizing the levy of a tax for the sum or sums stated by the board of education of the district as necessary to be raised for school purposes were illegal and void, a special meeting of the inhabitants of the district, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, should be held for the purpose of acting upon the question of authorizing the levy of such tax or taxes.

As I decide that the action and proceedings had and taken at said annual meeting of said district upon the proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district were illegal and void, and, as under the provisions of the school law, a proposition to increase or diminish the members of said board can only be taken at an annual meeting of said district, and the annual meeting of said district for the school year commencing August 1, 1896, having been held and adjourned sine die, no action or proceedings relative to increasing or diminishing the number of members of said board of said district can be legally had or taken until the annual school meeting, held in said district for the school year, commencing August 1, 1897.

Upon the adjournment sine die of said annual school meeting, held on August 4, 1896, the board of education of said district consisted of at least three members, and possibly four, and as I decide that six persons, claimed to be elected members of said board, were not, nor was either or any of them, legally elected as such members of the board of trustees of the district, the special meeting of the district, called to vote upon the question of the levy of a tax or taxes, should also elect a member or members of the board of education of the district to fill the vacancy or vacancies existing therein at the time said annual meeting adjourned sine die, to the end that said board shall consist of five members.

The appeal herein is sustained as to all matters, except that from the election of Joseph Quinlan as clerk of the district, and to such election said appeal is dismissed, and his election is sustained.

It is ordered, That all action and proceedings had and taken at the annual school meeting, held on August 4, 1896, in union free school district no. 3, town of Castleton, Richmond county, relative to the following matters, namely: authorizing the levy of a tax for the support of the schools of said district for the school year commencing August 1, 1896, as contained in the statement of the board of education of said district, presented to and read at said annual meeting; all action and proceedings had and taken upon the proposition to increase the number of members of the board of education of said district from five members to nine members; all action and proceedings had and taken in the election or alleged election of George Sheridan, jr, Michael J. Smith, Dr J. J. Van Rensselaer, Charles Schneider, James McNally and Timothy P. Hurley, or either of them, as trustees or members of the board of education of said district, be, and each and all of said actions and proceedings of said annual meeting herein specified, is and are, vacated and set aside as illegal and void, and altogether held for naught.

It is further ordered, That the trustees or board of education of said union free school district no. 3 of Castleton, Richmond county, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district, qualified to vote at school meetings in said district, said notice to be given in the manner prescribed by section 10, article 2, and section 13, article 3, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the amendments thereof, for the purpose of acting upon the statement presented by the board of education of said district to the annual meeting of said district held on August 4, 1896, of the sum or sums required to be raised by a tax or taxes for the support of the schools of said district, for the school year commencing August 1, 1896, and also to elect one or more trustees or members of the board of education of said district to fill any and all vacancies existing in said board, to the end that said board shall consist of five members.

4497

In the matter of the appeal of W. D. Griffin v. Henry L. Lounsbury and Samuel D. Peterson, trustees of school district no. 17, town of Cortlandt, Westchester county.

It is the duty of the trustees of a school district to call a special meeting of the district when requested to do so by a respectable number of the qualified voters of the district for a legitimate object. While the occasion for a special meeting must be of enough importance to warrant the trustees in assembling the inhabitants, on the other hand the trustees should not refuse or neglect to call a special meeting when the interests of the district plainly demand it, or when petitioned by a respectable number of the inhabitants.

Decided October 23, 1896

Skinner, Superintendent

On August 24, 1896, a petition signed by twenty-five residents, taxpayers and voters of school district no. 17, town of Cortlandt, Westchester county, addressed to the school trustees of school district no. 17, town of Cortlandt, Westchester county, requesting said trustees to call a special school meeting within the next ten days, for the purpose of taking into consideration the selection of a school house site, and the building of a schoolhouse thereon, and all things necessary for the carrying out of the same, was presented to said Henry L. Lounsbury and Samuel D. Peterson, trustees of said school district. That said Lounsbury was willing to call said meeting, but said Peterson opposed the calling of said meeting. That on September 24, 1895, no special meeting of said district having been called by said trustees pursuant to the prayer of said petitioners, W. D. Griffin, a resident taxpayer and voter in said school district, and one of said petitioners, appealed from the refusal of said trustees to call said meeting. The appeal herein alleges that the schoolhouse and grounds in said district are in a deplorable condition for the accommodation of school children and for school purposes, and that a large majority of the taxpayers in the school district are desirous of having a new schoolhouse and better accommodations. That there are but two trustees acting in said district.

No answer has been made to the appeal herein, and under the rulings of this Department the facts alleged in said appeal are deemed admitted by the said trustees, Lounsbury and Peterson.

This Department has uniformly held that it is the duty of the trustees of a school district to call a special meeting of the district when requested to do so by a respectable number of the qualified voters of the district for a legitimate object. While the occasion for a special meeting must be of enough importance to warrant the trustees in assembling the inhabitants, on the other hand the trustees should not neglect or refuse to call a special meeting when the interests of the district plainly demand it, or when petitioned by a respectable number of the inhabitants.

The appeal herein shows that the interests of said district plainly demand that said special meeting petitioned for should be called, and that said trustees have been petitioned for said special meeting by a respectable number of the inhabitants.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That Henry L. Lounsbury and Samuel D. Peterson, trustees of school district no. 17, town of Cortlandt, Westchester county, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district qualified to vote at school meetings therein, for the purpose of taking into consideration and acting upon the proposition of changing the schoolhouse site and designating a new schoolhouse site, and directing its purchase and authorizing the levy of a tax to pay for said site; and also take into consideration the erection of a new schoolhouse upon the present school site or upon a new site, and to authorize the construction of a new schoolhouse, and the levy of a tax or taxes in one sum or in equal annual instalments, to pay for the erection of such new schoolhouse.

In the matter of the appeal of Thomas H. Madigan, Thomas S. Ryan and Nicholas J. Mahoney from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 4, 1896, in union free school district no. 10, towns of Half Moon and Stillwater, Saratoga county; and from district election held August 5, 1896.

When at an annual school meeting it became impossible to transact the business of the meeting by reason of the noise and disorder existing; held, that the declaration of the chairman adjourning the meeting was proper; that after such adjournment by the chairman the powers of the meeting were exhausted, and neither the chairman of the meeting nor any other person or persons could legally reconvene said annual meeting or organize a new meeting, and that all proceedings taken by the persons remaining in the building after such adjournment and after the chairman, clerk and other persons left the hall and building, were illegal and void; that election of trustees and clerk of the district, held on the Wednesday following the annual meeting, not being an adjournment of the annual meeting nor a special meeting duly called and held, was illegal and void.

Decided October 31, 1896

O. Warner, attorney for appellants

J. F. Terry, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The appeal is taken from the action of the annual school meeting held August 4, 1896, in union free school district no. 10, of the towns of Half Moon and Stillwater, Saratoga county; and from an alleged election of two trustees of said district and a clerk of said district, held on August 5, 1896, in said district, and the declaration that Edgar Holmes and W. B. Neilson were elected as trustees, and Herbert R. Baker clerk; and from the decision of the board of education recognizing said Holmes, Neilson and Baker as such trustees and clerk, and refusing to recognize the appellants as such trustees and clerk.

With the appeal herein, the joint affidavit of the appellants and eight other persons, in support of the allegations contained in the appeal, was filed.

Messrs Daniel E. La Dow and others, claiming to be members of the board of education of said district, have filed an answer to the appeal, and with such answer have filed the joint affidavit of the respondents and sixty or more qualified voters of the district in support of the allegations contained in the answer.

The main contentions of the respondents are that, at the time the chairman of said annual meeting adjourned said meeting, the noise and disorder was of such a character as to render it impossible to transact any business; and that the action of the meeting upon the resolution to postpone the election of trustees and clerk until Wednesday, the day following said meeting, and the amendment thereof that said election be then held, and to reconsider its action upon holding such election on Wednesday, were in effect and equivalent to an affirmative majority vote and determination of said meeting to hold such election on Wednesday, the next following day after said meeting.

The following facts are established:

That the annual school meeting of union free school district no. 10, towns of Half Moon and Stillwater, Saratoga county, was held on the evening of August 4, 1896, and was duly organized by the choice of Herbert O. Bailey as chairman, Herbert R. Baker, the clerk of the district, acting as clerk of the meeting; that after the reading and adoption of reports of school officers and voting appropriations for the ensuing year, the chairman announced that the next business in order was the election of two trustees and a clerk of the district, and thereupon a motion was made that such election be held on Wednesday, the next following day, which motion was amended to the effect that such election be then held; that objection was taken to the amendment, that it should be declared not in order, as the election must then be held unless the meeting should determine that it should be held on Wednesday, or, in other words, that vote in favor of the original motion would determine that the election would be held on Wednesday and a vote against the motion would require the election to then be held, and therefore the amendment was not in order and should not be entertained; that the chairman entertained the amendment and directed that all persons in favor of the amendment should take the east side of the hall, and those opposed, the west side, and the chairman appointed two tellers to count the persons on the east side and two other tellers to count the persons on the west side of the hall; that the tellers on the west side proceeded to count the persons on that side of the hall, and completed said count without trouble, interference or delay; that the tellers on the east side, after making several unsuccessful attempts to count the persons on that side, informed the chairman that many persons on said east side were standing on the floor and on chairs, and others moving about, and that it was impossible to count the persons unless they were seated and in order; that the chairman requested said persons to take their seats and to keep quiet and in order, but that but few complied with such request, but continued to stand and move about, and persons having been counted by the tellers moved ahead of the tellers and were again counted; that there were in said hall at the time of said count many persons not qualified to vote at said meeting who were counted by the tellers; that by reason of the noise and disorder prevailing among the persons on the east side of said hall, and the crowding and pushing of the persons moving about it was impossible for the tellers to make an approximately correct account of such persons; that the tellers of the persons on the east side of the hall reported to the chairman the number of persons to be 508, and the tellers on the west side reported to the chairman the number of persons to be 302, the result of the vote upon said amendment being 508 in favor and 302 against; that upon the announcement of the result by the vote upon such amendment the chairman then stated the question was upon said motion amended, and requested those in favor to say aye and the response of aye was made on the east side, and thereupon those opposed were requested to say no, and the response of no was made on the west side, and the chairman declared that the motion as amended was lost; that upon said declaration of the chairman the persons on the west side cheered and those on the east side screeched and hissed, and fists were shaken at the chairman and threats made to throw him from the platform; that order was partly restored and a motion was made to adjourn, whereupon shouting and yelling ensued which continued for some time, when the motion was put by the chairman and declared lost, which declaration was followed by shrieks, yells and groans; that after some effort the chairman succeeded in restoring partial order, and stated in substance that it was impossible to transact any business on account of the noise and disorder; that he was unable to tell who addressed him or what they said, or in all cases to determine the result of a vote, and that if order was not maintained he would adjourn the meeting of his own motion, which statement was received with hisses, shaking of fists and threats to throw the chairman from the platform and to elect another chairman in his place; that a motion was then made that the vote on the motion as amended in relation to the time for holding the election be reconsidered, which motion was put by the chairman and declared lost, and thereupon another scene of noise, confusion and disorder occurred, increasing in volume and virulence; vile epithets were applied to some of the persons and to the chairman; several persons rushed upon the platform shouting and demanding that another chairman be chosen, several persons shaking their fists in the face of the chairman, and threatening two members of the board of education with personal violence; that after this scene of disorder had continued for a period of five to ten minutes, the chairman stated to those present, in substance: "It is impossible to transact any further business at this meeting on account of the noise and disorder, and I therefore declare this meeting adjourned", that upon said adjournment of said meeting the president of the board of education announced to the persons present that the election for trustees and district clerk would be held the next following day at the school building in said district from 12 o'clock noon until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and thereupon the chairman and clerk of the meeting and the persons on the west side of the hall left the hall and did not return that night; that after the persons so as aforesaid left said hall the persons remaining therein organized by electing a chairman and clerk and choosing inspectors of election and proceeded to ballot for two trustees and a clerk for said district, such balloting being held open until 10 o'clock p. m.; that the ballots received were canvassed by said inspectors and the result announced by them as follows: Whole number of votes cast 245, of which the appellants, Thomas H. Madigan and Thomas S. Ryan, received 245 votes for the office of trustee, and the appellant, Nicholas J. Mahoney, received 245 for district clerk, and thereupon said meeting adjourned; that on the day following said annual school meeting, to wit, on Wednesday, August 5, 1896, a meeting or election was held in said school building, conducted by the board of education of said district as inspectors of election, for the election of two trustees of said district and for a district clerk; that the polls of said election opened at 12 o'clock noon and closed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of said day; that at said election 550 ballots were cast by an equal number of qualified voters of said district, and of said ballots cast, Edgar Holmes and Willie B. Neilson each received for trustee 548 votes, and Thomas H. Madigan and Thomas

S. Ryan each received for trustee, 2 votes, and that Herbert R. Baker received for district clerk 548 votes, and Nicholas J. Mahoney received 2 votes; that at the organization of said board of education, on August 11, 1896, the said Holmes and Neilson were recognized and received as members of said board and said Baker as district clerk, and ever since have acted as such, and that said Madigan and Ryan, who claimed to have been elected trustees, and said Mahoney, who claimed to have been elected district clerk, on August 4, 1896, were not received nor recognized by said board as such trustees and clerk.

It further appears that besides the qualified voters in the hall in the school building on the evening of August 4, 1896, there were outside of said building a large number of qualified voters of the district, a majority of whom were women, all of whom were assembled for the purpose of attending and voting at the election of district officers if such election had been held.

It is not shown how many qualified voters there were residing in said district on August 4, 1896. I assume that said union free school district no. 10 is one whose limits do not correspond to those of an incorporated village or city, and that the number of children of school age in said district exceeds 300.

It was the duty of the qualified voters of said district at its annual meeting held on August 4, 1896, to elect the trustees and district clerk, unless said meeting, after transacting the other business required by the school law, legally adjourned said meeting to a day named for the purpose of completing its business and electing its district officers, or, under the provisions of section 14, article 3, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, the qualified voters of such district, by a vote of a majority of those present and voting at any annual meeting, or any duly called special meeting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, determined that the election of the members of the board of education and clerk of said district shall be held on the Wednesday next following the day designated by law for holding the annual meeting.

It is clear that when the annual meeting of said district was adjourned by the chairman it was not adjourned to a day certain, but sine die.

It is not shown that the voters of said district at any annual meeting, or at any duly called special meeting, ever determined under the said provisions of section 14, article 3, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, above cited, that the election of the members of the board of education and district clerk shall be held on the Wednesday next following the day designated by law for holding the annual meeting therein. The disgraceful and riotous manner in which persons attending said annual meeting acted authorized the chairman of said meeting to adjourn the same. After such adjournment of said annual meeting by the chairman, the powers of said meeting were exhausted, and neither the chairman of said meeting nor any other person or persons, could reconvene said annual meeting or organize anew the annual meeting of the district, and all proceedings to that end taken by the persons remaining in said school building after said adjournment and after the chairman, clerk and other persons left the hall and building were illegal and void.

I decide: 1 The chairman of said annual school meeting, held in said district on August 4, 1896, in adjourning said meeting acted properly, and his action is sustained.

2 That the alleged meeting organized and held in said school building in said district on August 4, 1896, after the annual school meeting had been adjourned and the chairman, clerk and others had left the hall and building, was neither the annual meeting nor a special meeting duly called, and was illegal and void; that all proceedings had and taken thereat were illegal and void.

3 That the appellants Thomas H. Madigan and Thomas H. Ryan were not legally elected as trustees of said school district, and that the appellant Nicholas J. Mahoney was not legally elected district clerk of said district.

4 That the meeting or election held in said district on Wednesday, August 5, 1896, not being an adjournment of the annual meeting nor a special meeting duly called and held, was not duly and legally called or held, and that Edgar Holmes and Willie B. Neilson were not legally elected trustees of said district, and that Herbert R. Baker was not legally elected district clerk of said district.

The appeal herein is sustained as to so much thereof as is taken from the election of Messrs Holmes and Neilson as trustee of the district, and said Baker as district clerk, and dismissed as to all other matters.

It is ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at the alleged annual school meeting held in said school district on August 4, 1896, after the adjournment of the annual school meeting held therein on said date, by the chairman, be, and the same are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That all proceedings had and taken at the alleged meeting or election held in said district on Wednesday, August 5, 1896, be, and the same are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 10, towns of Half Moon and Stillwater, Saratoga county, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said district qualified to vote at school meetings therein for the purpose of electing two trustees of said district, and a district clerk of said district, in place of the two trustees and of said district clerk, whose respective terms of office expired on August 4, 1896.

3513

Alonzo B. Wright, appellant, v. Edward Bleeker, A. C. Graham, Robert Willets, R. S. Munson, I. J. Merritt, composing the board of education, and Thomas A. Harris, S. DeWitt Smith and David R. Fowler, inspectors of election, district no. 3, town of Flushing.

Notice of a special district school meeting; what is sufficient. District organized under special acts of the Legislature subject to supervision by State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

To appropriate money for the improvement of a school building, the vote need not be by ballot, unless the statute specifically requires it.

In such a case, although the vote is taken by ballot, chapter 366, Laws of 1880, known as the "uniform ballot act," does not apply.

Quære, whether said act is applicable to any school district election.

Vote by ballot at school meetings, when necessary.

Decided August 4, 1886

Draper, Superintendent

School district no. 3 of the town of Flushing is subject to the operation of a special act of the Legislature, being chapter 638 of the Laws of 1857, as amended by chapter 367 of the Laws of 1873, and chapter 559 of the Laws of 1875, and chapter 434 of the Laws of 1885. A special school meeting was held in said district on Monday, the 12th day of July, 1886, pursuant to the following notice:

NOTICE.—A special school meeting of the electors of school district no. 3, town of Flushing, is hereby called on Monday, July 12, 1886, between the hours of two o'clock and seven, p. m., at the village hall, Whitestone, with a view of submitting plans, specifications and cost for the enlargement of the present school building in said district.

(Signed)

Edward Bleeker, President

D. R. Fowler, Clerk

Whitestone, June 30, 1886

At such meeting the plans and specifications and proposed cost for the enlargement of the school building in said district were submitted to the electors, and election held with a view to determine whether or not said electors would appropriate the sum of $7500 to meet the expense of said improvement, and whether or not bonds should be issued for the purpose of raising the said sum. The vote was taken by ballot, printed ballots being used different in color and in size. The polls remained open from two in the afternoon until seven in the evening, and the voting was supervised, and the count made by three inspectors of election appointed by the board of education for that purpose. The inspectors of election reported at the conclusion of the voting that 124 ballots had been cast, of which 101 were in favor of appropriating the sum named, 3 against such appropriation, 6 in favor of issuing bonds and 13 against the same, with 1 blank ballot. From this action the appellant appeals to the Superintendent of Public Instruction upon the following grounds:

1 That the call for such meeting did not, as the notice shows, refer to the statute or authority by which such call could be or was made, and did not fully and fairly set forth the object, intent and purpose of the election or special meeting.

2 That the ballots used, as shown by such report, were illegal and void inasmuch as they did not conform to the provisions of chapter 366 of the Laws of 1880.

3 That at the closing of the polls the inspectors did not openly and before the meeting declare the result of such election, but reported to the president of the board, who, in that capacity, announced and declared the result.

4 That only 124 votes were cast and that there were over 300 legal voters in the district, and that, therefore, the 101 votes cast in favor of the appropriation did not show the sentiment of the majority of the voters in the district in favor thereof.

5 That said election was held pursuant to a special statute, and hence is without the jurisdiction of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

6 It is insisted that if the Superintendent holds that such election is within his jurisdiction and supervision, he must determine whether the election was legal or illegal, whether or not the result was binding upon the district, and in the event of finding that it is not binding, then he must decide that no other election can be held in said district for a similar purpose within the ensuing six months.

In consequence of the foregoing objections, the Superintendent is prayed to set aside such election and declare the results thereof illegal and of no effect.

The board of education was proceeding in this matter under section 11 of chapter 434 of the Laws of 1885, which provides as follows: "Whenever the said board of education shall deem it necessary to erect one or more schoolhouses in said district, or to enlarge the schoolhouse or schoolhouses, or to purchase sites or lots for said buildings, in said district, before they shall proceed to levy any tax for the same, they shall prepare an estimate and plan showing the location proposed, cost of ground and plans and estimated cost of buildings; and shall submit the same to the electors of said district at its annual meeting, or at a special meeting to be called for that purpose; and if a majority of the electors voting at such election shall vote in favor of the same, then the said board of education may proceed to acquire title to such sites or lots, and to erect or enlarge said schoolhouse or schoolhouses in the manner proposed in said estimate and plan." This section did not require that the notice of the special meeting should refer to the statute or authority by which such call could be made. It only required that before proceeding to levy any tax for such purpose, the board should prepare an estimate and plan showing the location proposed, cost of ground and plans and estimated cost of improvement, and that they should submit the same to the electors at an annual or special meeting. Section 12 of the original act provides that notices of special meetings shall be posted in eight or more public places and published in a county paper at least one week previous to such meeting. There is no suggestion that the provisions of the statute relative to the posting and publishing of said notice were not literally complied with, and I am of the opinion that the requirements of the law in relation to the notice of the proposed action were satisfied. The appellant objects, secondly, to the ballot on the ground that the provisions of chapter 366 of the Laws of 1880, commonly known as the "uniform ballot act," were not observed. The first section of this act is as follows:

"Section 1 At all elections hereafter held within the limits of this State for the purpose of enabling electors to choose by ballot an officer or officers under the laws of this State, or of the United States, or to pass upon any amendment, law or public act, or proposition submitted to the electors, to vote by ballot under any law, each and all ballots used at any such election shall be upon plain white printing paper, and without any impression, device, mark or other peculiarity whatsoever upon or about them to distinguish one ballot from another in appearance, except the names of the several candidates; and they shall be printed in plain black ink."

It is conceded by the respondents that the ballots used were not in compliance with the provisions of this act. They varied in color, in size, they were without the prescribed captions, and they were not printed in the prescribed size of type.

Whether or not it was the intention of the Legislature that the provisions of the "uniform ballot act" should apply to elections held at school meetings, is a question which is by no means free from doubt. It is not necessary to determine that question, however, in order to dispose of the present case. Section 1 of the "uniform ballot act," above set forth, limits the operation of that act, and to cases where an officer is to be elected or an act or proposition to be determined, is "submitted to the electors to vote by ballot under any law."

There is nothing in the provisions of the statutes governing this meeting which required that the question here at issue should be determined by ballot. It was only required of the board of education that they "shall submit the same to the electors of said district at an annual or at a special meeting to be called for that purpose." It is true that section 3 of the special act, as amended, does provide that "all elections shall be by ballot," but this unquestionably refers to elections for members of the board of education, and I can see no requirement of the statute which necessitated the taking of the vote in this instance by ballot, however proper and perhaps desirable that it should be done in that way. Furthermore, if the "uniform ballot act" does apply to school meetings, and if the law had required that the vote in the present case should have been taken by ballot, and if said law as to uniformity of ballots had not been observed, the result would not, on that account, have been rendered void. Any person who knowingly or wilfully violates or attempts to violate the statute relating to uniformity of ballots would be subject to a fine or imprisonment; but there is nothing in the law which would have set aside the results of an election held in violation of its provisions. The objection that the result of the balloting was not announced by the inspectors, but rather by the president of the board of education, has no force. They canvassed the vote, made and signed the certificate of the result, and passed it to the president of the board, who announced the result in their presence and at the proper time; and the act must be deemed to have been their own act. The fourth objection of the appellant, namely, that there were not a majority of all the votes in the district cast in favor of the improvement, and that, consequently, the sentiment of the district is not shown to have favored the same, is likewise without force. All had notice and should have attended, and the votes of those who did attend preponderated heavily in favor of the expenditure. The fifth objection, that the question is not within the jurisdiction of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, can not be sustained. It was undoubtedly the intention of the Legislature to permit this district to operate its schools upon a system peculiarly its own; but to concede that it was thereby removed from the supervision of the State authorities would be destructive of the educational system of the State.

In view of the foregoing considerations the appeal must be dismissed.

3534

Warren J. Alfred and others v. the trustees, etc., of school district no. 5, town of Waverly, Franklin county.

This Department, when asked to set aside the proceedings of a school meeting will always inquire into the bonae fides thereof.

A notice to "taxable inhabitants," while irregular, will not be considered sufficient ground to set aside the business of an important special meeting, unless it is made to appear that some one has been misled by it.

Bad spelling in a notice of a meeting will not invalidate the proceedings thereof. Failure to give notice of a meeting to every person entitled thereto will be excused unless done wilfully, or it appears that the failure prevented such persons from attending, and their attendance would have changed a declared result.

No one is bound by the trustee's announcement of what qualifies a school district voter, particularly as no one was deterred from participating in a meeting thereby.

Decided November 10, 1886

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of a special meeting of district no. 5, town of Waverly, Franklin county, held on the 14th day of November 1885, in voting to build a new schoolhouse and levy a tax to pay for the same, and from the action of the trustee and collector in levying and collecting such tax. It seems that a special meeting was first called to be held on the 31st day of October 1885, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, which was not called to order until about 4.30 o'clock, and then, without any material action, was adjourned to meet on the 14th day of November 1885, at 6 o'clock, p. m., and at the latter time the meeting reconvened and voted to purchase a site and build a schoolhouse. It was resolved to let the work to the lowest bidder, and bids were received at this meeting, the lowest of which was by one Frank Trim, for the sum of $405. The work was let to him and a tax ordered levied for the amount. Mr Trim went on and erected the building, the trustee accepted it, and the tax was levied and the collector was engaged in raising the sum when, about the 1st of June 1886, this appeal was brought.

The appellants allege various irregularities. They say the special meeting of October 31st had no jurisdiction, and that consequently an adjourned meeting thereof had none; that the notice of such meeting was defective, as it was a notice only to "taxable inhabitants," while others were entitled to vote at school meetings, and that it contained misspelled words and some abbreviations; that such notice was not served upon persons entitled to notice, as the law provides; that while the meeting was called at 1 p. m., it did not convene until 4.30 p. m., and that some persons left in the meantime, and that when the meeting did convene the trustee announced that only real estate owners and taxpayers could vote, etc. There are other objections urged, but these are the essential ones, and if they are not availing, none set up can be.

This Department when asked to set aside the acts of school meetings or school officers always inquires into the bonae fides of such acts. Were the things done such as it was proper to do? Did they undertake to do them properly according to such knowledge as they had? Has any one been imposed upon or wronged? If irregularities have occurred, will the greater hardship be imposed upon individuals and greater help be given to the cause of education by setting aside or sustaining such acts?

In the present case there is absence of proof of bad faith. The notice of the special meeting should have called all legal voters of the district rather than "taxable inhabitants," but there is no proof that anybody was misled by it. Indeed the appellants, nearly if not quite all of them, attended the meeting. There was some bad spelling in the notice, but to hold that this invalidated it would be so far reaching in its consequences that the result would be appalling. The notice may not have been served on every person entitled to notice as it should have been, but it does not appear that this was wilful, or that any were without actual notice. There is absence of evidence that the meeting was held without the knowledge of persons who desired to be present, unless in a single instance which is too isolated to be of weight. If this person had been present the result would not have been changed. If the trustee did announce his legal opinion as to who could vote, no one was bound by it. It does not seem to have deterred any person entitled to vote from doing so.

The adjournment from October 31st to November 14th seems to have been regular. It indicates deliberation and absence of any purpose to deceive.

But other facts are to be taken into consideration. The district had no schoolhouse, and sorely stood in need of one. The undertaking to erect one was commendable. The building had been erected before the appeal was taken. To set aside the acts pursuant to which it has been constructed would be to deprive the builder of his pay, or to throw the expense upon a portion only of the district, and then they would have on their hands a building which would not be the district schoolhouse.

I have not lost sight of the fact that there are separate settlements in this school district, and that the location of a school in either one does not meet the convenience of the other. But this fact can not be allowed to have much weight in the determination of the pending case. Perhaps it would be well if the two settlements were separated into two school districts, which, should the population continue to increase, might appropriately be done after a schoolhouse shall have been erected at the other settlement. It seems that a school is now being sustained there. If this is to be continued, a house is needed. If this should be erected, the tax should be borne by both settlements, as in the present case.

In view of the foregoing considerations, I feel compelled to dismiss the appeal, and discontinue the stay of proceedings heretofore issued by me herein.

3539

Cyrus Collins and others, from the action and proceedings of the annual school meeting held August 31, 1886, in district no. 8, town of Whitehall, Washington county.

Proceedings of an annual meeting will be set aside, and a special meeting will be ordered when it seems that the trustee who called it to order arbitrarily prevented it from selecting whomsoever it would for presiding officer, and where the proceedings are shown to have been so turbulent and disorderly as to prevent a free expression of the will of the legal voters present.

Decided November 20, 1886

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by Cyrus Collins and others, residents and taxpayers in school district no. 8, town of Whitehall, Washington county, New York, from the proceedings of the annual school meeting held in said district August 31, 1886.

The appellants' allegations are substantially as follows:

That the meeting was called to order by the trustee whose term of office would expire by the election of a successor at such annual meeting; that said person nominated his brother for chairman; that many persons not qualified to vote at school district meetings were in attendance at said annual meeting; that duly qualified voters demanded that the house be divided to ascertain who were qualified voters before a vote for chairman was taken; that this was refused by the trustee, who called for the "ayes" on the selection of the chairman, but did not call for "noes," and thereupon declared his brother elected chairman; that this action precipitated great confusion, tumult and disorder, and that it became impossible to secure an intelligent vote in consequence; that Charles Chapman was nominated for trustee, and the nomination was seconded, and the chair refused to put the nomination to a vote; that subsequently the nomination of the present incumbent was made for trustee, and amidst confusion and excitement, the chair took a vote by ayes and noes, and declared him elected; that appeals from the decision of the chair, calls for a ballot and for a division of the house were disregarded and not heeded; that in the excitement the district clerk, who was engaged in keeping the minutes of the meeting, abandoned his post, and left the meeting; that before the close of the meeting at least two-thirds of the taxpayers, voters in said district, withdrew.

The respondent, Warner MacFarran, answers and alleges as defects in the appellants' case, as presented, that appellants ask for no specific relief; that because of the allegations of appellant the appeal should be dismissed; that there is no allegation that illegal votes were cast at the meeting, nor did any unqualified persons take part in the proceedings of the meeting; that there is no allegation that respondent did not receive a majority of the votes of legal voters of the district present at the meeting; that respondent was properly declared elected trustee; that there is no allegation that the confusion was created by friends of the chairman and respondent; that it is the practice of the Department of Public Instruction to dismiss appeals when allegations of appellant are vague and uncertain; that there is no allegation of any grievance or injury whatever; that certain of the appellants are not taxpayers, although some of them are.

The respondent admits that he called the annual school meeting to order, but denies that he nominated his brother, Seth MacFarran, for chairman, but avers that a legal voter did, and that the nomination was duly seconded, and that respondent put the nomination to a vote; that he called for the ayes, and that there seemed to be an almost unanimous response; that he then called "contrary," and there being no negative votes, he declared Seth MacFarran elected chairman. He denies that there was a call for a division of the house at the time stated, as alleged by appellants, and that such demand was not made until after the election of chairman and trustee; he denies that any other person than himself was nominated for trustee at said meeting. He claims that on the vote by ayes and noes, the ayes had a decided majority, and he was declared elected; and that certain of the appellants made the disturbance by walking, shouting and calling for a division of the meeting on chairman, trustee and clerk; that soon after certain of the appellants left, and order was restored; that the confusion had become so great that the respondent, although he attempted to do so, could not read his report as trustee until said parties had left the meeting; that as respondent is informed and believes, none but legal voters took part in the meeting; that the proceedings were regular and in order, except as interrupted by the appellants.

Respondent asks that the appeal be dismissed.

This appeal presents a state of affairs which should never exist at any school meeting. It is surprising that orderly school meetings can not be held, particularly as the principal officers to be elected are chosen to fill positions of trust and without compensation. From all the statements before me on this appeal, I find many direct contradictions. On the side of the appellants I have the sworn statements of thirteen persons. On the other side, the sworn statement of the acting trustee and of the person, the validity of whose election and acts are questioned by this appeal. But I do not allow this single fact to determine the case. It is clear from the statements on both sides, that the annual meeting was disorderly; that no vote was taken by which a fair decision could be arrived at, either by ballot, division of the meeting or by a roll call of the legal voters. The respondent called the meeting to order, and if he and his friends were in such an undoubted majority as he avers, it would at least have been wise (as some opposition was manifested) to have taken such a vote as would have shown the sense of the meeting clearly and beyond dispute.

If the respondent and the other officers who are alleged to have been elected are the choice of the voters entitled to vote at school meetings, they can establish the fact at another meeting called for that distinct purpose. A school meeting, held under the circumstances as above set forth, should not be upheld.

I, therefore, set aside the proceedings of said annual meeting, and direct that a special meeting be held to transact the business of the annual meeting, within fifteen days from the date of this order, and that the last acting district clerk shall proceed to give the notices of such meeting, as provided by law.

It is further directed that School Commissioner William H. Cook, of commissioner district no. 2, of Washington county, attend such meeting, call the meeting to order and preside until a chairman is elected.

4201

In the matter of the appeal of Nathan Johnson and Theodore D. Rich, from proceedings of a special meeting held on July 5, 1893, in union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county.

Where a special meeting of a district, duly called, was held, meeting duly organized, a motion was made to adjourn sine die, such special meeting, under the call of the trustees had been duly held and no legal meeting of the inhabitants of the district could be held except in pursuance of a legal call therefor as required by the school law. Boards of education of union free school districts have no authority, under the school law, to decide whether or not the special meeting or the annual meeting of their respective school districts had been legally conducted or not, nor whether or not the proceedings thereof, furnished to them by the clerk or secretary of the meeting are correct, or whether the action and proceedings had and taken at said meetings are legal or not. The power to decide such matters is given by the school laws only to the Superintendent of Public Instruction in an appeal taken from the action and proceedings of such meetings.

Decided November 16, 1893.

Herbert D. Lent, attorney for appellants

Stephen J. Stilwell, attorney for respondents

Crooker, Superintendent

The above-named appellants, two of the members of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, appeal from the action and proceedings of an alleged special meeting held in said district on July 5, 1893, at which it was claimed it was voted to raise $8000 for the purchase of a site and the building of a new schoolhouse thereon, and the bonding of said district therefor. Also, from the action of the majority of the board of education of said district in refusing to record the proceedings of a special meeting duly held in said district on said July 5, 1893, and in recording the proceedings of said alleged special meeting; also, from the refusal of said board to record the proceedings of the annual meeting of said district, held on August 22, 1893.

An answer to the appeal has been filed by Messrs Roedel, Tolles, Reid and Yale, four of the members of said board.

From the papers presented upon said appeal, it appears that a special meeting of the legal voters of union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, to be held at the primary schoolhouse, Garden avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, Mount Vernon, on Wednesday, July 5, 1893, at 7 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of appropriating the sum of $8000 for the purchase of a site and the erection of a suitable schoolhouse thereon, in the upper end of the district, and making provision for the payment of said sum, was duly called by the board of education of said district. That at the time and place above mentioned a large number of the inhabitants of said district assembled, and said meeting was called to order by Nathan Johnson, president of the board of education, who, on motion of John H. Davis, was elected chairman of the meeting, and William F. Johnson was elected secretary; that the chairman stated the call for the meeting, and after some discussion a motion was made and adopted that the meeting adjourn sine die, and thereupon a large number of persons left the room. That after the adjournment of said meeting and such persons had left the room, those remaining in the room organized a meeting by the election of S. J. Stilwell as chairman and J. M. Reid, clerk; that a resolution, stating in substance that a meeting had been legally called for the purpose of raising funds for the purchase of a site and the erection of a schoolhouse in the district, and whereas a certain number of persons forcibly entered the schoolhouse, and in a violent and boisterous manner, interfered with the object for which the meeting was called, and whereas said body of people have declared the meeting adjourned sine die, without legally organizing the same; therefore, be it resolved, that we now proceed to organize the meeting in accordance with said call, was then adopted; that two tellers were appointed and a resolution was made and seconded that, in accordance with the call for this meeting, an appropriation of $8000 be made for the purchase of a site and the erection of a schoolhouse thereon, in this section, appropriation to be obtained at once by the issue of interest-bearing bonds of the district, a portion of which, not exceeding $1000, to be retired each year until the whole sum is paid, and that we now proceed to a ballot, which was adopted; that a ballot was had at which 59 votes were cast, of which 55 were for the resolution and 4 against; that a motion was adopted that the poll list and ballots be kept under seal by the secretary of the meeting for future reference, and that the minutes of the meeting be signed by the chairman and secretary and forwarded to the board of education, and thereupon the meeting adjourned. That at a special meeting of the board of education held on July 25, 1893, the proceedings of the two meetings held on July 5, 1893, duly signed by the chairman and clerk of the respective meetings were presented and said board, by a vote of 4 to 1, adopted a resolution that the minutes of the meeting at which Mr Stilwell was chairman be received and approved as minutes of said meeting, the board deeming said meeting to be the regular and lawful meeting held in response to the call for a special meeting to be held on said July 5, 1893, and the minutes of the meeting at which Nathan Johnson was chairman and W. F. Johnson was secretary were, as the clerk of said board states in his letter, under date of July 26, 1893, to W. F. Johnson, "ignored." That said board refused by a majority vote to enter the minutes of the annual school meeting, held in said district on August 22, 1893, as signed by the chairman and secretary of the meeting, upon the minute book of the district, for the reason that they were incomplete and were improper.

That no appeal has been taken from the action and proceedings had and taken at the special meeting of said district, held July 5, 1893, at which Nathan Johnson was chairman, and W. F. Johnson was secretary.

The allegations in the appeal relative to the proceedings at the special meeting held on July 5, 1893, at which Nathan Johnson was chairman, are supported by a copy of the minutes of the meeting, signed by the chairman and secretary, and the affidavits of nine qualified voters who were present at said meeting. Each of said affiants states that said meeting was duly organized at the time and place appointed, and was properly conducted, and that the minutes of the meeting are a true record of the proceedings of said meeting.

The respondents allege in their answer that a certain number of persons forcibly entered the schoolhouse and in a violent and boisterous manner interfered with the object for which the meeting was called; as soon as said boisterous persons could be gotten from the meeting the secretary of the board called the meeting to order, etc. The respondents allege as grounds of the invalidity of the first meeting that no secretary was elected or tellers appointed, neither was any call read nor any vote taken on said call. Three of the respondents, Messrs Roedel, Toiles and Reid, deny that they were present at said first meeting, and therefore can not know of their own knowledge, whether their allegations are true. Annexed to the answer and in support thereof, are the affidavits of James M. Reid and George S. Yale, each of whom avers that he was present at the first meeting. Mr Reid admits that a chairman was elected and that a motion was made to adjourn sine die, and that said meeting adjourned; he alleges no secretary was elected, no minutes taken, no tellers appointed, and no call read; no discussion was had relative to the raising of funds; and that everybody was shouting and that his request to be heard was refused. Mr Yale alleges that the meeting was not duly organized and was illegally conducted; but does not aver that the meeting was boisterous or noisy. He avers no minutes were taken, no tellers appointed, no call read; but admits a chairman was elected and a motion made to adjourn sine die, which was adopted.

The allegations contained in the appeal, that said board of education refused to record the proceedings of the meeting held on July 5, 1893, at which Nathan Johnson was chairman, and W. F. Johnson secretary, and the minutes of the annual school meeting, held on August 22, 1893, are admitted by the respondents.

I am clearly of opinion that the appellants have, by a preponderance of proof, established that the meeting held in said district on July 5, 1893, of which S. J. Stilwell was chairman and James M. Reid, secretary, was not a valid and legal meeting of the voters of said district. At the time and place named in the call issued and served by the board of education, a large number of the inhabitants assembled; the appellants say "between 100 and 150, and all the room could hold," and respondents do not controvert said statement. The hour of holding the meeting must be strictly observed and there is no allegation that anything was done prior to the hour at which the meeting was called. No authority exists for holding the meeting before the designated hour, and no legal objection rests upon the inhabitants who may have assembled at such time to wait for others before organizing and commencing the proceedings. The duty to call a meeting to order is not enjoined upon any particular person, and any voter of the district may do this. Nathan Johnson called the meeting to order and he had the legal right to do so. The school law directs that such district meetings shall appoint a chairman, and such district meeting has the legal right to elect their chairman. Nathan Johnson was duly elected chairman, and the meeting, having authority, elected W. F. Johnson as secretary. As soon as a chairman and secretary of the meeting were elected said meeting was duly organized and was in a position to transact any business pertaining to the matter for which the meeting was called to act upon. It was not necessary to the legality of the meeting that the call by virtue of which the inhabitants had assembled, should be read. It must be assumed that the board of education had given legal notice of the meeting and the objects for which it was called, and the inhabitants present were fully informed thereof; but it is established by a preponderance of proof that the chairman stated the call for the meeting. There being no provisions of law nor code of rules to regulate the proceedings of district meetings; that must be held to be in order to which a majority consents. The office of the chairman is to facilitate the ascertaining of the wishes of the majority. If their determination is illegal the remedy is by appeal. It appears that some discussion was had relative to the business stated in the call, but that no motion or resolution relating thereto was made, but that a motion to adjourn sine die was made and upon a vote taken thereon was adopted and thereupon the said meeting was declared adjourned sine die. It is the duty of a chairman to put every question to vote which is made and seconded. A motion for adjournment takes precedence of all others. Such motion, however, can not be received after another question is actually put and while the meeting is engaged in voting upon it; but in such case the vote must be concluded and the result announced. No allegation is made or proof presented that, when the motion was made to adjourn, another question had been put, nor that the meeting was engaged in voting upon it. The special meeting, under the call of the board of education, having been duly held, organized and adjourned sine die, no legal meeting of the inhabitants of the district could be held except in pursuance of legal call therefor, as required by the school laws.

In refusing to record the proceedings of said special meeting of July 5, 1893, and the proceedings of the annual meeting, held on August 22, 1893, upon the records of the district, the said board of education acted without authority of law and in violation of its duty. No authority is given by the school law to boards of education to decide whether or not the special meeting or the annual meeting, of their respective school districts, have been legally conducted or not; nor whether or not the proceedings thereof, furnished to them by the clerk or secretary of the meetings, are correct or not, or whether the action and proceedings had and taken at said meetings, are legal or not. Neither district meetings nor district officers have any authority, under the school laws, to decide or declare that a special or annual meeting was not legally held, nor that the action and proceedings had and taken at such meetings are irregular, incorrect or illegal. The power to decide such matters is given, by the school laws, only to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, in an appeal taken from the action and proceedings of such meetings. It was the plain duty of the board of education of district no. 1 of East Chester to have directed the record of the proceedings of the special meeting held July 5, 1893, presented to it by Mr W. F. Johnson, the secretary of said meeting, and also the proceedings of the annual meeting held on August 22, 1893.

The respondents ask that the appeal herein be dismissed on the ground that it was not brought until more than sixty days after the performance of the acts complained of, or the appellants had knowledge of said acts, and allege that the board of trustees have been misled, and has allowed the board to obligate the school district by the purchase of property, etc., etc., which was not done until after the time for an appeal had expired.

Assuming, for the sake of argument, that the alleged meeting of which Mr Stilwell was chairman was legal, no action was had and taken that authorized the board of trustees to purchase, or to contract for the purchase, of any property whatever without further action of the qualified voters of the district, duly and legally assembled. Such alleged meeting voted an appropriation of $8000 be made, for the purchase of a site and the erection of a schoolhouse thereon, in that section, appropriation to be obtained, etc. Under the school laws the authority to designate a school site is given only to the qualified voters of the district in meeting assembled, and the said district can not delegate the power to select and designate such site to the trustees, or a committee, or any person or persons. No site was designated at such alleged meeting, and hence the trustees had no authority in law to purchase, or contract to purchase, a site, and, hence, had no authority in law to contract for the erection of a schoolhouse anywhere in said district, at least until a site had been legally designated. If said trustees have entered into contracts for the purchase of a site or the erection of a schoolhouse, the district is in no wise bound by such action, and hence the delay in bringing this appeal in no way affects the district.

The appellants allege "that the reason the appeal was not taken before was an error of judgment on the part of the appellants and their advisors." The alleged meeting of which Mr Stilwell was chairman was so clearly illegal and void, and the action of the trustees, or a majority of them, in refusing to permit the proceedings of the special meeting of July 5, 1893, and the annual meeting of August 22, 1893, to be recorded in the records of the district, was so clearly a violation of duty on the part of said trustees, that the appellants might well have believed that, upon reflection and consideration, the said trustees would agree with the appellants, and reverse their action. In such judgment the appellants erred. The appellants have rendered a satisfactory excuse for their delay in bringing the appeal.

The appeal herein is sustained.

I do find and decide that the meeting held on July 5, 1893, in union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, of which meeting S. J. Stilwell was chairman and J. M. Reid was secretary, and alleged to be the special meeting of said district, held under the call of the board of education of said district, issued by said direction of said board at its regular monthly meeting, held on June 1, 1893, was not a legal valid special meeting of said district. That the action and proceedings alleged to have been had and taken at said meeting are, and each of them is, illegal, invalid and void, as the action and proceedings of a legal and valid called and held special meeting of said district.

It is ordered that the action and proceedings of said meeting be and they are hereby vacated, set aside and altogether held for naught, as the action and proceedings of a legally called and held special meeting of said district.

It is further ordered that the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, forthwith cause to be recorded in the records of said district the minutes of proceedings of a special school meeting of said district, held on July 5, 1893, of which meeting Nathan Johnson was chairman and William F. Johnson was secretary, and which said minutes were duly delivered to said board; and that said board also forthwith cause to be recorded in the records of said district the minutes of proceedings of the annual meeting of said district, held on August 22, 1893, of which meeting Nathan Johnson was chairman and W. E. Hayward was secretary, and which said minutes were duly delivered to said board.

4204

In the matter of the appeal of Albion Norris Fellows from action and decision of David Fox and Theodore F. Clay, trustees of school district no. 3, town of Ramapo, Rockland county, and from proceedings of a special meeting of said district, held September 19, 1893.

Where, in a school district at the annual meeting, a trustee and other district officers were elected and the business of the annual meeting transacted, and after said meeting the trustees of the district learned that there were over 300 children of school age reported in the district, and a special meeting was called for the election of district officers, trustees assuming that the election of officers at the annual meeting was invalid, and at such special meeting a person other than the one elected trustee at the annual meeting was elected trustee. Held, that said trustees had no power, under the school laws, to hold and declare the election of the trustee at the annual meeting as illegal and void, and that so much of the special meeting as related to the election of a trustee be vacated and set aside as illegal, invalid and void.

Decided November 24, 1893

Crooker, Superintendent

The above-named appellant appeals from the action and decision of Messrs Fox and Clay, two trustees of school district no. 3, town of Ramapo, county of Rockland, in refusing to recognize the appellant as a duly elected trustee of said district, and in refusing to permit him to act as such trustee; and also from the proceedings of a special meeting of said district held therein on September 19, 1893.

An answer has been made by said Fox and Clay to said appeal.

It appears that an annual meeting of said district was held on the fourth Tuesday of August 1893, to wit, August 22, 1893; that at said meeting the business of the annual meeting was transacted; that the appellant was duly elected a trustee of said district, in place of James M. Cookson, whose term of office as a trustee of said district expired on said fourth Tuesday of August 1893, 38 votes having been cast, of which the appellant received 20, and said meeting adjourned; that at two meetings of said trustees, held shortly after said annual meeting, of each of which meetings the appellant received notice from the clerk of the district. The appellant attended at the first of said meetings and the respondents expressed doubts as to the legality of the appellant's election as a trustee; that at the second of said meetings the respondents still refused to recognize the appellant as a trustee, and thereupon called a special meeting to be held in said district on Tuesday, September 19, 1893, at 7:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing a trustee in place of James Cookson, and appropriating the sum of $2500 to meet the expenses for maintaining the school during the current year. That said special meeting was held on said September 19, 1893, and H. C. Wanamaker was elected chairman; that Peter D. Johnson and the appellant herein were nominated for trustee; that a ballot was taken, 107 votes being cast, of which said Johnson received 66 and the appellant 41; that an appropriation of $2400 was voted by ballot, the whole number of votes cast being 33, of which 29 were in favor and 4 against the appropriation; that thereupon the meeting adjourned.

That on September 25, 1893, a meeting of said trustees was held at which the appellant was present and made formal effort to obtain recognition by the respondents as a trustee of said district, which was refused, and that said Peter D. Johnson was recognized by the respondents as such trustee.

No appeal has been taken from the action and proceedings had and taken at the annual meeting of said district, held on the fourth Tuesday of August 1893.

The respondents allege that after the annual meeting in said district, on August 22, 1893, it was discovered by them that there had been over 300 children of school age reported, and that the meeting for the election of district officers had been held upon an improper day, and that they thereupon concluded that the election for officers which had taken place was void; that the respondents, acting upon the advice of the school commissioner of the commissioner district in which the said school district is situate, ordered the calling of the said special meeting that was held on September 19, 1893, as hereinbefore stated.

The respondents deny the claim of the appellant that the meeting at which he was elected a trustee was a lawful meeting for the election of district officers; and allege that the meeting for that purpose should have been held on the last Wednesday next following the last Tuesday of August, "as demanded by the Code of Public Instruction of the State of New York, at section of chapter 248 of the said code." They further state that the mistake was made inadvertently, and that they, on finding out said mistake, proceeded in good faith, and the advice of said school commissioner, to remedy the same by calling a special meeting for the purpose expressed by them.

From the papers presented in this appeal, it is clear that the respondents, as trustees of said school district, have acted under a misapprehension of their powers and duties as such trustees, under the laws of the State relating to common schools, and under a misapprehension of the laws of the State in force at the time of the two meetings mentioned in said appeal papers, relating to the election of school district officers.

Trustees of school districts have no power, under the school laws, to set aside or invalidate the proceedings of a district meeting upon the assumption by them that such proceedings are or were illegal and void. The respondents herein had no power to hold or declare the election of a trustee at the annual meeting of said district, held on August 22, 1893, as illegal and void; nor that the election of said trustee was had upon the wrong day; nor to set aside or invalidate the proceedings of said meeting in such election, nor to call a special meeting to elect a trustee upon the assumption that the election at said annual meeting was invalid and void.

The respondents as such trustees have acted, in the matters stated in the appeal papers, under a misapprehension of the laws of the State in force in the time said annual and special meetings were held, relative to the election of district officers. Under the school laws in force on July 1, 1893, the annual meeting of each school district (except where the Legislature by a special act has designated a different day) shall be held on the fourth Tuesday of August in each year, and to choose one or three trustees, as hereinafter stated, a district clerk, collector etc. In districts that have three trustees, one trustee shall be elected at each annual meeting to fill the office of the outgoing trustee. (See sections 16 and 27 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Laws of 1864, and the amendments thereof.)

By chapter 248, of the Laws of 1878, and acts amendatory thereof, in force on July 1, 1893, being "An act in relation to the election of officers in certain school districts" (said chapter not forming any part of the Consolidated School Laws of 1864) it is enacted: "Section 1. In all school districts in this State in which the number of children of school age exceeds 300, as shown by the last annual report of the trustees to the school commissioner, all district officers, except the treasurer and collector of union free school districts, shall be elected by ballot." This section remains the same as when adopted on May 13, 1878. It has always been the law that trustees of union free school districts should be elected by ballot. Since April 29, 1893, it has been the law that all district officers in common school districts shall be elected by ballot. (See section 5, chapter 509, Laws of 1893.) When the annual school meeting was held in district no. 3, town of Ramapo, on August 22, 1893, assuming that the trustees of the district and the qualified voters thereof had knowledge that the number of children of school age in the district exceeded 300, the method of electing one of its district officers, namely, a trustee, required by section 1, above quoted, was complied with, that is, he was elected by ballot.

Section 2 of said chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878, as amended by section 11 of chapter 245 of the Laws of 1880, and as said section has stood since May 6, 1880, provides such election (that is, district officers in school districts where the number of children of school age exceeds 300) shall be held on the Wednesday next following the first Tuesday in August in each year (not on the Wednesday next following the last Tuesday of August, as assumed by the respondents), between the hours of 12 o'clock midday and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at the principal schoolhouse in the district, or at such other suitable place as the trustees may designate. When the place of holding such election is other than at the principal schoolhouse, the trustees shall give notice thereof, etc. The trustees may, by a resolution, extend the time of holding the election from 4 o'clock until sunset. Section 3 of said chapter provides that the trustees or board of education, or such of them as may be present, shall act as inspectors of election, and immediately after the close of the polls shall proceed to canvass the votes and declare the result; if any such district shall have but one trustee, the district clerk shall be associated with him as inspector; if a majority of the trustees shall not be present at the time of opening the polls, those in attendance may appoint any of the legal voters present to act as inspectors in place of the absent trustees; if none of the trustees shall be present at the time for opening the polls, the legal voters may choose those of their number to act as inspectors. Section 4 enacts, that the trustees shall, at the expense of the district, provide a suitable ballot box, in which the ballots shall be deposited as they are received; such ballots shall contain the names of the persons voted for, and shall designate the office for which each one is voted, and the ballots may be either written or printed, or partly written and partly printed. Section 5 enacts that the district clerk or clerk of the board of education shall attend the election, and record in a book to be provided for that purpose, the name of each elector as he deposits his ballot; the method of counting the ballots, etc. Section 6 provides for the challenging of voters and states the declaration to be made by a voter so challenged, etc. Section 7 enacts that disputes concerning the validity of any such election, etc., shall be referred to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, whose decision shall be final, and authorizes such Superintendent, in his discretion, to order a new election. Section 8 enacts that the persons having the highest number of votes respectively for the several offices shall be declared elected, and in the case of a tie, how a decision shall be made. Section 9 enacts that the annual meeting, in the several districts, shall be held as now provided by law, for the purpose of transacting all business, except the election of officers.

In the enactment of said chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878, the intent of the Legislature seems to have been to provide to school districts having more than 300 children of school age a method of holding elections for their school officers on the next day after their annual meeting, and that a plurality of votes should elect. The Legislature, assuming that in said districts the number of qualified voters residing therein would be largely in excess of those residing in the ordinary districts, containing a less number of children, and that the ordinary business of the annual meeting and election of officers could not be disposed of between 7.30 p. m. and a proper hour of adjournment; and that a full representation of the district could be had in the selection of district officers by keeping the polls of said election open for at least four hours during the day following such annual meeting than could be obtained in the time usually allowed for a ballot at the annual meeting. At the time of the enactment of said chapter 248, common school districts were not required to elect their district officers by ballot. Last winter the Consolidated School Law of 1864 was amended, requiring such election to be by ballot. As now, all school districts, whether common or union free school districts, are required to elect their district officers by ballot, and said districts, in the absence of specific enactments as to the method of taking such ballots or the length of time the polls may be open, can adopt its own method in that regard, and if unable to finish the transaction of its business at the annual meeting can adjourn to the next day or any subsequent day, the provisions contained in said chapter 248 do not seem to be necessary, as the intent of the Legislature, in its enactment, can be carried out under the provisions of the Consolidated School Act of 1864 as amended and now in force.

The time of holding the annual meetings in the school districts having been fixed last winter on the fourth Tuesday of August in lieu of the first Tuesday, it was by inadvertence that section 2 of said chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878 was not also amended by inserting the fourth instead of the first Tuesday of August, therein.

It is apparent that the special meeting held in said district on September 19, 1893, was not an election of school district officers, nor were the action and proceedings then and there had and taken under and in accordance with the provisions contained in said chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878 and the amendments thereto. The meeting or election was not held on the day named in section 2 of said chapter 248, and there does not appear to be any provision in said chapter for an election on any other day than the one named therein; there was no attempt to elect any school district officers thereat, except a trustee; the trustees did not act as inspectors of election, nor were the polls of said election kept open from 12 o'clock midday until 4 o'clock in the afternoon; business was transacted that should have been transacted at the annual meeting.

As the respondents allege that they did not discover, until after the annual meeting of the district, that the number of children of school age in the district exceeded 300, and it does not appear that the voters of the district had such knowledge, the district could not, if it desired, avail itself of the provisions contained in said chapter 248 of the Laws of 1878 until the next annual meeting of the district after such knowledge was discovered.

I find and decide that as no appeal has been taken from the said annual meeting, held in said district on August 22, 1893, that said meeting was a legal and valid meeting, and that the action and proceedings had and taken at said meeting are, and each of them is, legal and valid. That the respondents, as trustees of said district, had no legal authority to hold, declare or decide that the election of appellant as a trustee of said district, at said annual meeting of said district, was either illegal, invalid or void. That the action and proceedings had and taken at said special meeting of said district, held on September 19, 1893, so far as they relate to the election of a trustee, are, and each of them is, invalid and void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that the action and proceedings had and taken at a special meeting of school district no. 3, town of Ramapo, county of Rockland, on September 19, 1893, so far as they relate to the election of a trustee of said district, are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal, invalid and void.

It is further ordered that the respondents herein, as trustees of school district no. 3, town of Ramapo, county of Rockland, be, and they are, hereby directed to recognize the appellant herein, Albion Norris Fellows, as the legally elected trustee of said district and as duly elected as such trustee in place of James H. Cookson, whose term of office expired on August 22, 1893.

4240

In the matter of the appeal of Elias Bryant v. school district no. 3, Mount Pleasant, Westchester county.

Where four resolutions are submitted to a meeting of a school district, the first directing the board of education to purchase a new schoolhouse site, the second empowering the board to build a new schoolhouse on said site at a cost not to exceed $4500, the third that an amount of $6000 be raised by tax, payable in ten annual instalments, and the fourth empowering the sale of the present schoolhouse and site, and said four resolutions are voted not separately, but in gross and by vive voce vote. Held, that the action of the meeting was illegal and invalid.

Decided April 24, 1894

W. H. H. Ely, attorney for appellant

L. T. Yale, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action and decision of a special meeting of school district no. 3, town of Mount Pleasant, held on March 4, 1893, in the alleged adoption of four resolutions, as follows:

Resolved, That the board of education be empowered and instructed to purchase a new school site as follows: A tract of land on the south corner of Dayton and Highland avenues, with a frontage of 125 feet on Highland avenue and 262 feet on Dayton avenue, containing two-thirds of an acre, more or less, and to pay for the same the price of $1500.

Resolved, That the board of education be further empowered and instructed to build a new schoolhouse upon said site, according to such plans and specifications as the said board may approve, at a cost not to exceed $4500.

Resolved, That the amount of $6000 required for the foregoing purposes be raised by taxation in ten annual instalments of $600 each.

Resolved, That the board of education is hereby empowered to sell the present schoolhouse and site for an amount not less than $1500, said amount to be disposed of as may be determined by the annual meeting of the district next succeeding such sale.

The appeal is supported by the affidavit of the appellant and a large number of voters in said school district.

The appellant alleges several grounds of appeal, the principal ones being that the vote was taken upon the four resolutions together and by a viva voce vote.

The respondent has answered the appeal, and which answer is supported by the affidavit of the clerk of the district, and a copy of the proceedings of said special meeting as kept by the secretary thereof.

It appears that on or about February 9, 1893, a call for a special meeting of said district, to be held on March 4, 1893, was made and signed by four of the members of the board of education, to act upon the resolutions hereinbefore stated, and which notice was duly and legally given to the voters of said district; that about sixty persons assembled at the time and place named in said notice and organized by the election of a chairman, the clerk of the district acting as secretary; that the call for the meeting was read, whereupon statements were made, both for and against the resolutions set forth in the call for the meeting, by persons present; that a motion was made that the resolutions as read be adopted, and the chairman asked if the motion referred to one or all of such resolutions, and the reply was made that the motion referred to all of the resolutions as read; that the chairman then put the motion by stating: "You have heard the motion. All in favor say aye," upon which there was a response of "aye," and upon the chairman calling for the noes there was no response; that a Mr Acker thereupon handed a paper to the secretary of the meeting which the secretary handed to the chairman, and while the chairman was examining the paper a motion was made that the meeting adjourn, which motion was put by the chairman and declared by him as carried and the meeting adjourned.

In the affidavits presented by the appellant it is alleged that there were no statements made upon the matters embraced in the resolutions; that the vote taken at the meeting was not that the resolutions be adopted, but that "the call be adopted as read"; that no "nay" vote was asked for by the chairman.

I am of the opinion that motion voted upon was that the resolutions as read be adopted. It clearly appears that the resolutions were not voted upon separately, but in gross, and that the vote was a viva voce one. The first resolution was one changing the site and designating a new site, and directing its purchase by the board of education.

Section 20, title 7 of the school law requires that the site of the schoolhouse "shall not be changed unless a majority of all the legal voters of said district, present and voting, to be ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes, at a special meeting called for this purpose, shall be in favor of such new site." The intention of the statute is to preserve the record, not merely of the majority, but of those who constituted the majority of the legal voters of the district who were present and took part in the proceedings; the names of the voters, as well as the way they voted, must be recorded. This Department has held that the provisions of section 20, title 7, above cited, apply to action taken to change a site in a union free school district.

Aside from action to change a schoolhouse site, the voters at a meeting in a union free school district, may determine the method of voting upon questions coming before the meeting. This Department does not favor a viva voce vote upon any important question, and especially any question involving the expenditure of money or authorizing a tax. At a school meeting in any school district none but qualified voters should be permitted to participate in any manner in the deliberations had, and upon all important question the vote should be taken either by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes.

The adoption by the meeting of the four resolutions, namely, one changing a school site and designating a new site; one authorizing the construction of a new schoolhouse; one authorizing a tax of $6000, and one authorizing the sale of the school site and house in gross, and the failure to have such meeting pass upon each resolution separately was improper and such action was invalid and void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That so much of the action and proceedings of a special meeting, held on March 4, 1893, in school district no. 3, town of Mount Pleasant, Westchester county, alleged to have been had and taken, as relates to the change of a school site and designation of a new site; the building of a new schoolhouse; the raising of $6000 by taxation in instalments, and authorized the sale of the present schoolhouse and site, are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as invalid and void.

427I

In the matter of the appeal of Charles Lamoreaux and others, from proceedings of annual meeting held in district no. 7, town of Schoharie, Schoharie county, on August 7, 1894.

Where, at the annual meeting in the school districts of the State, the election of school district officers was not held in accordance with the provisions of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and an appeal is taken from the proceedings of such meeting relative to such election, such action and proceedings will be vacated and set aside and a special meeting ordered for the transaction of the business of the annual meeting of the district.

Decided October 5, 1894

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal, taken from the proceedings of the annual school meeting, held on August 7, 1894, in district no. 7, town of Schoharie, county of Schoharie. The principal irregularities related in the appeal are: That a suitable ballot box was not provided by the trustee; that in the election of district officers only one office, that of trustee, was elected by ballot; that the result of the vote for said trustee was not announced by the chairman of the meeting, but by one of the inspectors or tellers; that the ballots were defective in this, that said ballots contained only the name of the person voted for and not designating the office; that illegal votes were received, and that one person who was challenged was permitted to vote without making the declaration required by the school law, such challenge not having been withdrawn; that no poll list was kept; that the person who was elected collector of the district was also elected treasurer of the district, without any resolution having been adopted by the meeting to elect a treasurer; that the vote to raise money by tax, or making appropriations, was not taken as required by the school law. The appeal is verified, and a copy thereof duly served upon Daniel Waterbury, the person alleged to have been elected trustee of the district at said annual meeting. No answer has been made to the appeal, and I am in receipt of a letter written for said Waterbury, submitting the appeal to me for examination and decision.

The allegations contained in the appeal are deemed by me to be admitted by said Waterbury.

Subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, provides that all district officers shall be elected by ballot; that at elections of district officers the trustees shall provide a suitable ballot box; two inspectors of election shall be appointed in such manner as the meeting shall determine, who shall receive the votes cast, and canvass the same and announce the result of the ballot by the chairman; a poll list, containing the name of every person whose vote shall be received, shall be kept by the district clerk or the clerk for the time of the meeting; the ballots should be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for, and designating the office for which each is voted for; the chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot, as announced to him by the inspectors, and the persons having a majority of votes, respectively, for the several offices, shall be elected.

By the provisions of law above cited, a suitable ballot box shall be provided by the trustee. The law does not describe the kind of ballot box which shall be used, but the same shall be suitable for the purpose. Such ballot box should be, during the election of officers, in the possession of the inspectors of election, and each voter should deliver his or her ballot to such inspectors, or one of them, and when the name of the voter is recorded upon the poll list by the clerk, and the vote is not challenged, should be deposited in the ballot box by the inspector. The ballot should be written or printed, or partly written and partly printed, containing the name of the person voted for and designating the office for which each is voted for. This latter provision has especial reference to where all the district officers are elected upon one ballot. When each district office is balloted for separately, the ballot will be valid, having thereon only the name of the person voted for, as each voter has knowledge of the office for which the ballot is being taken, and the ballot is for that office only.

Section 11, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 specifies the qualifications which a resident of any school district of the State must possess to entitle such resident to vote in the district in which he or she resides. Any person to be entitled to vote must possess at least one of the qualifications specified in said section. Section 12, article 1, title 7 of said school law provides that any person offering to vote at any district meeting may be challenged by any qualified voter of such district, as unqualified, and when so challenged, such person shall be required by the chairman of the meeting to make the declaration specified in said section 12, and if said person makes such declaration he or she shall be permitted to vote; but if such person refuses to make such declaration his or her vote shall be rejected.

The treasurer of a common school district is a new officer provided for under the new Consolidated School Law of 1894. Under the provisions of subdivision 5 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of said law, at the annual meeting of any such district, or at any special meeting called for that purpose, the qualified voters therein are authorized to adopt a resolution by a majority of such voters present and voting, such vote to be ascertained by taking and recording the name of the voter and whether such voter votes aye or nay upon said resolution to elect a treasurer of said district. If said resolution is adopted the meeting shall thereupon elect by ballot a treasurer. No person shall be eligible to the office of treasurer unless he is a qualified voter in and a taxable inhabitant of said district. No district meeting can legally elect a treasurer of the district until a resolution shall be adopted to elect such treasurer in the manner above stated.

Under the school law no person can legally hold two district offices at one and the same time.

Under subdivision 18 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that in all propositions arising at said district meeting involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes, the vote thereon shall be by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the names of the voters and how each said voter votes, that is, either aye or no upon each proposition.

Under section 86, article 7, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 the collector of a district shall keep in his possession all moneys received or collected by him, and the same shall not be paid out by him except upon the written orders of a trustee or trustees, or a majority of said trustees; and any moneys remaining in his hands when his successor in office shall be elected and shall have executed a bond, shall be paid by him to his successor. He shall report in writing at the annual meeting his receipts and disbursements.

Under section 55, article 6, title 7 of said Consolidated School Law of 1894 the trustee or trustees of a district shall, at the annual meeting, render a just, full and true account in writing under his or their hand or hands, of all moneys received for the use of the district, or raised or collected by tax the preceding year, and the manner in which the same has been expended, etc.

At an annual school meeting the order of business shall be as follows:

To appoint a chairman of the meeting, and if the district clerk is absent, to appoint a clerk for the meeting; the trustee or trustees should present to the meeting his or their report, which should then be acted upon by the meeting; then the report of the collector should be presented and acted upon; then the trustee should present a statement of the amount of money needed for payment of teachers' wages, fuel, repairs, insurance, furniture, books for school library, hiring janitor, etc., etc., and the items should be voted upon and taxes ordered to be assessed in the manner hereinbefore stated; the meeting should then proceed to elect its district officers in the manner hereinbefore stated. Every district officer must be a resident of his or her district and qualified to vote at its meetings, and no person shall be eligible to hold any district office who can not read and write; but a treasurer of a district must also be a taxable inhabitant of said district.

It is clear that the actions and proceedings at the annual meeting, held on August 7, 1894, in district no. 7, town of Schoharie, were not in accordance with the provisions of the school law. I have stated thus fully what can be legally done at an annual school meeting, in order that there should be no want of information as to the action and proceedings which shall be taken at the special meeting which I shall direct to be called in said district, to transact the business of the annual meeting.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the action and proceedings had and taken at the annual school meeting held on August 7, 1894, in district no. 7, town of Schoharie, county of Schoharie, be and the same hereby are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That Daniel Waterbury, a qualified voter of said district, is hereby authorized and directed to forthwith call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district no. 7, town of Schoharie, county of Schoharie, entitled to vote at school meetings in said district, in the manner prescribed in sections 2 and 6 of article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, for the purpose of transacting the business of the annual meeting; such business to be conducted in the manner provided in title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and as stated in this decision; but no business shall be done or performed at such special meeting, other than that which, under said school law, could have been done or performed at said annual meeting on the first Tuesday of August 1894.

In the matter of the appeal of Joseph Seery from proceedings of a special meeting held September 4, 1894, in joint school district no. 8, towns of Lorraine and Worth, Jefferson county, in the election of a trustee.

At an annual school meeting when a vote is being taken upon the election of officers or motion or resolution and the right of a person offering to vote is challenged, it is the duty of the chairman of the meeting to require said person to make the declaration prescribed in section 12, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and said chairman has no right or authority to require said person to take an oath or answer any questions relative to his or her qualifications as a voter. Said chairman must entertain every challenge that is made; that in voting upon all resolutions involving the expenditure of money and authorizing the levy of taxes the vote thereon must be by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such meeting.

Decided November 5, 1894

A. T. & E. T. Saunders, attorneys for appellants

E. F. Ramsdell, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellant in the above-entitled matter appeals from the proceedings of a special meeting held on September 4, 1894, in joint school district no. 8, towns of Lorraine and Worth, Jefferson county, in the election of a trustee for said district.

The appellant alleges as grounds of appeal that legal notice of the time, place and object of such special meeting was not given to the inhabitants of said school district; that the person declared elected as chairman of said special meeting did not receive a majority of the votes given or cast; that two inspectors of election were not appointed to receive the votes cast and to canvass the same, and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman; that a correct list of the persons whose votes were received was not kept by the clerk of the meeting; that the ballots for the appellant had his name thereon with the words "for trustee," while the ballots for his opponent for said office had the name of his opponent only; that the ballots for the appellant were wider than those of his opponent, and folded, and that the chairman, when such folded ballots were handed to him, opened and read them; that when the balloting was completed the chairman alone counted the ballots and announced the result; that the chairman, when the right to vote by friends of the opponent of appellant was challenged, except in one instance, refused to entertain such challenge, and required the person so challenged to make the declaration required by the school law; but when the friends of the appellant offering to vote were challenged, such challenges were entertained; that in no instance where the right of a person to vote was challenged, did the chairman require such person to make the declaration required by the school law, but required said persons in substance to swear that he or she would make true answers touching his or her right to vote, and would then interrogate such person as to his or her qualifications as a voter; that certain persons were permitted to vote who were not qualified voters in the district.

The appeal is supported by the affidavits of a large number of persons. An answer to the appeal has been made denying most of the allegations in the appeal, which answer is supported by a large number of affidavits. A reply has been made to the answer. The papers are quite voluminous and very contradictory.

The following facts, however, are admitted: that two inspectors of election, to receive the votes cast and canvass the same, and announce the result to the chairman, were not appointed; that a correct list of the names of every person whose vote was received was not kept by the clerk of the meeting; that when the right of a person offering to vote was challenged, the chairman did not require such person to make the declaration required by the school law.

In subdivision 4 of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that "two inspectors of election shall be appointed in such manner as the meeting shall determine, who shall receive the votes cast, and canvass the same, and announce the result of the ballot to the chairman.

. . . The chairman shall declare to the meeting the result of each ballot, as announced to him by the inspectors, and the persons having the majority of votes respectively for the several offices shall be elected."

The provision relating to the appointment of two inspectors of election, of the school law, is mandatory upon school district meetings in the election of district officers. It is not optional with a meeting to appoint such inspectors or not, nor can such meeting refuse or neglect to appoint such inspectors, but on the contrary the meeting must appoint them. At an election of district officer or officers, the chairman of the meeting has no authority, under the school law, to receive a single ballot cast by any voter, nor to canvass the ballots cast for district officers.

It is admitted that when the polls of the election were closed and the votes counted there were 44 votes cast, and the names of but 36 persons upon the poll list, an excess of 8 votes. This is a remarkable showing in a poll of but 44 votes, and to my mind is conclusive evidence of carelessness, at least, upon the part of the clerk of the meeting.

Section 12, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 enacts: "If any person offering to vote at any school district meeting shall be challenged as unqualified by any legal voter in such district, the chairman presiding at such meeting shall require the person so offering to vote to make the following declaration: 'I do declare and affirm that I am, and have been for thirty days last past, an actual resident of the school district, and that I am qualified to vote at this meeting'; and any person making such declaration shall be permitted to vote on all questions proposed at such meeting; but if any person shall refuse to make such declaration, his or her vote shall be rejected."

The statute above quoted is perfectly plain, and is mandatory upon the chairman at every district meeting. When at a school district meeting, the right to vote of any person offering to vote is challenged by any legal voter of said district, the chairman must entertain such challenge. The chairman must, upon such challenge require the person offering to vote to make the declaration stated in the school law, and if such person makes such declaration the inspectors of election must receive the vote of such person; but if the person challenged refuses to make the said declaration the vote of such person can not be received by said inspectors of election. The chairman of a district meeting, when a person offering to vote is challenged, has not the right or authority, nor has any other person the right or authority, to administer to such person or to require such person to take any oath whatever, nor to ask any person so challenged any questions whatever, relative to his or her qualifications as a voter, but solely and simply to require the person to make the declaration required by the school laws.

The record of the proceedings of the meeting kept by the district clerk should show the names of every person challenged and the fact as to whether such person made the declaration required by the school law.

It is clear, from the admitted facts in this appeal, that in the matter of challenges as to the right to vote at such special meeting, the action of the chairman was unauthorized and illegal.

Sufficient cause has been established by facts admitted in this appeal, relative to the manner in which said special meeting, held on September 4, 1894, was conducted to make it imperative upon me to vacate and set aside the proceedings had and taken at said meeting in the election of a trustee and to order that a special meeting be called to elect a trustee for said district.

School district officers and the qualified voters in school districts should understand, that in the calling of special school meetings, the organization of such meetings, when duly assembled, and in the action and proceedings had and taken at such annual or special meetings in the election of district officers, the voting upon resolutions involving the expenditure of money and authorizing the levy of taxes, the provisions of the Consolidated School Law, relative to such matters, must be obeyed, or upon appeal such action and proceedings had and taken not in accordance with, or in obedience to, the provisions of said law will be vacated and set aside.

From the view taken by me in this appeal, it is not necessary for me to attempt to reconcile the contradictory statements contained in the affidavits presented, in relation to the other various grounds, alleged by the appellant herein, for his appeal.

I will, however, state for the information of the voters in said district that under the Consolidated School Law, when a special meeting of a district is called, the notice of such meeting must state the purposes for which it is called, and no business shall be transacted at such special meeting, except that which is specified in the notice. That the qualified voters of any district may, at any annual meeting, adopt a resolution prescribing some mode of giving notices of special meetings. If no such resolution shall be adopted at an annual meeting, such notice of such special meeting must be made as prescribed in section 2, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, namely: The clerk or inhabitant shall notify every inhabitant of the district qualified to vote, by reading the notice in his or her hearing, or in case of his or her absence from home, by leaving a copy thereof, or so much thereof as relates to the time, place and object of the meeting, at the house of his or her abode at least six days before the time of the meeting.

The method of electing a chairman of a district meeting by a viva voce vote, or the uplifted hand, except where there is no opposition to the person placed in nomination, is not approved. By such methods of election persons not qualified may vote. The election should be by ballot or by taking and recording the names of the persons voting and setting opposite to each how he or she votes.

As heretofore stated by me, a chairman of a district meeting at which an officer or officers of the district is or are elected, can not receive the ballots from the persons voting, but such ballots must be presented to, and be received by, one of the two inspectors of election. No chairman of such meeting, nor any inspector of election has any legal right or authority to open a ballot handed to him by any voter, nor to examine or read such ballot, nor to open such ballots for the purpose of ascertaining whether two or more votes are folded together. After the polls at the election are closed said inspectors should proceed to canvass the votes, first counting the ballots found in the ballot box without unfolding them, except so far as to ascertain that each ballot is single, and then comparing the ballots found in the ballot box with the number shown by the poll list to have been deposited therein. If the ballots found in the box shall be more than the number of ballots shown by the poll list to have been deposited therein, such ballots shall be replaced, without being unfolded, in the box from which they were taken and one of the inspectors shall, without seeing the same, publicly draw out as many ballots as shall be equal to such excess and, without unfolding them, destroy them. If two or more ballots shall be found in the ballot box so folded together as to present the appearance of a single ballot, they shall be destroyed if the whole number of ballots in such box exceeds the whole number of ballots shown by the poll list to have been deposited therein, and not otherwise.

This Department has uniformly held that any qualified voter of a district, present at a meeting, knowing a person at such meeting to be unqualified, and permitting him or her to vote without challenge, will not be allowed to object to the proceedings of the meeting because such unqualified person participated in such proceedings. It is also well settled that proceedings of a meeting will not be vitiated by illegal votes unless a different result would have been produced by excluding such votes. To warrant setting aside an election on the ground that illegal votes were received, it must affirmatively appear that the successful ticket received a number of illegal votes which, if rejected, would have brought it down to a minority. It is incumbent, in case of an appeal, upon the appellant not only to allege the illegal voting or the disqualification of certain persons, but to show by evidence the lack of qualifications of certain persons in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that the voter could be qualified under any of the heads stated in section 11, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That all action and proceedings had and taken at the special school meeting held on September 4, 1894, in joint school district no. 8, towns of Lorraine and Worth, Jefferson county, in the election of a trustee for said district, be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered, That the district clerk of said joint school district no. 8, towns of Lorraine and Worth, Jefferson county, be and he hereby is, authorized and directed to forthwith call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district, qualified to vote at the school meetings in said district, for the purpose of electing a trustee of said district. That notice of the time, place and object of said special meeting be served upon each of the inhabitants of said district qualified to vote at said special meeting, at least six days before the time of such meeting, in the manner prescribed by section 2, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894. That the proceedings had and taken at such special meeting, when assembled, shall be in accordance with, and pursuant to, the provisions of section 14, article 1, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

It is further ordered, That immediately upon the organization of said special meeting said district clerk shall read this decision and order to said meeting, or cause the same to be read to said meeting.

4370

In the matter of the appeal of Truman H. Cox from proceedings of annual school meeting held on August 6, 1895, in union free school district no. 1, town of Lee, Oneida county, in voting a tax.

Where in a union free school district at the annual meeting the vote to appropriate the sum of $450 and authorizing a tax to be levied to collect the same, the vote was taken viva voce and not by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such meeting; held, that the action of the meeting was illegal and void, and in direct contravention of the provisions of section 10, article 2, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

Decided September 20, 1895

W. L. Wilson, attorney for appellant

A. T. Wilkinson, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent.

This appeal, although taken from the ruling of the chairman of the annual meeting held on August 6, 1895, in union free school district no. 1, town of Lee, Oneida county, is in fact from the action and proceedings of said meeting in voting a tax upon the said district by a viva voce vote. .

An answer to the appeal has been made by Henry S. Hall, the chairman of said meeting. The uncontroverted facts established by the papers filed herein are:

That at the annual meeting of said union free school district no. 1, town of Lee, Oneida county, Henry S. Hall was chosen chairman; that a statement made by the president and clerk of the board of education of said district of the receipts and disbursements for conducting the schools in said district for the school year of 1895-96 was presented to the meeting by the president of the board, by which it appeared that it was necessary to raise the sum of $450 by tax upon the taxable property in said district for school purposes for said school year; that a viva voce vote being about to be taken by said meeting to authorize the levy of a tax for said sum of $450 the appellant herein demanded that the vote directing or authorizing the levy of a tax must be taken by ballot or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of the qualified voters attending and voting at such meeting, but no action was taken thereon, and subsequently a resolution was adopted that a viva voce vote be taken upon appropriating said $450 and authorizing a tax to be levied to collect the same, which was done.

In section 10, article 2, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, which became operative on June 30, 1894, relative to annual or special school meetings in union free school districts other than those whose limits correspond with an incorporated village or city, it is enacted that "on all propositions arising at said meetings involving the expenditure of money or authorizing the levy of a tax or taxes in one sum or in instalments, the vote thereon shall be by ballot, or ascertained by taking and recording the ayes and noes of such qualified voters attending and voting at such meetings."

The action of the annual school meeting in union free school district no. 1, town of Lee, Oneida county, by a viva voce vote, appropriating the sum of $450 for school purposes or authorizing the levy of a tax of $450, was illegal and void, and in direct contravention of the provisions of the school law. Such action by said meeting conferred no authority upon the board of education of said school district to assess, levy and collect any tax for said $450 or any part thereof, and any tax list and assessment for said sum, made and issued by said board, upon an appeal would be vacated.

The board of education should call a special meeting of the qualified voters of the district for the purpose of voting in accordance with said provisions of law, an appropriation of money for school purposes and authorizing the assessment and levy of tax to raise the sum so appropriated.

The appeal herein is sustained.

4399

In the matter of the appeal of Delos Wentworth, A. M. Bliss and Peter Hess from proceedings of special school meeting held on September 6, 1895, in district no. 6, town of German Flats, Herkimer county.

Where the clerk of a school district did not serve or attempt to serve the notices of a special meeting called for September 6, 1895, until September 2, 1895; held, that no lawful notice of said meeting was served upon the qualified voters of said district, and said special meeting was illegal and void.

Decided October 31, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the action of a special school meeting held on September 6, 1895, in school district no. 6, town of German Flats, Herkimer county, in the election of a trustee of said district.

Two grounds are alleged in said appeal as reasons why said appeal is brought, namely, first, that said school meeting, being a special school meeting, was not legally called, and that notice of said meeting was not legally served upon the inhabitants of said district qualified to vote at its school meetings; and second, that persons not qualified voters of said district voted at said meeting.

An answer has been made by Thomas Muldoon to said appeal, and to the answer the appellants have filed a reply, and to the reply the respondent has filed a rejoinder.

The following facts are established:

That at the annual school meeting held in said district on August 6, 1895, one James Golden was elected trustee; that subsequently and prior to August 31, 1895, said Golden sent his resignation of said office of trustee to Ellis D. Elwood, School Commissioner, and said Elwood accepted said resignation and sent to one James M. Petrie, the district clerk of said district, an order to call a special meeting of said district to be held on the evening of September 6, 1895, for the election of a trustee to fill the vacancy in said office by reason of the said resignation of Golden; that said order was received by said Petrie on August 31, 1895, but (as Petrie alleges) too late for him to write out said notices and serve them on said August 31, 1895; that on September 2, 1895, said Petrie, as said district clerk, served notice of said special meeting to be held on September 6, 1895, upon the inhabitants of said district qualified to vote at the school meetings in said district.

It clearly appears that said Petrie did not serve said notice of said special meeting for September 6, 1895, or attempt to serve said notice until September 2, 1895.

Under section 6, of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law it is enacted that a notice of a special school meeting shall be served upon each inhabitant of the district qualified to vote at the school meetings therein in the manner prescribed in section 2, of said article and title at least five days before the day of meeting. In computing said time of five days the first day, that is, the day on which the time begins to run, is to be excluded. Petrie, if he could not serve said notice on August 31, 1895, should have at once notified School Commissioner Elwood so that said Elwood could have fixed a later date for said special meeting.

The provisions of section 7, article 1, title 7, of said school law enacting that the proceedings of no district meeting, annual or special, shall be held illegal for want of a due notice to all the persons qualified to vote thereat, unless it shall appear that the omission to give such notice was wilful and fraudulent, is applicable only where an attempt is made to give the notice required by law to any of the inhabitants, and through accident or mistake said legal notice was not served upon all of said inhabitants. In the appeal at bar Petrie made no attempt whatever to serve notice of said meeting until September 2, 1895.

It appears that Golden resigned the office of trustee and forwarded such resignation to Commissioner Elwood, who accepted the same. Commissioner Elwood should have forwarded such resignation and his acceptance thereof to the district clerk Petrie whose duty it was to have filed the same in his office, and then, under subdivision 10, of article 4, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law, to call a special meeting of said district for the purpose of electing a trustee to fill such vacancy in said office.

I am clearly of the opinion that said special meeting of said district was illegal and void for the reason that no legal notice of such meeting was served upon the inhabitants of said district qualified to vote at such school meetings therein.

I do therefore find and decide that said special meeting held on September 6, 1895, in said district was not a legal school meeting for the reason that there was no legal service of a notice of said meeting upon the legal voters in said district, and that proceedings had and taken at said meeting were illegal and void.

In the view taken by me in the disposition of this appeal it is not necessary that I should examine or decide as to the second ground of appeal.

For the information and guidance of the voters of said district I state that section 11, of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law prescribes the qualifications necessary to entitle a person to vote at school district meetings.

By the provisions of said section, there are four classes of persons entitled to vote at school district meetings in this State. First, every person of full age who is a citizen of the United States and a resident of the district, and who has resided therein for a period of thirty days next preceding the meeting at which he or she offers to vote, and who owns or hires, or is in the possession under a contract of purchase, of real property in such district liable to taxation for school purposes. Second, every resident of the district, and who has resided therein for a period of thirty days next preceding the meeting at which he or she offers to vote, who is a citizen of the United States, 21 years of age, and who is a parent of a child of school age, provided such child shall have attended the district school (in the district in which the meeting is held), for a period of at least eight weeks within one year preceding such school meeting. Third, every resident of the district, and who has resided therein for a period of thirty days next preceding the meeting at which he or she offers to vote, who is a citizen of the United States, 21 years of age, not being a parent, who shall have permanently residing with him or her a child of school age, which shall have attended the district school in said district for a period of at least eight weeks within one year preceding such school meeting. Fourth, every resident of the district, and who has resided therein for a period of thirty days next preceding the meeting at which he or she offers to vote, who is a citizen of the United States, 21 years of age, who owns any personal property, assessed on the last preceding assessment roll of the town, exceeding $50 in value, exclusive of such as is exempt from execution.

In either of said classes the voter may be male or female. In the first, third and fourth classes, the voter may be either married or single. In the second class, both father and mother are entitled to vote. In the third class (cases of children residing with others than their parents), the phrase "him or her" in the statute must be held to limit the suffrage to one person only and that the head of the household. Therefore, where husband and wife, living together, have such a child or children residing with them, and are not the parents of such child or children, the wife is not on that account entitled to vote, although she may be a voter by reason of possessing one or more of the other qualifications mentioned in the statute. Any person qualified as aforesaid to vote at any school meeting can vote upon all questions brought before the meeting for consideration including propositions to raise money by tax, etc., etc.

I further state that it is the duty of any legal voter at any school meeting when any person, whom he knows or has reason to believe, is not a legal voter, offers his or her vote, to challenge such vote; that it is then the duty of the chairman of the meeting to require the person so offering to vote, to make the declaration contained in section 12 article 1, title 7 of said Consolidated School Law of 1894. If the person makes the declaration his or her vote must be received; but if the person refuses to make the declaration his or her vote must be rejected. Any person who wilfully makes a false declaration shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

It does not appear from the papers herein that any person offering to vote at such special meeting was challenged. This Department has held that a party knowing a person to be unqualified and permitting him or her to vote without challenge will not be allowed upon appeal, to object to the proceedings of the meeting because said unqualified person or persons participated in them.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the special meeting held on September 6, 1895, in school district no. 6, town of German Flats, Herkimer county, and all action and proceedings had and taken thereat be, and the same are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That the district clerk of said district call a special meeting of the inhabitants of said school district, qualified to vote at school meetings therein, and that personal service of the notice of the time and place and object of said meeting, upon each qualified voter of said district be made at least six days prior to the time of said meeting, the business to be transacted at said special meeting being to elect a trustee of said district to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of said James Golden.

It does not follow of course that a petition to the trustees for a special meeting, however numerous signed, is to be granted.

Decided June 15, 1861

Keyes, Acting Superintendent

On appeal from the refusal of the trustee to call a special meeting, on the application of a majority of the voters of the district, it appears that the object of a new meeting is to rescind the action of a previous meeting changing the site and voting a tax to build a new house. The meeting which took this action was well attended, every voter in the district being present but one, and the vote in favor of the resolution to change the site was confirmed by 21 to 7.

The petition to call a new meeting bears date more than two months after the above decisive action had been taken. Meantime, the trustees had completed their tax list, and, at the least, had entered into negotiations concerning the sale of the old house and site. It is remarked by the counsel for the appellants that it would seem as though an application for a school meeting, made by a clear majority of the legal voters of the district, ought upon the face of it to be granted. The general principle enunciated is, doubtless, in its broad and unrestricted sense, true; but, in its application to individual instances, it may, in a majority of cases, be found unwise and unjust, for the reason that it is scarcely possible to recognize, in the statement of such general principles, the thousand and one conditions that render it inapplicable.

I can conceive of no good resulting from an effort at so late a day to disturb what has been so deliberately and fairly and decisively determined. If it is true that so large a number of the voters have changed their minds, it betrays a fickleness and instability of purpose that give little assurance that proceedings had at any future meeting will be permitted to rest.

I regard the discretion of the trustee as judiciously exercised, and the appeal is, therefore, dismissed.

4203

In the matter of the appeal of Owen Mathews, from proceedings of the annual meeting, held in union free school district no. 2, Flatbush, Kings county.

A person present at a school meeting, knowing a person offering to vote not to be qualified and permitting him to vote without challenge, will not be allowed to object to the proceedings of the meeting, because such unqualified person participated therein. Where an appeal is brought from the action of a meeting in the election of trustees, on the ground that the persons are not eligible to the office, the appellant must show by competent legal proof that the persons alleged by him not to be qualified voters did not possess such qualification in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such voters could not be qualified under section 12 of title 7 of the school law.

Decided November 18, 1893

John E. Simpson, attorney for respondents

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the action and proceedings of the annual meeting held in union free school district no. 2, Flatbush, Kings county, on August 22, 1893, in the election of Edward R. Bennett and Oscar L. Steves, as trustees of said district.

The appeal contains thirteen allegations as grounds for appeal, the principal ones being that the meeting was conducted without any regard to the rights of the qualified voters of the district; that the chairman was not elected by a majority of the qualified voters present and voting; that the chairman refused to entertain the challenges duly made; that the chairman threatened to expel, and instructed a police officer to expel, from the meeting a qualified voter for challenging a person offering to vote, and accepted the vote of such person without requiring him to make the declaration required by law; that illegal votes were cast, and that neither the said Bennett nor the said Steves, declared to be elected trustees, was a qualified voter in the district. Affidavits of a large number of persons have been filed in support of the appeal.

An answer to the appeal has been interposed by Messrs Bennett and Steves and the affidavits of a large number of persons filed in support of the answer.

It appears that the annual meeting held in said district on August 22, 1893, was largely attended and much feeling in the result of the election of trustees was manifested, and while the meeting was not as quiet as one would desire, it was not riotous or boisterous and no qualified voter was obstructed in the exercise of his right or prevented from voting at the meeting. That said meeting was called to order by John W. Buckley, then one of the trustees of said district, and one Evans and one Graham were each nominated for chairman, and upon a viva voce vote Evans was declared elected, whereupon an appeal was taken and a division of the house demanded and had, and upon a count Evans received 98 votes and Graham 90 votes. That Edward R. Bennett and Joseph Nettleton were nominated for trustees for three years and ballot taken, which resulted in Bennett receiving 86 votes and Nettleton receiving 84 votes. That during said ballot the appellant herein occupied a position at which he could see each person offering to vote and challenged the vote of two persons, namely: W. Hurst and Patrick Cassidy, and that two persons were challenged by the supporters of Bennett, and after the attention of the chairman of the meeting was called to the qualifications of each of the persons challenged in the presence of the person making the challenge, the said challenges were not pressed. That Oscar L. Steves and Edward Levine were nominated as trustee for one year and a ballot taken, which resulted in Steves receiving 107 votes and Levine 49.

The main grounds upon which this appeal is brought are, that Bennett and Steves are not, nor is either of them, eligible to the office of trustee, and that they were elected by the votes of persons not qualified voters of the district.

Section 24 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Laws of 1864, as amended, provides: "Every district and neighborhood officer must be a resident of his district or neighborhood and qualified to vote at its meetings." Section 12 of title 7 contains the qualifications necessary to qualify a person to vote at school district meetings. Section 13 of title 7 provides that if any person offering to vote at any school district meeting shall be challenged as unqualified by a legal voter of the district, the chairman, presiding at such meeting, shall require the person so offering, to make the declaration stated in said section, and if the person makes the declaration, he or she shall be permitted to vote; but if he or she refuse to make the declaration, his or her vote shall be rejected.

The appellant alleges in his appeal that Bennett and Steves were ineligible to hold the office of trustee because they were not qualified voters in the district, and that they were elected as trustees by illegal votes.

The burden is upon the appellant to sustain his appeal by the preponderance of proof.

The respondents, Bennett and Steves, are not required to show affirmatively that they are eligible to the office of trustee, and that the persons who voted for them are qualified voters of the district; but the appellant must show by competent legal proof that the persons alleged by him not to be qualified voters, did not possess such qualifications in such terms as necessarily to exclude every presumption that such voters could not be qualified under section 12 of title 7 of the school law.

It appears that the appellant challenged but two persons, and it appears by the proofs that he did not insist upon such challenges. He alleges that many other persons who voted were not qualified voters; but it does not appear that he challenged any of them. A party knowing a person to be unqualified, and permitting him to vote without challenge, will not be allowed to object to the proceedings of the meeting because such unqualified person participated in them.

The appellant, in addition to establishing, as above stated, that the persons claimed by him were not qualified voters, must, in order to set aside the election of said Bennett and Steves as trustees, also show that said unqualified persons voted for said Bennett and Steves, and that had their votes been excluded said Bennett and Steves would not have been elected.

In my opinion the appellant has failed to sustain his appeal herein by a preponderance of proof, and the appeal should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

NORMAL SCHOOLS

3994

In the matter of the appeal of Abraham M. Hasbrouck v. school district no. 1 of the town of New Paltz, in the county of Ulster.

The relations between district no. 1, New Paltz, Ulster county, and the New Paltz Normal School. The trustee directed as to his duty, under the provisions of chapter 54, Laws of 1891.

Decided September 7, 1891

Linson & Van Buren, attorneys for appellants

Draper, Superintendent

Chapter 54 of the Laws of 1891 provides for the admission of all children of school age in district no. 1, of the town of New Paltz, as pupils in the practice department of the New Paltz State Normal School, and for discharging the indebtedness and winding up the affairs of said district. It forbids any future alteration of the boundaries of the district, except by the Legislature, and directs that State school moneys apportioned to the district in 1891 and thereafter, shall be paid to the board of managers of the normal school. In section 5 the act provides that "the present district officers, shall continue in their respective offices and discharge their duties pertaining thereto until any and all present indebtedness of said district shall be liquidated, and thereafter no school district meeting shall be held nor school district officers chosen, and all school moneys remaining to the credit of said district after the liquidation of said indebtedness shall be paid over to the local board of managers of the State Normal School located at New Paltz."

The reason of this legislation is obvious. It was necessary in order to provide the needed practice department for a State normal school which has been located in a small country village. Without it a normal school at that point must apparently be discontinued. On the other hand, it would provide a better school for the children of the district than had previously been afforded, and that without any cost whatever to the people of the district. The arrangement was mutually advantageous. It is within the official knowledge of the Superintendent that the great majority — probably four-fifths or nine-tenths — of the substantial residents of the district so regarded it, petitioned for its enactment and earnestly desire its complete execution.

Indeed, several years prior to the passage of the act above referred to, the district at its annual school meeting authorized substantially the same arrangement as that provided in the act with the authorities of the normal school, and it had been consummated and was in satisfactory operation, when through the failure of any general attendance at the annual meeting in 1890, John Clingan, a man whose correspondence with this office shows him to be of very limited intelligence and education, was chosen trustee and at once set about defying the wishes of the district and overturning the agreement referred to. Although the district school had been closed for several years he proceeded to employ teachers and reopen it. This rendered legislation necessary, and the will of the district was manifested so strongly in its favor that the Legislature acted promptly and emphatically in the matter.

The duty imposed upon the district officers and particularly upon the trustee, by this act, is plain. It was to forthwith wind up the affairs of the district, settle the debts accrued or binding upon the district at the time of its passage, March 10, 1891, and pay any moneys remaining on hand to the managers of the normal school. Their offices were continued only long enough to enable this to be done.

Instead of doing this the trustee has continually delayed and prevented the statute from having its intended effect. He has unreasonably delayed the collection of taxes necessary to the payment of the indebtedness of the district. Then pretending to move in the matter he has included in his tax list sums which he had no right to collect and which were no legal charge against the district, even attempting to raise money to pay himself for services. When given directions from this Department as to how he should proceed he has ignored them. While the statute hereinbefore referred to, contemplated that no more district meetings should be held unless in the possible contingency of a vacancy in the office of trustee before the affairs of the district should be closed up, Clingan and a few adherents assumed to hold an annual meeting August 4, 1891, at which he was reelected and other officers were chosen. It was also assumed at this meeting that the district school was to be continued. Taxes were pretended to be authorized to pay teachers' wages for the next year, and other things were done indicating a clear intention to ignore and overthrow the legislative act.

From the proceedings of this pretended school meeting this appeal is taken. The papers were served upon the trustee August 12th, and although the rules required him to answer within ten days, he has made no answer. In acting upon the matter I have felt justified in placing upon the record a somewhat full statement of the whole matter, as not only set forth in the appellant's papers but derived from my official knowledge of the circumstances as they have transpired.

There is no argumentative reasoning necessary in the premises. A mere statement of the case carries its own conclusion. The trustee was bound, at once upon the passage of the act, to proceed to determine the amount of the legal indebtedness of the district and to raise the money, by legal process, for discharging the same. He had no power to create any new indebtedness. No meetings were to be held and no new officers were to be chosen. His unlawful course has been tolerated longer than it would have been if there had not been uncertainty as to whether it was due to viciousness more than ignorance, and if there had not been a desire to guide and aid him if ignorance was the cause of his strange action. It can be tolerated no longer on any ground. He must forthwith proceed to execute the provisions of the statute or be removed from office, that one may be named who can and will.

The appeal is sustained. The proceedings of the pretended school meeting held in the district August 4, 1891, and all acts in pursuance thereof are declared to be unlawful, void and of no effect. The trustee is ordered to take no steps looking to the continued maintenance of a district school in the district and to enter into no agreement entailing any obligation upon the district. He will forthwith proceed to determine the amount of the indebtedness of the district due or incurred upon the 10th day of March 1891, and to apply any moneys now standing to the credit of the district to the payment of the same, so far as the same may be legally applicable thereto. If there are not sufficient moneys on hand for that purpose he will forthwith issue his tax list and warrant for the collection of the deficiency and as soon as collected he will fully and completely pay and discharge the indebtedness of the district. The said John Clingan, trustee, will also show before me at the Department of Public Instruction at the Capitol in the city of Albany, on Tuesday, September 29, 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day what proceedings he has taken in fulfillment of the terms of this order and if it shall then appear that he has not proceeded promptly, intelligently and in good faith to obey the same, he will show cause at said time and place why he should not be removed from the office of trustee. The appellant or his attorneys may also attend at said time.

3998

In the matter of the appeal of Abraham M. Hasbrouck v. John Clingan, trustee of school district no. 1, in the town of New Paltz, in the county of Ulster.

The relations of district no. 1, New Paltz, Ulster county, and the New Paltz normal school.

Wages of teachers employed by trustee in disregard of agreement between district and normal school prior to passage of chapter 54, Laws of 1891. Held, to be a legal charge against the district.

Decided September 11, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

On the 19th day of December 1890, this appeal was taken for the purpose of testing the right of the respondent to employ teachers and continue the operation of a public school under his auspices in the district above named. The ground upon which the appellant proceeds is that at the annual school meeting held in the district, in August 1887, it was determined to pass the control of the district school over to the managers of the State normal and training school located in the district. This proposition was accepted by said managers who, with the approval of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, agreed to assume charge of the school and furnish all needed instruction therein. The district was also to pay to the State normal school the sum of $800 annually, including in said sum the amount of State school moneys apportioned to said district. The arrangement here outlined was entered upon; the trustee relinquishing his authority and control over the school and the managers of the normal school assuming the same. The arrangement was considered mutually advantageous, because it furnished a practice department for the normal school, without which it was impossible for the normal school to proceed, and it supplied local school facilities to the district better than it had previously enjoyed. At the annual school meetings in 1888, 1889 and 1890 the arrangement was ratified and continued by the district meetings. From the time the agreement was made in 1887 up to the close of the school year of 1889 and 1890, the managers of the normal school conducted a school in the schoolhouse in said district, pursuant to said agreement. The agreement referred to was ratified and continued by a unanimous vote at the school meeting held August 5, 1890. Upon the day following said school meeting the respondent, John Clingan, was elected trustee of the district. In disregard of the action of the several district meetings referred to, the appellant alleges that the said Clingan proceeded to employ teachers and incur other expenses for the maintenance of said school, and on or about the 28th day of November 1890, issued his tax list and warrant for the collection of said expenses.

From this tax list and warrant this appeal is taken. The respondent served his answer to said appeal on the 13th day of January 1891. He admits the statements of the appellant to be true in all essential particulars, but claims that the agreement made between the district and the managers of the normal school was not authorized by law and is therefore void; and that his contracts in the employment of teachers for said district are valid and binding thereon.

Chapter 54 of the Laws of 1891, has largely disposed of the matter. As has been stated by me in another appeal relating to the same subject and decided upon the 7th day of September 1891, said chapter 54 provides that all pupils of school age in said district shall be eligible to the privileges of the practice department of said State normal school, free of tuition; that the local board of managers of the normal school shall make a statistical report to the school commissioner in whose school commissioner district said school district is located; and that school moneys shall be apportioned to said school district upon the basis of said statistical report, and paid to the managers of said normal school; that the boundaries of said district shall not thereafter be altered except by act of the Legislature; that the present district officers of said district shall continue for the purpose of liquidating the indebtedness which existed or had been incurred at the time of the passage of said act, March 10, 1891; and that thereafter no district meetings should be held and no officers chosen in said district; and that all moneys remaining to the credit of the district after the liquidation of said indebtedness shall be paid over to the board of managers of said normal school. The effect of this act is to take the management and control of the affairs of the district, as well as the custody of the property of the district, from the trustee thereof and vest the same in the managers of the State normal school. The time has now passed within which the trustee of said district could, in any event, have properly been in possession of district property and could have properly continued to maintain a district school therein, because any agreement for the employment of teachers entered into prior to the passage of said act, would by operation of law have by this time expired and terminated.

The main question raised in this appeal, however, remains to be determined, and that is, whether the agreements between the district and the normal school prior to the passage of the statute above referred to, were valid and binding upon the district and its trustee; or in other words, whether the act of the trustee in employing teachers and in otherwise incurring expense for the maintenance of a district school, during the school year of 1890 and 1891 in disregard of said agreement, was binding upon the district.

The law of this State jealously guards the authority of trustees touching the employment of teachers. So careful is it in this particular, that a trustee may employ any duly licensed teacher, regardless of the wishes of his district, and he may also agree with said teacher as to the amount of compensation for his services, regardless of the wishes of the district. While it is apparent that the trustee in this case pursued a course which the district meeting in four successive years had determined he should not pursue; while in the employment of teachers and the opening of the school he overthrew an arrangement which was actually in operation and satisfactory to the people of the district, I am nevertheless of the opinion, that he had legal authority for so doing, and that his act must be upheld. It therefore follows that the district must pay for the services of the teachers employed by him, prior to the passage of chapter 54 of the Laws of 1891.

For the purpose of promoting the speedy settlement of the affairs of said district, it is determined:

First, that the authority to maintain a school in said district, or to make contracts relating thereto and the custody of the property thereof, has passed from the trustee and become vested in the managers of the normal school.

Second, that the only remaining duty of the trustee is to determine the indebtedness existing or incurred on the 10th day of March 1891, and to raise the money by tax and pay the same.

Third, that in said indebtedness the trustee may include the wages of teachers and necessary expenses incurred by him prior to March 10, 1891.

Fourth, that public moneys apportioned to the district and paid to the managers of the normal school under chapter 54, Laws of 1891, can not be used to pay any portion of the wages of teachers or other indebtedness of said district.

Without passing upon the several items included in the tax list appealed from, or considering the precise form thereof, it is manifest that the same can not include an amount sufficient to discharge all of the indebtedness of said district. If it was to be upheld, another would become necessary and at once. There should not be two outstanding tax lists at the same time.

The appeal is therefore dismissed so far as the validity of the employment of teachers or the payment of their wages may be concerned, but the trustee is directed to withdraw the tax list appealed from, restore any moneys collected thereunder to the persons from whom collected, cancel and destroy the same and issue a new tax list and warrant, as directed by my order of September 7, 1891, which order will, in all particulars, continue to have full force and effect.

OFFICERS

3958

In the matter of the appeal of David S. Kirkpatrick and others v. Melvin G. Russell as trustee of school district no. 20, town of Queensbury, county of Warren.

A district trustee assumed to appoint a district collector in place of the one legally elected, declaring the office vacant without requiring the elected officer to give bonds; held, illegal and of no effect as no vacancy existed.

Grounds of complaint stated in an indefinite manner will not be considered.
Decided February 6, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

The above-named appellant, David S. Kirkpatrick, was elected district collector at the annual school meeting held in district no. 20, town of Queensbury, county of Warren, August 5, 1890. Without requiring said collector to file a bond, the respondent, the trustee, has assumed to declare the office of collector vacant, and appointed one Archibald Tubbs to that position, thereupon issuing to said Tubbs a trustee's warrant and tax list, and said Tubbs has assumed to enforce the same. Grounds are also alleged by appellants relative to the illegal assessment of property by the respondent, as trustee, but in an indefinite manner, and it does not appear that appellants are in any manner affected or injured by such action.

The enforcement of the tax list and warrant has been enjoined pending the determination of this appeal.

No answer has been interposed, and upon the only allegation which is presented with clearness, I must find for the appellants. David S. Kirkpatrick is the legal collector of the district. The appointment of Archibald Tubbs was void, as no vacancy existed in the office at the time.

The trustee is hereby directed to withdraw the tax list and warrant which was placed in the hands of Archibald Tubbs, and after correcting all errors therein, to deliver the same to the district collector for enforcement.

The appeal is sustained as above indicated, and the stay granted on this appeal, revoked.

4024

In the matter of the appeal of Peter Weatherwax v. Royal Harmon, trustee of school district no. 9 of the town of Half Moon, county of Saratoga.

The trustee is the officer to pass upon the sufficiency of a bond of the collector, and if satisfied therewith, to approve the same. The district collector having neglected to furnish a satisfactory bond, his refusal was in effect a vacation of the office to which he was elected, and the trustee had authority thereafter to appoint a qualified elector to fill the vacancy.

Decided November 20, 1891

[423]

Draper, Superintendent

The above-named appellant was, at the annual school meeting held August 4, 1891, duly elected collector of said district. Subsequently, said collector was requested to execute a bond for the faithful performance of the duties of such collector; that soon thereafter a bond was executed by the collector with one Thomas Lattimer as surety. This bond the trustees refused to approve of, and returned the same to the collector with the request that he secure another person to sign as surety. This the collector declined to do, whereupon and on September 28, 1891, the trustee declared the office of collector vacant because of the failure of the collector to file a satisfactory bond, and appointed another person district collector, who has qualified and entered upon the performance of his duty. The appellant takes this appeal from the action of the trustee, and insists that the said Thomas Lattimer was a sufficient surety upon the bond. A number of affidavits are presented by the respective parties bearing upon the question of the sufficiency of the surety. The affidavit of the person offered as surety is very indefinite. He admits therein, as claimed by the respondent, that the farm which he owns and is assessed for only $400, is incumbered by a mortgage of $500 as appears by the county records, but he insists that a part of this, he does not state how much, has been paid. He also claims that he has money deposited in a bank with which to meet any obligation which became due on said mortgage the coming spring. In this instance he fails to state the amount. In support of the appeal a number of affidavits are presented, of residents of the district, who swear that, in their judgment, the surety offered was sufficient. By the law, the trustee is the officer to pass upon the sufficiency of a bond, and if satisfied therewith, to approve the same. From the evidence submitted I am unable to find that the trustee did not act with judgment and from proper motives.

The district collector having neglected to furnish a satisfactory bond, his refusal was in effect a vacation of the office to which he was elected, and the trustee had authority thereupon to appoint a qualified elector to fill the vacancy.

Finding the facts as above stated, I overrule the appeal.

Collectors are the proper custodians of district moneys, and they need not pay them over to trustees. They should pay only on the written order of one trustee, or a majority of the trustees, which order should state the purpose for which the money is to be paid.

Decided April 23, 1896

Rice, Superintendent

Collectors are now the proper custodians of all the district moneys collected by tax, and it is not their duty to pay over such moneys to the trustees. They are to pay it out only on the written order of the trustee, or of a majority of the trustees, which order must specify for what purpose the money is to be paid.

Under no circumstances is a collector authorized to sell real estate. If he can not levy on enough personal property at one time to satisfy the warrant which he holds, he can keep on levying till he does obtain property enough to pay the tax.

Where property in the possession of public officers has been stolen or destroyed by fire, without negligence on their part, they are not bound to make good the loss.

Decided April 17, 1855

Smith, Acting Superintendent

It has been settled by the Supreme Court, in the cases of Supervisors of Albany County v. Dorr (25 Wendell 440), and Browning v. Hanford, sheriff (5 Hill 558), that a public officer, in whose possession property has been destroyed by fire or for want of care, or from whom money has been stolen without negligence or any default on his part, is not bound to make good the loss.

BOND

Trustees must require a bond of collector for the faithful discharge of his duties etc., before collector receives first warrant for collection of district tax. If they neglect such requirement, said trustees are liable to district for any loss or damage resulting from their neglect.

Decided December 28, 1865

Rice, Superintendent

The law makes it the duty of the trustees to require the collector, before receiving the first warrant for the collection of a district tax, to give bonds for the faithful discharge of his duties, and accounting for the moneys received by him by virtue of such warrant. A failure to comply with this direct requirement of the law on the part of the trustees would, in my opinion, constitute such a case of nonfeasance as would render the trustees liable to the district for any loss or damage resulting from their neglect.

The acts of trustees, de facto holding office under color of an election, subsequently declared void and set aside, are valid and binding upon their successors.

Decided June 25, 1841

Spencer, Superintendent

Samuel S. Lord and John S. Panlow were elected trustees of district no. 6. Lincklaen, at a meeting which was, on appeal, decided to be illegal, and the proceedings thereat void.

Before the decision, however, the trustees had contracted to build a schoolhouse, in accordance with the proceedings of the meeting at which they were elected, and had hired a teacher for the winter school, and agreed to pay him $24 of the public money, and had levied and partly collected a tax of $50 voted by said meeting toward building the schoolhouse.

Their successors refused to fulfil their contracts, and they appealed.

Held, that, until the decision declaring void the proceedings of the meeting that elected them, they were to all intents and purposes the legal officers of the district, so far as the public and third persons were concerned. They acted in their official and not in their individual capacity, for the district and not for themselves. The collection of the tax assessed by them could not be resisted; all their contracts made within their official jurisdiction were legal and binding. They were competent to transact all the business of the district. Their successors, under the decision, succeeded, not merely to all their rights, but also to all their legal liabilities, and were bound to execute all their contracts entered into while acting under color of a legal election.

The trustees of school district no. 1 in the town of Middlefield v. the commissioners of common schools of said town.

The acts of an officer de facto are valid, so far as the public and third persons are concerned. Decided October 3, 1826

Flagg, Superintendent

This was an appeal from the trustees of school district no. 1 in the town of Middlefield, from the proceedings of the commissioners of common schools of said town in setting off certain inhabitants to other districts. The ground of objection taken by the appellants was that one of the two commissioners by whom the alteration was made, did not file his acceptance of the office of commissioner until after the expiration of fifteen days from his election and until after the performance of the official act from which the appeal was brought.

The principle involved in this application has been decided by the Supreme Court in the case of the People v. Collins, 7th Johnson's Reports, page 549. In that case the court say, "The allegation is not material that the commissioners had not caused their oath of office to be filed in the town clerk's office. If the commissioners of highways acted without taking the oath required by law, they were liable to a penalty; or the town upon their default, might have proceeded to a new choice of commissioners. But if the town did not, the subsequent acts of the commissioners as such, were valid as far as the rights of third persons and of the public were concerned in them."

The collector of a school district is answerable for moneys lost to the district by his neglect, though he may not have given a bond to the trustees.

If the term of service of the trustees and collector has expired, and a warrant for the collection of a school bill has run out in the hands of the latter, the successors of such trustees must renew the warrant and direct it to the successor of such collector.

Decided September 12, 1836

Dix, Superintendent

If by the neglect of a collector, moneys which might have been collected by him within the time limited, are lost to the district, he is liable for the amount, whether he has given a bond or not to the trustees. The bond is an additional security; but if it is not required of him, he is not released from any obligation which the law imposes on him. The trustees may require a bond of the collector or not, as they please. If they do, they may, in case of his delinquency, look to his sureties: If they do not, they must look to him for an indemnity against losses sustained by the district.

If the term of service of both trustees and collector has expired, and a warrant for the collection of a school bill has run out in the hands of the latter, the successors in office of such trustees must renew the warrant, and deliver it to the successor of the collector; but the collector in whose hands the warrant runs out is answerable if there is any loss through his neglect.

4455

In the matter of the appeal of Louis Potter v. John G. Pavek, Edward P. Clonan and Noah Brooks, trustees, school district no. 4, town of Highlands, Orange county.

Neither the trustees of a school district nor the qualified voters therein have the lawful authority to assume or to decide that a school district officer who has been elected by the form or color of an election is not eligible to hold the office to which he was elected. Where a person was elected collector of a school district and accepted the office a vacancy in such office can not arise except by an order of the State Superintendent declaring the person ineligible to hold the office or that he was not duly and legally elected, or where such person files a written resignation of such office. Any appointment by the trustees of a school district to supply a vacancy must be in writing and filed with the clerk of the district.

Decided June 8, 1896

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal by the appellant in the above-entitled matter from the action of the respondents, Pavek and Clonan, two of the trustees of school district no. 4, town of Highlands, Orange county, in appointing one John Weyant as collector of said district, the appellant alleging in his appeal that he was elected collector of said district at the annual school meeting held therein, on August 6, 1895, and that he duly accepted the office and has been ready and willing to file his bond and perform the duties thereof, and has never resigned said office.

Trustees Pavek and Clonan have filed their answer to said appeal.

It appears from pleadings and proofs filed herein that at the annual school meeting, held in said district no. 4, on August 6, 1895, the appellant was nominated by the respondent, Clonan, for the office of collector, and the appellant being present at said meeting stated that he did not want the office, but being persuaded by said Clonan, the appellant consented to serve, and was thereupon elected at said meeting collector of said district; that a special meeting of said district was held on August 31, 1895, and after the business of the meeting had been transacted, one Laurence Gibney stated in substance that the district had no collector as the one elected at the annual meeting was ineligible, not being able to read and write, whereupon the appellant replied in substance that, at the annual meeting he stated he did not want the office, but the meeting put it on him and he accepted; that he did not want the office and to appoint their man, that he wanted to settle with the district; that on September 24, 1895, said Payek and Clonan, without any notice to the appellant, appointed John Weyant collector of said district; that on or about March 4, 1896, said trustees delivered to said Weyant the tax list of the district, and on or about March 18, 1896, the appellant brought his appeal herein.

The principal contention in the affidavits filed are as to what was said by the appellant at the time of the special school meeting on August 31, 1895, after the statement made by Gibney. It is not material as to what the appellant did say. The meeting was a special meeting and no business could be legally done except that specified in the notice. The meeting had no legal authority to accept the resignation of the appellant or to elect his successor. The appellant was duly elected collector of the district at the annual school meeting on August 6, 1895, and accepted the office, and until he made and delivered his resignation in writing to the trustees of the district, and such resignation was accepted by them and filed with the district clerk, or he failed to make and deliver, when notified, his bond as collector, as required by the school law, or he was removed from office by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, he continued to be collector of the district, no matter what he might have stated orally subsequent to the meeting at which he was elected about not desiring the office, or that he wished to resign, etc., etc.

It is not claimed that the appellant ever made and delivered to said trustees his resignation in writing, of the office of collector nor that he was ever requested by the trustees to file a bond as such collector, and neglected or refused to file said bond, or that he has been removed from office as collector by any order or decision of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Hence the appellant is still the collector of said district, and any action on the part of the trustees of said district, assuming or deciding that the appellant had resigned as collector, or that there was a vacancy in the office of collector in said district, or in filling such alleged vacancy in said office was, and were, without authority of law and void.

From the statements made by Gibney at the time of the special meeting of August 31, 1896, it would seem that it was claimed that the appellant could not read and write, and was, therefore, ineligible to hold any school district office. Assuming for the purpose of argument that the appellant could not read and write, under the school law, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction is the only person who can determine the question of the eligibility of the appellant to hold said office. The question of such eligibility can be raised by an appeal from the election of appellant as such collector, and the appellant having been duly elected, can not be removed from such office except by an order of the State Superintendent. The voters of said district, or the trustees thereof, have no authority to decide or act upon that question.

It also appears that had there been a vacancy in the office of collector, and had the trustees lawful authority to fill it, no appointment to fill such vacancy has ever been filed in the office of the clerk of said district, as required by the school law.

Under the school law, the trustees of said school district composed a board, and every power committed to said trustees by the school law must be exercised by the board. The board must meet for the transaction of business in accordance with notice of time and place, and such notice should not be less than one of twenty-four hours. Said trustees should notify the district clerk of every meeting of the board, and the clerk should be present and keep a record of the proceedings of said meetings in a book provided for that purpose. It would seem that the trustees of said district have not complied with said provisions of law. Trustee Brooks alleges in his affidavit that he was not notified or advised of any meeting of said trustees to take action on the alleged resignation of the appellant as collector, or the appointment of Weyant as a successor to appellant as collector, or to transact any other business since August 6, 1895.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the action and proceedings had and taken by the respondents herein, Messrs Pavek and Clonan, as trustees of said district no. 4, town of Highlands, Orange county, on September 24, 1895, in appointing one John Weyant as collector of said school district to fill an alleged vacancy in said office by the alleged or assumed resignation of the appellant herein, Louis Potter, as such collector, be, and the same hereby are, vacated and set aside as illegal and void.

It is further ordered, That said trustees of said school district forthwith demand of said John Weyant the tax list and warrant issued to him by them; and that the same be issued and delivered by them to the appellant, Louis Potter, as collector of said district.

3954

In the matter of the application for the removal of William A. Burnham from the office of the president of the board of education of union free school district no. 2, town of Greenburgh, county of Westchester.

A manufacturing corporation in which a member of a board of education was a stockholder and also an officer, entered into a contract with the district. The officer's removal from the office of trustee is sought because of the contract. Held, that it is doubtful if the case at bar is one which comes within the provisions of section 473 of the Penal Code, which forbids any school officer from becoming voluntarily interested in a contract etc.

Appeals not promptly taken, except when the delay may for satisfactory reasons be excused, will not be entertained.

Decided January 23, 1891

Charles E. Davidson, attorney for applicant

L. T. Yale, attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

William A. Burnham is president of the board of education in the district above named, and treasurer of, and a stockholder in a corporation known as "Lord's Horticultural Manufacturing Company." This being so, the board of education in the year 1889, entered into a contract with said corporation for heating apparatus in one of the schoolhouses under its charge, for the sum of $500. The apparatus was supplied and paid for. The petitioners now think that the relations of Mr Burnham to the board of education, and to the manufacturing company, were such as to make it unlawful for the one to enter into a contract with the other, and that having permitted this to be done, ask that he should be removed from office therefor.

By an amendment to section 473 of the Penal Code made in 1888, it was provided that any school officer "who is authorized to make any contract in his official capacity, who voluntarily becomes interested individually in such contract, directly or indirectly, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

Whether the act complained of comes within the scope of this statute is somewhat doubtful. It would be a very stringent rule which would prohibit a manufacturing corporation from entering into a contract with a board of education because one of its stockholders was a member of such board, and I think it may well be questioned whether in that event, such stockholder would be deemed to "become voluntarily interested indirectly" in such contract.

But whatever conclusion might be finally arrived at upon that question, I am free to say that there are circumstances surrounding the matter which I should take into consideration. It is now many months since the transactions complained of occurred. The time for bringing the matter before the Department has expired. The contract for heating apparatus was let only after an open competition therefor. Four bids were presented besides the one from Lord's Manufacturing Company. That was the lowest. It is in proof that the company derived little or no profit from the contract. There is no pretense that there was any unfair advantage given to the company in letting the contract, or that the work was not well and satisfactorily performed. It is developed that there is considerable ill-feeling in the district, and that it has extended to the members of the board, and it is very manifest that it is in consequence of this unfortunate ill will that the present application has been made.

For these considerations, I conclude that the application should be denied.

3951

In the matter of the appeal of William A. Douglass and others v. school district no. 2, town of Hunter, county of Greene.

Expenses of a district collector, incurred by him defending an action brought against him in his official capacity, should be allowed him, when a bill therefor itemized and verified is presented to a district meeting. A charge for the collector's personal services, however, can not be allowed.

A note given to the collector by the trustee for such expenses, without authority of a district meeting, is invalid as a district obligation.

Decided December 30, 1890

C. M. Cartwright, attorney for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of a special meeting held in the district above named on the 27th day of October 1890, allowing and appropriating the sum of $48.75, in payment of a claim of Luman M. Coles for services and expenses as collector of said district, in defending an action brought against him as such collector.

This district has unfortunately been involved in considerable controversy. The matter here in dispute has been the subject of contention for some time. It was passed over the annual meeting, when it should have been attended to. A special meeting was called for the purpose of acting upon it. Mr Coles presented a bill to the special meeting. This bill included an item of $45, being the amount of a note given to him by the trustees of the district, a year or two since, in settlement of his claim, together with interest on the amount of said note. The district voted to pay the claim by a vote of 28 to 15. The appellants raise all possible objections to this action. Many of their objections are frivolous. In one position, however, they are entirely correct. The note in question was never authorized by the district. Indeed, it had no authority to authorize such a note. It was invalid as a district obligation. The district was entitled to have a complete itemized statement of Mr Coles' claim presented to it for action. This was not done.

Mr Coles should be reimbursed for all expenses which he incurred in the litigation referred to. He can not be paid for any services rendered. He should make a bill plainly indicating what payments he has made, and if he has received moneys from any source in consequence of such litigation, he should credit the same upon his bill. The balance ought to be paid by the district. The matter may readily be presented at the next special or general meeting in the district, but the action of the special meeting in this connection, can not be upheld.

The appeal is therefore sustained.

3578

In the matter of the appeal of Henry H. Brazee v. John W. Hogeboom, trustee of school district no. 1, of the town of Blenheim, county of Schoharie.

A person elected trustee of a school district can not then be challenged as to his eligibility to hold the office and required to be sworn and show his qualifications. A challenge is proper only at the time a person offers his vote.

Decided March 25, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by Henry H. Brazee, a resident of school district no. 1, of the town of Blenheim, Schoharie county, New York, against John W. Hogeboom who has assumed the office of trustee of said district by reason of the action of the annual meeting held in said district August 31, 1886.

The alleged grounds of appeal are as follows:

That at the annual school meeting held in said district, the appellant was voted for for trustee; that he received a majority of all the votes cast for said office; that the chairman of the meeting declared said Brazee elected trustee; that subsequently, some electors at said school meeting objected to the election of Brazee and challenged his right to hold the office; that the chairman thereupon requested said Brazee to be sworn as to his qualifications to hold said office; that said Brazee declined to be sworn or make any statement at that time; that the chairman thereupon declared that said Brazee was not eligible and directed the meeting to proceed to elect a trustee and that thereupon a ballot was taken and John W. Hogeboom was declared elected trustee for the ensuing year and assumed the duties of the office.

The respondents deny that the appellant was elected; they deny that the vote was even counted upon the first formal ballot for trustee and allege that Brazee is not qualified to hold the office of trustee.

In order to arrive at the facts of the case, the matter was referred to School Commissioner Le-Grand Van Tassel for the purpose of taking the evidence of the witnesses for the respective parties. From the evidence so taken and returned to me, I find the facts are as follows:

- 1 That the appellant received a majority of all the votes cast at said annual meeting for the office of trustee.

- 2 That the chairman of said meeting duly declared appellant elected trustee.

- 3 That the right of said Brazee to hold the office of trustee was challenged by voters at that meeting and that said Brazee refused to be sworn and to state his qualifications.

- 4 That subsequently John W. Hogeboom, the respondent, was voted for and received a majority of the votes cast at said meeting for trustee.

The only question, then, which arises in this case, is whether Mr Brazee's refusal to be sworn as to his qualifications to hold the office of trustee after his election would disqualify him. It does not appear from the pleadings, or from the examinations of the witnesses before the commissioner, that the right of the appellant to vote was questioned. It does not appear that any challenge was offered when he attempted to vote at said meeting. It does appear that he voted repeatedly without any objection being interposed. In fact, he voted after the chair had decided that he was not qualified to hold the office of trustee. It is provided by section 13, title 7 of the general school laws, that any person offering to vote at school meetings may be challenged as unqualified by any legal voter, and that the chairman presiding at such meeting, shall require such person offering to vote to make a declaration of his qualifications to vote and every person making such declaration shall be permitted to vote, and if he refuses, his vote shall be rejected. By the next section, it is provided that any person who shall make a false declaration of his right to vote shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and that any person not qualified to vote, who votes at such meeting, shall forfeit five dollars, to be sued for by the supervisor of the town. There is no provision of law which authorizes a challenge of a person, except when he attempts to vote. It appears from the evidence in this case that the right of Mr Brazee to vote was not challenged at any time. The challenge, if any, was made as to his qualifications to hold the office of trustee, and then, after his election as trustee. The appellant refused to comply with the request of the chairman of the meeting to be sworn, and denied his right to require him to do so. I am of the opinion that the chairman of the meeting did not possess the right of inquiring into the qualifications of the appellant to hold the office of trustee in this manner. The appellant in claiming the office of trustee by this appeal must show, in addition to the fact that he was duly elected, that he was and is qualified to hold the office. It very clearly appears from the evidence taken before the commissioner that he possesses the necessary qualifications. It appears that he is over 21 years of age and a resident of the district in question and that he rents real estate in the district and did at the time of the annual meeting, and that he was and is a duly qualified voter in said district and therefore eligible to hold the office of trustee.

The appeal is sustained and the appellant declared to be the trustee of the district.

4340

In the matter of the appeal of Azariah J. Hathaway v. George N. Luther, trustee of school district no. 6, town of Otego, Otsego county.

Where an action is brought in the courts against a collector of a school district for his official acts in the levy and sale of property the school district has authority to vote a tax to pay such collector for the reasonable expenses incurred by him in defending said suit.

Decided March 15, 1895

F. D. Shumway, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellant herein appeals from the proceedings of a special meeting held in school district no. 6, town of Otego, Otsego county, on November 1, 1894, and from a tax list and assessment made and issued by George N. Luther as trustee of said district. The said trustee has answered said appeal.

From the papers presented it appears: That during the school year commencing August 1, 1893, one Lavelle Lent was the collector in school district no. 6, town of Otego, Otsego county; that on October 11, 1893, the then trustee of said district issued and delivered to said collector a tax list and warrant, in which tax list the appellant herein was taxed and assessed for the sum of $10.45; that said appellant refused to pay said tax and said collector levied upon two cows, the property of the appellant, and subsequently sold one of said cows for $15, which amount covered said tax of $10.45 and the fees and expenses of the collector and the other cow was returned to the appellant; that in the month of November 1893, the appellant commenced an action in justices' court against said Lent for the conversion of said cows, which action was defended by said Lent and in such defense said Lent employed counsel, and which action was decided in favor of said Lent; that on the same day of the decision of the aforesaid action the appellant commenced a second action before another justice against said Lent for the like cause of action, in which action said Lent employed counsel, and said action was decided in favor of said Lent; that on the same day that said second action was decided appellant brought a third action for like cause as the first two, in which action said Lent employed counsel and defended and was successful in such defense. That the aggregate sum expended by said Lent in defending said three actions was $47.80; that in November 1894, the respondent called a special meeting of said district to be held on November 16, 1894, for the purpose of considering the payment by the district of the legal and other expenses of said Lent in defending said three actions brought against him by the appellant herein; that every qualified voter in said district, including the appellant herein, was duly and legally notified of the time and place of said special meeting and the business to be transacted thereat; that at said special meeting a motion or resolution was duly adopted unanimously, said vote thereon being taken by ballot, to pay said Lent said sum of $47.80, and that the sum be levied by tax upon said district; that on December 18, 1894, the respondent duly issued his tax list and warrant for the collection of said sum of $47.80, which sum has been collected including the tax levied in said tax list against the appellant herein, and said tax list and warrant duly returned, and the amount so collected paid over to said Lent.

The appeal herein was brought on January 14, 1894. Under section 14, of article 1, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law, the qualified voters of any school district assembled at a meeting, duly called and held, have the authority to vote a tax to pay the reasonable expenses incurred by district officers in defending suits or appeals brought against them for their official acts.

It is clear that the aforesaid three actions brought by the appellant herein against said Lent were, and each of them was, brought against him for his official acts as collector of the district, and the district had authority to vote the tax to pay Lent for reasonable expenses incurred by him in defending said suits.

The appellant herein, having failed to establish his appeal said appeal should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

3793

In the matter of the appeal of James S. Howard and others v. union free school district no. 2, of the town of Westport, county of Essex.

In a union free school district having a board of education of nine members, five of whom resigned for the obvious purpose of defeating the expressed will of the voters in selecting a schoolhouse site, the remaining members of the board, four in number, fill the vacancies caused by such resignations, and the board so newly organized continue to exercise the functions of a legal board; held, not to be violative of the authority and the policy of the law for such four remaining members of the board to exercise the functions of such board, and that the four members of the board exercised a power which the statutes confer, and which it was to the interests of the district to have them exercise. They exercised it only so far as was necessary to maintain school administration in the district uninterruptedly. The persons appointed to fill vacancies in the board were, if not officers de jure, such de facto. They had color of title to their offices at least. Their acts, taken in conformity with the directions of a district meeting, are binding upon the district.

Decided July 29, 1889

Anthony B. Ross, attorney for appellant

Matthew Hale, attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

A special meeting of the electors of the above-named district was held on the 16th day of February 1889, at which it was resolved to build a new house at a cost not to exceed $5000, and to purchase a new site therefor, which was designated. At an adjourned meeting held April 20th the vote designating a site was rescinded, and another site selected. At another adjourned meeting held May 4th it was voted that the title to the last site selected was unsatisfactory, and that the new building be erected upon the site heretofore in use by the district. At a meeting held May 18th it was voted not to build on the old site, and still another new site was designated. At an adjourned meeting held June 1st it was voted to rescind the action taken at the last preceding meeting, and build upon the same lot previously designated for a new site by the meeting held April 20th, and which is known as the "Pollard" lot. At the meeting held June 1st a communication was read, signed by five of the nine members of the board of education, resigning their places upon the board. At a meeting of the four remaining members of the board held June 3d, they first elected one new member to fill one of the vacancies, and after he had joined them, the five chose four more to fill the remaining vacancies. At the same meeting and another held the following day, a deed was procured of the site last designated by the district meeting, and the members of the board thus constituted, gave their note for the purchase price, being the sum of $1200.

From the action of the district meeting designating the "Pollard" lot, and from the action of the board in purchasing the same, this appeal is taken.

I find no allegation that the proceedings of the several district meetings were not regularly taken, and in the manner prescribed by the statute. It is said that they were not all well attended by the people of the district. In view of the frequency with which they were held, this is not surprising, but it does not invalidate the lawful action of those who did attend.

It is said that the site last determined upon is not suitable for a school site. This is as strongly disputed. It seems more than likely that if it were on the other side of a creek which divides the village, the differing opinions as to its suitability would be exactly reversed. There has evidently been enough of discussion and dispute over the matter. It seems to have been regularly designated as a new school site by a majority of the electors who chose to attend a meeting, competent to act upon the matter. This being so, there is no such preponderant proof of unsuitableness as to warrant me in interfering with that action on that account.

But the appellants say that the site last designated has not been purchased, by reason of the fact that the board, assuming to make the purchase, was not a board, and was powerless to bind the district. They contend that, after the resignations of five members, the remaining four, being less than a majority of the whole number, had no power to exercise any of the functions of the board, even that of filling the vacant places.

Acting upon the theory that the vacancies created by the resignations have not been legally filled, the appellants have heretofore applied to the school commissioner to fill the same, which he has undertaken to do, and for some reason which does not appear, has reappointed the five members who resigned.

In the meantime, it appears that the four original members of the board, with the others appointed by them, have exercised control over the new site which they have assumed to purchase; have made some changes thereupon, and have employed an architect, procured plans and taken other steps toward the erection of the new building.

The question raised by the appellants as to the right of less than a majority of the whole number of the board of trustees in a union free school district to fill vacancies occasioned by the resignations of the majority, is a new and grave one.

It is the policy of the school law to guard against any exigency which will cause a break or work a failure in the administration of the school system, and it is likewise its policy to provide officers for administering that system through the agency of the district itself, or of other district officers. Thus, in an ordinary school district, it provides that a vacancy in the office of trustee may be filled by appointment by the school commissioner. The district may act at any time within the thirty days, and it is the policy of the law to have it act, if it will. In a union free school district, vacancies may be filled by the board. If not filled by the board for thirty days, then the school commissioner may appoint. The school commissioner can not act for thirty days. It is the policy of the law to have the board appoint, if it will. If the four members could not appoint to fill the vacancies in the present case, then they could exercise no other function of the board, and there could be no exercise of any of the powers of the board for the space of thirty days, except in the event of a special election being ordered by the State Superintendent. If this theory be sound, then there might be entire failure of school administration in the district for a time, and neither a district meeting nor any officer or representative of the district could cure the difficulty.

It is provided by the Consolidated School Act of 1864, in regard to the trustees of common schools, that while there is one vacancy in the office of trustee, the two trustees have all the powers and are subject to all the duties and liabilities of the three, and while there are two such vacancies, the trustee in office shall have all the powers and be subject to all the duties and liabilities of the three as though he were a sole trustee.

It is true that this clause relates to the trustees of an ordinary school district, but it is provided in title 9 of the act relating to union free schools, that the members of a board of education of a union free school shall "Possess all the powers and privileges and be subject to all the duties in respect to the schools, or the common school departments in any union free school in said districts, which the trustees of common schools now possess or are subject, not inconsistent with the provisions of this title."

The statute provides that a board of education in a union free school district shall consist of not less than three nor more than nine persons. It is therefore not violative of the authority and the policy of the law for four persons to exercise the functions of such a board. I conclude, accordingly, that the four trustees in the present case exercised a power which the statutes confer, and which it was to the interest of the district to have them exercise, and it would seem that they exercised it only so far as was necessary to maintain school administration in the district uninterruptedly.

If there were any doubt, as I think there is not, about persons named by the remaining members of the board being trustees de jure, there would seem to be none about their being such de facto. They have had color of title to their offices at least, and have acted as such, and been recognized. Their acts, taken in conformity with the directions of the district meeting, would be binding upon the district.

Arriving at this conclusion, it is unnecessary to consider other questions raised on the argument.

The appeal must be dismissed.

In the matter of the petition of John E. Casey for the removal of Adelbert Case as clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county.

Where, upon application to a district clerk by a qualified voter of the district for permission to examine the minutes of the annual school meeting of the district, the clerk refused to permit such voter to examine such minutes, using vulgar and profane language in expressing such refusal, held that the clerk was guilty of a wilful violation of duty and an order made for his removal.

Decided November 2, 1893

W. H. Sullivan, attorney for petitioner

Crooker, Superintendent

This is a proceeding in the nature of an appeal for the removal of one Adelbert Case as clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county, for wilful violation and neglect of duty.

A petition of John E. Casey, a resident and taxpayer in said school district, duly verified on September 16, 1893, setting forth certain charges against said Case with specifications of the facts to establish such charges, and having annexed thereto the affidavits of said Casey, of one Perry Hunt in support thereof, and a notice addressed to said Case that said petition and affidavits would be presented to me at Albany and application thereupon be made to remove said Case from his said office of clerk of said district, and requiring said Case to transmit his answer to said application duly verified, to this Department within ten days after service of said notice, petition and application, or the charges contained therein would be deemed admitted, with proof of service of copies of said petition, affidavits and notice upon said Case on September 19, 1893, were filed in this Department on September 23, 1893. No answer to said petition etc., has been received or filed, and the allegations contained in said petition etc., are considered as admitted as true by the said Case. The allegations contained in said petition etc., so considered admitted as true, are as follows:

That the said Adelbert Case was, in August and September 1893, the duly elected and qualified clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county: that on or about August 28, 1893, about 9 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, John E. Casey and Perry Hunt, each of whom was a resident, voter and taxpayer of said school district, went to the premises of said Adelbert Case, the clerk of said school district, and asked permission of said Case, to look at the minutes of the school meeting of said district, held on August 22, 1893, and the said Case, in wilful violation of his duty as such clerk, refused to permit said Casey and Hunt to look at and inspect such minutes, using vulgar and profane language in expressing such refusal. That on the eleventh day of September 1893, at about 9 o'clock in the forenoon, said Casey and Hunt went to the house of said Case and said Casey then and there requested said Case to allow him to inspect the minutes of said school meeting of said district held on August 22, 1893, and also asked for a copy of said minutes; that said Case told said Casey that he would not let him see the minutes, and to get right off from his premises, or he would slash him right down with a corn knife, which said Case then held in his hand. Said Case further told said Casey to get right off from his premises and to keep off, and that he would not furnish him with a copy of said minutes.

The clerk of a school district is a school officer, and his principal duties are defined in section 37 of title 7 of the school law. His duty is to record the proceedings of his district in a book to be provided for that purpose by the district, etc., etc.; to keep and preserve all records, books and papers belonging to his office and to deliver the same to his successor, and a refusal or neglect so to do subjects him to the forfeit of fifty dollars for the benefit of the district, to be recovered by the trustees.

The proceedings, records, books and papers in possession of said clerk are the property of the district, and not the individual property of the clerk. It is the duty of the clerk to permit any voter to freely inspect the records at all reasonable times, and a wilful denial of this right by a clerk would subject him to the liability of removal from office. There can be no doubt as to the right of a voter of a school district to examine and copy the district records, under reasonable provisions.

Section 18, of title 2, of the school laws provides that whenever it shall be proved to his satisfaction that any school commissioner, or other school officer, has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under the school act, the Superintendent of Public Instruction may, by an order under his hand and seal, which order shall be recorded in his office, remove said school commissioner or other school officer from his office.

From the facts established upon this appeal I am satisfied that the said Adelbert Case, as clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county, was guilty of wilful violation and neglect of duty under the school laws, as such clerk, as alleged in said petition, etc.

The petition herein is sustained.

It having been proven to my satisfaction that Adelbert Case, clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county, has been guilty of wilful violation and neglect of duty, under the school laws, as such clerk. I do therefore, by virtue of the power and authority in me vested, order:

That the said Adelbert Case be, and he hereby is, removed from the office of clerk of said school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county.

OFFICERS—REMOVAL OF

5326

In the matter of the application of Melvin H. Pendleton et al. to remove John D. Jones from the office of school commissioner and John C. Hyde from the office of trustee.

Where the moving papers in a proceeding to remove a school officer are legally defective and do not even allege an offense for which such officer might be removed, the proceeding should be dismissed.

Decided August 20, 1907

Draper, Commissioner

The petitioners allege that respondents wilfully misrepresented the views expressed by them in an interview relating to the dissolution of a school district. The moving papers do not allege that respondents have been guilty of a wilful violation of law or official duty or of any other offense for which the statutes impose the penalty of removal from office. Respondents deny the charge of misrepresenting the views of the petitioners expressed at the conference in question and offer evidence in proof of such denial. The proceeding should be dismissed on the moving papers which are legally defective and which fail to even allege an offense for which respondents might be removed.

The petition herein is dismissed.

5184

In the matter of the petition of John Clark et al. for the removal of Charles A. Higley from the office of school commissioner of the first school commissioner district of Oneida county.

A school commissioner will not be removed from office for making an order which was fair, open and above board in every particular and in which he exercised his discretion wisely. If a school commissioner exercises an unwise discretion in making an order, or if he makes an improper order, the relief of an aggrieved party is an appeal from the action of the commissioner in making such order and not a petition for his removal.

Decided April 21, 1905

James W. Watts, attorney for appellants

Draper, Commissioner

The petitioners are residents of school district no. 8, town of Marcy, and of the first school commissioner district of Oneida county. It appears that one William H. Kauth desired to have his real property transferred from district no. 8, Marcy, to adjoining district no. 1, Marcy. At a special meeting of district no. 8, Marcy, to consider the advisability of consenting to the transfer of Mr Kauth's property the voters present decided not to consent to an alteration of the district boundaries making such transfer. The school commissioner then made an order altering the boundaries of district no. 8, Marcy, by transferring the property of Mr. Kauth to district no. 1, Marcy.

It is alleged by petitioners that in making this order the school commissioner "acted in bad faith and against the best interests of said district, and simply to accommodate said Kauth." The petitioners do not present any evidence whatever in support of this allegation. They do not assign one specific act or reason to sustain their contention. They do not even show that the action of the commissioner in making such order was unwise. The affidavits of the petitioners are to the effect that upon "information and belief" Commissioner Higley acted in bad faith. This is insufficient and in their moving papers petitioners have failed to make a case sufficient to have warranted them in filing this petition. The commissioner possessed legal authority under sections 3 and 4 of title 6 of the Consolidated School Law to make this order even if a majority of the voters of district no. 8, Marcy, were opposed to the changes which would be made thereby. The action of Commissioner Higley was regular, fair and open and above board in every particular. He accorded those opposed to the order two impartial hearings. He does not appear to have exercised his discretion unwisely in making this order. If such order was improper or unwise the remedy of any aggrieved party was an appeal from the action of the commissioner therein to this Department.

The petition herein is dismissed.

A copy of this decision must be served by the respondent upon the attorney for the petitioners.

In the matter of the removal of George Turner Miller from the office of school commissioner of the sole commissioner district of Chemung county.

The fact that a school commissioner applied for and received money from the State to settle an expense of the teachers institute and that he kept this money over thirteen months, during which he was in frequent contact with the officials to whom it was to be paid, is sufficient in itself to constitute a wilful violation and neglect of duty, requiring the exercise of the power of removal reposed by law in the Commissioner of Education. Decided February 27, 1905

Draper, Commissioner

On February 3, 1905, the president of the board of education at Horseheads, N. Y., called to my attention the fact that a claim against the State on the part of said board, amounting to $24.20, for coal consumed and for janitor service in connection with a teachers institute held in their high school building during the week ending December 19, 1903, had never been settled.

Investigation showed that the amount had been paid to the school commissioner immediately after the institute was held, for the purpose of liquidating the claim. A letter from the clerk of the school district stating the amount of the claim appeared among the papers, but no receipt on the part of the district was shown.

On February 4th I addressed a letter to the school commissioner, calling for an explanation. On February 7th the amount was paid, by post office money order, to the treasurer of the district. Nothing was heard from the school commissioner until February 17th, when he replied to my letter of the 4th, stating that "The amount was paid the Chemung Valley Bank, the treasurer of the district. The matter is now adjusted." In consequence of the delay in replying to my letter and because of the unsatisfactory look of the whole affair an order was made on February 13th for the school commissioner to appear here on February 23d to show cause why he should not be removed from office.

On the return of the order, the school commissioner appeared and claimed that the delay in answering my letter of the 4th of February was because he was away from home. He admitted going to his home post office for mail and for the post office money order on February 7th, but asserted that my letter was not received at that office prior to his leaving home for a ten days' journey on February 8th, although my letter was mailed at Albany on February 4th.

The home of the school commissioner is at Van Etten, some twenty miles from Horseheads. He stated that he paid the amount on February 7th, because when talking on the telephone with his father, who resides at Horseheads, it was suggested to him that there was some talk about the matter at Horseheads and that it ought to be settled.

The explanation given for the long delay in paying the bill was that he was not certain as to whom he should pay it, and that he was not willing to pay it except to one entitled to legally receive the money. He asserted that there was some ill feeling between himself and officers of the district over trifling matters. He insisted that he at all times expected to pay over the money and was only waiting to be satisfied as to whom he should pay it.

Mr Miller was, for some time prior to his election as school commissioner, principal of the school at Horseheads. He was wholly familiar with all the circumstances in that district and was well acquainted with its officials. He has an office at Horseheads which he announces will be open on Saturday afternoon. He admitted that during the thirteen months while he had been holding this money he had been in Horseheads more than twenty times; also that he well knew the officers of the district and that the Chemung Valley Bank was the treasurer.

The question as to the time when the school commissioner received my letter of February 4th, and as to what led him to pay the claim of the district three days after this letter was mailed from Albany, without having received this letter, is of slight importance except as it bears upon his credibility. The explanation offered for the delay in paying over the money is not sufficient. It was the business of the school commissioner to pay this money over immediately upon its receipt. An officer having any correct feeling about the matter or any proper appreciation of the obligations and responsibility of a public office, would have been anxious and restless until the money had passed out of his hands and into the hands entitled to possess it. The difficulty about determining to whom it might properly and legally be paid seems mere pretense.

It is not necessary to indulge in speculations as to whether this money would ever have been paid over if the matter had not been stirred up by the parties in interest. The fact that this school commissioner applied for and received money from the State to settle an expense of the teachers institute, and that he kept this money over thirteen months, during which time he was in frequent contact with the officials to whom it was to be paid, is sufficient in itself to constitute a wilful violation and neglect of duty, requiring the exercise of the power of removal reposed by law in the Commissioner of Education. I should be glad to come to some other conclusion, but it is impossible. Failure to act as the law contemplates would be a delinquency on my part.

It is therefore ordered, That George Turner Miller be, and he hereby is, removed from the office of school commissioner of the sole school commissioner district of Chemung county.

5286

In the matter of the application to remove James H. Roe as trustee of common school district no. 6, town of Warwick, county of Orange.

Appearing in and answering a proceeding without reserving any rights, even if formal notice of proceeding is not given, brings the proceeding properly within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education.

A trustee who fails to provide for his own children the instruction prescribed by the compulsory education law is guilty of wilful violation of law and neglect of official duty and should be removed from office.

The burden of proof as to the physical inability of children to attend school is upon the parent and not the school authorities.

Trustees may require parents to furnish a physician's certificate in the case of habitual or long-continued absence on the ground of physical inability and such certificate is conclusive.

Decided October 20, 1906

Lewis J. Stage, attorney for petitioners

Clifford S. Beattie, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

District no. 6, town of Warwick, county of Orange, is a common school district having three trustees. At the annual meeting of August 1905, James H. Roe was elected one of the trustees of this district and is still serving in that official capacity. This proceeding was commenced July 7, 1906, but the pleadings were not completed until October 22, 1906. At the time this proceeding was instituted John M. Marsh and George H. Davenport were the other trustees of the district. These two trustees and Jacob F. Welch and other legal voters of the district are the petitioners who pray for the removal of Trustee Roe.

The specific charge against respondent is that he violated the provisions of the compulsory education law by not requiring his two children who are within the ages of that law to regularly attend upon instruction. The pleadings show that respondent Roe is the father of Arthur Roe, a boy 10 years of age, and of Elma Roe, a girl 9 years of age, and that they are residents of school district no. 12, town of Warwick. It also appears that between October 1, 1905, and April 30, 1906, the school in said district was in session 126 days and that Arthur Roe was in attendance thereat 63 days and absent 63 days, and that Elma Roe was in attendance upon such school 60½ days and absent 65½ days. It is further shown that between April 30 and June 1, 1906, neither of these pupils was in attendance at school. The absence of such children from school is not denied by respondent nor does he claim that such children were in attendance upon instruction elsewhere.

It is also shown that on April 17, 1906, Arthur Roe had some trouble in school with the teacher over a recitation in arithmetic and that the teacher took Arthur from the recitation to his seat by the collar of his coat and that at noon when the teacher was at his dinner respondent appeared at the schoolhouse and took Arthur and his daughter Elma home. These children did not attend school any portion of the year thereafter. It is also shown that in the early part of May respondent took the books of these two children from the schoolhouse.

The pleadings in this case further show that on April 30, 1906, on an information duly made by John L. Springer, an attendance officer of the town of Warwick, charging this respondent Roe with the crime of misdemeanor for violation of the compulsory education law, a warrant for the arrest of said Roe was duly issued by J. V. D. Benedict, a justice of the peace of the town of Warwick. It also appears that on similar informations warrants were issued for four other residents of this district and that such residents were found guilty and fined.

Respondent Roe was tried May 26, 1906, before a jury and such trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury. Before this trial, however, an application was made by respondent through his attorney to the special county judge of Orange county for an order directing that the case should be presented to the grand jury for indictment. This application was denied. It also appears that a second application was made to a justice of the Supreme Court and denied. The second trial of Roe took place June 16, 1906, and at the close of such trial the jury brought in a verdict of guilty without leaving the court room. Roe was thereupon fined $5 by the court the maximum penalty as this was the first time he had been prosecuted for a violation of this law. The respondent has taken an appeal from this judgment to the county courts. The foregoing outline of the history of the case is shown by the moving and answering papers in this proceeding.

In the moving papers of petitioners is an informal petition signed by thirty-five legal voters of the district praying for Roe's removal. Respondent objects to the acceptance of such petition on the ground that it is not verified. It is immaterial whether this petition is accepted or not as the petition of Trustees Marsh and Davenport and Jacob F. Welch, a legal voter of the district, is sufficient to bring the case properly before me for determination. Attorney for respondent further objects to the consideration of this proceeding on the ground that the offenses charged as being a violation of law took place more than thirty days previous to the date on which this proceeding was instituted and that notice of a hearing on the alleged charges has not been given as required by section 13, title 1 of the Consolidated School Law. This is not an appeal which must be brought within thirty days from the date on which an official act constituting a grievance occurred but it is an appealing termed an appeal brought by petition for the removal of a school officer for a wilful violation of law and official duty. This Department does not hold nor do the rules require that a petition for this purpose shall be presented within thirty days from the date on which the alleged violation of law or official duty occurred or that a satisfactory reason shall be given for such delay. If the rules did require this the fact as shown upon the pleadings that respondent was being prosecuted in the courts for the alleged violation of law would in itself, without specifically pleading the same as such excuse, be regarded as good reason for delay in bringing the proceeding. It appears that no formal notice of application to me for hearing the charges alleged was attached to the moving papers. This notice is merely a matter of form. It is not required by section 13, title 1 of the Consolidated School Law or by any other provision of law. The moving papers contained all the essential facts as required by page 15 of the rules regulating such proceedings. The service of the moving papers was ample notice of what respondent was required to answer. However, respondent has appeared and answered without notice and without waiving any rights, and such appearance and answer even if notice were required is sufficient to bring the proceeding properly within my jurisdiction.

After this proceeding was inaugurated before me, I applied to Justice of the Peace Benedict for a certified return of the evidence taken by him upon the trial at which Roe was found guilty. He returns what purports to be a record of such evidence but his certificate shows that by agreement at the trial between the complainant and the defendant he did not keep a complete record of the evidence and that the return made is a record written by him from memory since my application for a return has been made. Attorney for respondent properly objects to my receiving such return and I shall sustain this objection.

Trustees of school districts are charged with the enforcement of the compulsory Education Law and a trustee who not only fails but refuses to provide for his own children who are subject to the provisions of that law the instruction which the law declares they shall receive is guilty not only of a wilful violation of law but of a wilful refusal to perform his official duty and should be removed from office.

It is proper to inquire what the official record of district no. 6, Warwick, with this Department has been in the enforcement of the compulsory education law. Our official reports and files show that it has been almost impossible to compel the officers of this district to enforce such law. On December 5, 1905, the Chief of the Attendance Division wrote Trustee Marsh calling his attention to the unsatisfactory attendance in his district and specifically naming the two children of respondent Roe as pupils who were not attending school as required by law. The trustee's attention is called to the "long record of unsatisfactory attendance" and is advised that if the law is not properly enforced the public money of the district will be withheld. Again on March 1, 1906 the Chief of the Attendance Division wrote Trustee Marsh of the continued unsatisfactory attendance and again named the daughter of respondent Roe as one of the pupils who did not attend school as legally required and also stated that satisfactory excuse for her absence was not given. Again on April 18, 1906 a communication was addressed to all three of the trustees calling attention to the failure to enforce this law. The Chief of the Attendance Division reports that in the enforcement of the compulsory education law district no. 6, Warwick, has one of the worst records of any district in this State. In this connection it is pertinent to refer to the fact that the data of the last United States census will show that Orange county stands number 44 in the list of counties of the State arranged in the order of the number of illiterates above the age of 10 years. This county has 4000 illiterates above that age or 40 out of every 1000. It also stands number 46 in the list of counties of the State arranged according to the number of illiterates in the voting population. It has 1894 illiterate voters or 62 out of every 1000. These figures show the importance of the strict enforcement of the compulsory education law and a trustee who does not manfully perform his duty in this respect is unfit to continue to assume the responsibilities of such office.

The respondent's answer does not deny the charges of absence from school on the part of his children nor does he claim in his answer that proper excuses were furnished for their absence. Therefore the charges of petitioners, namely, that the children did not attend school as required by law and that proper and legal excuses were not furnished for their nonattendance, stand admitted. In his answer he justifies his violation of the plain provisions of the law on the ground that the children were physically incapacitated to attend. If his children were physically unable to attend school it was his duty to satisfy the school authorities upon that point. The statement of a parent to the effect that a child is ill and unable to attend school need not necessarily be accepted by school authorities as a proper excuse. School authorities might know that such children were running the streets or were illegally detained at home to aid their parents. If school authorities were required to accept such excuses, a parent might keep his children out of school at any time for any purpose and simply send an excuse to the school authorities stating that the children were ill. Such construction of the statutes would render the compulsory education law a dead letter and the fundamental purposes of this law would be absolutely defeated.

The affidavit of respondent's attorney shows that the principal ground upon which he has taken an appeal to the county court from the judgment of the court which tried and convicted him is that the justice improperly charged the jury that the burden of proof as to the physical inability to attend school was upon the parent and not the school authorities. If the contention of respondent's attorney in this respect is true it would be an absolute impossibility to enforce the law. Such interpretation of the law would put many obstacles in the way of its enforcement which school officers would be unable to overcome. How are school officers to ascertain the physical conditions of children? The law provides no method. If a physician should be sent by school authorities to examine a child detained on the ground of illness and the parent refuses to permit the child to be examined by such physician how can such examination be made? Must in such event application be made to the courts for an order to make such examination and the important legal questions raised which such procedure involves? It can not be held that it was the intention of the Legislature to place such burdens upon the school system. The rational interpretation of this law consonant with the general policy of school administration is that the burden of proof in such cases is upon the parent. It violates no legal right of the parent.

Section 10 of the compulsory education law places the general responsibility of the supervision of the enforcement of this law throughout the State upon the Commissioner of Education. Pursuant to this authority I have promulgated certain regulations for the enforcement of such law. In every school register of the State, a copy of which is furnished every school district and a copy of which was supplied school district no. 12, Warwick, for the year beginning August 1, 1905, was the following printed regulation:

No pupil subject to the provisions of the compulsory education law, shall be absent or tardy without bringing a written excuse from his parent or guardian, which excuse should state the specific reasons for absence or tardiness. Sickness of the child, severe sickness in the family requiring the service of the child temporarily till other help may be had, or some unusual condition beyond the control of either child or parent, should be deemed the only legal excuse for absence. If any question as to the sufficiency of an excuse shall arise between the parent or guardian and teacher, it shall be referred to the superintendent of schools or to the school authorities for decision.

This rule places it within the power of trustees to determine what are sufficient excuses. This Department has always ruled that in the case of habitual or long-continued absence on the ground of physical inability to attend, trustees are within their lawful rights in requiring parents to furnish a physician's certificate and that such certificate is conclusive.

The Court of Appeals has held that the Commissioner of Education has authority to prescribe reasonable rules in the management of the public school system (181 N. Y. 421).

Respondent also claims that the reason for making application to have the case presented to the grand jury was to have the case tried in a court of record so that a commission could be appointed to take the testimony of two physicians who reside out of the State. He sets up that it was impossible to secure their attendance in this State at a trial and that a justice of the peace had not authority to take their testimony through a commission. If respondent believed the testimony of physicians residing out of the State admissible why did he not offer their testimony by affidavit in this proceeding? No evidence of this character has been offered and no application or request has been made to me to obtain such evidence. It is proper to state, however, that evidence of this character is admissible now as it was also upon the trial of Roe. The strained effort of respondent to make it appear now that he is desirous of presenting a certificate or testimony from a physician does not relieve him from the penalty due for failing to furnish the trustees such certificate at the proper time.

It appears clear from the pleadings in this case that respondent was guilty of failing to require his children to attend school as provided by law and of failing to conform to a regulation of this Department in the enforcement of the compulsory education law and that the facts show that his conduct therein was wilful and for a wrongful purpose and that he thereby as trustee became guilty of a wilful violation of law, of a regulation of this Department and of official duty. He should be removed from office.

The petition herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That James H. Roe be, and hereby is, removed from the office of trustee of school district no. 12, town of Warwick, county of Orange.

5170

In the matter of the petition and proceedings of school district no. 6, town of North Salem, Westchester county, for the removal of Charles S. Oakley and Frank C. Parkus, trustees of said district.

Funds received by a school district as an award under condemnation proceedings in which the site of the district is taken for public purposes must be used for the purchase of a new site and in removing and erecting thereon a schoolhouse, and improving and furnishing such site and house and their appendages and to purchase school apparatus and for the support of the school. Such funds must be used for these purposes as the legal voters of the district shall direct. Such funds are not at the disposal of the trustees to be used for such purposes as they shall direct.

When the trustees of a common school district are directed to expend $2000 in the erection of a building and such officers expend $4000 for that purpose they are guilty of a violation of law and of official duty. If it is necessary to expend any considerable amount in excess of an appropriation for the erection of a building it is the duty of the trustees to call a special meeting of the district and permit the legal voters thereof to direct what action shall be taken.

It is not within the power of trustees to decide to make improvements which are not necessary for the comfort or convenience of the children but which add to the general attractiveness of the building, such as installing electric light, putting in metal ceilings, papering walls, etc. The legal voters of the district in district meeting assembled is the proper authority to decide on making such improvements.

Section 473 of the Penal Code prohibits trustees from becoming interested personally, directly or indirectly, in any contract which they are authorized to make for the district. School districts are entitled to protection in their rights and when trustees are determined to ignore such rights this Department is bound on appeal in due form to afford districts such protection as the law provides. When the conduct of trustees shows clearly that they have wilfully violated the law and wilfully neglected their duty the penalty of removal must be imposed.

Decided January 31, 1905

Wilson Brown, jr, attorney for petitioners

Frank L. Parkus & Charles S. Oakley, attorneys for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

During the school year ending July 31, 1904, the board of trustees erected a school building in this district. The report of the trustees to the annual meeting in 1904 included expenditures for the erection of such building. Such report was referred to an auditing committee of three with instructions to report at an adjourned meeting to be held August 16th. At such adjourned meeting the committee submitted a written report charging the trustees with having made unnecessary and illegal expenditures, with being interested in district contracts, and recommending that such trustees be requested to resign on or before August 22d. The report also contained a recommendation to the effect that a committee be appointed with power to employ counsel and to take such action as might be deemed necessary. The meeting adopted this report and authorized the appointment of the committee recommended therein. Isaac Purdy, G. Preston Brown and Uel T. Bailey were named as members of such committee. The meeting adjourned until August 23d. The trustees did not resign as requested before August 22d. At the meeting of the district on August 23d the above-named committee was instructed to petition the Commissioner of Education for the removal of these trustees. This petition is, therefore, presented by direction of the district. The members of the committee join in the petition as individuals and as taxpayers of the district.

The petitioners allege twenty-two specific violations of law or of official duty on which they ask for the removal of Trustees Oakley and Parkus. It is unnecessary to go into a detailed consideration of each of these twenty-two counts against such trustees. The substance of the principal charges is that they made expenditures from the funds of the district in excess of appropriations and without legal authority therefor; and that they were personally interested in contracts which they made for the district and that they rendered services in various forms for the district, determined their compensation therefor and then audited and paid their own bills.

The pleadings which contain several hundred pages of typewritten matter show, among other things, that during the school year ending July 31, 1903, the site of this school district with other adjoining land was taken by the authorities of New York City under condemnation proceedings for the purpose of obtaining a pure and wholesome supply of water for that city. An award was made to the district by proper authority about June 19, 1903. This award amounted to $6518.90.

The school law does not directly provide what use shall be made of a fund derived from this source. It will be shown hereinafter that under the provisions of the Consolidated School Law so much of such fund as may be necessary shall be used in procuring a "new site and in removing or erecting thereon a schoolhouse, and improving and furnishing such site and house and their appendages," and also to purchase school apparatus and for the support of the school. But such fund must be used for these purposes as the inhabitants of the district shall direct at a district meeting. Such fund is not at the disposal of the trustees to be used by them for any of such purposes as they shall direct.

These alleged illegal expenditures were made during the school year beginning August 1, 1903, and ending July 31, 1904. The board of trustees for that year was composed of E. L. Quick, Frank L. Parkus and C. S. Oakley. Mr Quick's term of office expired at the annual meeting in 1904, and he was not reelected. This petition was not filed at this Department until October 3, 1904, and after Mr Quick's term of office had expired. The petitioners, therefore, ask for the removal of Mr Parkus and Mr Oakley who were members of the board of trustees at the time these alleged illegal expenditures were made and who are still serving as members of such board.

It appears that during the school year ending July 31, 1903, a new site had been purchased for the sum of $500 and that improvements thereon had been made in the sum of $397.93. At the annual meeting of 1903 the trustees reported a balance of $5620.97 in the fund received by award from New York City.

The authorities representing New York City gave the district the building on the old site. At a district meeting the sum of $800 was voted for the purpose of removing the building from the old site to the new site. The sum of $1200 was voted for repairs to the building. The trustees were authorized to grade the grounds in a suitable condition, but a specific amount was not voted for that purpose. These are the only expenditures expressly authorized by the district. It is not claimed by the respondents that other expenditures were authorized by the district.

Trustees are authorized by subdivision 5, section 47, article 6, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law to expend $50 for repairs to the schoolhouse, furniture etc. in any one year without a vote of the district. They may also, on the order of the school commissioner, expend under subdivision 3, section 13, title 5 of the same act, the sum of $200 for repairs to the schoolhouse and $100 for repairs to or for the purchase of furniture. They are also authorized by section 50 of title 7 to expend $50 for the erection of outbuildings when the district is wholly unprovided with such buildings and when such expenditure is directed by the school commissioner or by the Commissioner of Education. It is not claimed by the respondents that the school commissioner or the Commissioner of Education directed expenditures for these purposes. The trustees could, therefore, expend only $50 in addition to that voted by the district.

As the district meeting authorized an expenditure of $800 for removing the building and $1200 for repairs to the building, and the trustees could expend $50 without a vote of the district, such trustees could legally expend $2050 and whatever might be necessary to grade the grounds in a suitable condition. They did not possess legal authority to expend more. Any expenditure in excess of such amount for the erection and equipment of buildings and the grading and improvement of the site was an unauthorized and illegal expenditure. In making such expenditures the trustees were guilty of a violation of law and of official duty. If it were necessary to expend any considerable amount in excess of the appropriation to place the grounds and buildings in proper condition, it was the duty of the trustees to call a special meeting of the district and permit the legal voters thereof to direct what action should be taken. To pursue any other course would be an unwarranted and illegal procedure. It appears that many of the taxpayers believed improper and illegal expenditures were being made and petitioned the trustees to call a special meeting to consider the question. The school commissioner suggested to the trustees that they call such special meeting. These trustees refused to call such meeting. It was a serious mistake on the part of these trustees under the circumstances to refuse to honor such petition and to fail to comply with the suggestion of the school commissioner. They should have called a special meeting of the district.

The report of this board of trustees to the annual meeting of the district in 1904 shows the following expenditures:

Expenses of grading, cellar, ditch, well etc.

Grading	$422 55
Well	150 17
Cellar and chimneys.....	650 30
Cement, lime and brick.....	94 15
Tile	130 96
Labor	231 88
Posts for fence.....	30 00
Use of pump.....	1 00
Replacing tree.....	2 00
<hr/>
Total	$1 713 01
Less amount expended by former board.....	382 93	$1330 08
Architectural work.....	61 67
Heating plant.....	450 00
Desks and furniture.....	246 50
Moving and settling building.....	875 00
Registry of deed and lot.....	1 40
Electric lights.....	47 90
Extra work on closets and clearing lot.....	17 43	$1699 90
<hr/>
Expense of building
Bells, batteries etc.....	$4 30
Carpenter labor	546 88
Cartage and car fare.....	1 94
Metal ceiling.....	55 08
Express and freight.....	2 56
Glass	10 32
Hardware	103 25
Labels and cards for desk.....	1 25
Lavatory	10 00

Expense of building — Continued

Lumber	$682 72
Mason work, chimneys and walls.....	117 20
Paint, paste, varnish etc.....	65 10
Painters' labor.....	133 55
Paper for ceilings.....	16 00
Pipes, tin etc.....	57 09
Registers	5 40
Sink	1 75
Slate boards.....	63 52	$1877 91
<hr/>		<hr/>
Total expenditures.....		$4907 89
<hr/>		<hr/>

The report made by these trustees therefore shows that they expended $4907.89 for the purposes for which they were legally authorized to expend $2050 plus what might be necessary for grading the grounds in a suitable condition. The respondents do not attempt to state just how much they did expend in grading the grounds. They should be able to give the exact amount expended for that purpose. It is clear that at least $700 in addition to that expended by the former board was expended for this purpose. Accepting this as a fair, reasonable amount to have paid for grading the grounds, the board was authorized to expend not more than $2750. By this liberal estimate their expenditures still exceed the amount legally authorized by nearly $2200. All of these expenditures were made from the fund derived from the award paid by New York City.

These respondents attempt to justify their conduct in making these excessive and illegal expenditures, on the theory that section 21 of article 2, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law, conferred on them that power. Sections 19 and 20 of this article and title of the school law provides for the sale of a district site. Section 21 provides for the use that shall be made of a fund derived from the sale of a site. This fund, as previously stated, was obtained as an award in condemnation proceedings. The school law makes no provision for the use of a fund obtained in this manner. The school law does provide for the use that shall be made of money derived from a sale of the site of a district. A fund derived from an award made as the result of taking a site under condemnation proceedings is the equivalent of a fund derived from the sale of a site. In the absence of a provision of law to the contrary such fund must be so regarded and must be used as the law directs a fund derived from the sale of a site to be used.

The section of law above cited must, therefore, govern the use of this fund in question. The law reads that this fund "shall be applied to the expenses incurred in procuring a new site and in removing or erecting thereon a school-house and improving and furnishing such site and house, and their appendages, so far as such application shall be necessary; and the surplus, if any, shall be devoted to the purchase of school apparatus and the support of the school as the inhabitants at any annual meeting shall direct." This section of law does not provide that all of such moneys shall be expended on a new site and buildings but only so much thereof as may be necessary. This section of law does not confer on trustees the power to select or purchase sites or to erect or repair buildings or to appropriate funds of the district derived from any source for these purposes. It simply provides that this fund shall be used for certain purposes. To be used for such purposes it must be appropriated by the authority which the law directs, namely, a duly assembled school meeting.

There is no provision of the school law conferring on trustees the power to appropriate money for a site or to determine what amount shall be paid for a site. There is no provision of the school law conferring on trustees the power to appropriate money for the erection of buildings or for the improvement of, or additions to, school buildings except to the amount of $50, nor are trustees empowered to determine what amount shall be used for such purposes. The law does not confer on trustees the power to appropriate money beyond the sum of $50 for the purchase of school furniture. The law does, however, confer on a district meeting the power to appropriate money for these purposes and to determine the amount to be expended therefor (see subdivisions 7 and 8 of section 14 and sections 17 and 18 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law). Before any portion of the $6518.90 could be legally used by the trustees in purchasing a site or removing or erecting a building, it was necessary that a district meeting authorize an appropriation therefrom and to specify the amount to be used. The trustees could legally expend the amount thus voted but no more.

The respondents claim that the action of the district in voting $800 for removing the old building and $1200 for repairs was illegal and not binding upon them, on the ground that the vote was not taken at a proper meeting and not taken by the method which the law directs. In this they are in error. Such action was binding upon the trustees until declared illegal by proper authority. If these respondents were correct in this contention they had no right to make any expenditure from this fund except the $50 which the law permits trustees to expend without a vote of the district. By this contention the trustees evidently recognized the limitations placed on their powers by the Consolidated School Law in relation to expenditures for the purposes under consideration. If these expenditures were made by the respondents knowing that they were exceeding their rightful powers, their conduct was wilful and they must stand guilty of a wilful violation of law and neglect of duty.

The trustees were authorized by the annual meeting of 1903 to inquire into the best mode of heating the schoolhouse. They never reported to the district on that question, but decided on a heating system and installed it at a cost of $450, without direction from the district to do so. It also appears from the report of the trustees to the annual meeting of 1904 that such trustees installed a system of electric lights in the building, put in metal ceilings, papered the walls, expended nearly $250 for furniture and made expenditures for several other purposes which had not been authorized. Many of these expenditures were not necessary for the comfort or convenience of the children but added to the general attractiveness of the building. It was not within the power of these trustees to decide to make such improvements no matter how desirable they may have been. It was the right of the district, under the law, to pass upon the necessity and the desirability of making such expenditures.

It is also alleged in the petition that these trustees personally supplied material, performed labor and services for the district and were thereby personally interested in contracts which they, as trustees, made for the district. One of the purposes for which it is alleged excessive and illegal expenditures were made was grading the grounds. The official records of the board show that Trustee Quick was employed on the grading a large portion of the time between October 5, 1903, and February 6, 1904. He received $5 per day for the services of himself and team. These records also show that he supplied material used in the improvements made. He received for such labor, services and material at least $346.00. The official records of the board also show that Trustee Parkus, who is a painter and decorator, supplied material at various times, that he was employed much of the time between November 20, 1903 and February 20, 1904, receiving $3.50 per day. He received for such labor, services and material at least $303.87. The bills of Trustee Quick and Trustee Parkus for such labor, services and material were presented to the board of trustees, audited by such body and paid under the order of that body. Mr Parkus and Mr Quick constituted a majority of the board. They could have controlled the action of the board. Mr Oakley offered no objection to this procedure, but on the contrary readily concurred in it. It was an illegal and wrongful proceeding and Mr Oakley in acquiescing in it became equally censurable with the other two members. In fact he appears to have been the controlling power in the board. It is charged by petitioners and admitted by respondents that all members of the board rendered services or performed labor for which they presented bills which were audited officially by the board.

This board of trustees made a division of certain work among its members. These members performed such work. As trustees they passed upon the character and quality of the work which they as individuals performed for the district. Again as trustees they determined the value of the services which they as individuals rendered the district. It is this very practice which the law prohibits. It is a violation of section 473 of the Penal Code for trustees to become interested personally, directly or indirectly, in any contract which they are authorized to make for the district. The petitioners have shown that those respondents did not make proper effort to get this work done for the district at the lowest price consistent with substantial service. The appellants have also shown by evidence of competent witnesses that the cost of the building and improvements is largely in excess of their real value. Four men competent to testify on the value of the school property in question as it now stands, swear that the cost of erecting the buildings and making the improvements to the grounds etc. should not have exceeded $2500, provided such sum was properly expended. The respondents have failed to present competent evidence to controvert this charge. The testimony of men who have made repairs in the locality of this school district showing that such repairs have cost more than was anticipated is not sufficient nor is it competent. Testimony on this point should be from men familiar with grading and building and who know the cost of performing such labor and of the materials to be used etc. Such testimony the respondents have not offered and the allegation that the funds of the district were wastefully and wrongfully expended is established.

Section 17 of article 2 of the Consolidated School Law provides that no schoolhouse shall be built in any school district until the plan of ventilating, heating and lighting have been approved, in writing, by the school commissioner. The plans of this building, showing these features were never submitted to the school commissioner for approval and the trustees erected this building in violation of a law generally understood by the people and with which they must have been familiar. The conduct of these trustees has been reprehensible in many ways. They seem to have had no regard for the wishes of the people of the district as clearly expressed in district meetings. They have shown no respect for the law regulating their duties and limiting their powers. They decided to make certain improvements and expenditures without regard to their legal powers or the rights of the district and they put into effect their decision thereon. School districts are entitled to protection in their rights and when trustees are determined to ignore such rights this Department is bound on appeal in due form to afford districts such protection as the law provides. The severe penalty of removal from office will not be imposed for slight reasons or for trivial offenses committed through a misunderstanding of the law; but when the conduct of trustees shows clearly that they have wilfully violated the law and wilfully neglected their duty this penalty must be imposed. When a district, acting within its legal powers, directs its trustees to do certain things and such trustees fail to do as directed or deliberately exceed their powers in such matter they are guilty of a wilful violation of law and of neglect of official duty.

School officers are to be commended for manifesting a desire to erect suitable buildings, to properly equip them, and improve and beautify the grounds. In all proper and legal efforts to achieve such results they will be fully sustained by this Department. When the voters of a district refuse to properly cooperate with trustees in such matters this Department will extend all assistance and relief which the circumstances will warrant and the law will permit. School officers who disregard the plainly written statutes and violate the rights of a district to reach these ends, of course, can not be sustained.

I decide, that Frank L. Parkus and Charles S. Oakley, members of the board of trustees of school district no. 6, town of North Salem, Westchester county, were, and each of them was, guilty of wilful violation of law and wilful neglect and violation of duty:

By expending illegally, excessively, exorbitantly and wrongfully the funds of the district; by knowingly permitting members of the board of trustees of such district to become personally interested in contracts of the district and by auditing and paying the bills of members of the board for services performed and material furnished; by failing to comply with the directions of the district in many ways as charged in the moving papers; and by failing to protect the rights, property and funds of the district as required by virtue of the offices which they held and as the law provides.

The petition herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That Frank L. Parkus and Charles S. Oakley, and each of them, be, and they are, and each of them is, hereby removed from office as members of the board of trustees of school district no. 6, town of North Salem, Westchester county, for wilful violation of law and wilful neglect and violation of duty as members of such board of trustees.

It is further ordered, That Uel T. Bailey, the member of the board of trustees of said district, elected at the annual meeting held in such district August 2, 1904, without unnecessary delay, call a special meeting of the legal voters of said district no. 6, town of North Salem, in accordance with the provisions of section 6, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law, for the purpose of electing a trustee whose term of office shall expire on the first Tuesday of August 1905, in place of Frank L. Parkus, removed; also, for the election of a trustee whose term of office will expire on the first Tuesday in August 1906, in the place of Charles S. Oakley, removed.

3727

In the matter of the application for the removal of Isaiah M. Merrill as trustee of school district no. 8, town of Northfield, county of Richmond.

A trustee who reported a claim against the district as paid, when in fact it was not paid, and who received district moneys into his own hands to pay the same, and then liquidated the debt by giving his personal promissory note, is guilty of a procedure which can not be upheld.

Trustee's removal from office decreed.

Decided November 15, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

Isaiah M. Merrill is one of three trustees in the district above named. He was elected to such office at the annual school meeting in 1886, and his term will expire in 1889.

The petitioners allege that he has been guilty of making false reports to district meetings. It was shown that the annual report of the trustees made in 1887, showed that a bill for lumber in favor of J. H. Van Clief & Son had been paid, when in fact such bill had not been paid. It seems that a brother of Merrill was the collector of the district and that between them they received the money which should have paid this bill. On the other hand, the trustee claims that the report was not intended to show that such bill had been in fact paid, but that an order had been drawn upon the collector in favor of Van Clief & Son for the payment thereof. It is also shown that Merrill settled this bill with Van Clief & Son on the 4th of February 1888, by giving to said firm his promissory note for the amount, and that said firm received such note in settlement of the claim.

There are some other matters set forth in the petition for the removal of Merrill, but I do not deem it necessary to consider them.

Sufficient appears to show that the trustee has been derelict in the duties of his office. He does not deny that he had full knowledge of all the circumstances and was responsible for the report to the district meeting in 1887 being made in the form in which it was presented. If the claim of Van Clief & Son had not actually been paid, the report should not have indicated that it had been. But while it might be possible to overlook a misstatement of that nature upon the ground that it was unintentional and that there was no deliberate purpose to deceive the district meeting, it is not possible to overlook the fact that this trustee received the money of the district into his own hands and that instead of paying the same over to the claimant he converted the same to his own use for a long time, and then finally settled the claim by giving his personal promissory note therefor.

A school trustee has no right to take into his hands moneys belonging to the district. It is his business to draw orders upon the proper officer in settlement of legitimate claims and deliver the order to the claimant, who must get his money from the collector. It is quite possible that there has been no deliberate purpose to defraud the district, but the conclusion is irresistible that the trustee in this case has been guilty of a procedure which can not be upheld as a precedent, and can not be tolerated with safety to the public interests.

Mr Merrill, the trustee, also comes before the Department with a petition asking that the records of a certain district meeting be expunged from the official records of the district, on the ground that such meeting was not regularly and lawfully called. It is alleged by the respondents that the meeting referred to was not intended to be a regular district meeting, that it was only a voluntary assemblage of residents of the district looking to action which should be advantageous to the interests of the district. It is admitted that if the records of such a meeting have been incorporated into the records which the law requires the clerk to keep, that the same should be expunged therefrom.

It is, therefore, ordered that Isaiah M. Merrill be, and he is hereby removed from the office of trustee in school district no. 8 of the town of Northfield, Richmond county, and that the remaining members of the board call a speedy meeting of the district for the purpose of filling such vacancy.

In the matter of the petition of Charles J. Quinby and Robert F. Smith for the removal of William A. Cromwell from the board of education in union free school district no. 1, town of White Plains, Westchester county.

Removal of member of board of education; authorizing expenditures in excess of appropriation. Where a board of education directs certain specified repairs to be made to the several school buildings in a union free school district and one of the members of the board acts as a committee in making such repairs, the fact that such member in contracting for repairs exceeded the amount which had been appropriated for such repairs, is not a sufficient cause for his removal where it appears that there was no evidence of bad faith and that the board itself examined the accounts for the repairs and ordered them to be paid.

Failure to obey rules requiring bids. A board of education adopted a rule requiring that bids should be received on all contracts exceeding the sum of $100. A wilful violation of such a rule to the detriment of the district for the purpose of favoring any person or persons in transactions respecting the district property or affairs is sufficient ground for removal. Where the evidence shows that the violation of such rule is technical and not wilful he should not be removed. A petitioner who seeks the removal of a member of the board of education because of a violation of such a rule must show by preponderance of proof that such violation was wilful and resulted in injury to the district. Decided March 10, 1910

Charles J. Quinby, attorney for appellant

William A. Cromwell, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The petitioners, Charles J. Quinby and Robert F. Smith, are taxpayers and qualified electors in union free school district no. 1, town of White Plains, Westchester county, and they ask for the removal of William A. Cromwell from his office as member of the board of education of such district. The petition was filed in this Department November 17, 1909; an answer was filed by the respondent November 24, 1909, but the subsequent pleadings and affidavits submitted by both parties delayed the closing of the case until January 24, 1910. The case has assumed voluminous proportions; a large number of affidavits have been submitted on both sides and a considerable amount of documentary evidence has been adduced. It has been necessary to carefully examine all these pleadings, affidavits and documents to reach a decision.

The proceeding is brought under section 228 of the Education Law which provides that "For cause shown, and after giving notice of the charge and opportunity of defense, the Commissioner of Education may remove any member of a board of education. Wilful disobedience of any lawful requirement of the Commissioner of Education, or a want of due diligence in obeying such requirement, or wilful violation or neglect of duty, is cause for removal." The respondent has been served with a copy of all the charges, and has replied thereto in detail. He has been notified of his opportunity to present oral testimony in his defense. The petitioners and the respondent have expressly consented to a decision upon the papers presented, without oral argument.

It is admitted that the respondent was a member of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of White Plains, which consists of the village of White Plains, in the year 1908, and that during that year he was a member of the committee on buildings and repairs; that at the annual meeting held in August 1908, an item of $4500 was voted to be expended during the ensuing school years for repairs to school buildings; that the respondent, as a member of the committee on buildings and repairs, presented a detailed report to the board, at a meeting held July 14, 1908, specifying the character and extent of the repairs to be made on the several school buildings in the district, and thereupon the making of such repairs was referred to the said committee, with power; that on July 30, 1908 the respondent, as sole acting member of such committee, sent notices to certain persons, with specifications attached, directing them to make the repairs in accordance with such specifications; that the repairs were accordingly made under the direction of the respondent during the months of July, August and September 1908, and that the total amount of indebtedness thereby incurred amounted to over $7,300; that such repairs were made without competitive bids being asked for or received.

The petitioners contend that the respondent wilfully violated the law in incurring an indebtedness for repairs in excess of the sum of $4500, voted at the annual school meeting held August 4, 1908, for repairs to school buildings. But it appears from the allegations contained in the petitioners' reply that the board directed that certain specified repairs be made to the several school buildings, without regard to the probable cost thereof, at a meeting held prior to the annual meeting of the district when the appropriation was made. It is the duty of a board of education to keep the schoolhouses of the district, and the furniture and apparatus therein in repair (Education Law, § 226, subd. 6), and such duty is not limited or enlarged by an appropriation which may be made therefor by a district meeting. If the amount appropriated for such purpose by the annual meeting in accordance with estimates submitted to such meeting by the board is insufficient to pay the cost of necessary repairs, and there is no other fund available for such purpose, it is the duty of the board to present a supplementary estimate to a special meeting duly called by such board (Education Law, § 242). If the school buildings are in such condition as to make the repairs necessary for the use of such buildings for school purposes, the board may take the necessary action to secure a tax levy to raise the amount required to pay for such repairs, as in the case of contingent expenses (Education Law, § 244). While it is true that under the provisions of section 232 of the Education Law, the amount appropriated for a specific purpose measures the liability to be incurred, such section must not be construed as arbitrarily limiting the amount to be expended in making repairs which must be made to preserve the district's property and to render its buildings fit for use.

All of the bills submitted by the persons whom the respondent employed to make the repairs, amounting to more than $7300, were carefully examined by the board, and they were ordered paid without a dissenting vote. If there was any unlawful act committed in paying out money in excess of the appropriation made by the district meeting, it was the act of the board, for which it would be unjust to hold this respondent responsible. There is no proof that all or a part of the repairs were unnecessary, or that there was no fund available to pay the cost thereof, and it must therefore be held that neither the respondent nor the board of education violated the law in exceeding the amount appropriated for such repairs at the annual school meeting.

A more serious question is involved in the declaration that the respondent is guilty of a wilful violation or neglect of duty in failing to ask for and receive bids for the performance of the work which he was directed to do, and in omitting to refer the matter of making certain repairs to the board of education, as required by the rules and regulations of the board. The rules which it is insisted the respondent has violated are as follows:

Buildings and repairs: this committee shall exercise general supervision over all buildings and grounds. It shall order all needful repairs on all school buildings and grounds, when the sum to be expended does not exceed $100, otherwise it shall first obtain the approval of the board.

Proposals and bids: bids shall be received on all contracts and purchases exceeding the sum of $100, the board reserving the right to accept or reject any and all bids.

These rules were probably in force when the respondent directed the reports to be made according to the specifications which had been submitted to the board, although this is denied by the respondent. It may be that the board had not continuously observed such rules. It may be that the board had not adopted rules and regulations for the years 1907, 1908 and 1909. But it does not appear that such rules and regulations have been abrogated, and the rules cited should have guided the respondent in the performance of his duty.

It appears from the evidence that all the repairs of certain kinds on all the schoolhouses were given to the same person or firm. For instance, the work of renewing, repairing and cleaning heaters, repairing roofs, skylights etc. was given to Klein & Carter. This work was done on three schoolhouses. The expense incurred for such work on two of the schoolhouses exceed $100. The total amount of this claim was $973.32. The work of papering, painting and kalsomining was given to one firm, and was done by the day without contract, except as to a portion thereof on two of the school buildings. The total amount of such work was $1288.91. The carpentry work on all these school buildings was done by one man, and the amount charged therefor was $656. The masonry work required in and around all these buildings, consisting of plastering, cement work and brick work, was done by daywork and without competitive bids or contracts. The amount charged for such work was $1776.03. The amount expended for new plumbing and repairing old plumbing in the several school buildings was $1723.52, and it was all done under an arrangement made with one man on a daywork basis, separate charges being made for materials. In many instances the amount expended on each school building for the several kinds of repairs which were ordered by the respondent, in his capacity as sole member of the committee on buildings and repairs, exceeded the sum of $100, and the expenditures thereof should have been subject to approval by the board and in accordance with competitive bids. There was an apparent disregard of the two regulations of the board to which reference is made above.

The respondent should have known that he was exceeding his authority in ordering these repairs to be made without asking for competitive bids and submitting the same to the board so that contracts therefor might be awarded. The Department approves of such a method of expenditure of the district's money, and will insist that such method be followed where the law or the rules of the board require it. If in any case it is shown by sufficient and competent evidence that a board of education or member or committee thereof has wilfully violated any such law or rule, to the detriment of the district, with the purpose of favoring any person or persons in transactions respecting the district's property or affairs, such board, member or committee will be removed from office.

The respondent is guilty of a technical violation of the rules of the board in ordering the repairs made without receiving competitive bids. But unless such violation is shown to be wilful there is not sufficient proof to justify his removal. The statute conferring the power on the Commissioner of Education to remove a member of a board of education recognizes "wilful violation or neglect of duty" as cause for removal. There is no proof in this case that the respondent wilfully violated such rules or wilfully neglected his duty. The minutes of the board show that each member thereof voted in favor of a motion referring the matter of repairs to the various schools to the "building committee with power." The respondent insists that he thought he was thereby given power to proceed as he saw fit in making the repairs specified. The motion was broad in its terms and on its face would appear to confer ample authority upon the respondent to proceed with the repairs. He might have misjudged his limitations, but he was not wilful in his transgression; there is no evidence that he wilfully refused to obey the directions of the board in respect to such repairs.

The petitioners have alleged that the bills presented to the board were exorbitant and that the repairs ordered by the respondent were not reasonably necessary. These allegations are denied by the respondent. The petitioners should have shown in what respect the repairs ordered were unnecessary and how the prices charged were exorbitant. Both of these statements, if true, could have been substantiated by affirmative proof. There being no proof of unnecessary work done upon the order of the respondent, for prices which are excessive, it must be held that the respondent is not guilty of fraud or collusion. Whatever proof is produced by either party upon this question leads to the conclusion that the district was not seriously injured by these transactions. The money paid for such repairs was not misappropriated. The petitioners must bear the burden of their allegation of misfeasance in office based upon the charges that favored tradesmen and contractors were permitted to charge exorbitant prices for work that was not needed. They have not assumed this burden, and it must be held that these charges are not proven.

Mr Edward B. Long and Mr Robert C. Bromm are members of the board of education and present affidavits in support of the petition for removal. It appears from Mr Long's affidavit that he and Mr Bromm were appointed a committee to examine the bills for repairs which were claimed to have been incurred by the respondent without authority. It is apparent that these two gentlemen were not friendly to the respondent. If they had discovered any fraud or collusion in these transactions they would have probably reported that fact to the board. This committee kept these accounts in their possession for several weeks and presumably made a careful examination of each piece of work done. The minutes of the board show that this committee reported nearly all the bills in controversy and advised that they be paid. Mr Long and Mr Bromm both say that they advised the board to pay the bills, since they believed that they were legal claims against the district. If the respondent exceeded his lawful authority in incurring an indebtedness in excess of an appropriation, or if he wilfully violated a provision of law in failing to advertise for and receive bids for the work done, the claims therefor were not enforceable against the district. When the board directed the payment of these claims, it recognized their validity, and in effect approved the acts of the respondent. The acts of the respondent thereby became the acts of the board, and if the respondent is guilty of improper conduct in incurring indebtedness in excess of the appropriation made for repairs, the board is equally guilty, and if the respondent should be removed on this account the members of the board who voted to pay such claims should also be removed.

After a careful examination of all the material matters involved in this proceeding it must be held that the respondent has not been shown to be guilty of any intentional or wilful violation or neglect of duty. The petition is therefore dismissed.

5338

In the matter of the appeal of A. L. Cleaveland and E. N. Christopher from the action of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Union, Broome county.

A proceeding to impeach the official action of a board of education without showing definite knowledge of wrongdoing on the part of such board and without supplying sufficient proof to sustain alleged charges, will be dismissed.

Decided September 24, 1907

Thomas A. Macclary, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

The moving papers in this proceeding are very defective. The verification, the service, the insufficiency of proof of wrongful conduct on the part of the board of education and the failure of appellants to show that the action complained of operates as a grievance to them, are sufficient grounds for dismissing this appeal. It further appears that appellants were at the annual meeting of district no. 1, town of Union, on the evening of August 6, 1907, and raised no objection to the acts complained of. Appellants are thereby estopped from raising objection to such proceedings now.

It appears that the notice of the annual meeting was published but three weeks preceding the date of such meeting. If no notice at all had been given of such meeting the proceedings of such meeting would not be void. The law fixes the date of an annual meeting and the voters of a district may convene on that date at the proper hour and place and transact the business of the meeting if no notice at all is given. The provision of law requiring notice of such meeting is simply directory and not essential to the validity of the meeting.

There is no ground for appellants' contention that the board improperly paid an attorney $10 for services rendered the board. The services were proper and the charge therefor was not excessive. The board had full authority to employ an attorney for the work which he performed and the expense of the same was a district liability.

The principal contention of appellants is that the published account of the receipts and disbursements of the board are not sufficiently itemized. On the contrary, the report which was printed appears to be very complete in details and very clear. It may be that there are two clerical or typographical errors but there is nothing in these suggestive of irregularity on the part of the board.

A person should not initiate a proceeding to impeach the official action of a board of education without having definite knowledge of wrongdoing on the part of such board and without supplying sufficient proof to sustain his charges.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

3907

In the matter of the appeal of Alfred T. Bortle and Jacob P. Lansing v. the trustees of school district no. 11, town of Schodack, Rensselaer county.

A trustee having placed himself in an equivocal position as between the district whose interests he should protect, and a contractor engaged in building for the district, by accepting employment from the contractor upon such work, removed from office.

Decided September 10, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

Appeal to restrain trustees of district no. 11, town of Schodack, Rensselaer county, from the further prosecution of the work of building a schoolhouse in said district, and for the removal of James Benner, one of the trustees, from office.

The ground upon which an order to restrain is asked for, is that the work is not being carried on as required by the plans and specifications adopted.

The trustee's removal is sought upon the ground that he has been employed by the contractor, and is doing work for him as a laborer or carpenter upon the school building, thereby placing himself in an equivocal position as between the district whose interests he should guard, and the contractor by whom he is employed.

Having carefully considered the pleadings filed, and after hearing the appellant and counsel for the respondent, I have concluded to defer a final determination of all the issues raised until the completion of the building in question. I make, however, the following preliminary determination and order:

1 I deny the application for an order to enjoin the prosecution of the work.

2 I hereby remove the trustee, James Bemmer, from office, it having been conceded that he is engaged at work upon the schoolhouse, under employment from the contractor. I do this among other reasons, in order that a trustee may be selected by the legal voters of the district if they will, who is in no manner associated with the contractor in the performance of his contract, and who will guard and protect the interests of the people.

I do hereby enjoin the trustees of said district from issuing any further order to the contractor or his assignees for work done or to be done upon the contract, for building said schoolhouse, and the collector of said district from disbursing any district money upon orders to the contractor or his assignees upon said contract, until ten days after the completion of said contract, and the acceptance of the building by the trustees, in order that any legal voter of the district, believing that the contract has not been complied with, may have a reasonable opportunity to call the attention of the Department thereto.

4773

In the matter of the petition of G. M. Sweet and others, for the removal of Frank K. Avery from office as a trustee of Phoenix school district, Schroepel, Oswego county.

In a petition for the removal of a school officer for wilful violation of duty, under the provisions of section 13, title 1, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, the petitioners must establish, by a preponderance of proof, that such officer has acted intentionally, with a wrongful purpose, or such petition will be dismissed.

Decided June 23, 1899

O. M. Reilly, attorney for petitioners

Addison D. Merry, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is a petition by certain residents of the Phoenix school district, in the village of Phoenix, county of Oswego, praying for the removal of Frank K. Avery from office as a member of the board of education of said school district, for wilful violation and neglect of duty.

The petitioners, upon information and belief, as the main grounds for the removal of said Avery, allege that on February 22, 1898, the said Avery, then being one of the trustees of such school district, entered into a contract with the board of trustees of said district, by which he sold and delivered to said district 40,625 pounds of coal at the agreed price of $5.25 per ton, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $106.64, and on or about April 5, 1898, received said sum from such district; that on or about January 28, 1899, still being one of the trustees of said district, Avery entered into a contract with the board of trustees of the district by which he sold and delivered to said district 40,280 pounds of coal at the agreed price of $4.75 per ton, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $95.67, and on or about February 20, 1899, received said sum from said district; that on or about October 26, 1898, said Avery then being one of the trustees as aforesaid, and a member of the firm of Merry & Avery, which firm was engaged, in the village of Phoenix, in conducting the business of fire insurance for divers fire insurance companies, entered into a contract with said board of trustees by which he procured to be written and delivered to the clerk thereof a policy of insurance upon the school building of the district, the premium thereon being the sum of $48, and which premium was paid by the board of trustees to said Avery on or about December 1, 1898.

Said petitioners further allege, upon information and belief, that at the times he furnished said coal and received pay therefor, and delivered said policy of insurance, and was paid the premium thereon, "said Avery knew that he had no right to be directly or indirectly interested in any contracts with said school district while being a member of the board of trustees of the district."

The respondent, Avery, has answered the petition in which he admits that he was elected a member of the board of education as stated in the petition, and is still acting in such capacity, and for the purposes of the proceedings herein, he admits the sale and delivery by him to said school district, in February 1898 and January 1899, of the coal and at the purchase price as stated in the petition, and that he received from the district such purchase price; that he denies the allegations in the petition that the bills for said coal were never audited by said board, and alleges that said bills were duly audited; that he denies the allegations in the petition, that at the times he furnished such coal and received pay therefor, he knew that he had no right to be directly or indirectly interested in any contracts made by him with said school district, or by its board of education; but on the contrary alleges that at none of said times had he any knowledge of the existence of any law forbidding such acts or contracts, or that he had any knowledge that his said acts or contracts were in violation of any law of this state.

Respondent Avery further admits that he was a member of the firm of Merry & Avery as alleged in the petition, but alleges that before the formation of said firm it was agreed that he (Avery) was to have an interest only in such business as he should solicit and bring to said firm, and that he did not bring, solicit or procure the issuing of the policy of insurance upon said school building, and never had any interest whatever in the premium paid thereon, or any commission thereon; that the business of procuring such insurance had been solicited by, and promised to, Merry prior to the formation of the firm of Merry & Avery in January 1897.

To said answer the petitioners have filed a reply.

— In section 18, article 4, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 it is provided, among other things, that no member of a board of education shall be personally interested in any contract made by said board.

Section 13 title 1 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 provides that whenever it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction that any school commissioner or other school officer has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under said act, or any other act pertaining to common schools, or wilfully disobeying any decision, order or regulation of such Superintendent, the said Superintendent may, by an order under his hand and seal, remove such school commissioner or other school officer from his office.

In the people ex rel. Clingen v. Draper, State Supt. etc., 63 Hun 389, the general term for the third department held that "wilful" in said section 13 means "intentional." In the people ex rel. Light v. Skinner, Supt. etc., 37 Appellate Division Reports 44, the court called attention to the established doctrine that where the power to remove an officer is conferred by authority of a statute, it must be strictly construed, and its provisions accurately followed. That it would not be doubted, as claimed by counsel, that a power to remove officers who have been elected by the citizens of the town in which they live, to an honorable office for a term of years, should not be exercised except in a reasonably clear case, and with great caution. The court held that "The words 'wilful violation of duty,' as used in section 13, title 1 of the Consolidated School Act, as applicable to acts for which members of a board of education may be removed by the State Superintendent, must be construed to mean acts intentionally done with a wrongful purpose."

The petitioners allege, upon information and belief, that Trustee Avery knew at the time he entered into each of the two contracts with the board of which he was a member, to furnish coal for the district, that the law forbade him to be personally interested in either of such contracts. The respondent, Avery, expressly denies that he had any such knowledge.

I decide:

That the petitioners have failed in establishing by a preponderance of proof that the respondent, in entering into such contracts, acted intentionally with a wrongful purpose.

I further decide:

That the preponderance of proof filed herein, establishes the fact that the respondent herein had no personal interest in the matter of insuring the school building by an insurance company of which the firm in which the respondent was a member, acted as the agents.

The petitioners allege in their petition that on the evening of April 5, 1899, at a meeting of the board of education of said school district, the respondent, Avery, used abusive and insulting language toward certain other members of such board, and was guilty of official misconduct.

Assuming, for the purpose of argument only, that such misconduct is established by the proofs herein, I have no legal authority to remove the respondent from office as a member of said board of education for official misconduct.

Subdivision 13 of section 15, article 4, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, provides that the boards of education of every union free school district shall severally have the power, and it shall be their duty "To remove any member of their board for official misconduct." Said subdivision requires a written copy of all charges made of such misconduct shall be served upon him at least ten days before the time appointed for the hearing of the same; and he shall be allowed a full and fair opportunity to refute such charges before removal.

The petitioners having failed to establish the allegations contained in their petition by a preponderance of proof, such petition is dismissed, and the prayer of the petitioners is denied.

4576

In the matter of the petition of Julien T. Williams for the removal of Frederick D. Light, Daniel Scannell, Charles J. Flahaven, Charles C. Parker and Henry F. Van Devort from office as members of the board of education of the town of Dunkirk, Chautauqua county.

When a meeting of a board of education is duly adjourned to a day and hour, and upon such day and hour two members thereof are present and after waiting for seven minutes for their associate members to arrive, adjourn such meeting without day and leave the building and notify their associates that the meeting is adjourned without day and such associate members, notwithstanding such notice, proceed to organize a meeting of such board, claiming such meeting to be the regular adjourned meeting, and proceed to transact business, such members of said board, so acting, are guilty of a wilful violation of duty and upon petition will be removed from office.¹

Decided September 4, 1897

Skinner, Superintendent

Julien T. Williams, the petitioner in the above-entitled matter, has filed his petition, alleging that he is the president of the board of education of the town of Dunkirk, Chautauqua county, and asking for the removal of Messrs Light, Scannell, Flahaven, Parker and VanDevort as members of said board of education for wilful violation and neglect of duty in holding illegal meetings of said board, and assuming to transact business thereat, and attempting to carry into effect the motions and resolutions of such illegal meetings; and for disregarding and refusing to obey an injunction order of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Messrs Light, Scannell, Flahaven, Parker and Van Devort have answered the petition.

The material facts alleged in the petition of the holding by the respondent herein, of an illegal meeting on June 14, 1897, are not controverted.

It appears that by chapter 54 of the Laws of 1888, the Dunkirk union free school district was established; that said chapter 54 has been, at different times, amended; that said district is under the direction of a board of education which board, for the school year of 1896-97, consisted of eight members, namely, the petitioner and respondents herein, and Thomas C. Jones and Richard Mulholland, of which the petitioner was president and the respondent, Light, secretary; that said board is a body corporate, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; that such board has power to fill vacancies occurring in said body; that a regular meeting of said board is required to be held once in each month, and may be adjourned from time to time; that special meetings may be called by the president of the board, or, in his absence or inability to act, by the secretary or any other member of the board, as often as necessary, by giving personal notice to each member of the board, or causing a written or printed notice to be left at his place of residence, at least twenty-four hours before the hour of meeting; that said board shall, at the first meeting after the annual election in each year appoint one of their number president of the board, who shall preside at the meetings of such board when present, and when absent a president pro tempore shall act in his stead.

¹The State Superintendent was reversed by the Court of Appeals upon this case. The opinion is given here for the purpose of making the record of the case complete.

It further appears that a regular meeting of the board of education of the town of Dunkirk, was held at its office in Dunkirk, on June 14, 1897, at 7.30 p. m., and was duly adjourned to June 16, 1897, at 7.30 p. m., and on June 16, 1897, was again adjourned to June 18, 1897, at 7.30 p. m.; that on June 18, 1897, a written notice was sent by the respondent, Light, as secretary, to each of the members of such board that there would be an adjourned regular meeting of such board of education on Saturday evening, June 19, 1897, at 7.30 o'clock; that on June 19, 1897, at 7.30 o'clock in the evening the petitioner herein, the president of said board, and Mr Mulholland, a member thereof, met in the office of said board of education, pursuant to the aforesaid notice of Secretary Light and remained until 7.37 o'clock when, no other members of said board appearing, on motion of Mr Mulholland the meeting was adjourned; that the petitioner and Mulholland in passing out of the building met certain other members of the board and informed them that the meeting of the board was adjourned without day, and the petitioner and Messrs Mulholland and Jones, two other members of the board, left the building.

It further appears that the respondents herein organized a meeting, the respondent Parker acting as chairman, and the respondent Light acting as secretary, at which said meeting one Clarence F. Morton was elected superintendent of the Dunkirk school for the school year of 1897-98, and other proceedings taken relative to the school of Dunkirk, after which the meeting was adjourned without day.

The respondents claim that the meeting held by them on June 13, 1897, was legal and valid and held pursuant to the adjournment made on June 16, 1897; the petitioner claims that such meeting was illegal, and that the respondents, in holding such meeting, are guilty of a wilful violation of their duty as members of such board of education.

I am of the opinion that the contention of the petitioner is well taken.

On June 16, 1897, the regular meeting of the board of education was adjourned to June 19, 1897, at 7.30 o'clock p. m., and each member thereof was notified in writing of the fact by the secretary. It was the duty of each member of such board to be present at the hour fixed for the meeting. The members who were present at the hour to which such meeting was adjourned were not legally or otherwise required to wait for their associates or send the janitor to hunt them up, and the action of the petitioner and Mulholland in adjourning the meeting was legal and valid.

The meeting held by the respondents herein on June 19, 1897, was neither an adjourned meeting of the board of education, nor a special meeting of such board. The adjourned regular meeting of the board was to June 19, 1897, at 7.30 o'clock p. m. At 7.37 p. m. only the petitioner and Mulholland were present and such adjourned meeting was then and there adjourned without day. A special meeting of the board could not be held without a notice to each member of such board, and it is not claimed that any such notice for a special meeting to be held on June 19, 1897, was given. It follows that the meeting held on June 19, 1897, at which the respondents were present, and the respondent Parker acted as chairman, was not a legal meeting of the board of education of Dunkirk, but simply a meeting of the five persons who were present, as individuals. The proceedings had and taken thereat have no legal force or effect, and are not binding upon the school district, or upon the board of education thereof.

It appears that the petitioner here in July 1897, brought an appeal from certain acts and resolutions of certain members of said board of education, and that on July 9, 1897, an order was made by me restraining said board from taking any action whatever in regard to the election of a new superintendent of schools in Dunkirk, or dismissing the present superintendent, J. W. Babcock, until the decision of such appeal or a further order should be made by me therein; that on July 30, 1897, the respondents herein addressed a letter to said J. W. Babcock, notifying him that they considered his services as superintendent of schools definitely ended on July 31, 1897. The petitioner herein contends that such action on the part of the respondents was a disobedience of my order of July 9, 1897. The contention is not well taken. The letter was not written in pursuance of any legal action taken by such board of education, but is simply a letter of the five persons who signed it, and has no legal force or effect, and a mere harmless thunderbolt on their part.

By section 13, title I, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that whenever it shall be proved to my satisfaction that any school commissioner or other school officer has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under said act, or any other act pertaining to common schools, I may, by an order under my hand and seal, remove such school commissioner or other school officer from his office.

I find and decide, That upon the facts presented herein, it has been proved to my satisfaction that said Frederick D. Light, Daniel Scannell, Charles J. Flahaven, Charles C. Parker and Henry F. Van Devort have, and each of them has, as members of the board of education of the town of Dunkirk, been guilty of a wilful violation of duty.

The petition herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That Frederick D. Light, Daniel Scannell, Charles J. Flahaven, Charles C. Parker and Henry F. Van Devort be, and they are and each of them is, hereby removed from office as members of the board of education of the town of Dunkirk, Chautauqua county.

Removal of trustee by Superintendent can not be predicated upon moral grounds, but only upon wilful violation or neglect of legal duty.

Decided November 20, 1869

Weaver, Superintendent

Appeal asking for the removal of a trustee upon the alleged ground that he is an habitual drunkard.

I am far from desiring to excuse the degrading habit of intoxication in any one, and certainly not in an officer intrusted with the educational interests of a school district. The fact may be that the testimony has failed to show that the respondent is at this time an habitual drunkard, but its manifest tendency is to prove that he has, like many others who have reformed from the vice of drunkenness, relapsed into what it is to be hoped was but a temporary forgetfulness of his better resolutions.

But the appellants have failed to make out any case for my action in the premises. They do not accuse the respondent of any violation or even neglect of official duty. I have no censorship over his morals. If the voters of a district choose immoral persons for school officers, responsibility as to the damage of such action will remain with themselves as long as such officers are not guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of legal duty in regard to their functions.

Petition for the removal of a trustee for not agreeing with his associates, and for using rude and uncourteous language toward them, denied.

Decided March 2, 1859

Van Dyck, Superintendent

On the petition of two of the trustees asking for the removal from office of the third trustee, it appears that the third trustee refuses to cooperate with his associates in matters relating to the administration of school affairs, and that his language toward them is rude and uncourteous.

Concerning the disagreement of Mr Simpson with his associates, they are the majority and can control, and it was never intended that this Department should have power to make men agree, nor to punish them for disagreeing.

In regard to the incivility of the third trustee toward his associates, the district is supposed to know whether or not those whom they elect to office have sufficient culture and refinement, sufficient dignity and purity of character, properly to adorn the office to which they are elected; and if they see fit to elect one who is rude, vulgar and coarse in his language, this Department will not and can not interfere.

For wilful violation of duty in refusing to accept the lowest bid of a responsible bidder with responsible surety.

Decided August 3, 1868

Weaver, Superintendent

A responsible man with a perfectly responsible surety offered to take the contract for repairing the schoolhouse of a district for $101. Other responsible bids were offered under $175; one as low as $104. But the bid for $101 was the lowest.

The trustee refused to accept the surety, and let the contract to his nephew for $175. The Superintendent says: "In view of the facts, I am of the opinion that the trustee has been guilty of wilful violation of duty. He should have used his best endeavors to protect the interests of his district. Instead of doing this, by his own admission, he refused to accept responsible surety for reasons purely frivolous. By this action, the district was put to an additional expense of nearly $75. When district officers appear to have forgotten or to have wilfully disregarded their duties, the Department is bound to interfere for the protection of the district. Order entered removing the said trustee from office."

The State Superintendent will, on proper application, remove a trustee for unwarrantable neglect of official duty.

Decided July 1851

Morgan, Superintendent

Elisha Bedell, one of the trustees of school district no. 1 in the town of Hempstead, is charged with a wilful disturbance and interruption of the school taught by Mary Augusta Brown, in said district. Mr Van Cott, another of the trustees, is charged with a refusal to unite with one of his colleagues in prosecuting for such offense, in accordance with the statute.

It is in evidence that Mr Bedell went to the schoolroom, and in the presence of the scholars used angry and abusive language to the teacher, openly countermanded her orders in conducting the school, and caused the school to be thrown into disorder, and that both teacher and pupils were much frightened by his language and threatening manner, and for some time after she was unable to proceed with the school.

The evidence is confirmed by the report of a committee of ten appointed by the inhabitants of the district at the annual meeting, to visit and examine the school, who, in concluding their statement, observe that they "were compelled to the opinion that Mr Bedell has thereby disqualified himself for the office of trustee, and that it is evidently for the welfare of the school that he should forthwith resign his office."

This array of evidence is met only by a general and unsatisfactory denial by Mr Bedell.

There can be no doubt, in the opinion of the Superintendent, from evidence, that Mr Bedell has been guilty of a gross and unjustifiable violation of law and neglect of official duty. The same conduct in an individual not officially connected with the school would unquestionably have incurred the penalty prescribed by law; and it certainly does not mitigate the offense, nor change its nature, that it was committed by an officer specially charged with the preservation of quiet and order in the school, and with the protection and guardianship of its interests.

The act of 1845, to prevent disturbances in schools, above referred to, makes it the special duty of the trustees of any school district in which any such offense shall be committed, to prosecute such offender, before any officer having cognizance of such offense. Mr Van Cott, one of the two remaining trustees, having been called upon for the performance of this duty, positively refused to comply with said request, and still refuses so to do. This is clearly an unwarrantable neglect of official duty, for which no defense is interposed; and the said Elisha Bedell and Nicholas Van Cott are hereby removed from office as trustees of said district.

4297

In the matter of the appeal of John M. Pendleton v. John Seaton, John Travers and John J. Santry, as trustees; Charles Crowley, as collector; and George Sheridan, jr, as clerk of school district no. 3, town of Castleton, Richmond county.

Where in a petition or appeal for the removal of school officers for a wilful violation or neglect of duty, the petitioner must establish to the satisfaction of the Superintendent that such violations of duty were intentional and not the result of ignorance, neglect, omission, misapprehension or inadvertence.

Decided December 3, 1894

Edward C. Delavan, jr, attorney for appellant

John J. Kenney, attorney for respondents, Seaton, Travers, Santry and Crowley

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellant in the above-entitled matter, by proceedings in the nature of an appeal and by petition, asks for the dismissal of the respondents, Seaton, Travers and Santry, as trustees, and the respondent, Sheridan, as clerk of school district no. 3, town of Castleton, Richmond county, for wilful violation and neglect of duty as such school officers, under the provisions of section 13, title 1 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and for the removal of the respondent,

Crowley, from the office of collector of said district on the ground, as alleged, of his not being able to read and write, and, therefore, ineligible to hold said office under the provisions of section 23, article 3, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894.

The appeal and petition of the appellant was received September 26, 1894; a demurrer on the part of Crowley was received October 5, 1894, and also the answers of the respondents Seaton, Travers, Santry and Sheridan. A reply to said answers was received October 12, 1894, and rejoinder to said reply was received October 29, 1894.

The appeal was submitted on the part of the appellant on November 16th and on the part of the respondents November 23, 1894. The appellant alleges as grounds for the removal of trustees Seaton, Travers and Santry, first, that as such trustees they filed the bond of one Crowley as collector without the approval thereof in writing upon said bond; second, that said trustees have failed to file with the clerk of the village of New Brighton the tax lists and warrants of said district for the years 1891 and 1892; third, that said trustees have failed to transmit to the county treasurer of Richmond county the collector's account of unpaid taxes for the years 1892 and 1893; fourth, that said trustees have drawn orders upon the collector for the payment of teachers' wages when no sufficient money was in the hands of said collector to pay such orders; fifth, that said trustees have failed to procure a blank book on which to keep their accounts of all moneys received and disbursed by them as such trustees; sixth, that said trustees have failed to render at the annual school meetings, held in 1893 and 1894, their annual reports as required by the school law; seventh, that said Trustee Seaton has availed himself of his official position to make a profit from the school district.

The appellant alleges that Charles Crowley, who was elected collector of said district at the annual school meeting in 1894, is not eligible to hold the office as said Crowley can not read and write.

The appellant alleges that George Sheridan, jr, as district clerk, has failed to keep open for the inspection of any qualified voter of said district the records, books and papers of said district, and has refused to permit the attorney of the appellant to have access to said records etc.

The appellant also alleges that said Crowley, as collector of said district, has failed in the performance of the duties of his office, and that one Driscoll, a surety upon the bond of said Crowley, is insolvent and that no action has been taken by said trustees to protect said bond.

The appellant appeals from the action of the annual school meeting in said district in 1894, in the adoption of a resolution, by a viva voce vote, to procure an architect to draw plans for a proposed enlargement of the school building, such resolution involving the expenditure of money.

The appellant asks in this one appeal to have said trustees and district clerk removed from office for wilful violation and neglect of duty; to have the collector elected declared to be ineligible to hold his office; and to set aside so much of the proceedings of the annual school meeting held in 1894, as authorized the trustees to employ an architect.

It appears, since this appeal or proceedings herein was commenced, that Charles Crowley has resigned the office of collector of said district, and being no longer collector of the district I have no jurisdiction.

It appears from the proofs presented in this appeal that one of the sureties upon the bond of Collector Crowley was Cornelius J. Driscoll, and that said Crowley delivered moneys collected by him under the tax list and warrant issued to him to said Driscoll, and that said Driscoll failed on the demand of said Crowley to pay said moneys; that Trustee Seaton and others, upon being informed by said Crowley, of said matters, under the advice of counsel, entered into negotiations with said Driscoll, and had received from said Driscoll some $1400, and that said negotiations were pending when the appeal herein was brought, and that an action has been instituted by said trustees upon the bond of said collector.

It also appears that when the bond of said collector was presented to said trustees for approval they informed said collector that they would approve the bond provided another surety was added, and that one Patrick M. Dailey became such additional surety; that by an inadvertence the notary public who took the acknowledgment of the last surety filed the bond in the office of the town clerk, instead of returning it to said trustees, and that the omission of the written approval of said trustees upon said bond was through inadvertence.

It also appears that the tax lists and warrants for the years 1891 and 1892 were in frequent use after the close of the school year in the negotiations entered into for settlement with the collector and his sureties, and for examination by the counsel for the trustees, and so continued until the commencement of this proceeding that said tax lists and warrants are on file with said town clerk.

It also appears that said trustees did transmit to the county treasurer the account of the collector of unpaid taxes, and the same was retained by said treasurer for some time; that on January 16, 1894, said treasurer wrote to the collector, stating that he had rejected such account as it did not contain map, lot or block numbers, and returned the account to said collector; that although said account contained a description of the lands upon which taxes were unpaid precisely as the same were placed upon the tax list, said trustees corrected such descriptions with the aid of the clerk of the village of New Brighton inserting map, lot and block numbers as far as the same could be identified and sent the same to said county treasurer; that on April 10, 1894, said treasurer returned said accounts on the ground that the taxes for 1893 had been levied; that the next levy of taxes will be in 1895.

It further appears that said trustees had kept books in which are entered their accounts of all moneys received or drawn for or paid by them, with separate accounts of each appropriation and the payments made therefrom, and full minutes of their official proceedings; that said trustees at the annual meetings in said district held in 1893 and 1894, rendered just and true accounts in writing of all moneys received by them respectively for the use of the said district, or raised or collected by taxes the preceding year, and the manner in which the same were expended, and of all drafts or orders made by them upon the supervisor or collector or other custodian of the moneys of the district, and of every special matter touching the condition of the district, and which reports are entered in the minute book of the district.

It is not established that said trustees have drawn drafts upon the collector for the payment of teachers' wages at times when there were no funds in the hands of the collector for the payment thereof. There is no proof that trustee Seaton has availed himself of his said office to receive any profit or advantage to himself for any official act performed by him nor by reason of any contract of employment of any person for work done for said district.

The respondent Sheridan, the district clerk, for answer to the allegations of the appellant, shows that the first knowledge that he had that the appellant or his attorney desired to examine the records of said district was on September 14, 1894; that at the annual school meeting held in August 1894, a committee was appointed to examine the papers and records of said district, and said meeting adjourned to October 3, 1894, for the purpose of receiving the report of said committee; that records and papers being under examination by said committee, said Sheridan believed that other parties should not have possession thereof until such examination by said committee was concluded; that examination of said committee having been finished on September 28, 1894, he informed the attorney for appellant that said records, etc., were open to his inspection at any reasonable time; that the appellant and his attorney have had free access to said records etc., and made copies thereof on October 2, 1894.

That as to the allegations with reference to the action of the annual meeting in August 1894, upon the resolution presented authorizing the trustees to employ an architect to draw plans for an enlargement of the school building, it appears that the board of health of the village of New Brighton had notified the trustees of said school district that by reason of insufficient air space for the number of pupils, it would be necessary to make an addition to the schoolhouse; that thereupon a resolution was offered at the annual meeting empowering the trustees to procure an architect to draft plans, which resolution was put to a viva voce vote; but the chairman being in doubt as to the result there was a division of the house and upon the division the resolution was declared adopted; that said trustees thereupon entered into an arrangement with an architect to furnish plans upon his stipulating that said district was not to be liable to pay him anything for such services unless such plans should be accepted by the school meeting and at which meeting the sum to be paid should be fixed by the vote of such meeting.

Under section 13, title 1 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that "whenever it shall be proved to his satisfaction that any school commissioner or other school officer has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under this act, or any other act pertaining to common schools or wilfully disobeying any decision, order or regulation of the Superintendent, the Superintendent may, by an order under his hand and seal, which order shall be recorded in his office, remove such school commissioner or other school officer from his office."

This Department has uniformly held that "wilful" in said section 13, above quoted, means "intentionally" or "designedly" and not ignorance, neglect, omissions, misapprehension or inadvertence, but knowing his duty, absolutely refusing to perform it. The courts of this State have so held. (See People ex rel. Clingen v. Draper, Supt., 63 Hun 389.)

In appeals and petitions to this Department under the school law the burthen is upon the appellant or petitioner to establish his appeal or petition by a preponderance of proof. In this he has failed.

The papers presented upon this appeal and petition have not proven to my satisfaction that said trustees, John Seaton, John Travers and John J. Santry, have, or either of them has, nor that said George Sheridan, jr, district clerk, has been guilty of any wilful, that is, intentional, violation or neglect of duty under the school laws.

The appeal and petition herein are dismissed.

4173

In the matter of the application of Bertha L. Emerson for the removal of George H. Edgerton as trustee of joint school district no. 5, towns of Sidney and Franklin, Delaware county.

Wilful violation or neglect of duty on the part of a school officer, as stated in section 18 of title 1 of the Consolidated School Act, does not mean mere omission, misapprehension or inadvertence on the part of such officer, but an intentional violation or neglect of duty and an absolute refusal to perform a duty and an announcement of doing directly the reverse of what is his duty to do.

Decided May 31, 1893

Crooker, Superintendent

This is an application by Bertha L. Emerson for the removal of George H. Edgerton as trustee of joint school district no. 5, towns of Sidney and Franklin, Delaware county.

A verified petition, with an affidavit of Leroy Emerson annexed and notice of their presentation to me, were served on the trustee on March 4, 1893, and filed in this Department on March 8, 1893. An answer was filed by the trustee to which Miss Emerson filed an affidavit in reply.

It appears from the papers presented that on or about August 10, 1892, the petitioner and respondent entered into a verbal contract by the terms of which the petitioner was employed to teach the school in said district for sixteen weeks, commencing on September 26, 1892, at the compensation of $5.50 per week. That about the time of the commencement of the school the petitioner filled out a memorandum of hiring on a form contained in the school register and left the same at the residence of the trustee, with the wife of the trustee, with a request that the trustee should sign the same and return it to the petitioner; that the trustee was absent from home and before his return the register was returned to the possession of the petitioner. The petitioner states that the trustee had said register in his possession upon two different occasions, but neglected to sign said memorandum, although requested by her to sign the same, she does not definitely state when and where she requested the trustee, in person, to sign said memorandum, and the trustee alleges that it was not signed by him through inadvertence.

The petitioner fulfilled her contract, but the trustee did not pay her wages at the end of each calendar month, but after she had taught for about three months he paid her for two months' services. After the completion of the petitioner's term of employment she applied to the trustee for the balance of wages due her, and the trustee requested further time, which the petitioner declined to accede to. At the interview it would appear that both parties were somewhat excited and irritated. Within a few days the trustee paid the petitioner the balance of the wages due her.

By section 18 of title 1 of the Consolidated School Law of 1864, it is provided that, whenever it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Public Instruction that any school commissioner, or other school officer, has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under said act, or any other act pertaining to common schools, the said Superintendent may, by an order under his hand and seal, which order shall be recorded in his office, remove such school commissioner, or other school officer, from his office.

By chapter 335 of the Laws of 1887 it is provided that all officers who shall employ any teacher to teach in any of the public schools of the State shall, at the time of such employment, make and deliver to said teacher, or cause to be made and delivered, a memorandum in writing signed by said officer, in which the details of the agreement between the parties, and particularly the length of the term of employment, the amount of compensation, and the time or times such compensation shall be due and payable, shall be clearly and definitely set forth; but nothing in said act contained shall be deemed to abridge or otherwise affect the term of employment of any teacher then or thereafter employed in the public schools, etc.

The object of said act was to avoid controversies and prevent misunderstanding between trustees and teachers relative to the terms of contracts as to employments when made orally.

There seems to have been no controversy between the petitioner and the trustee in this matter as to the terms of the contract.

The trustee neglected to sign the memorandum of hiring of the petitioner. The question is, is the trustee guilty of a wilful violation and neglect of duty?

The courts of this State have held that "wilful" in the statute means "intentional," not omissions, misapprehension or inadvertence, but an absolute refusal to perform a duty, and an announcement of doing directly the reverse of what it was his duty to do. (People ex rel. Clingen v. Draper, State Superintendent, 18 N. Y. Supplement, 232, and cases cited.)

The papers presented upon this application have not proved to my satisfaction that the trustee, George D. Edgerton, has been guilty of any wilful (that is, intentional) violation or neglect of duty under the school laws.

The application is denied and the petition dismissed.

4380

In the matter of the petition of Charles W. Burton, Joseph L. Hoover and William A. Choate for the removal from office of Jeremiah I. Best, B. J. Walker and William A. Alsdorf, members of the board of education of union free school district no. 12, town of Schodack, Rensselaer county.

In a petition for the removal of school district officers for wilful violation and neglect of duty, the burden is upon the petitioners to establish such violation or neglect of duty by a preponderance of proof. The courts of this State have decided that "wilful" means "intentional"; that is, a school officer, knowing what the law and his duty are, intentionally does that which is directly contrary to the law and his duty, or so knowing his duty, intentionally neglects to perform it.

Decided September 28, 1895

Alden Chester, attorney for petitioners

T. Almern Griffin, attorney for respondents

Robert G. Scherer, of counsel for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The petitioners named in the above-entitled matter, on June 19, 1895, filed their petition in which they allege that they are qualified voters of said district no. 12, town of Schodack, and that said district is a union free school district; that said Best, Walker and Alsdorf are the trustees of said district and as such have been guilty of a wilful violation and neglect of duty, as alleged specifically in said petition; that the petitioners ask for the removal of said trustees from office. Annexed to said petition are certain affidavits and papers in support of the charges contained in the petition. An answer by the respondents to said petition was filed on July 5, 1895, denying that said school district is a union free school district, and that they have been guilty of any wilful violation of their duties as trustees as required and imposed under the school law. To said answer are annexed certain affidavits in support of the matters stated in said answer. A reply to the answer has been filed and to the reply a rejoinder. Briefs have been filed by the attorneys of the respective parties, and an exhaustive oral argument made by said attorneys and counsel.

In the charges set out in the petition some five or six allege that the respondents have neglected to do and perform certain duties which, under the school law, are required to be done and performed by boards of education or union free school districts, and are not specially required to be done by trustees of common school districts. If district no. 12 of Schodack is not a union free school district the respondents do not constitute, nor are they members of, a board of education of a union free school district and hence such charges fall.

I am of the opinion that said school district no. 12 is not a union free school district. The establishment of a union free school in a common school district, since chapter 555 of the Laws of 1864 became operative, is a statutory proceeding, and the provisions of the statute in relation thereto must be complied with. No proof is produced that any action or proceedings under the Consolidated School Act of 1864 and the amendments thereto, or under the Consolidated School Law of 1894, relative to the establishment of union free schools, was or were ever had or taken in said school district. Conceding that at the annual school meeting, held in said district in 1864, a resolution was adopted, in effect, that said district should be changed to a union free school, such action did not establish a union free school under the school law. The fact that the trustees of the district in their annual report for the commissioner for several years called said district a union free school district, and the school commissioner in making his annual report to this Department, from the statements contained in said report of said trustees, called the district a union free school district or that upon an application of the trustees of said district to this Department for an apportionment of library money it was stated therein that the district was a union free school district, and that statement was accepted by the Superintendent as true, did not make said district a union free school district, nor was it a recognition by this Department that it was such district. This Department has no power or authority to recognize any school district as a union free school district, unless there is produced and filed a certified copy of proceedings had and taken under and pursuant to the provisions of the school law relating to the establishment of union free schools establishing said union free school district, or an act of the Legislature of the State creating such union free school district. It is conceded that after a careful search in this Department for a copy of proceedings in the establishment of a union free school in said district no such record can be found.

By the provisions of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, which went into operation on June 30, 1894, the trustee or trustees of every school district whether there is one or three trustees, shall constitute a board for each of said districts respectively, and each of said boards are severally created bodies corporate; that every power committed to said trustees by said act must be exercised as a board; that such board must meet for the transaction of business. A trustee or the trustees of a common school district can not lawfully be interested in any contract made by said board; nor can any trustee lawfully perform labor for the district and fix his compensation for such services; nor can he purchase property for the district from himself and fix the price of said property. As such trustees are required to meet as a board, books should be kept in which the records of all their proceedings should be kept by the clerk of the district; such clerk should be notified by the trustees of the time and place of such meetings; that such records are the property of the district and should be open for inspection by any qualified voter at all reasonable hours.

By section 13 of title 1 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted that whenever it shall be proved to his satisfaction that any school commissioner or other school officer has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under said act, or any other act pertaining to common schools, the Superintendent may, by an order under his hand and seal, remove such school commissioner or other school officer from his office.

The courts of the State have decided that "wilful" means "intentional," that is, a school officer knowing what the law and his duty are, intentionally does that which is directly contrary to the law and his duty, or so knowing his duty intentionally neglects to perform his duty.

The respondents herein, as trustees of said school district during the school year of 1894-95, appear not to have performed their duty strictly in accordance with the provisions of law, especially in meeting as a board and transacting the business as a board; in having a record kept by the district clerk, etc., etc., in the auditing of accounts against the district and drawing orders for their payment, etc., etc., but the proofs herein do not show that such violation or neglect of duty was "wilful," that is, "intentional."

The proofs herein fail to show that the respondent, Best, was pecuniarily interested in the action of the board in employing Best's children to perform janitor work in the schoolhouse.

The charges relative to the failure of the respondents to insure the schoolhouse and furniture for a period of five months, and to the condition of the water closets were not pressed by the petitioners upon the argument before me.

The petition charges that the respondents wilfully and unlawfully removed one Emma Wygant, a teacher in said district, during her term of employment without sufficient cause. I find this charge is not sustained by the proofs. The proofs show Miss Wygant was not removed by them, but resigned, contrary to the wishes of the respondents, and that her resignation was accepted. But if said respondents had demurred or removed her without sufficient cause, I have no power, under the school law, to remove the respondents from office as trustees of said district for such dismissal.

I find and decide, That it has not been proved to my satisfaction that the respondents herein, as such trustees of school district no. 12, town of Schodack, Rensselaer county have, or either of them has, been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under the Consolidated School Law of 1894, or any other act pertaining to common schools.

The petition herein is dismissed and the application of the petitioners therein denied.

4325

In the matter of the petition of Orin Swift and others for the removal of Daniel E. Butler as sole trustee of school district no. 6, town of Milford, Otsego county.

So long as a school district is in existence, it is the duty of the trustee or trustees thereof to maintain a school therein if there is a sufficient number of pupils to warrant it, and where he or they neglect or refuse to maintain such school, are not excused from performing such duty for the reason that the annual school meeting had voted that no school should be taught in the district for that school year. A trustee who fails to maintain a school will be deemed guilty of a wilful violation and neglect of duty.

Decided February 14, 1895

R. M. Townsend, attorney for petitioners

Crooker, Superintendent

This is a petition by certain qualified voters of school district no. 6, town of Milford, Otsego county, for the removal from office of Daniel E. Butler, sole trustee of said district. The principal grounds upon which such removal is asked are, that said Butler did not maintain any school in said district during the school year of 1892-93; that during the school year of 1893-94 a school was maintained in said district for only twelve weeks; and that by the neglect of said Butler the sum of $66.18 of the public moneys apportioned to said district in the custody of the supervisor was lost to the district.

On account of sickness in the family of said Butler his time to answer the petition herein was extended by me, and said answer was not received by me until August 20, 1894. A reply to said answer was received by me on November 13, 1894, and a brief on the part of the petitioners was received by me on February 6, 1895.

It appears from the papers presented that said Butler, at the annual school meeting held in said district in August 1892, was elected sole trustee of said district; that said annual meeting voted that no school should be taught in said district during said school year; that no school was taught or maintained in said district during said school year; that at the annual school meeting, held in said district in August 1893, said Butler was elected sole trustee of said district; that in the autumn of 1893, said Butler employed one Helen Windsor, who taught said school for six weeks and was paid $36 therefor by an order of said Butler upon the supervisor of the town of Milford; that the school remained closed until about February 1, 1894, when said Butler employed one Daniel Thorn, who taught the school for six weeks; that said Butler gave said Thorn an order upon the supervisor who declined to pay the same; that for the balance of said school year no school was maintained in said district; that at the annual meeting of said district, held in August 1894, a successor to said Butler as trustee was elected. In his answer to the petition herein said Butler alleges as an excuse for not maintaining a school in said district in the school year of 1892-93 the aforesaid action of the annual meeting resolving that no school be taught for said school year, and that during the school year of 1893-94 he was unable to hire teachers except for said twelve weeks during which a school was taught.

The petitioners aver that said Butler could have employed a competent teacher if he had been willing to pay a reasonable sum as wages, but refused to employ any one unless at a compensation less than $5 per week; that one Minnie W. Bishop, a duly qualified teacher, made application in September 1893, to teach the school for the sum of $5 per week and board herself; but said Butler declined to employ her, stating that he would not pay $5 per week for a teacher.

While a school district is in existence it is a duty of a trustee or trustees to maintain a school in said district, and where he or they neglect or refuse to maintain such school, he or they are not excused from performing such duty for the reason that the annual school meeting has voted that no school be taught in the district for that school year. From the proofs herein I am satisfied that said Butler could have employed a competent qualified teacher to teach the school in said district in the school year of 1893-94 had he been willing to pay a reasonable compensation for such services.

I am of the opinion that said Butler was guilty, during said school years of 1892-93 and 1893-94, of a wilful violation and neglect of duty as said trustee of said district, in not maintaining a school therein for at least thirty-two weeks in 1892-93, and for at least 160 days, inclusive of legal holidays that might occur during the term of said school and exclusive of Saturdays during 1893-94. Said Butler having ceased to be the trustee of said district since the annual school meeting held therein in August 1894, I have no power to make any order to remove him for such wilful violation and neglect of duty.

The petitioners ask me to make an order directing the said Butler to pay to the district the sum of $66.18 which, it is alleged, said district lost by reason of the wilful neglect of official duty on the part of said Butler. It appears that in the autumn of the year 1893 there was in the custody of the supervisor of the town of Milford the sum of $102.18 for the payment of teachers' wages, belonging to said school district and that said Butler drew $36 thereof to pay Miss Windsor; that some time in March 1894, he drew an order upon said supervisor to pay Thorn for services as teacher, which order was not paid. Under the school law, on the first Tuesday of March in each year, each supervisor is required to make a report in writing to the county treasurer for the use of the school commissioners, showing the amounts of school moneys in his hands not paid on orders of trustees for teachers' wages, and the districts to which they stand accredited, and thereafter he shall not pay out any of said moneys until he shall have received the certificate of the next apportionment; and the moneys so returned by him shall be reapportioned. It would seem that on March 1, 1894, the supervisor made his report to the county treasurer showing the sum of $66.18 accredited to the district, and he was forbidden by law to then pay out any of said moneys until after he received the certificate of the next apportionment, upon which new apportionment said district would receive a proportion of said sum of $66.18. I am of the opinion that I have no power to decide whether or not said district has lost or forfeited any money by the acts, misconduct or negligence of said Butler, nor to make any order in the premises.

By section 1, article 1, title 15, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 it is enacted, that whenever the share of school moneys or any portion thereof, apportioned to any town or school district, etc., shall be lost in consequence of any wilful neglect of official duty by school commissioner, town clerk, trustee, etc., the officer or officers guilty of such neglect shall forfeit to the town or school district so losing the same, the full amount of such loss with interest thereon. I have no jurisdiction of proceedings under the foregoing section, but such proceedings must be taken in the courts. The forfeiture in this matter, if any, being declared for the benefit of said school district, it is the duty of the trustee to sue for and enforce its collection.

The petition herein is dismissed.

3695

In the matter of the appeal of Erastus B. Mason v. George A. Butler, as trustee of school district no. 8, town of New Hartford, Oneida county.

A trustee who has not been charged with dishonesty or immoral conduct will not be removed from office because he has neglected to repair schoolhouse and improve its surroundings, unless it should be made to appear that he has refused or neglected to carry out the proper directions of a district meeting or of a school commissioner to do so.

A citizen who occupies real estate and pays rent therefor, is a legal voter and eligible to the office of trustee.

Decided June 12, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

The appellat asks for the removal of the respondent from the office of trustee in district no. 8, town of New Hartford, Oneida county.

The grounds alleged are that the respondent is not a qualified voter at school meetings, and is, therefore, ineligible to hold the office, and that he has been negligent in the discharge of his duties and has allowed the building to remain out of repair and has suffered accumulations of stagnant water to remain so near the schoolhouse as to endanger the health of the pupils.

While the charges appear somewhat serious, yet they do not affect the moral standing of the respondent. No charge of dishonesty is made. At the most, it is only said that he has neglected to repair and keep in good condition the school building and its surroundings. It does not appear that the school commissioner nor any meeting of the inhabitants has directed repairs which the trustee has refused to make, and it is not made to appear that he could have made the repairs referred to upon his own motion and kept the expense within the limit the law allows.

The charge that the respondent is not a qualified voter has not been regularly met by an answer properly served, but for the information of the Department, the respondent has filed a verified statement to the effect that for three years last past, he has occupied real estate in the district and paid rent therefor.

I have concluded, in view of all the circumstances and the fact that the annual election of trustees is to occur so soon, to overrule the appeal and let the voters then determine as to the choice of a trustee.

3674

In the matter of the application of Martin V. Clark and others, for the removal of Lewis H. Lockwood, as trustee of school district no. 5, towns of Wheeler and Urbana, Steuben county.

A trustee will not be removed from his office unless it is shown by a clear preponderance of proof that he has been guilty of acts which are sufficiently grave to justify such a penalty.

The reelection of a trustee after a neglect to carry out the directions of a prior district meeting is good reason for refusing to remove him for such neglect.

Decided March 24, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

Lewis H. Lockwood was elected trustee of school district no. 5, towns of Wheeler and Urbana, Steuben county, on the 31st day of May 1887, at a special meeting, and was reelectioned to the same office at the annual meeting held on the 31st day of August 1887.

This is an application to remove him from office. The applicants allege, as the grounds of the complaint, that the trustee has refused or neglected to carry out the directions of the district meeting, relative to repairs to the school-house and that he discharged a teacher from employment, which resulted in litigation and in the district being involved in trouble and expense on account thereof.

It appears that the district meeting directed certain repairs to be made to the schoolhouse, and appointed a special committee to superintend such repairs. The trustee refused to permit the special committee to do this and insisted upon attending to the matter himself. He was clearly justified in doing so. The trustee is the officer created by law for the purpose of attending to such matters, among his other duties. The complaint that the trustee refused to carry out the directions of the district meeting, loses its weight when taken in view of the fact that the directions were made at the meeting held in March 1887, at the same time the trustee was elected, and that he was reelectioned at the annual meeting at the end of August 1887. It would seem strange that he should have been reelectioned if his course was so displeasing to the majority of electors in the district as is claimed. The same observation may be made relative to the discontinuance of the employment of the teacher. Such employment discontinued immediately after Lockwood became trustee, and yet he was reelected to the office, several months subsequently. It is true that a litigation has followed the discharge of the teacher, which seems to me to establish the fact that the teacher was discharged in violation of the contract or agreement; but notwithstanding this fact, if a majority of the electors of the district approved the action of the trustee in the discharge of the teacher, then such action ought not to be permitted to be the groundwork for removing the trustee from office.

Before a trustee can be removed from office, the persons moving in that direction must show by a clear preponderance of proof, that he is guilty of acts which are sufficiently grave to justify such a penalty. The proofs offered in this case are not sufficient, in my judgment, to justify me in granting the application of the petitioners, particularly in view of the fact that the whole trouble seems to be a controversy relative to the transaction of the business affairs of the district about which men have a right to differ in opinion and in view of the fact that the school year is so far advanced that the district will soon have an opportunity to elect a trustee.

The application is denied.

4192

In the matter of the petition of John E. Casey for the removal of Adelbert Case as clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county.

Where, upon application to a district clerk by a qualified voter of the district for permission to examine the minutes of the annual school meeting of the district, the clerk refused to permit such voter to examine such minutes, using vulgar and profane language in expressing such refusal, held that the clerk was guilty of a wilful violation of duty and an order made for his removal.

Decided November 2, 1893

W. H. Sullivan, attorney for petitioner

Crooker, Superintendent

This is a proceeding in the nature of an appeal for the removal of one Adelbert Case as clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county, for wilful violation and neglect of duty.

A petition of John E. Casey, a resident and taxpayer in said school district, duly verified on September 16, 1893, setting forth certain charges against said Case with specifications of the facts to establish such charges, and having annexed thereto the affidavits of said Casey, of one Perry Hunt in support thereof, and a notice addressed to said Case that said petition and affidavits would be presented to me at Albany and application thereupon be made to remove said Case from his said office of clerk of said district, and requiring said Case to transmit his answer to said application duly verified, to this Department within ten days after service of said notice, petition and application, or the charges contained therein would be deemed admitted, with proof of service of copies of said petition, affidavits and notice upon said Case on September 19, 1893, were filed in this Department on September 23, 1893. No answer to said petition etc., has been received or filed, and the allegations contained in said petition etc., are considered as admitted as true by the said Case. The allegations contained in said petition etc., so considered admitted as true, are as follows:

That the said Adelbert Case was, in August and September 1893, the duly elected and qualified clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county; that on or about August 28, 1893, about 9 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, John E. Casey and Perry Hunt, each of whom was a resident, voter and taxpayer of said school district, went to the premises of said Adelbert Case, the clerk of said school district, and asked permission of said Case, to look at the minutes of the school meeting of said district, held on August 22, 1893, and the said Case, in wilful violation of his duty as such clerk, refused to permit said Casey and Hunt to look at and inspect such minutes, using vulgar and profane language in expressing such refusal. That on the 11th day of September 1893, at about 9 o'clock in the forenoon, said Casey and Hunt went to the house of said Case and said Casey then and there requested said Case to allow him to inspect the minutes of said school meeting of said district held on August 22, 1893, and also asked for a copy of said minutes; that said Case told said Casey that he would not let him see the minutes, and to get right off from his premises, or he would slash him right down with a corn knife, which said Case then held in his hand. Said Case further told said Casey to get right off from his premises and to keep off, and that he would not furnish him with a copy of said minutes.

The clerk of a school district is a school officer, and his principal duties are defined in section 37 of title 7 of the school law. His duty is to record the proceedings of his district in a book to be provided for that purpose by the district, etc., etc.; to keep and preserve all records, books and papers belonging to his office and to deliver the same to his successor, and a refusal or neglect so to do subjects him to the forfeit of fifty dollars for the benefit of the district, to be recovered by the trustees.

The proceedings, records, books and papers in possession of said clerk are the property of the district, and not the individual property of the clerk. It is the duty of the clerk to permit any voter to freely inspect the records at all reasonable times, and a wilful denial of this right by a clerk would subject him to the liability of removal from office. There can be no doubt as to the right of a voter of a school district to examine and copy the district records, under reasonable provisions.

Section 18 of title 2 of the school laws provides that whenever it shall be proved to his satisfaction that any school commissioner, or other school officer, has been guilty of any wilful violation or neglect of duty under the school act, the Superintendent of Public Instruction may, by an order under his hand and seal, which order shall be recorded in his office, remove said school commissioner or other school officer from his office.

From the facts established upon this appeal I am satisfied that the said Adelbert Case, as clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county, was guilty of wilful violation and neglect of duty under the school laws, as such clerk, as alleged in said petition etc.

The petition herein is sustained.

It having been proven to my satisfaction that Adelbert Case, clerk of school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county, has been guilty of wilful violation and neglect of duty, under the school laws, as such clerk, I do therefore, by virtue of the power and authority in me vested, order :

That the said Adelbert Case be, and he hereby is, removed from the office of clerk of said school district no. 6, town of North Norwich, Chenango county.

OUTBUILDINGS

3979

In the matter of the appeal of Fannie A. Karker v. school district no. 4, town of Westerlo, in the county of Albany.

A school district maintains outhouses or privies within the bounds of a public highway.
Held, the obstruction must be removed.

Decided May 9, 1891

Eugene Burlingame, Esq., attorney for appellant

Van Alstyne & Hevenor, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is against the action of the district in erecting and maintaining outhouses or privies, within the bounds of the public highway, and adjacent to the lands of the appellant. She claims that, thus located, they constitute a public nuisance, and interfere with the beneficial enjoyment of her adjacent property. The allegations of the appellant as to the location of the outhouses, are not denied by the respondent. But it is claimed that the school site is so limited that they can not be placed in the rear of the school building and are in no way offensive to appellant, or an infringement upon her rights. It is also claimed by the district that the legal right to maintain outbuildings at the place where they now stand, has been acquired under the deed by which the site was conveyed to the district, and by reason of long usage.

It hardly seems necessary to discuss complicated law questions. A school outhouse within a public highway can not be justified upon any ground. It is an offensive obstruction which no school district should insist upon. A proper regard for the interests of the school, as well as for the comfort of the public, require that such buildings should be placed where they will not be conspicuous, and may be properly screened and secluded from public view. If a district lacks a school site large enough for the accommodation of outbuildings it should take steps to procure such a site.

The appeal is sustained; and the district is directed forthwith to remove the outhouses from the highway, and to construct such outbuildings as are suitable for the use of the school, in a more secluded place. If the present school site does not permit of this, the district will take steps to procure more land, either by adding to the present site, or by changing to a more commodious one.

3773

In the matter of the appeal of George B. Lampman v. William H. Smith, as trustee of school district no. 13, New Baltimore, Greene county.

The expense for erecting outbuildings pursuant to chapter 538 of the Laws of 1887, can not be lawfully levied without the vote of a district meeting, except the same shall have been approved by a school commissioner.

A trustee of a school district can not legally be a party to a contract with the district except in his official capacity.

A tax list which contains no heading specifying the objects for which the tax is to be levied; held, fatally defective.

Decided March 27, 1889

E. C. Hallenbeck, attorney for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a resident taxpayer and elector of school district no. 13, of the town of New Baltimore, county of Greene, from the acts of William H. Smith, trustee of said district. The grounds alleged are as follows:

1 That the trustee has performed work for the district in building a certain outhouse, privy or water-closet, performing labor himself, and that, not being a carpenter or builder, he has performed the work in an unworkmanlike manner.

2 That he has prepared a tax list and warrant, and delivered the same to the collector of the district, presumably to raise a sufficient amount to pay his charge for the work thus performed as aforesaid; that the tax list contains no heading specifying the object for which the tax is to be collected. It is also alleged by the appellant that the expense of constructing the outbuilding has never been approved by the school commissioner of the district within which the school district is located. The warrant bears date, December 12, 1888, and was placed in the hands of the collector on or about the 11th day of January 1889.

A copy of the tax list and warrant appears among the appellant's exhibits. No answer has been interposed by the trustee. I am therefore compelled to assume, in passing upon the questions raised by this appeal, that the allegations of the appellant are true. A trustee of a school district can not legally be a party to a contract with the district except as the representative of the district. The expense for erecting outbuildings pursuant to chapter 538 of the Laws of 1887, can not be levied without a vote of the district meeting, except the same shall have been approved by the school commissioner. The tax list is fatally defective, for the reason that it contains no heading specifying the objects for which the tax is to be levied.

I must, therefore, sustain the appeal, and the tax list dated December 12, 1888, issued by the respondent, and which was delivered to the collector of the district on the 11th day of January 1889, is hereby vacated and set aside.

3749

In the matter of the appeal of Aaron Silvernail v. Jacob H. Mann, school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Schoharie county, and Egbert Baker, trustee of school district no. 17, towns of Summit, Schoharie county, and Worcester, Otsego county.

Where a trustee, in good faith, constructed additional outbuildings, intending to comply with the provisions of the health and decency act, and the charge for the work is reasonable, the trustee will be sustained, although the school commissioner refuses to approve the bill.

Decided January 14, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant was trustee in the above-named district during the school year ending August 20, 1888. There having been two privies or water-closets in the woodshed adjacent to the schoolhouse, the appellant, while serving as trustee, erected two others farther removed from the schoolhouse, and presented to the school commissioner a bill, amounting to about $28, for his approval, under the provisions of chapter 538 of the Laws of 1887. The school commissioner refused to approve such bill, and from such refusal this appeal is taken. The grounds of refusal alleged by the school commissioner are that the old privies were sufficient and complied with the act of 1887, in relation to health and decency, and also that the bill was exorbitant. It seems that the trustee had included in the bill a charge for his own services in connection with the matter, but that he has since withdrawn such charge and presented a bill amounting to $18.93; but the school commissioner likewise refuses to approve this bill on the ground that the expense was unnecessary and unwarranted.

The papers are nearly as voluminous as would be advisable if the matter in issue was an indictment for murder in the first degree, but I have read them with as much care as possible. I find that the respective parties each allege bad faith and false swearing against the other. I do not see any ground for this on either side. That there was need for improved water-closet accommodations, is manifest. A number of teachers who have taught in the school during recent years, swear that much trouble was experienced from the close proximity of the water-closets.

The Department has repeatedly notified trustees that they must carry out the provisions of the act in relation to health and decency, and I see nothing to indicate that the appellant was not acting in entire good faith in taking the steps which he did to erect new water-closets. On the other hand, I see nothing to indicate that the commissioner was disposed to do anything concerning the matter which he did not believe it his official duty to do. I have no doubt there was a misunderstanding between the commissioner and the trustee in reference to the matter. Although the communications from the commissioner to the trustee do not, in terms, direct him to take the steps which he did take, he did enjoin upon him the importance and necessity of his complying with the statute, and it is not strange for the trustee to reason that the way for him to comply with the statute was to put up two additional water-closets. It seems that the commissioner has since directed the water-closets erected by the trustee to be torn down, and that the others have been cleansed and put in condition, and, as the commissioner thinks, they are sufficient. With that conclusion, I have nothing to do. Even though his judgment may be right in that connection, I think he errs in withholding approval of the appellant's bill, as now presented.

It would not be right to put a responsibility upon a school trustee, and permit him to proceed in good faith and with fair intelligence to discharge that responsibility, and thereby involve himself in expense without indemnifying him against personal liability or loss. If the appellant had refused to take any steps, and if the determination had been reached that the old water-closets were insufficient, he would have been liable to the district for the entire amount of public moneys which the district might have suffered in consequence of his refusal. If, then, he acted in good faith and with ordinary intelligence, the expense which he incurred should be borne by the district.

I can not consider the sum of $18.93 as an unreasonable amount for the work performed.

The appeal is therefore sustained, and the trustee of the district will forthwith proceed to the settlement of the bill of the appellant at the amount indicated.

PUPILS

4252

In the matter of the petition of George Fish to annul certificate or diploma to teach granted to Loren S. Minckley.

Where in a school the teacher stated to the board of education that certain of the scholars showed a disposition to disturb the school and asked what course he should take, and was instructed by said board that he was expected to keep order in the schoolroom and, if necessary, to punish the scholars, and one Fish, a pupil, a disturbing element in the school, was punished by the teacher, and that such punishment was not cruel, unreasonable or excessive; held, that a petition asking that the certificate to the teacher be annulled on the ground of such punishment be denied and the petition dismissed. Also held, if to maintain good order and discipline in the schools all other reasonable methods fail, then a resort to corporal punishment will be proper. When such punishment is administered the teacher should be careful not to lose his temper, that the punishment be not cruel, unreasonable, excessive or improper, but of a character suitable as a correction for the offense committed and of such nature and to such extent as a parent would administer for the correction of his child.

Decided June 6, 1894

J. O. Sebring, attorney for petitioner

A. J. Wright, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

This is an application by petition to have the certificate granted to one Loren S. Minckley to teach, annulled, upon the ground that in inflicting punishment upon the pupils in the school taught by him for violations of the rules for the discipline and government of said school he has resorted to cruel, unreasonable, excessive and improper methods of discipline and punishment.

The petitioner, George Fish, is a resident and qualified voter in union free school district no. 2, towns of Bradford and Orange, Steuben county, and is one of the members of the board of trustees of said school district, such board consisting of five members. The respondent, Loren S. Minckley, is the principal in the school in said district, about 30 years of age, a graduate in the academic department of the State normal school, Brockport, N. Y., and holds a first grade certificate of the school commissioner of Orleans county, indorsed by C. W. Halliday, who, at the time of such indorsement, was a school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Steuben county, within which commissioner district said school district is situated. The respondent was employed by the board of education of said school district to teach a term of eight weeks of school in the spring of the year 1893, being the unexpired portion of the school year ending on July 31, 1893, and was then employed to teach in said school for the school year commencing on August 1, 1893, and is still teaching in said school.

The petition herein is verified by the petitioner, and in support of the allegations contained therein are annexed the affidavits of Jesse Morgan, Fred D. Morgan, Anson Tobias, Richard D. Fish, Ernest L. Smith and Harry Morgan. A verified answer to the petition has been interposed by the respondent, Minckley, and in support of the allegations therein are annexed his affidavit and those of upwards of thirty other persons, including four of the five members of the board of education of said district, with a certificate as to the satisfactory management of the school under the charge of respondent signed by forty-nine residents and taxpayers of said school district.

The petitioner has filed a verified reply to the answer of the respondent and annexed to his reply are some seventeen affidavits. To such reply the respondent has filed a verified rejoinder, to which is annexed some thirteen affidavits, quite a number of which were made by persons whose affidavits are annexed to the reply of the petitioner.

The papers in this proceeding are very voluminous and contain a large amount of matter not relevant to the question at issue. All the papers, however, have been carefully read and fully considered.

The burden is upon the petitioner to establish the allegations contained in his petition by a preponderance of proof. I am clearly of the opinion, after a careful examination of the proofs presented herein, that the petitioner has failed to so sustain such allegations. The only pupils in said school who complain that they were punished by the respondent in a cruel, unreasonable, excessive and improper manner are Jesse Morgan, Anson Tobias, Richard D. Fish and Ernest L. Smith, each of whom has made an affidavit relative to the punishment received by him respectively. It appears from the proofs that the respondent punished the pupil, Morgan, three times, twice with a ruler and once with a small piece of pine siding, by three or four blows upon his person. Morgan states in his affidavit that at one of these punishments he fainted; but that is denied by the respondent, and it appears in proof that Morgan admitted to divers persons that he did not faint upon such occasion. It appears that Morgan was punished for running away from school, for getting angry and refusing to be shown in relation to a lesson, and refusing to obey his teacher, and for conspiring with two or three of the larger boys in the school to resist the respondent in the performance of his duties. That the pupil, Tobias, was punished for making an obscene mark or picture upon his desk. Tobias denied having made it, although one Ackerman saw him make it; but Tobias subsequently admitted that he made it. The punishment was administered by means of a rubber tubing about three-eighths of an inch in diameter, applied upon his person. That the pupil, Smith, by means of a rubber syringe, threw water upon other pupils in the school during school hours; that he was kept after school hours and respondent gave him the choice of being punished or have his offense reported to the board of education, and that Smith replied he preferred to be punished, and thereupon the respondent punished him with a ruler applied to the person of said Smith. That the pupil, Fish, who is a son of the petitioner herein, was punished several times; once, on being kept after school hours for disorderly conduct in school, while the respondent was talking with him he became angry and struck the respondent with his fist, and the respondent slapped him upon his face with his hand and whipped him with a ruler; on another occasion, on said Fish being kept after school hours and refusing to get his lessons and talking in an impudent and saucy manner to the respondent, he was struck two or three times by respondent with a ruler; that the last punishment received by Fish from respondent was on February 8, 1894, when he told an untruth to the respondent, was disobedient, became angry with, and saucy and impudent to the respondent, and caused the other pupils in the school to laugh by making faces behind the back of the respondent. The nature and extent of the punishment received by said Fish is set out in a number of affidavits by pupils present, and both by Fish and the respondent.

Upon all the proofs presented as to the character of the punishment administered to the pupils, Morgan, Tobias, Smith and Fish, by the respondent, I am of the opinion that such punishment was not cruel, unreasonable or excessive. It is not shown that any of said pupils sustained any serious injury thereby; that it does appear that the pupil, Fish, was a disturbing element in the school.

Under subdivision 2 of section 13, title 9 of the Consolidated School Act of 1864, and the amendments thereof, power is given to the board of education of every union free school district "to establish such rules and regulations concerning the order and discipline of the school or schools in the several departments thereof, as they may deem necessary to secure the best educational results."

Boards of education and boards of trustees of the school districts of the State establish the rules for the discipline and government of the schools, and the teachers in the schools are charged with their execution.

In the establishment of rules of order and discipline for such schools boards of education must use reasonable discretion, as their action in that regard may be the subject of appeal to the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

It appears in proof that the respondent stated to said board of education that certain of the scholars in the school under their charge showed a disposition to disturb the school, and asked what course he should take; that he was instructed by said board that he was expected to keep order in the schoolroom and, if necessary, to punish the scholars in order to do so. That such board has made careful inquiry and from reliable sources relative to the punishment inflicted by the respondent and the conduct and character of the scholars punished, and from such inquiry such board believes that such punishment was merited and necessary, and not disproportionate to the offenses committed. That no complaints or charges against the respondent have been made to such board other than by the petitioner herein.

The school laws are silent in regard to corporal punishment; they neither permit nor forbid its use. It was said by Secretary of State Dix, that the practice of inflicting corporal punishment upon scholars had no sanction but usage. It is of the highest importance that order and discipline should be maintained in all schools if the best educational results are to be obtained. If to maintain good order and discipline in the schools, all other reasonable methods fail, then a resort to corporal punishment will be proper. When such punishment is administered the teacher should be careful not to lose his temper; that the punishment be not cruel, unreasonable, excessive or improper, but of a character suitable as a correction for the offense committed, and of such a nature and to such an extent as a parent would administer for the correction of his child.

The allegations contained in the petition herein, that the respondent, while teaching said school, became engaged in a public and newspaper quarrel with a Rev. Mr Mulford, in which a majority of the board of education sided with the respondent, and that a desire to spite said Mulford and his friends, was the reason that said board continued the employment of the respondent for the present school year, are not, nor is either of them, sustained by the proofs. Had such allegations been sustained they would not have constituted any valid or legal grounds for annulling the certificate of the respondent.

The application of the petitioner, Fish, is denied and his petition dismissed.

4936

In the matter of the appeal of Henry S. Mott and Samuel Robbins v. board of education of union free school district 4, Huntington, Suffolk county.

The school law is silent on the subject of corporal punishment, but such punishment has been recognized by this Department for many years, and it has uniformly ruled that the force or violence used must be reasonable in manner and moderate in degree. Subdivision 4 of section 223 of the Penal Code permits teachers to use force or violence upon or toward a scholar, and if the force or violence used is reasonable in manner and moderate in degree it is not unlawful. When the trustees of school districts authorize or direct corporal punishment, it is the teacher, not the trustees, that administer the punishment, and the trustees have no authority to direct the kind of instrument to be used, nor the extent of the punishment. A teacher who uses force or violence upon or toward a scholar, not reasonable in manner or moderate in degree, thereby renders himself or herself liable to be proceeded against in the courts, and to have his or her license annulled.

Decided April 24, 1901

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the following resolutions adopted at a meeting of the board of education of union free school district 4, Huntington, Suffolk county, held January 12, 1901:

Resolved, That Harry Robbins and Fred Ketcham be, and they hereby are, suspended from the Northport union school for the balance of the school year; or, in the alternative, that they be permitted to return to school at once and submit to such punishment as the principal may see fit to inflict, and resistance to such punishment shall constitute cause for their immediate and final expulsion from the school.

Resolved, That this board does most heartily recommend to the principal that the punishment inflicted be a good sound thrashing, administered with some flexible substance that will hurt but not permanently injure.

Resolved, That in consequence of the fact that this is the first time that any insubordination on the part of Harry Mott has been brought to our attention, that he be permitted to return to school at once upon condition that he submits to such punishment as the principal may see fit to administer, and that any resistance on the part of said Mott to such punishment shall constitute cause for his immediate and final expulsion from the school.

The grounds alleged by the appellants for bringing their appeal are, that such resolutions are illegal, unjust and improper and that the principal of the school is not a proper person to administer punishment because of his ungovernable temper and of unreasonable punishments which he is in the habit of administering.

The board of education filed an answer to the appeal, and to such answer the appellants have replied.

From the papers filed in this appeal it appears that the appellants are residents of union free school district 4, Huntington, Suffolk county: that the appellant, Henry S. Mott, is the father of Harry T. Mott, a boy of the age of 16 years who, prior to January 10, 1901, has attended the school in such district; that the appellant, Samuel Robbins, is also a resident of such school district and has a son named Harry Robbins, of the age of 16 years who, prior to January 10, 1901, attended such school; that one Benjamin J. Wightman now is, and for the past five years has been, the principal teacher in such school; that the respondents, Rowland Miles, John W. Olmstead, Elbert Hartt, Frank B. Smith, Henry G. Simpson, Charles E. Robertson and Charles B. Partridge constitute the board of trustees of such district for the present school year.

It also appears from the records of this Department that on or about December 18, 1895, under the provisions of title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, common school districts 4 and 8 were consolidated by the establishment of a union free school therefor and therein, said union free school district to be designated and known as district 4, Huntington, Suffolk county.

It is in proof that at a recess of said school on the afternoon of January 9, 1901, a dispute arose between Harry T. Mott and one James Fitzgerald, also a pupil in the school, in which Harry Robbins, and one Sweeney another pupil, a cousin of Fitzgerald, became parties in which blows were exchanged and stones thrown; that the boys Fitzgerald and Sweeney went home instead of returning to the school, but during the session of the school returned with a note from Mrs Fitzgerald, whereupon the principal requested the four boys to remain after the school was dismissed; that the four boys remained after the school was dismissed; and the principal called Fitzgerald and Sweeney to his desk and after talking with them relative to the matters that occurred during the recess punished each of them for leaving the school grounds without permission, and dismissed them; that thereupon the principal requested Mott to come forward, but as he did not comply the principal seized him by the coat collar, tearing the coat, and struck Mott with a ruler or rulers; that then Robbins arose from his seat and was struck by the principal with his fist; and thereupon the boy, Ketcham, who was in the yard below, hearing the disturbance entered the schoolroom and was ordered by the principal to leave the room, and Ketcham took several steps backward, whereupon the principal struck him with his fist and Ketcham left the room; that the principal then told Mott and Robbins to report to the president of the board of trustees, and not to return to the school until authorized by said board to do so; that Mott and Robbins left the school building and forthwith reported the matter to the president of the board and to their respective parents.

It further appears that on the evening of January 12, 1901, pursuant to a call by the president, a meeting of the board of trustees was held at which all the members were present, and also Henry S. Mott and his wife and sons, Henry T. and Charles Mott, Samuel Robbins and his wife and son Harry Robbins, Ellsworth Ketcham and son Frederick, John Fitzgerald and his son James and his nephew John Sweeney, and William H. Bartow and Daniel A. Arthur, clerk of the board. That the president of the board of education questioned the boys in relation to the matters that occurred at the afternoon recess, and after the school closed on January 9, 1901, and the statements made were substantially as hereinbefore stated; that the appellants herein addressed the board, the boys having left the meeting, admitting a breach of discipline on the part of their sons; that thereupon the board of trustees adopted the resolutions hereinbefore stated; copies of which were served upon the appellants January 14, 1901.

The appellants admit that their sons should be reprimanded or punished in a reasonable manner for their acts on January 9, 1901.

The board of education of union free school district 4, Huntington, under subdivision 2, of section 15, article 4, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, has the power to establish such rules and regulations concerning the order and discipline of the school or schools under its charge, in the several departments thereof as it may deem necessary to secure the best educational results.

The teachers in such school have no power to make such rules, but only to enforce the rules made by the board.

Such board has power to suspend or expel pupils for violation of such rules, and under the provisions of the compulsory education law, to send pupils between the ages of 8 and 16 years who are habitual truants from instruction or who are insubordinate or disorderly during their attendance, or irregular in their attendance to a truant school. Such board may direct that corporal punishment be administered. An order to suspend or expel a pupil should designate the time of such suspension or expulsion, and can not be longer time than to the close of the school year, nor can any pupil be confined or maintained in any truant school exceeding the remainder of the school year.

The school law is silent on the subject of corporal punishment, but such punishment has been recognized by this Department for many years, but it has uniformly ruled that the force or violence used must be reasonable in manner and moderate in degree. Such punishment is permitted by a teacher to a scholar under section 223 of the Penal Code of this State:

Section 223 Use of force or violence, declared not unlawful, etc. To use or attempt, or offer to use, force or violence upon or toward the person of another is not unlawful in the following cases:

4 When committed by a parent or the authorized agent of any parent, or by any guardian, master or teacher, in the exercise of a lawful authority to restrain or correct his child, ward, apprentice or scholar, and the force or violence used is reasonable in manner and moderate in degree.

When the trustees of any school districts authorize or direct corporal punishment to be administered to any scholar in the school under their charge it is the teacher, not the trustees, that administers the punishment, and the trustees have no authority to direct the kind of instrument to be used or the extent of the punishment to be administered. Such trustees have no authority to require scholars to submit to such punishment as the teacher may see fit to inflict, or to finally expel a scholar from the schools who shall resist any such punishment.

Under section 223 of the Penal Code, in such punishment, the force or violence used must be reasonable in manner and moderate in degree and hence if excessive force is used, or the instrument used would do great bodily harm, the act of the teacher becomes an assault which the scholar, to prevent bodily harm, may lawfully resist.

A teacher who uses force or violence not reasonable in manner or moderate in degree will render himself or herself liable to be proceeded against in the courts both civilly and criminally, and to have his or her license to teach revoked.

Admitting, for the purposes of argument only, that Principal Wightman correctly stated what occurred in the schoolroom after the school was dismissed on the afternoon of January 9, 1901, on the part of the principal, and the boys Mott and Robbins and Ketcham, such action on the part of the boys was not sufficient to authorize the decision and action of the board of education in the adoption of the resolutions appealed from.

I decide that the board of education of union free school district 4, Huntington, Suffolk county, in the adoption January 12, 1901, of the three resolutions appealed from by the appellants herein, exceeded the authority given to such board under the provisions of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the amendments thereof; that such action of such board should be vacated and set aside.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that the three resolutions adopted by the board of education of union free school district 4, Huntington, Suffolk county, January 12, 1901, be, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered that said board of education admit into the school of such district, without any condition or conditions precedent, Harry T. Mott, Harry Robbins and Frederick Ketcham, each of whom is of school age, and each of whom resides with his respective parents within such district.

PUPILS — EXPULSION OF

5253

In the matter of the appeal of Frank McAvoy from the action of Averill Cole as trustee of school district no. 12, town of Greece, county of Monroe.

When a pupil is a constant menace to the good order and discipline of the school and the progress of other pupils in their school work and when his conduct is mean and vicious, it is the duty of the trustee to expel such pupil.

The trustee should then proceed against such pupil under section 4 of the compulsory education law so that he may be committed to a proper institution where suitable and lawful instruction will be provided.

Decided April 10, 1906

Henry R. Glynn, attorney for appellant

G., S. C. & A. E. Truesdale, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

On or about February 7, 1906, Averill Cole, trustee of school district no. 12, town of Greece, expelled William McAvoy, the son of appellant, from further attendance at the public school maintained in said district. This appeal is brought to obtain an order directing the trustee to reinstate the said William McAvoy to full school privileges.

The evidence submitted in this case consists of the affidavits of appellant, appellant's wife and the boy, William, upon one side, and the affidavits of Respondent Cole, who is trustee of the district, Nettie Ireland, who is the teacher, and six pupils of the school whose ages are from 11 to 16 years, upon the other side.

The pleadings show that Nettie Ireland has been teaching in this district since September 1905, and that William McAvoy, the boy who has been expelled, was a registered pupil in said school from the opening of the school in September until the time of his expulsion. It is also shown that his attendance was irregular and that he refused or neglected to bring proper excuses from his parents for absence from school. William was 13 years of age and therefore subject to the provisions of the compulsory education law.

The evidence of the teacher which is corroborated by several pupils clearly establishes that this boy was a constant source of annoyance to the teacher and the school from the time he entered school in September until his expulsion and that his conduct grew worse as the term of school progressed. From the evidence submitted the boy appears to have been guilty, among other things, of the following conduct: he refused to do the things which his teacher directed him to do and he did those things which his teacher told him not to do and which he knew would disturb the school and interrupt and hinder the progress of other pupils; he fought his teacher when she undertook to discipline him and he fought other pupils in the schoolroom when school was in session; he threw a brick across the schoolroom when school was in session; he would remain on the school grounds after school had been regularly convened and then call to the pupils in the schoolroom and otherwise attract their attention; he smoked on the school grounds and in the building; he persistently and wilfully annoyed other pupils in many ways; he was disobedient, insolent and vulgar; he used low, vile, profane and indecent language in the presence of his teacher and the other pupils; he was guilty of low and indecent actions; he swore at his teacher, called her vile, coarse names, and frequently made insulting remarks to her in the presence of the other pupils and even before the school when it was in session. His presence was a constant menace to the good order and discipline of the school and the progress of other pupils in their school work. His conduct appears to have been such that the parents of other pupils consulted the trustee in relation to the matter. He was suspended in December but permitted to return on a promise of good behavior.

It can not readily be understood how his teacher endured such conduct as long as she did. During this period of wilful misbehavior his parents tried to believe that he was not properly treated. It is quite probable that if his parents had not supported him in his mean and vicious conduct and had upheld the efforts of his teacher to properly discipline him the result would be quite different. It appears that the teacher and the trustee endeavored to enlist the cooperation of his parents in their efforts to keep his conduct within proper limitations, without success or encouragement.

This Department has held that incorrigible pupils and those whose moral senses have become so depraved that their association with other pupils would contaminate such pupils is proper ground for expulsion. The trustee was justified in expelling this boy. More than that it was his duty to expel him. It appears to have been necessary as a means of proper protection to the well-being of other pupils.

The boy is between the compulsory school ages and is required to be under instruction as the compulsory education law directs. The trustee is charged by law with the duty of seeing that the boy attends upon instruction as required by the statutes. It appears that since his expulsion from this school he has been attending school in the city of Rochester. When a trustee expels a pupil within the compulsory school ages and the parents of such child fail to provide proper instruction elsewhere it becomes the duty of such trustee to proceed against such parents under section 4 of the compulsory education law and such pupil may then be committed to a proper institution where suitable and lawful instruction will be provided.

The trustee must be sustained in the action he took. It was clearly in the interest of the school and all parties affected. For the present I must leave to his discretion the question of reinstating the pupil and the conditions on which such action shall be taken.

If this boy is causing no particular trouble in the school which he has been attending since his expulsion it appears wise to continue him in attendance upon that school.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

PUPILS—SCHOOL PRIVILEGES OF

5238

In the matter of the appeal of Arthur Mills from the action of a special meeting held in school district no. 13, in the town of Hume, Allegany county.

A man who is not a taxpayer but who is the father of children of school age has a right founded upon reason and law to be heard upon the question of proper school facilities in his district equal to that of a man who may be a large taxpayer but who is not the father of children of school age.

Whoever may reside upon farms whether owners or tenants are entitled to proper school facilities.

Decided February 1, 1906

Smith & Dickson, attorneys for appellant

G. W. Harding, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

On August 31, 1904, School Commissioner D'Autremont of the first school commissioner district of Allegany county, and School Commissioner McCall of the second school commissioner district of Wyoming county, made an order dissolving joint school district no. 5 of the town of Hume, Allegany county, and the town of Genesee Falls, Wyoming county, and annexing its territory to school district no. 13, Hume. The schoolhouse of district no. 13 is located in the village of Wiscoy and previous to the annexation of district no. 5 was located near the central part of the district. All the children residing in former district no. 13 were within a reasonable distance of the schoolhouse. At the extreme eastern point of former district no. 13 and about 1 mile distant from the village of Wiscoy is the village of Rossburg. Appellant claims that Rossburg is within the boundaries of former district no. 13, but it appears from the map submitted in appellant's pleadings that Rossburg is partly in former district no. 13 and partly in former district no. 5. The two districts join each other in or near this village. Former district no. 13 contained about 33 children of school age and had an assessed valuation of $49,597.

Former district no. 5 embraces a section of the Genesee valley of about 3 miles in length. It is an agricultural region and contains many fine farms for which this valley is noted. The Pennsylvania Railroad extends through the whole length of the district. The public highway extending through the valley is a good hard road and in excellent condition. The schoolhouse was located so that it was easily accessible to all the children in the district. Many of the farms in this district are occupied by tenants. At the time of the dissolution of this district the number of children of school age residing therein was nine and the assessed valuation of the district was $90,392. As compared with district no. 13 its assessed valuation was twice that of no. 13, but the number of children of school age was less than one third of those of no. 13. The number of legal voters in district no. 13 exceeds those in district no. 5. The assessed valuation of former district no. 5 was sufficient to maintain a good school without imposing undue burdens upon the taxpayers.

The consolidated district has an assessed valuation of $139,989 and 42 children of school age. The financial and numerical strength of the district is such as to render it possible for this district to maintain an ideal rural school. The schoolhouse of the consolidated district is the one owned by former district no. 13. It is not centrally located but is in the extreme western portion of the present district. The distance from many of the homes in former district no. 5 to the schoolhouse is so great as to make attendance upon school by small children prohibitive unless transportation is provided.

On August 9, 1905, 26 residents and voters of the district petitioned the trustee to call a special meeting for the purpose of voting upon the proposition to change the site of the district from the village of Wiscoy to the village of Rosburg. On August 14, 1905, Trustee Pratt issued a call for such meeting to be held at 7.30 p. m. on August 29th. Such meeting regularly convened at the proper time and place and after electing a chairman adjourned to meet October 28th. The minutes of the meeting show that 50 voters were present at the time the meeting adjourned. These 50 voters were mostly residents of the Wiscoy section of the district. Many of the voters from former district no. 5 had not reached the meeting although it appears they were on their way to such meeting. It does not appear that those present acted with undue haste in opening the meeting. It does appear that they were prompt in opening the meeting but that some little time elapsed before the meeting was adjourned. The action of the meeting appears to have been regular and legal and if residents of the district were prohibited from participating in the proceedings of the meeting it is chargeable to their failure to be present at the time set for its opening.

It is claimed by appellant that it was the intention of the voters residing in the Wiscoy end of the district and who appear to be a majority of those in the district, to continue to adjourn such meeting without taking definite action on the question which it was called to consider. The pleadings do not show whether or not the meeting was held on the adjourned date of October 28th. It appears from an official inspection ordered by this Department that no action has been taken on the proposition to change the site. It was the duty of the clerk to have given notice of this adjourned meeting in accordance with the provisions of subdivision 3, section 34, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law.

It is claimed by appellant that when district no. 5 consented to the proposition of consolidation with no. 13 it was upon the understanding that the site of the district should be changed and the schoolhouse centrally located. This claim is supported by the testimony of School Commissioner D'Autremont and Doctor Soule, who was trustee of school district no. 13 during the school year ending July 31, 1904, and during the year when the consolidation of these districts was agitated and which agitation resulted in the order made by the school commissioner on August 31, 1904. Respondent denies that district no. 13 ever became a party to such understanding. Respondent shows that at the annual meeting of district no. 13, in 1904, a resolution was voted down which proposed the appointment of a committee of three to take into consideration the question of consolidation of these districts and the change of the site. It does appear that there had been some representations to the inhabitants of district no. 13 by leading citizens residing in district no. 5, to the effect that if they would consent to the consolidation plan the site of the district would be changed so as to bring all residents of the enlarged district within a reasonable distance of the schoolhouse.

However, it is immaterial as to what the understanding between the inhabitants of these two districts may have been on this question. The inhabitants of district no. 13 could not expect to annex territory to their district representing twice the assessed valuation of their district without extending in return adequate school facilities to the inhabitants of such territory. Many of the inhabitants of former district no. 5 live from $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles to $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the schoolhouse of the present district. Children are therefore required to travel from 5 to 7 miles daily in order to attend school. This distance renders attendance by such children upon school prohibitive. If the district boundaries are to be maintained as they now exist the district must change the site to some suitable location at or near Rossburg. If the site is not changed former district no. 5 must be restored. This controversy must be determined by one of these two methods. If district no. 5 is restored it will be necessary for that district to erect a new schoolhouse.

In determining the change of site the inhabitants of former district no. 13 should take into consideration the condition of the present schoolhouse. If the districts should be separated it will be necessary for district no. 13 to enlarge its site, make extended repairs to its schoolhouse, and erect outbuildings that shall be sanitary and conform to law. The appeal from the order of the school commissioner in condemning this schoolhouse will not be decided until the question of changing the site is settled.

I believe either of these districts will be able to maintain a satisfactory school. A better school can probably be maintained by the consolidated district at less expense to the taxpayers of the district. The conditions in this community are such that I believe the voters of the district should be given an opportunity to pass upon the question and I shall therefore direct the trustee to call a special meeting of the district to decide upon the wisdom of changing its site. After such meeting has been held and the action taken by the district is known such further orders may be made herein as shall appear necessary.

The respondent has not satisfactorily answered the charge that adequate and proper school facilities can not be afforded by continuing the schoolhouse where it now stands. This charge is not answered by showing the physical condition of the schoolhouse, its seating capacity, etc. Neither is the question answered by showing that many of the farms are occupied by tenants who may remove from the district at the end of the year. These valuable farms will continue to be occupied by some one. If not by their owners or the present tenants by other tenants. Whoever may reside on these farms, whether owners or tenants, are entitled to proper school facilities. The value of the farms depends to a certain extent upon the school facilities afforded by the district.

Respondent has devoted much effort to show that many of the petitioners praying for a special meeting to vote upon the proposition to change the site of the schoolhouse are not taxpayers. It is not claimed that these petitioners are not legal voters of the district. It is shown that many of them have children whose education depends upon their ability to travel to and from the schoolhouse daily. A man who is so unfortunate as not to be a taxpayer but who is so fortunate as to be the father of children of school age has a right founded upon reason and law to be heard upon the question of proper school facilities in his district equal to that of a man who may be a large taxpayer but who is not the father of children of school age.

It is ordered, That Fred E. Pratt, sole trustee of school district no. 13, of the towns of Hume and Genesee Falls, of the county of Allegany and Wyoming, be, and he hereby is, directed to forthwith call a special meeting of the legal voters of said district to vote upon the proposition to change the site of the schoolhouse to the site described in the petition of A. R. Mills and others, voters of said district, dated August 9, 1905, and presented to said Pratt on or about that date, or to such other site at or near the village of Rossburg as said meeting shall deem proper and suitable.

It is also ordered, That the said Fred E. Pratt shall forward to me immediately after the said meeting shall have been held a true certified copy of the proceedings of said meeting and the whole thereof.

5387

In the matter of the appeal of Una Beth Davis from a decision of the board of education of the village of Spencerport, N. Y.

A girl 18 years of age who has abandoned her parental home and resides with her grandmother is entitled to attend school in the district in which her grandmother resides, without the payment of tuition.

Decided May 19, 1908

Berton W. Brown, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

The appellant in this proceeding is 18 years of age and claims that she has abandoned the home of her parents and has resided since September last and is now residing in the village of Spencerport with her grandmother, Mrs Abbie B. Hiscock. The pleadings show that Mrs Hiscock is 78 years of age and has resided in the village of Spencerport for the past 16 years and that no one except appellant resides with her. It further appears that because of the age of Mrs Hiscock it is necessary that she should have some one residing with her permanently. Appellant swears that she has abandoned her father's home to reside permanently with her grandmother and that her grandmother is responsible for her clothing and education. Mrs Hiscock swears that appellant has resided with her since September 1, 1907, and that she has assumed general care and absolute responsibility and control over appellant. The father of appellant swears that because of the age of Mrs Hiscock he has permitted his daughter to live with her grandmother and that she is to remain with her grandmother permanently and that he has relinquished all rights and claims to his daughter's services. He further swears that he relies upon Mrs Hiscock for the general bringing up of his daughter, and to provide her moral and temporal education and to furnish her clothing etc.

Under these conditions appellant claims the right to attend school in the Spencerport district without the payment of tuition. Such right has been denied her by the board of education and this proceeding is instituted for the purpose of obtaining an order directing the board of education to recognize appellant as a resident student of the Spencerport district.

The contention of the board of education is that the father of appellant is a well-to-do farmer and abundantly able to pay the tuition of his daughter. The financial condition of appellant's father has no bearing upon the question. If appellant is a resident of the district she is entitled to the school privileges of such district. It is contended by the board of education that the claim of residence on the part of appellant is not founded upon sufficient facts or made in good faith. The whole theory of respondents' answer is founded upon information and belief. No evidence is offered to controvert the testimony of appellant, of her grandmother and of her father. The testimony of these three persons fully establishes that appellant is a resident of the Spencerport district.

Mrs Hiscock has resided in the Spencerport district for 16 years. It is claimed by the board of education and much stress is placed upon this point, that Mrs Hiscock for several summers has closed her residence at Spencerport and passed the summer elsewhere and usually at the home of appellant's father. Even if she did, such action on her part would not affect her residence. The fact that a person leaves his home to spend the summer in some other part of the country is not an abandonment of his residence.

The record in this case shows that Mrs Hiscock is a resident of the Spencerport district and that appellant resides with her and is entitled to all the privileges of resident pupils in such district.

The exact point in this case was fully considered and determined by this Department in decision no. 4344, decided March 20, 1895. Such decision is also supported by the Supreme Court in People ex rel. B.C.A.Soc. v. Hendrickson (54 Misc. 337).

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Ogden, shall receive into the school of said district the appellant herein, Una Beth Davis, as a resident pupil thereof and accord the said Una Beth Davis all the rights and privileges to which resident pupils of such district are entitled.

5363

In the matter of the appeal of Beverly R. Crowell from the action of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Palmyra, county of Wayne.

It is manifest that school authorities should give greater weight to the opinions of physicians who are officially charged with responsibility concerning the public health than to the views of other physicians who are not charged with such official responsibility.

A board of education is not justified in barring from attendance upon school, children who are alleged to have had a contagious disease when the health authorities have formally declared that such children did not have the alleged disease.

Decided December 16, 1907

S. K. and B. C. Williams and Hon. W. P. Rudd, attorneys for appellant
Hon. Charles McLouth, attorney for respondents

Draper, Commissioner

This is an appeal from the action of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Palmyra, Wayne county, in excluding the children of the appellant from school. There is no contention about the right of the appellant to send his children to the school, except for cause. The cause alleged by the school board is that the children had scarlet fever in May 1907 and that the house has not since been fumigated. The appellant admits that the children were ill for a brief period, but contends that the disease was not scarlet fever and that there has been no scarlet fever in the house. He resists the desire of the school board to have his home fumigated, and stands on what he conceives to be his legal right that his children be admitted to the school without it.

The pleadings show that the children were admitted to the school on September 3, 1907, and attended until October 15th, when they were excluded by the board of education because of some apprehension about the matter, which was quickened by the presence of considerable scarlet fever in the school district. Fortunately, there appears to be no wrongful intent; the school board appearing to be only desirous of fully meeting its responsibilities.

Of course, a very material question is, did appellant's children really have scarlet fever? This question is apparently involved in one of the unfortunate controversies which too frequently prejudice the medical profession. Several physicians in the town, some of whom saw the patients, say that the disease was scarlet fever; the attending physician says that it was not. The proper representative of the State Department of Health visited the place and saw each of the children at the time of the illness, consulted the attending physician and other physicians who saw the children, and determined that the disease was not scarlet fever. The local board of health took the same view and, as the matter seems to have been much discussed, the local board of health was called upon several times to determine whether the disease referred to was or was not scarlet fever. On four different occasions it formally declared that it was not. The local health officer also officially reports that he has traced to his satisfaction the origin of each case of scarlet fever occurring in this district and that no case has been traced to the house or family of appellant.

Thus, the school authorities are called upon to meet the question whether they should be guided by the official attitude of the health authorities upon a question of health, or should feel free to ignore the opinions of the health officers who are charged with official responsibility, and act upon the advice of other physicians.

The opinion of the physicians upon which the board of education claimed to act in suspending appellant's children was a statement signed by such physicians on the 6th day of October. These physicians say in this statement that as it has been reported that members of appellant's family have been afflicted with scarlet fever and as it has been reported that the health officer of the village as a matter of precaution has recommended that appellant's house be disinfected that they concur in such recommendation. It appears upon the record that no report was ever received by the board of education from the health officer recommending that Crowell's house be fumigated. It also appears that the health officer reported to the village health board that the facts in the case did not authorize the board of health to fumigate the Crowell house. Section 24 of the public health law confers very broad powers upon local boards of health and if it appeared necessary to fumigate the house of appellant in order to protect the health of the citizens of Palmyra the board of health not only possessed the power to direct that such house be fumigated but it was the duty of that body to give such direction.

It is manifest that the school authorities ought to give greater weight to the opinions of physicians who are officially charged with responsibility concerning the public health than to the views of other physicians who are not charged with such official responsibility.

It might have been well if the appellant had thought proper to submit his home to the process of fumigation, but it can not be overlooked that his house is his castle and that when the public authorities sought to invade it he was entitled, if he saw fit, to stand upon his legal rights, and it seems to me that he had lawful warrant for taking the position that whether his house must be invaded by public authority for the protection of the public health was to be settled by the concurrent action of the local and State health authorities. It would also seem that the board of education would be abundantly protected in such a matter by the attitude of the health authorities, and that where the right of a citizen to send his children to school was insisted upon, the board of education should have recognized the right when the health authorities formally declared that the children did not have scarlet fever and thereby held in effect, that the presence of the children would be no menace to the school.

The able and ingenious counsel for the school board raises a question about the legal right of the Commissioner of Education to entertain and decide this appeal, on the ground that the discretionary power of the local board of education is not subject to review by the Commissioner. The precedents of the State Department or the decisions of the courts do not sustain this view. The board of education would doubtless be absolved from responsibility in damages for a mistaken course when acting with reasonable judgment and correct purpose, but it is manifestly the intent of the school law that local controversies affecting the schools or relating to the rights of citizens in the schools shall be determined by appeals to the Commissioner of Education, and that fundamental school policies shall be settled in this way. Otherwise, it would only be necessary for a school board to allege its good purposes and that it had exercised its discretion in order to wholly defeat the purposes of the Consolidated School Law as to the speedy, inexpensive and conclusive settlement of differences which are related to the administration of the schools.

Counsel cites several court decisions of other states to show that trustees are sole governors of the school under their managements. These decisions however relate to schools in states where appellate power to judicially determine school controversies is not vested in a state officer having general supervisory powers over the school system of the State. He also cites People ex rel. King v. Gallagher, 93 N. Y. 438, and In the matter of Walters, 84 Hun 457 in support of his contention. In each of these cases however the action of the board of education was explicitly authorized by the statutes. The courts therefore denied an application for a writ of mandamus and held that the action of the school authorities in such case was conclusive. The appeal under consideration is not analogous to these cases. In this proceeding the action of the board of education was not based upon any provision of law explicitly authorizing such action. Such action was based upon an implied power under the Consolidated School Law which in express terms confers the right of appeal therefrom to the Commissioner of Education and authorizes that officer to determine the matter.

The action of the school board appealed from, so far as it relates to the children of the appellant and their right to be admitted to the school, is held to be erroneous, and the appeal is therefore sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Palmyra, Wayne county, shall forthwith admit the children of Beverly R. Crowell, the appellant herein, to the public school maintained in said district.

5311

In the matter of the appeal of William H. Ash from the action of the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of Islip, Suffolk county, in suspending his daughter from the high school thereof without a hearing after demand.

In the suspension of a pupil a board of education is not required to proceed with the formality of a trial. To hold such procedure necessary would be subversive of proper discipline in a large public school. In such case a board should acquire full knowledge of the facts in the case and take such action as will promote the best interests of the school. The action of a board in suspending a pupil pending suitable apology to a teacher to whom she had been impudent and insubordinate will be sustained.

Decided April 12, 1907

Hon. John B. Merrill, attorney for appellant

Freeman T. Hulse, Esq., attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

Esther E. Ash, daughter of appellant, was a resident pupil in attendance upon the academic department of union free school district no. 1, town of Islip, Suffolk county. On December 19, 1906, she was suspended from school for insubordination. Her reinstatement was conditioned upon an apology to one of the teachers for her alleged misconduct. Miss Ash was 17 years of age at the time of her suspension. On December 19, 1906, Miss Ash had trouble with Mr Platner, the vice principal of the school. He reported the case to the principal. The principal interviewed Miss Ash on the subject and on her statement of what occurred and the statement of Mr Platner, the principal suspended her on the condition above stated. Miss Ash refused to make the apology. The case was referred by the principal to the board of education. The board of education investigated the case and sustained the action of the principal. The father of Miss Ash, through his attorney, made demand upon the board of education for her immediate reinstatement in school. This the board declined to do. Thereupon the father of Miss Ash applied to the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus commanding the board of education of said district to reinstate his daughter. The court denied such application without prejudice to an appeal to the Commissioner of Education. This proceeding was then instituted.

The claim of appellant is that his daughter was not officially notified by the board of education of charges against her, that no hearing was granted her by the board of education even after a request therefor was made by her father, and that to protect the rights of this pupil the board of education was required to order a formal hearing and to permit her to appear with counsel and proceed with all the formality of a trial.

This contention is not sound. The school law contains no provision contemplating such procedure. Such procedure would be subversive to proper discipline in a large public school. Subdivision 2 of section 15, title 8 of the Consolidated School Law confers on a board of education the power to establish such regulations concerning the order and discipline of the schools under its charge as it shall deem necessary to secure the best educational results. Subdivision 10 of the same section among other things provides that a board of education is "to have, in all respects, the superintendence, management and control of said union free schools." It appears that the board of education pursued the proper course in dealing with this case. The board made an informal inquiry into all the questions involved. Members of the faculty were consulted. Pupils of the school having knowledge of the affair were consulted. The principal had talked the matter over with Miss Ash. The board acquired full knowledge of the facts in the case and took such action as it deemed for the best interests of the school.

I shall not hold that in such cases a board of education shall proceed with the formality of a trial. A board should ascertain what the conduct of a pupil has been and should take such action as the facts in the premises warrant. If a board violates any of the rights of a pupil the statutes afford adequate relief.

The pupil was not expelled. She was simply suspended until she made suitable apology to a teacher to whom she had been impudent and insubordinate. It was not stipulated that the apology should be public or attended by humiliation. The requirement was that Miss Ash should conform to that decorum by which ladies and gentlemen are governed when one has unintentionally violated the conventions of good society. She may return to school any time upon suitable apology. It does not appear from the pleadings submitted that any injustice has been imposed upon appellant's daughter by the action complained of.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

Suspension from school for more than a year sufficient punishment for using language to a teacher unbecoming a gentleman. Should not be made perpetual.

Decided July 21, 1875

Gilmour, Superintendent

The appellant was and still is suspended, "for disrespectful conduct and language toward his teacher," and the board of education refuse to restore him to the school until he shall make an apology to the teacher. This the pupil refuses to do.

The Superintendent finds that the language of the pupil was such as no provocation would justify a gentleman in using toward a lady, and that his own sense of self-respect should have prompted him to make an apology to the teacher without any requirement from the trustees.

But in view of the fact that the pupil has already been deprived of the privileges of the school for more than a year, which may perhaps be regarded as a sufficient punishment for an offense committed in a moment of excitement, and by a scholar of uniform previous good conduct, the appeal is, with considerable reluctance, sustained, and the pupil restored to the privileges of the school.

Colored children are entitled to attend the common schools in this State, in all districts, except those in which, by law, provision is made for their education in separate schools.

Decided December 21, 1865

Rice, Superintendent

The petition of appeal in this case states, as the ground of appeal, that the trustees came to the schoolhouse and ordered a certain colored lad, commonly called "Dick," to leave the school. The petition alleges that said "Dick" was at the time over 5 and under 21 years of age, and was of the age of 14 or 15 years; and that he was an actual resident of the district, and has for the last two years been included, by the trustees of the district, in the enumeration of the children made in their annual report to the school commissioner. These facts would give him the right to attend the district school, while the trustees would also have the right to expel him from the school for any good cause shown. The appellant alleges that "the trustees gave 'Dick' no reason for his expulsion, except that, if he continued to go to school, the school would be broken up," and he also alleges that after the dismissal of "Dick" from school, the teacher said to appellant that "Dick" had been an orderly scholar, and had not disobeyed the rules or orders of the school.

The only allegations in the answer which may be considered as contradicting these are in the language of the respondent, as follows, namely: "On the morning of the 1st day of December 1865, the teacher dismissed school on account of disturbance caused, as the teacher declared, and as the trustees verily believe, on account of said colored boy being in school; and on the 4th day of December 1865, the teacher commenced school again, and the trustees did there and then dismiss the said colored boy from school, and at the time did assign to him the reason why they so dismissed him; and that, on the 11th day of December 1865, the said colored boy went to school, and on the same day the above-named John Skatts and William R. Parker went to the schoolhouse and dismissed the said colored boy again for the same reason, and told him that he could not come to school until the weather was settled; that they dismissed him because he was offensive and a laughing stock for the scholars both in and out of school; and that his presence there did annoy and disturb the school to such an extent that the teacher could not preserve or keep order."

These are all the facts of any consequence alleged in the case.

It is, therefore, admitted by the respondents, that "Dick" was primarily entitled to attend the school, being a resident and of school age; and that he was expelled because "his presence did annoy and disturb the school to such an extent that the teacher could not preserve or keep order." I know no law of this State, or decision, excluding a pupil from a public school merely because his presence annoys and disturbs the school. If he had the small-pox, or some other dangerous and contagious disease, the presence of such disease would be dangerous to the school, and the disease might legally be removed by removing the pupil. But no such complaint is made of "Dick," and the presumption is that he is a strong, healthy, intelligent boy.

But the respondents allege that he "was offensive and a laughing stock for the scholars." It is not alleged that he actively engaged in any offensive operations at school, to the injury of the scholars. Therefore, the cause of his offense, if there was any cause, must have been that he was "colored," or in some other respect, was not by his Creator so made as to be adapted to the tastes of his school-fellows, or that his tailor was at fault. The offense was committed by those who made sport of him. They ought to have been taught better manners. The mere fact that "Dick" was "a laughing stock for the scholars" is not a just ground of punishment or censure to be visited upon him, but may be the result of the highest virtues, the noblest purposes, and the most commendable action in him.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, such is presumed to have been the case, in view of the allegations of the appellant, "that when the colored lad returned to school on the 11th day of December, other boys in school hours annoyed him with opprobrious looks and actions." There is no allegation in the answer that "Dick" has ever, on any occasion, in school or out of school, acted in a manner unbecoming a high-minded, earnest boy. For such boys this great State has, by the labors and money of a willing people, organized and sustained a beneficent common school system, and has designed thus to extend a protecting and guiding hand to them, and by these means to bless and exalt all her children.

The trustees of said school district nos. 21 and 11, in the towns of Darien and Alexander, in the county of Genesee, are, therefore, hereby ordered forthwith to admit said colored lad "Dick" to all the privileges of said district school.

The authority of trustees, and hence of teachers over pupils, ceases after the close of school, and their departure from the school premises.
Decided May 13, 1875

Gilmour, Superintendent

A rule adopted by the board of education of a union free school district, among other things forbade pupils attending parties, and their being "absent from their rooms and studies at unusual and improper hours during school week," and further provided that pupils "violating this rule, or any part thereof, may be suspended, or on repeated violations, expelled from the school by the principal, subject to the approval of the board of education."

This rule was enforced against the appellants, two pupils of said school, by their suspension therefrom, the offense charged against them being their attendance upon a meeting of a society in the village known as the Good Templars, an organization for the promotion of the cause of temperance, of which the appellants were members, their attendance therein being charged as a violation of the above rule.

The appellants do not lodge in the school building, and the rule in question is avowedly for the purpose of regulating the conduct of the scholars out of school hours, and when absent from the school premises.

I am aware of the existence of no law under which trustees or teachers have the right to regulate the conduct of the scholars out of school hours, and when away from the school premises. When the school closes and the pupil leaves the school premises the authority of trustees and teacher ceases, and that of the parent or guardian is resumed.

All rules or regulations founded upon any different basis are without authority, and no penalty for their violation can be legally enforced.

"Cruel and unusual punishments" of pupils reprehended.
Decided April 15, 1873

Weaver, Superintendent

A pupil accused of whispering was ordered by the teacher, as a punishment for the offense, to take a seat near a very hot stove. This the young man declined to do, and because he would not subsequently acknowledge that he had done wrong in thus disobeying his teacher, the trustee suspended him from school until he should make the required acknowledgment.

Held, to be the duty of teachers to exercise a sensible discretion in their dealings with the pupils under their charge. To compel a scholar to sit by a hot stove is an improper punishment for any offense, and when one refuses to acknowledge that he has done wrong in declining to submit to its infliction, a proper case is not presented for suspension from school.

The right of a pupil to wear her hair in school according to the taste of the parent, maintained.
Decided April 6, 1874

Weaver, Superintendent

A mother appeals from the action of the trustees in expelling from the school her two children, a girl of 9, and a boy of 7 years of age.

The alleged ground of expulsion is the refusal of the mother to comply with a requirement of the teacher and the trustees, in regard to the mode in which the hair of the little girl of 9 should be arranged.

Though this, as the reason of the expulsion, is denied by the trustees, it would seem that the conflict of opinion between mother and teacher, upon this important question of the arrangement of the child's hair, led the way at least to the final act in the controversy, the exclusion of the children from school. The Superintendent says: "There is no evidence of the infraction of the rules of the school by the boy, and the girl does not appear to have violated any rule, unless it is by coming to school with her hair arranged by her mother in a manner different from that required by the trustees.

"The action of the trustees is without lawful authority. They had no right to make such a regulation as they say was disregarded in this case, and consequently they could not legally inflict any penalty for its violation."

Nor could they lawfully insist upon the conditions prescribed by them for readmitting the children to the school, which are, that the mother shall make a written apology to the teachers of the school for alleged insults offered to them in connection with this matter, and shall stipulate in writing with the trustees that all rules and regulations of the school shall be strictly conformed to, and that she "will not seek to enter upon the school lot, speak to, or address by letter either of the teachers."

Trustees directed to admit the children to the school.

Right of children, residing on lands within a district which have been ceded to the United States, to attend the school of the district.
Decided July 13, 1869

Weaver, Superintendent.

Within the limits of school district no. 13, Champlain, Clinton county, are certain lands, jurisdiction over which has been ceded by the State of New York to the United States, "for the defense and safety of the State." Resident upon these lands are persons with children of school age whom they desire to send to the school of the district within whose boundaries they are embraced. The trustee of district no. 13 refuses to allow these children to attend the school in said district without payment of a tuition fee, claiming that the cession of jurisdiction referred to has had the effect of entirely excluding the lands in question from the said district. The Superintendent says: "In this position, the respondent, in my judgment, is in error. There exists no good reason either in the purpose for which the cession of jurisdiction was made, or in the terms of the cession itself, for excluding any of the children resident upon the lands in question from the advantages for education afforded by the State." Trustee directed to permit the children resident upon said lands, to attend the district school in equal terms with other children of the district.

Trustees have no power to impose a fine upon a pupil, and suspend him from school until it is paid.
Decided March 25, 1873

Weaver, Superintendent

It appears that the appellant, a minor of the age of 15 years, residing in union free school district no. 2, town of Onondaga, has been suspended from the school until a fine of fifteen cents, inflicted upon him for damages done to seats and desks in the schoolhouse, shall be paid. The appellant denies the charge as against him, but the decision is made without regard to his guilt or innocence in the matter.

If to protect the district property the trustees deem it necessary or proper to suspend from the school for a reasonable period any of the scholars guilty of injuring such property, there is no doubt of their right to do so. But there is no provision of law which authorizes school officers to inflict a pecuniary fine upon the pupils for any cause. It will be the duty of the board of education to readmit the appellant to the school on his application therefor.

Abuse of discretion in the enforcement of discipline rebuked.
Decided April 27, 1872

Weaver, Superintendent

The son of the appellant, a boy about 11 years of age, had been guilty of some light offense against the discipline of the school, and the same was reported to the trustee by the teacher in accordance with previous instructions to that effect. The trustee ordered the boy to ask pardon upon his knees of the teacher, on penalty of expulsion from school for a refusal to comply. The scholar expressed his willingness to ask pardon of the teacher, but declined to do so in the humiliating posture required. He was thereupon expelled from the school.

Such an abuse of his discretion by the trustee is in my opinion entirely without excuse. While I would always cheerfully sustain trustees in enforcing discipline in the schools by the use of proper means, such an act of petty tyranny as the one complained of can receive no countenance from me.

3891

In the matter of the appeal of William McDonough v. Lorenzo Smith, trustee of school district no. 6, town of Springfield, Otsego county.

A child was excluded from the school by a teacher, with the trustee's approval, upon the alleged ground that he was idiotic, lacked capacity for education, and was unable to care for himself. Evidence offered before the school commissioner did not sustain the charges, but rather refuted them. Held, that the boy should be received as a pupil.

Decided July 18, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

During the last term, Miss Fannie E. Ingalls, teacher in the above-named district, sent a son of the appellant from the school and refused to permit him to reenter. In this action, she is sustained by the trustee. This appeal is brought to determine whether or not the child should be permitted to attend school in the district.

The ground upon which the child was sent from school was that he was idiotic, and not only lacked capacity for education, but also was unable to care for his own person. It is alleged by the trustee and others, that upon occasions he permitted his clothing to be disarranged, even to the exposure of his person, and that he said and did things detrimental to the interests of the school and incompatible with his continuance therein.

These allegations are stoutly denied by the father and at his instance, I directed the school commissioner having jurisdiction to take testimony touching the matter. He has taken the testimony offered by the appellant, but his report discloses the fact that the respondent entirely failed to maintain his side of the case at such inquiry. Neither the teacher nor any one else was produced before the commissioner to give testimony touching the matter. I observe, however, that two or three witnesses who had previously made affidavit on the side of the respondent, were produced by the appellant before the commissioner, and contradicted material parts of the affidavits which they had previously made, stating that such affidavits were read to them by the father of the teacher, and that either he did not read them as written, or that they did not understand them to that effect. These discrepancies are not at all explained by the respondent, and it must be said that they materially weaken his case.

I have read all the allegations of the parties, and all the testimony taken before the school commissioner, with much care. From all of the statements made, I conclude the fact to be that the boy in question, who is now 11 years of age, is of weak physical and mental organization, and has been of no little trouble and annoyance to the teacher. Yet, but one instance is set forth by her when his conduct was subversive of the good order and decorum of the school-room, and touching that occasion, it occurs to me that more may have been said than was justified. No less than three persons who have previously taught the school, and of unquestioned credibility, state that the boy was in the school while they had charge of it, and that they not only suffered no severe annoyance or inconvenience because of his presence, but that they considered him capable of receiving an education, and that they believed that he had made some progress in that direction.

I suppose the true rule touching such a case is that the child should be permitted to attend the school unless his presence is obnoxious to others, and unless he is so weak-minded as to be incapable of caring for himself and receiving the elements of an education. The school ought to help this boy if it can do so without detriment to the interests of other pupils. Not the mere pleasure or convenience of the teacher is to be considered, but the efficiency and success of the school. Although he may be the occasion of some annoyance, and of a little unusual care and attention, he should be permitted to continue in the school unless his presence there will injure it.

Applying this view to the facts in this particular case, I can not resist the conclusion that it is my duty to direct the trustee to again receive the boy into the school.

The appeal is sustained, and it is so ordered.

3861

In the matter of the appeal of Patrick Horan v. the board of trustees of school district no. 19, of the town of Watervliet, county of Albany.

Appeal from the refusal of the trustees of a district to receive a pupil in the school who had been expelled for a breach of discipline. The boy has been denied the privileges of the school for several weeks. The act for which the punishment was inflicted was evidently the result of momentary impulse, and for which he is now contrite. Nothing is shown against him but this one act. Held, that he should be admitted to the school.

Decided March 4, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant has a son, William Horan, who has been a pupil in the school, in the above-named school district, and who has been expelled from the school for a breach of discipline on or about the 28th day of January 1890. Since that time the father has made repeated efforts to have the boy received into the school again, but the trustees persistently refused to admit him. From this refusal he brings this appeal to the Department.

The trustees make no answer. The boy is about 14 years of age. It nowhere appears that he is of such a character as to make his presence in the school destructive of its efficiency. Nothing is shown against him except the one act for which he was expelled. That act was evidently the result of momentary impulse, and there is apparent contrition on the part of the boy. The father is evidently a hard-working, industrious man, with a large family, and is anxious to give the boy a suitable education. It is not necessary to determine whether the board was justified or not in turning the boy out of the school.

It is manifest to me that whatever may be said upon that point, he has been deprived of the privileges of the school as long as he ought to be.

The appeal is sustained, and the trustees are directed to forthwith admit William Horan to the privileges of the school.

 3689

In the matter of the appeal of E. Parmly Brown v. the board of education of the village of Flushing, in the county of Queens.

The action of a teacher and of a board of education in suspending a pupil will be upheld when it is shown that the pupil was disorderly and refused to obey the teacher and properly deport himself in the school.

Until it is made to appear by proof that the pupil has been subjugated and is ready to conduct himself properly, he should not be admitted to the privileges of the school.

Decided May 30, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the respondents in suspending the son of the appellant, a young man named Anthony Brown, 17 years of age, from the privileges of the school under their charge.

The papers submitted by the respective parties are voluminous, containing much irrelevant matter, but they have been read and compared with care. The cause of the suspension of the boy was his misconduct. The facts touching his misconduct are in dispute. The statements of the parties are contradictory. Without entering into an extended or detailed account of what is alleged on either side, it may be said that there is considerable evidence to show that the boy had been irregular in attendance and frequently disorderly and troublesome to his teachers, in consequence of which he was kept on the front seat. On the 12th day of October 1887, while the principal of the school, Mr John H. Clark, was speaking to the pupils of the room in which the boy was, in relation to some matter of discipline, the young man partly rose in his seat and turned around to look at other pupils in a manner so contemptuous to the principal as to lead the latter to take hold of him. The boy resisted and a trial of physical strength between the two ensued. It seems to have been so severe as to have required the intervention of the janitor of the building on behalf of the teacher. The boy was taken to the office of the principal and talked with until he indicated his willingness to make an apology before the school and promise future good behavior, which he did the same day. The next morning the lady teacher, in whose room the boy was, reported to the principal that he was continually troublesome, and later, upon the same day, she sent him to the principal, pursuant to a rule of the school that such action should be taken when a pupil had received four demerits during the month, which this boy had now received. The principal swears that upon his remonstrating with the pupil he became insolent and abusive, defended his action, applied a vile and offensive epithet to him, dared the teacher to undertake to put him out of the school, said that, if he did not look out, he (the teacher) would have to go himself, and if he did not take care he would get hurt. The teacher told the pupil that he should suspend him from the privileges of the school and directed him to leave, which he finally did. The next morning, however, the boy appeared in the school and was, it is alleged, a leader in a plot for scattering numerous paper caps upon the floor and in exploding the same, to the great confusion of the school. Thereupon, the boy was removed from the school and the matter reported to the board of education, which body, by resolution, sustained the action of the principal.

The appellant's statements put a coloring upon these facts more favorable to his son, but I think I state them as favorably to the boy as the proofs submitted will justify. The principal of the school is a man of mature age and long experience. His affidavit is clear and minute in its statements of all the circumstances. He is strongly supported by the sworn statements of two lady teachers, and the janitor of the school, as to the facts of which they were witnesses and which were the more important and essential ones. All the surrounding circumstances, many of which are admitted by the appellant and his son, are in corroboration of the statements of the board and the principal.

The facts lead to the conclusion that the boy undertook the task of overthrowing the government of the school. It was necessary that he be reduced to subjection immediately and effectually, or removed from the school. There is no proof of oversevere punishment. There is proof of moderation and forbearance on the part of the teacher. There is evidence of persistent insubordination on the part of the pupil. This, even after suspension and to an extent which rendered him, in my judgment, liable to punishment in the criminal courts for interfering with and disturbing the school. There is no doubt of the power of the school authorities to deprive pupils of the privileges of the school until they are ready to abide proper discipline. The propriety of exercising this power is more manifest in the case of pupils of advanced age. The pupil in the case under consideration is 17 years of age. He may have strength equal to that of the teacher. The public has no right to call upon teachers to test their physical powers with those of young men already grown to man's estate. I do not see that the principal or the board could have done anything less than suspend this boy. The action of the board indicates that the suspension was intended to continue only so long as was necessary to reduce the boy to subjection. No proof is offered of contrition on the part of the boy or of any application for his readmission upon promise of good behavior. The main purpose of the appeal seems to be the overthrow of the teacher and defeat of the board. Facts are not shown which would justify me in sustaining this attempt. The boy is the one to be subjugated and until there is proof of that having been accomplished and the board still refusing to admit him to the privileges of the school, I shall not feel justified in interfering with its action.

In view of these considerations, the appeal must be dismissed.

3698

In the matter of the appeal of W. C. Baldwin v. L. Duane Streeter, trustee of school district no. 16, town of Volney, county of Oswego.

A pupil was denied the privileges of the school because he persisted in leaving the school grounds during the noon recess: held, insufficient cause. That the teacher has no claim upon a pupil's time during the recess.

Decided July 16, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

From the statement of the appellant, it seems that the trustee and teacher in district no. 16, town of Volney, county of Oswego, dismissed one Clarence Stead from the school in said district in the latter part of March 1888. The reason for such dismissal which is alleged is, that the boy persisted in going away from the school grounds during the noon recess. It seems that he was on one occasion called away from the school during the afternoon session in order to assist his uncle in an emergency, but the principal difficulty alleged is that he refused to remain upon the school grounds during the noon recess, in violation of a rule which the teacher had established. No answer has been served upon the appellant by the trustee, and none has been filed in the Department. Fearing that there was some misunderstanding or oversight about the matter on the part of the trustee, a letter was addressed to him on the 8th day of June, asking why no answer had been interposed and also requesting him to advise me whether the boy was still denied the privileges of the school, and, if so, upon what grounds. In the course of time a reply was received, in which he states that the boy had not been permitted to reenter the school, and that no answer had been interposed because he "did not think there was enough to it to bother with it," and he volunteers the statement that "if this is not sufficient, let me know and I will go into details."

The rules of this Department, which are, or should be, familiar to all trustees, require that all appeals shall be answered within ten days from the time of service. That not having been done in the present case, the unusual course was pursued of communicating with the trustee, in order that he might make no mistake about the matter. Even after this, he neglects to interpose an answer in justification of his own act in dismissing the boy from the school. Such gross negligence is hardly tolerable on the part of a trustee.

There being no answer interposed, I must accept the statements of the appellant as true. That being so, I can see no good reason for depriving the boy of the privileges of the school. The teacher had no claim upon his time during the noon recess. He was at liberty to go where he chose at that time, assuming that he did so with his parents' knowledge and consent. It is not shown that his attendance during school hours was with any such irregularity as to interfere with the efficiency of the school or justify the school authorities in dismissing him.

The appeal is, therefore, sustained, and the trustees and teacher directed to admit Clarence Stead to the privileges of the school whenever it shall be in session.

3574

In the matter of the appeal of Lyman Randall v. Homer Titus, trustee of school district no. 2, towns of Lindley and Erwin, Steuben county.

When a pupil has been suspended from school for violating a rule of propriety, and before an appeal was taken, the officer who suspended the pupil had given public notice that the pupil might return to school, an appeal subsequently taken from the act of dismissal will not be sustained.

Decided March 10, 1887

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a resident of school district no. 2, towns of Lindley and Erwin, Steuben county, New York, from the action of the trustee of said district, in suspending appellant's son, who is a pupil at the public school in said school district.

The alleged cause of the suspension is that the boy broke a pane of glass in the schoolhouse, which the boy, or his father, the appellant, would not replace.

It is claimed by the appellant that the glass was broken accidentally.

The trustee has answered the appeal, and filed affidavits of two boys who were present at the time, which tend to show that the boy undertook to go through a window of the schoolhouse instead of using the door, which was unlocked; that he was warned to go to the door, but he persisted in using the window, and in so doing broke the glass. The trustee admits that he suspended the boy, but before this appeal was brought he had publicly stated to the scholars, among them one of appellant's children, that the boy could return to school, and that he, the trustee, would pay for the glass.

The appellant asks that the action of the trustee in suspending his boy, be set aside. As the evidence shows that this has already been done by the trustee's action in inviting the boy to return to school, the necessity for the appeal to me does not exist, and I therefore dismiss the same.

4362

In the matter of the appeal of Daniel Lynch, sr, and others v. R. F. Ford, sole trustee, school district no. 22, town of Verona, Oneida county.

Where it is established to the satisfaction of the trustees of a district that pupils attending the school in the district have indecently exposed their persons and acted in obscene or indecent manner, and used vile and indecent language, the trustee of said district has the power, and it is his duty, to suspend such pupils from the school.

Decided July 9, 1895

M. H. Powers, attorney for appellants

Davies & Johnson, attorneys for respondent

. Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal by Daniel Lynch, sr, and Edward Lynch and Daniel Lynch, jr, his sons, from the action and decision of R. F. Ford, sole trustee of school district no. 22, town of Verona, Oneida county, suspending said Edward Lynch and Daniel Lynch, jr from the school in said district.

The respondent has filed an answer to the appeal; to said answer a reply has been made; to the reply a rejoinder, and to the rejoinder a subrejoinder. The papers are somewhat voluminous, but much of the matters contained therein is not relevant to the issue presented by the appeal and answer.

From the proofs filed herein it appears: That R. F. Ford is the trustee of school district no. 22, town of Verona, Oneida county, for the present school year; that the appellant, Daniel Lynch, sr, is, and has been, a resident of said school district during the present school year, and that the appellants, Edward and Daniel Lynch, jr, are the sons of said Daniel Lynch, sr, residing with their father in said school district, and of school age, to wit: said Edward is 16 years of age, and said Daniel, jr, is 14 years of age; that said Edward and Daniel, jr, have been attending the school in said school district in the present school year, and in the term of school in said year in which said school was maintained, commencing March 11, 1895; that at different times during said school year complaint was made by scholars attending the school in said district that said Edward Lynch and Daniel Lynch, jr, had each of them at different times in the schoolhouse and upon the school grounds indecently exposed their persons to the scholars attending said school, and had acted in the presence of scholars in said school in the schoolhouse and upon the school grounds in an obscene and indecent manner, and had also used vile, obscene and indecent language; that within the week of said school next preceding April 12, 1895, for a day or two a large number of scholars absented themselves from said school by reason of the aforesaid conduct on the part of said Edward and Daniel Lynch, jr; that on or about April 10, 1895, seven of the scholars attending said school informed the respondent herein of the aforesaid acts on the part of said Edward and Daniel Lynch, jr, and severally signed a paper in which they stated that during school hours they had repeatedly seen said Lynch boys indecently expose their persons to them and other scholars of said school, and delivered said paper to the respondent; that the respondent, after receiving said statement, informed the appellant, Daniel Lynch, sr, of the charges made by scholars attending said school against his sons, Edward and Daniel, jr, and asked or advised that he take his said sons out of school temporarily, and thus save the respondent from the necessity of suspending them from school; that said appellant, Lynch, sr, declined to take his sons out of school, and informed the respondent that he must act in the matter as he thought best; that on April 12, 1895, the respondent went to said schoolhouse while the said school was in session, and the said Edward and Daniel Lynch, jr, being then present in said school, he directed them to leave the school and informed them that they were suspended from said school until such time as he (the respondent) deemed advisable for them to return, and they should conduct themselves properly; that on April 16, 1895, the appellants herein filed their appeal from said action and decision of the respondent, as such trustee.

It must be conceded that if said Lynch boys had conducted themselves in the schoolhouse or upon the school grounds in the presence of the scholars attending said school in the manner they were charged to have acted and the respondent was satisfied from the statements made to him that said statements were true, it was the duty of the respondent to suspend them from attending said school. Under the school law, the Lynch boys and their parents, if they felt aggrieved, that is, injured, by the action of the respondent, had the right to appeal to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction from the action and decision of the respondent, when the proofs relative to said charges and their answer thereto could be presented. The respondent has filed the affidavits of eleven scholars attending said school, all of whom allege that they have seen both Edward and Daniel Lynch, jr, in the school building and upon the school grounds, while the school was in session and in recess and intermission, indecently expose his or their person or persons, and act in an obscene and indecent manner, and heard them use vile, obscene and indecent language.

In the proofs filed by the appellants, Edward and Daniel Lynch, jr, deny, in the affidavits made by them, the charges brought against them. The other affidavits filed by the appellants, so far as they relate to the aforesaid charges, the affiants state therein that they never saw the Lynch boys indecently expose their persons, or act in an obscene or indecent manner, or hear them use vile, obscene and indecent language, and that the said affiants do not believe the said boys are guilty of the charges made against them.

I can not disregard the positive testimony presented by the respondent in this appeal, that said Lynch boys were guilty of the conduct alleged therein. I am clearly of the opinion, upon the proofs presented herein, that the respondent acted within the powers and duties given him under the school law in suspending said Lynch boys from the school in said district, and upon sufficient proof of the improper conduct of said boys. The appellants have failed in establishing their appeal and the appeal should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

Trustees have no warrant of law for directing religious exercises to be conducted in the school during school hours, nor for excluding pupils from the school altogether on the ground of their declining to be present at such reading.

Decided August 23, 1870

Weaver, Superintendent

The appellant states that by the express orders and directions of the trustee, the teacher of the district school, each morning at the opening thereof, reads a chapter of the protestant version of the scriptures. That the appellant from conscientious and religious scruples has kept his children from going to school until after such reading of the scriptures was ended. That in consequence thereof, appellant's children get to the school ten or fifteen minutes after the opening of school, and that they are for that reason refused admission by the teacher, and are by her sent home, she declaring to them "that they must be present at the reading or stay away all day."

The object of the common school system of the State is to afford the means of secular instruction to all the children within its borders. For their religious training, the State does not provide and with it does not interfere. The advantages of the schools are to be free to all alike, and the consciences of none are to be legally violated. There is no authority in the law, as a matter of right, to use any portion of the regular school hours in conducting any religious exercise at which the attendance of the scholars is made compulsory. On the other hand, there is nothing to prevent the reading of the scriptures or the performance of other religious exercises by the teacher in the presence of such of the scholars as may attend voluntarily or by the direction of their parents or guardians, if it be done before the hour fixed for the opening of the school or after the dismissal of the school. (Decisions of Secretary Spencer and Superintendent Rice, above quoted, commented on and approved.)

The action of the trustee in directing the reading of the scriptures as a part of the school exercises, and in causing the exclusion of any of the pupils from the school on the ground of their declining to be present at such reading, has been entirely without warrant of law.

Decided June 5, 1872

Weaver, Superintendent

A long and bitter controversy between certain of the inhabitants and the board of education of Long Island City, involving precisely the same question as that in the last preceding decision, leads the Superintendent to recite quite fully the previous rulings of the Department upon the question and the same are upheld by him in the following conclusion concerning the particular issue presented upon those separate appeals from that city:

"The action of the board of education of Long Island City, in directing the reading of a portion of the Bible as an opening exercise in the schools under their charge during school hours, and in excluding pupils from those schools or any of them, on the ground of declining to be present at such reading, has been without warrant of law."

2847

Decided April 18, 1870

Gilmour, Superintendent

Religious exercises that are held before nine o'clock a. m., and are not compulsory, do not violate any legal right.

Trustees can not, under any circumstances, be required to open the schoolhouse for religious meetings.

Decided June 7, 1860

Van Dyck, Superintendent

This Department, in its late action, has favored the policy of opening the schoolhouse for religious and other worthy objects, when not wanted for school purposes. Where this power is exercised by the trustees, within the limits of a proper discretion, and regard for the district property, the Department will not interfere.

But this is very different from compelling the trustees to open the house for such purposes. They can not, as trustees of the district, be compelled to do any act not specifically within the range of duties prescribed. They are under no obligation to yield, even to the unanimous wish of the district, to open the schoolhouse for other than school purposes; and for the reason that they are not elected as guardians of the moral or religious interests of the district, but of its educational interests. They can not be compelled to take action outside of their official relations. For their refusal to comply with the wishes of the district in matters outside their official relations, there is no remedy but to elect others in their places, as fast as their terms of service shall expire.

Trustees will not be ordered to open the schoolhouse for religious meetings.

Decided May 5, 1862

Rice, Superintendent

No denomination has a right to the use of the schoolhouse for religious or other purposes. Whoever occupies it for other than school purposes does so by sufferance only. The trustee who allows such privileges to be exercised does so without the sanction of any statute law, and is personally responsible for any injury to the property caused thereby.

No inhabitant of the district has a right to demand any thing from the trustee as an officer, which he is not lawfully bound to grant; and this Department has no authority to order him to do any thing not required or contemplated by the law prescribing his duties. Consequently, the Superintendent has not authority to order the trustee to open the schoolhouse for other than school purposes.

School may be opened with prayers, provided that it be done before school hours, and that there be no compulsion to enforce attendance.

Decided May 13, 1839

Spencer, Superintendent

In an appeal to the Superintendent, certain inhabitants of district no. 15, Barre, complained that the teacher, with the permission of the trustees, "made prayer part of school discipline." The trustees replied that they had permitted the teacher to have prayers on condition that they should be had previous to school hours, and they alleged that he did not occupy school hours. The Superintendent dismissed the appeal, with the following remarks:

"In this conduct of the trustees, the Superintendent can perceive no cause of complaint. Both parties have rights; the one to bring up their children in the practice of publicly thanking their Creator for his protection, and invoking His blessing; the other, of declining, in behalf of their children, the religious services of any person in whose creed they may not concur, or for other reasons satisfactory to themselves. These rights are reciprocal, and should be protected equally; and neither should interfere with the other. Those who desire that their children should engage in public prayer have no right to compel other children to unite in the exercise, against the wishes of their parents. Nor have those who object to this time, place or manner of praying, or to the person who conducts the exercises, a right to deprive the other class of the opportunity of habituating their children to what they conceive an imperious duty. Neither the common school system, nor any other social system, can be maintained, unless the conscientious views of all are equally respected. The simple rule, so to exercise your own rights as not to infringe on those of others, will preserve equal justice among all, promote harmony, and insure success to our schools. In the present case, the Superintendent thinks the trustees had lawful right to permit the teacher to commence the business of the day by public prayer, with the children of such parents as desired it; and they were also right in directing that such exercises should not take place during school hours, nor form a part of school discipline."

Another branch of this first question is whether the teacher has a right to compel the children to kneel, during prayer, or to dispense with their ordinary business.

The answer already given proceeds upon the principle that prayer is no part of the business of a common school, but that parents may place their children under the superintendence and government of a teacher for that purpose. Of course his jurisdiction would extend to that only. But others have no right to disturb the performance of what is considered a sacred duty. As the one class is required to abstain from all attempts to compel the children of the other class to engage in an exercise which the latter disapprove, so the latter should abstain from interrupting such exercise, and should instruct their children, accordingly, not to enter the schoolroom, until the usual hour of commencing school, and not to disturb those within by any noise, or other conduct calculated to annoy them. And the teacher should allow the children of all parents who do not desire them to engage in prayer to withdraw from the room, or to absent themselves from it. But if they come into the room before the usual school hours, and choose to remain there during prayer, they must preserve the order and decorum befitting such an occasion.

Religious exercises are not a part of district school exercises, and, therefore, no portion of the regular school hours is to be consumed in conducting them.
Decided February 5, 1866

Rice, Superintendent

A teacher has no right to consume any portion of the regular school hours in conducting religious exercises, especially where objection is raised. The principle is this: Common schools are supported and established for the purpose of imparting instruction in the common English branches; religious instruction forms no part of the course. The proper places in which to receive such instruction are churches and Sunday schools, of which there is usually a sufficient number in every district. The money to support schools comes from the people at large, irrespective of sect or denomination. Consequently, instruction of a sectarian or religious denominational character must be avoided, and teachers must confine themselves, during school hours, to their legitimate and proper duties.

5440

In the matter of the appeal of Rev. Charles A. Logue from the decision of the board of education of district no. 9, town of Hempstead, Nassau county.

Religious services in schools. The policy of the State education system has been to deny the right of school authorities to compel the attendance of pupils upon religious exercises held during school hours. The rule is that religious instruction may not be given in the public schools as a part of the prescribed course of instruction therein; that religious services consisting of prayers, reading of the Bible and singing of hymns shall not be held during the hours customarily allotted to the performance of school work, and that the pupils of the schools may not be compelled to attend such services whenever held.

Decided November 18, 1909

Draper, Commissioner

The appellant, Rev. Charles A. Logue, complains that the board of education of union free school district no. 9, town of Hempstead, unlawfully permits the reading of the Bible, the recitation of the Lord's prayer and the singing of hymns as a part of the school exercises of the schools of such district, and during school hours. The respondents have not answered the appellant's petition, and the allegations therein will therefore be taken as true.

The appellant states that he has protested to the board of education against the reading of the Bible, the recitation of the Lord's prayer and the singing of hymns during school hours, but that such board has ignored such protests, and that such exercises have been continued as a part of the school curriculum.

The question here submitted is not a new one. The established policy of the State education system has been to deny the right of school authorities to compel the attendance of pupils upon religious exercises held during school hours. There has been no departure from the rule that under the general school laws of the State, religious instruction may not be given in the public schools as a part of the prescribed courses of instruction therein, that religious services consisting of prayers, reading of the Bible, and singing of hymns shall not be held during the hours customarily allotted to the performance of school work, and that the pupils of the school may not be compelled to attend such services whenever held.

The decisions of Superintendent Weaver in the case of the appeal of Thomas McMahon (Decision no. 1985, June 5, 1872) and of Superintendent Ruggles in the matter of the board of education of union free school district no. 4, Orangetown (May 27, 1884) are declaratory of the Department's policy in respect to this question. These decisions control the determination of this appeal, which is hereby sustained.

It is hereby ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 9, town of Hempstead, Nassau county, take such action as may be necessary to conform to the rule set forth and declared in this decision.

1985

1. On the appeal of Thomas McMahon and others, board of trustees of the first ward of Long Island City, Queens county, against John Fahnstock and others, board of education of Long Island City. 2 Owen McEleamey and others, against the same. 3 Edward McBennett against the same.

Decided June 5, 1872

Weaver, Superintendent

These three appeals are all against the same respondents, and, as they involve but one and the same question, they may conveniently and properly be considered and disposed of together. The respondents compose the board of education of Long Island City, a body created under the provisions of chapter 461, Laws of 1871, for the general local supervision and control of the public schools of Long Island City. The ground of appeal, in all these cases, is the action of the respondents under a provision in a by-law adopted by them for the conduct of the schools under their charge. That provision is in the following words: "The daily opening exercises shall consist of the reading of a portion of the Holy Scripture, without note or comment."

The appellants in the first of the above entitled cases, who are the trustees of the first ward of Long Island City, complain of the enforcement, under the direction of the respondents, of the provision of the by-law above cited, by compelling the pupils in the school of the first ward to be present at the reading of the Bible therein, under penalty of expulsion from school in case of their non-attendance at such reading. The appellants allege that the regulation was directed to be so enforced, against their protest, and that of many of the scholars, and of the parents or guardians of those scholars.

The appellants in the second appeal complain of the threatened expulsion, in some instances, of their children from the first ward school, because the appellants forbade their attendance upon the religious exercise in question, and in other instances they show that their children were actually expelled from that school, for refusing, in obedience to the direction of their parents, to attend school when the Bible was read.

The third appeal is by a resident of the second ward of Long Island City, who alleges that his child was expelled from the school of that ward for refusing, under the direction of the appellant, to attend at the reading of the Bible therein. In this case an attempt has been made to show that the pupil left the school voluntarily, but it is manifest, from the evidence, that the enforcement of the regulation in question caused his withdrawal, and that he was refused permission to remain in the school, except upon the condition of compliance with the requirements of the rule by attending when the Bible was read.

The question presented by these cases is not a new one in the history of the public schools of this State. The claim by trustees, of the right to enforce the attendance of pupils in the public schools upon religious exercises therein, has been frequently passed upon in this Department by my predecessors in office and by myself, and it has uniformly been held that no such right legally existed.

The following observations in a former decision rendered by me are equally applicable here: "The object of the common school system of this State is to afford means of secular instruction to all children over 5 and under 21 years of age, resident therein. For their religious training the State does not provide, and with it does not interfere. The advantages of the schools are to be free to them all alike. No distinction is to be made between Christians, whether Protestants or Catholics, and the consciences of none can be legally violated. There is no authority in the law to use, as a matter of right, any portion of the regular school hours in conducting any religious exercise, at which the attendance of the scholars is made compulsory. On the other hand, there is nothing to prevent the reading of the Scriptures or the performance of other religious exercises by the teacher in the presence of such of the scholars as may attend voluntarily, or by the direction of their parents or guardians, if it be done before the hour fixed for the opening of the school or after the dismissal of the school. These principles were set forth by Secretary Spencer more than thirty years ago. In a decision made by that able officer in the year 1839, in which he sustained the action of the trustees of a school district in permitting a teacher to have prayers in the school, on condition that they should be had previous to school hours, the following remarks occur: "Both parties have rights; the one to bring up their children in the practice of publicly thanking their Creator for his protection, and invoke his blessing; the other, of declining, in behalf of their children, the religious services of any person in whose creed they may not concur, or for other reasons satisfactory to themselves. These rights are reciprocal, and should be protected equally, and neither should interfere with the other. Those who desire that their children should engage in public prayer have no right to compel other children to unite in the exercises against the wishes of their parents."

Neither the common school system, nor any other social system can be maintained, unless the conscientious views of all are equally respected. The simple rule, so to exercise your own rights as not to infringe on those of others, will preserve equal justice among all, promote harmony, and insure success to our schools" (Code of Public Instruction, p. 355). The same view of this subject was expressed by my immediate predecessor. The late Hon. V. M. Rice, in a decision rendered by him February 5, 1866, said: "A teacher has no right to consume any portion of the regular school hours in conducting religious exercises, especially where objection is raised. The principle is this: Common schools are supported and established for the purpose of imparting instruction in the common English branches; religious instruction forms no part of the course. The proper places in which to receive such instruction are churches and Sunday schools, of which there is usually a sufficient number in every district. The money to support schools comes from the people at large, irrespective of sect or denomination. Consequently, instruction of a sectarian or religious denominational character must be avoided, and teachers must confine themselves, during school hours, to their legitimate and proper duties." (Code of Public Instruction, p. 349.)

The action of the board of education of Long Island City, in directing the reading of a portion of the Bible as an opening exercise in the schools under their charge, during school hours, and in excluding pupils from those schools, or any of them, on the ground of declining to be present at the reading, has been without warrant of law.

The appeals must therefore be, and are hereby sustained. The proper course for those who are dissatisfied with the rule established by the decisions above cited, and who desire a different or more explicit regulation on the subject, is to apply to the Legislature for such enactments as will meet their views. Contentions about the construction of general principles of law might thus be obviated by plain statutory provisions.

All persons, otherwise entitled to attend any of the schools of Long Island City, and who have been and are excluded therefrom for a refusal to be present at the reading of the Bible therein, have had the right to be admitted to such schools upon the same footing as other pupils rightfully attending them; and it is, therefore, the duty of the said board of education to see that the right of all such persons, in that respect, is accorded to them.

This decision must be filed with the clerk of the board of education of Long Island City, and notice thereof must be given by him to the members of the board, and to the appellants in the appeals above, numbered 2 and 3, with opportunity to examine the same.

In the matter of the application of the board of education of union free school district no. 4, of Orangetown, Rockland county.

Decided May 27, 1884

Ruggles, Superintendent

This application represents that the above-named board of education "wish to move unerringly, but firmly, in the matter of sustaining the reading of Scripture and prayer as a part of the exercises in opening the daily sessions of our public school," that the board has "not required the children of non-protestant families to participate in repeating Scripture or the Lord's prayer, but have simply required them to behave with decorum," that a number of Catholic families "ask that their children be allowed to remain outside until the devotional exercises are concluded," and that "this interference causes much disorder outside of the room, and the subsequent entrance of these pupils causes a loss of time and disturbance to class work."

I have carefully examined the special act under which this school was organized to see if there was any provision therein which might be held to authorize any other or different rule for the government of this particular school, in the respect in question, than that which applies to the public schools organized under the general law. I do not find any such exceptional provision.

By the Constitution of this State all people, in respect to the free exercise and enjoyment of religious profession and worship, stand upon a footing of absolute equality. Interference therewith, in the way of discrimination or preference, even by legislative enactment, is, by the express words of that instrument, prohibited.

Under our public school system, within the legal limitations of age and residence, instruction is free. The material resources necessary for the maintenance of this immense and complicated system, are drawn at large from a population characterized by dissimilar religious beliefs, observances, modes of worship and preferences. With such a public furnishing the money to support the schools, supplying them with the children in attendance, and having equal rights to the full and equal enjoyment of all the benefits of the schools, if it were possible to devise some limited measure of religious instruction for adoption in the schools, upon which all these diverse classes and sects could harmonize, it would be a gratifying result.

But this is manifestly impracticable and impossible. The only alternative, therefore, to preserve the benefits of the constitutional guaranties, in letter and spirit, and to secure to all absolute equality of right in matter of religious predilection, must be, however reluctantly the conclusion is arrived at, to exclude religious instruction and exercises from the public schools during school hours.

This conclusion involves the enunciation of no new principle.

An examination of the records in this Department shows a uniform series of decisions by my predecessors, extending over a period of more than forty years, in substantial conformity with the views above expressed.

In 1838, Hon. John A. Dix, then Superintendent of Common Schools, referring to a former decision in 1837, says: (Orders and Decisions, 6:391) "I have heretofore decided that a teacher might open his school with prayer, provided he did not encroach upon the hours allotted to instruction, and provided that the attendance of the scholars was not exacted as a matter of school discipline." This was a case in which the teacher was in the habit of attending at the schoolhouse at 15 minutes before 9 in the morning (9 o'clock being the hour for opening the school), and devoting the intermediate time to religious exercises.

In 1839, Superintendent John C. Spencer, having occasion to examine and pass upon the question (Orders and Decisions, 8:101) says: "Prayers can not form any part of the school exercises or be regulated by the school discipline. If had at all they should be had before the hour of 9 o'clock, the usual hour of commencing school in the morning, and after 5 in the afternoon.

. . . Both parties have rights, and it is only by a mutual and reciprocal regard by each to the rights of the other, that peace can be maintained or a school can flourish. The teacher may assemble in his schoolroom before 9 o'clock the children of those parents who desire him to conduct religious exercises for them, and the children of those who object to the practice will be allowed to retire or absent themselves from the room. If they persist in remaining, they must conduct themselves with decorum and propriety becoming the occasion. If they do not so conduct, they may be dealt with as intruders."

On another occasion during the same year (Orders and Decisions, 8:87) he says: "Neither the common school system, nor any other social system can be maintained, unless the conscientious views of all are respected. The simple rule, so to exercise your own rights as not to infringe on those of others, will preserve equal justice among all, promote harmony, and insure success to our schools."

The principles laid down in these early decisions have been followed by every one of my predecessors in office, no distinction having been made between Scripture reading and prayers, but each having been held, in separate and distinct appeals, to constitute no legitimate part of the business of the public schools. They will be my guide and govern my action in all cases of like nature which may come officially before me.

In the particular case now under consideration, with these principles in view and a disposition to carry them out fairly, and to respect the rights and conscientious opinions of all, the board of education will, I think, have no difficulty in avoiding further contention and securing harmony in the school.

RELIGIOUS GARB

3520

In the matter of the appeal of Leander Colt v. the board of education of union free school district no. 7, of the village of Suspension Bridge, town of Niagara, Niagara county.

Wearing an unusual and distinctive garb, one used exclusively by members of a certain religious sect, and for the purpose of indicating membership in that sect, by public school teachers, constitutes a sectarian influence prejudicial to the interests of the public school system and must not be persisted in.

Pupils in a common school should not be permitted to address the teachers by an assumed religious name, as Sister Mary or Sister Martha, but by their family name with the prefix, Mr, Mrs or Miss, as the case may be.

Decided March 24, 1887

Messrs Tucker & Cary, attorney for appellant

Hon. W. Caryl Ely, attorney for respondents

Draper, Superintendent

The circumstances out of which this appeal has arisen are as follows: St Raphael's church, of the village of Suspension Bridge, after having maintained a school in connection with said church at their own expense for twenty years, presented a petition to the board of education of union free school district no. 7, upon the 3d day of October 1885, in which they requested said board to take said school under its care and maintenance. It was also requested, in the language of the petition, "that we may be permitted to retain our sisters for teachers provided they be found competent." The request of the petitioners was granted at a meeting of the board held October 8, 1885, since which time the school has been under the care and direction of the board and has been supported by public moneys. On the 10th of November 1885, the board entered into a written agreement with the trustees of St Raphael's church, by the terms of which, the board leased from the trustees of the church the premises known as "St Raphael's school lot," together with the schoolhouse, furniture, fixtures, stoves and pipe and all school appliances, for the term of one year, at the nominal rent of one dollar per year and also agreed that, during the term of the lease, they would "cause one of the schools of said free school district no. 7 to be kept in operation in said schoolhouse building and keep employed as teachers therein of such school at the same wages as are paid to other teachers in schools of said district, of the same grade, three competent teachers of the class commonly known as "sisters." An appeal was taken to this Department from the action of the board in entering into this agreement, and the decision of the acting superintendent (Morrison) sustained the appeal and held that the agreement to keep three teachers of the class called "sisters" was a discrimination in favor of a particular class, which was contrary to the spirit of the school laws and against public policy, and, consequently, void. After such decision and on the 1st day of February 1886, the board entered into another written agreement with the trustees of the church, whereby they leased the property for the purposes of a public school for the term of five years from the 11th day of January 1886, at the nominal rent of one dollar per year.

The appellant now alleges, that the school has since been maintained by the board of education, at public expense, under about the same management, and with substantially the same pupils, as before the leasing of the property by the board; that it has been taught by Sisters of Charity of the Roman Catholic Church, who wear, at all times, the distinctive garb of their order, with crucifix and rosary; that it is attended exclusively by children of Roman Catholic parents; that the authorities of that church require the members of their church to send their children to this particular school, and that the school is opened and closed by religious exercises in conformity with the usages of that church. The appellant alleges, also, that this school is not a component part of the school system of the district, and particularly says that the pupils in this school are not classified and graded according to their different degrees of proficiency as is done in the other schools, and as their educational interests require. He alleges, also, that the leasing of St Raphael's school building is an unnecessary expense and to his injury as a taxpayer, because the district school building is sufficiently commodious to accommodate all the pupils in both schools, and that one additional teacher in the district school would provide amply for the pupils of both schools combined. He objects, moreover, to the presence in the schoolroom of Sisters of Charity, wearing the dress of that order, on the ground that these things tend to inculcate in the minds of the children the faith and doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church, and insists that the employment of such persons as teachers affords extra privileges to that church and constitutes an unlawful discrimination or preference to that religion, in violation of the well-settled laws governing the public school system and of the spirit of article 1, section 3, of the Constitution of the State.

It is shown that the appellant presented a petition, setting forth the above-mentioned grounds of his complaint, and demanding that, in consequence of them, the school should be abandoned, to the board of education, at a meeting held on the 4th day of June 1886, but that the board laid the communication upon the table and refused to consider the matter. From such refusal the appellant brings this appeal, and asks that the board be overruled and the prayer of his petition be granted.

The board of education, in their answer, admit that St Raphael's Roman Catholic Church, in the village of Suspension Bridge, has, for some years, maintained a private school in connection with said church, and that said church presented a petition to the board requesting it to take said school under its charge and maintenance, and that the two written agreements relative to the leasing of the school property were made as alleged, and that, since making the said agreements, the board has maintained a school in the leased property, which is taught by three duly qualified and licensed teachers. They say that they are informed that said teachers "are members of some religious order of the Roman Catholic Church, but are not Sisters of Charity; and that the garb, dress or habit worn by said teachers consists of a loose, flowing dress of black serge, with a black veil, and that the said dress conceals from view all portions of the form of said teachers, except the hands and head, . . . and that in addition to this, is worn a slight girdle about the waist from which depend a cross and beads, which hang upon the folds of said dress."

The board says that the school maintained in the leased property is needed for the accommodation of the pupils of the district and that it is cheaper to hire than to build; that the capacity of the district school building is inadequate; that the second school is conducted substantially like the first or older one; the books used and the rules and regulations for the management and conduct of both schools are the same. They say, furthermore, that neither of the religious connections nor the religious belief of the teachers have been the subject of notice or inquiry by the board. They say that the board "is under no agreement, express or implied, with any board, body, person or persons to employ any particular person or persons, or members of any particular denomination as teachers in said school. They deny that the school is opened or closed with religious exercises. They allege broadly that their entire action in the premises has been in good faith, without any intention of discriminating in favor of any religious creed or belief, and actuated only by the desire to accommodate all children of school age, of all creeds and conditions, in the enjoyment of the benefits of the public school system."

In view of the disputed questions of fact presented by the appeal and answer, the case was referred to the school commissioner of the second district of Niagara county to take the evidence of the parties and their witnesses and to allow them an opportunity to cross-examine each other, and such evidence has been returned and examined with care.

From the allegations and admissions of the parties in the pleadings, and from the evidence taken before the commissioner, I find the facts of the case to be as follows:

1 St Raphael's Church, at Suspension Bridge, for several years prior to October 1885, maintained and managed a private and sectarian school at its own expense.

2 On October 1885, the board of education of union free school district no. 7, of the village of Suspension Bridge, leased this school property at a nominal rental value, and has since maintained a school at public expense in said property.

3 A written lease, dated November 10, 1885, was executed between the board and the trustees, in which, among other things, it was agreed that the board should maintain a public school in the property and should keep continually employed in such school three teachers of the class commonly known as "sisters." This lease was, because of this provision, set aside upon an appeal to this Department. On the 1st day of February 1886, another written lease was executed between the parties, by which the property was leased to the board for five years at a nominal consideration.

4 The school accommodations of district no. 7, other than the St Raphael school property, were not sufficient for the convenience of the pupils of both schools.

5 Since the St Raphael school has been in charge of the public school authorities it has been continually taught by three duly qualified and licensed teachers, who are members of the order of St Joseph of the Roman Catholic Church. Two teachers, who served up to September 1886, then resigned, and two others, who were members of the same order, were appointed in their place.

6 The teachers of the school wear in the schoolroom and at all times, in common with all the members of their order, black serge dresses, hanging loosely in folds about the person, white linen coronets and black veils falling down to the shoulders, and white linen capes. Tied about the waist is a black cord and tassels, to which are attached beads and a crucifix.

7 The teachers are commonly known to the world and are uniformly addressed by the pupils by their Christian names, with the prefix of "Sister," as "Sister Martha," "Sister Mary," etc.

8 No question is raised as to the personal character or intellectual or practical qualifications of these teachers. Their high character and capabilities are conceded.

9 The pupils attending the St Raphael school are very generally, if not exclusively, of Roman Catholic parentage.

10 There is some evidence that the authorities of the Roman Catholic church seek to have the members of that church send their children to this particular school, but the fact is not established.

11 It is shown that there are no religious ceremonies or exercises held in the school during school hours.

Upon this state of facts, the appellant asks to have the action of the respondent in taking the St Raphael school under its maintenance and supervision, and in refusing to discontinue the same upon demand, set aside and overruled.

It is the duty of the people of every school district to provide public school accommodations for all the children of school age in the district, desiring to attend the public schools. When application was made to the respondent in this case to take the St Raphael school under its charge, it was bound to take the children of that school into the public school of the district, if there were accommodations for them there, and if not, it was bound to go to the extent of its lawful authority to provide accommodations for them. The statutes confer authority upon boards of education, or trustees, to lease property for school purposes, and as the fact appears that there were not accommodations for the children of the St Raphael school in the district schoolhouse, the board seems to have acted within its lawful authority in entering into the lease for the St

Raphael school property. It is impossible to see any reason why the taking of that particular property and the maintenance of a school in it, was not a proper exercise of the lawful authority of the board. If the owners of the property found themselves unable or unwilling to continue their school at their own expense, and were desirous of leasing the property to the board at a nominal rent upon condition that the board would maintain a public school therein, I see no objection to the arrangement.

But the school which the board maintains in this property must be, in all regards, a public school. Being supported by general taxation, it must be absolutely free from all things not essential to the purpose for which it is maintained, namely, the general education of its pupils. All must have equal and common rights in it. There must be no discrimination in favor of or against any one. Nothing must be done in it or about it to which any interested person can reasonably or properly object, and most surely must this be so concerning matters which the people hold so sacred as their religious faith and opinions.

The appellant here particularly objects to the appointment of all the teachers in the school from one religious denomination and from one class of persons within that denomination, and to the fact that these teachers wear, at all times, clothing which distinguishes them everywhere, as members of their particular sect or order, as well as to the fact that these teachers are known to the pupils and are usually addressed in school, not by their family names, but by names assumed by them in the religious order of which they are members.

A board of education has no right to discriminate in favor of any religious denomination in the appointment of teachers. Inasmuch as the board assumed charge of and continued a school previously in existence, it ought not to be considered reprehensible to have continued the teachers previously employed there, even though they were all of one religious order, provided they were properly qualified, as is undisputed in this case. But three facts appear in this connection. (a) In a written lease of the St Raphael school property entered into between the board and the church trustees prior to the execution of the lease now in force, and held to be void by my predecessor in office (Superintendent James E. Morrison), it was agreed that the board should continually keep employed in this school three teachers "of the class commonly known as 'sisters.'" (b) The three teachers first employed were representatives of this class, and the teachers of the school have been exclusively confined to this class. (c) During the time the school has been under the charge of the board, two of the teachers have resigned and their places have been filled by two others of the same class. These facts, taken together, must be held to indicate a purpose on the part of the board to discriminate in the employment of teachers in favor of this particular class. The purpose to discriminate would not be so manifest if these teachers had all held a common religious faith and nothing more. That would be found to be true in many other schools, I apprehend. But when the facts above suggested are taken in connection with the fact that the "class known as 'sisters'" is not a numerous class, it is impossible to arrive at any other conclusion than that the board has intended to appoint none but the members of this particular class of persons. This constitutes a discrimination or reference, which is in violation of the fundamental law of the State.

I have given the question raised in relation to the dress of the teachers and the names by which they are known among the pupils very full consideration, and have arrived at the conclusion that the wearing of an unusual garb, worn exclusively by members of one religious sect, and for the purpose of indicating membership in that sect, by the teachers in a public school, constitutes a sectarian influence which ought not to be persisted in. The same may be said of the pupils addressing the teachers as "Sister Mary," "Sister Martha," etc. The conclusion is irresistible that these things may constitute a much stronger sectarian or denominational influence over the minds of children than the repetition of the Lord's prayer or the reading of the Scriptures at the opening of the schools, and yet these things have been prohibited, whenever objection has been offered by the rulings of this Department from the earliest days, because of the purpose enshrined in the hearts of the people and embedded in the fundamental law of the State, that the public school system shall be kept altogether free from matters not essential to its primary purpose and dangerous to its harmony and efficiency.

In view of the conclusions which I have reached, I am compelled to deny the application of the appellant that the school shall be abandoned, but to direct that the respondent require that the teachers shall discontinue the use in the school-room of the distinguishing dress of the religious order to which they belong, and shall cause the pupils to address them by their family names with the prefix of "Miss," as teachers are ordinarily addressed.

It is ordered that the board of education take action for the purpose of carrying the above direction into effect within fifteen days from the date hereof, and that the direction be fully complied with within thirty days from said date.

4516

In the matter of the appeal of Fayette B. Durant and others v. board of education of West Troy school district.

It is the policy of the school law that each of the school districts of the State should become the owner of a schoolhouse or houses or school building or buildings, either by purchase or by building, upon a suitable site or sites; and where power is given to lease a room or rooms, it is only for a limited time to provide for an emergency. When in a school district, abundantly able to provide by construction or purchase, sufficient rooms and buildings for the proper accommodation of the pupils, the school authorities hire rooms in a parochial school building in which to maintain a public school, with the right of the control of such rooms only during the school hours of each day, and consenting and giving to the lessors complete control of the rooms at all other times; and such lease is continued beyond the period of emergency contemplated by the statute, such hiring is without legal authority on their part.

Where the teachers in the public school, who are members of any religious sect or order, wear the distinctive garb or dress of such order, it is the duty of the school authorities to require such teachers to discontinue, while in the public schoolrooms and in the performance of their duties as teachers therein, the wearing of such dress or garb.

Decided November 25, 1896

Ward & Cameron, attorneys for appellants
James F. Tracey, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellants in the above-entitled matter, Messrs Durant, Ross, Covert, and Hilton, as residents and qualified voters in the West Troy school district, appeal from the action of the board of education of the West Troy school district, consisting of Messrs Van Vranken, Phelps, Sabin, Mace, Neason, McKeever, McLeese and Ball, in leasing for school purposes rooms in a building known as "St Bridget's Parochial School," the property of St Bridget's Roman Catholic Church, during school hours only, and at the nominal rate of $1 per month, the church authorities to furnish fuel, pay the fireman and janitor, and maintain therein a school of said district, and to employ eight persons as teachers in such school, all of whom are members of the Roman Catholic Church, and six of whom are of the class known as "Sisters," residing in St Joseph's Convent. These sisters dress in a garb peculiar to their religious sect or order, and are usually addressed in school by the names assumed by them in the religious order of which they are members, prefixed by the term "Sister."

The appellants allege that by reason of the action of said board of education, the school is wholly or partly under the control or direction of a religious sectarian denomination; that denominational doctrines, or tenets, are taught therein, and that by the reason of the sectarian character of the school many parents residing within the district object to sending their children thereto.

The appellants ask that the action of the board of education in leasing said school rooms be annulled and set aside; that the contracts with the teachers be annulled and set aside, and that the board of education be instructed to provide a suitable building or rooms for school purposes, if the public school buildings now owned by the district are inadequate, and to employ duly qualified teachers to teach the school, irrespective of any religious denomination, order or sect, to which they belong, and that the teachers be prohibited from teaching any denominational doctrines or tenets in the school, and for such other or further relief as may be proper in the premises.

The members of said board of education, with the exception of Mr Ball, have joined in an answer to the appeal, in which they give their statements as to the leasing of the rooms, the contracts with the teachers, and the charges of sectarian influences, with denials, either upon information and belief, or positively, of certain allegations in the appeal.

Mr Ball, in an affidavit made by him and annexed to the answer, alleges that he has read the answer, and that he concurs in the statement of facts as to all past transactions of the board contained therein, but is unable to concur in the conclusions thereof, as to sectarian influences, and for that reason refuses to sign or verify the answer.

To the answer of the respondents the appellants have filed a reply containing statements controverting certain allegations in the answer, and stating certain matters relative to the establishment of union free school district no. 1 in West Troy, all of which occurred prior to the election of the respondents as members of said board of education, and are not relevant to the action of the board complained of in the appeal.

It is contended by the appellants in the reply, in substance, that the public school buildings in the district are of sufficient capacity to accommodate the scholars attending school, provided they are put in proper condition to receive pupils applying for admission, and such pupils not residing in the first ward are required to attend the schools in those portions of the district in which they reside.

Annexed to the reply are the affidavits of twenty-five persons, residents of said West Troy school district, who are the parents of, or stand in parental relations to, in the aggregate, fifty-two children of school age, in which they severally allege that, while they have no personal knowledge of religious doctrines being actually taught as part of the studies in the school maintained in St Bridget's Parochial School building, the sectarian character of the school is so well known and denominational influences in the school are so great that they are unwilling to submit their children to such influences while attending school, and for that reason would not allow their children to attend the school.

A rejoinder to the reply has been filed, in which all of the members of the board of education join, excepting Mr Ball, who, in his affidavit annexed to the rejoinder, states that he prefers not to sign the same for the same reasons substantially as stated in his affidavit annexed to the answer, and for the further reason that he believes the capacity of the public school buildings in the first ward is conservatively stated in the reply of the appellants. Mr Ball, one of the members of the board of education, has filed a separate affidavit relative to the capacity of said public school buildings.

The following facts are admitted:

That by chapter 881 of the Laws of 1895 the territory embraced in what, on February 1, 1895, constituted union free school district no. 1, and school districts numbers 2, 9 and 20 of the town of Watervliet, and that portion of school district no. 22, town of Watervliet, lying west of the track of the main line of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company's Railroad was, from and after the organization of the board of education provided for in said chapter, consolidated into one school district to be known as the "West Troy school district."

That the public schools of said West Troy school district shall be under the exclusive charge of eight school commissioners to be chosen as in said chapter provided, who were constituted a body corporate under the name of "The board of education of the West Troy school district."

That on the first Tuesday of August 1895, at an election to be held in the aforesaid districts, eight school commissioners were to be elected or appointed as in such chapter provided, and at such election Messrs Van Vranken, Phelps, Sabin, Mace, Neason, McKeever, McLeese and Ball were elected as the board of education of the district, and are acting as such.

That said board has power to appoint a superintendent of schools; to raise by tax such sums as it may determine necessary and proper (not, however, more than two and one-half times the amount of school moneys apportioned to the district or the consolidated districts composing said district for the previous year, except as thereafter provided), for the purposes, among others, to purchase, lease or improve sites for school purposes; to build, purchase, lease, alter and repair schoolhouses, outhouses and appurtenances; but the board, whenever in its judgment a greater sum will be required in any one year for such purposes than it is authorized to raise, as hereinbefore stated, is authorized to call a special meeting of the qualified voters of the district to consider the proposition to raise such additional sum.

That said board has the power and it is its duty to organize, establish and maintain such and so many schools in said school district, including the common schools now existing therein, as it shall deem requisite and expedient, and to alter and discontinue the same; to purchase and hire schoolhouses and rooms, lots or sites for schoolhouses, and to fence and improve them; upon the lots and sites owned by the board of education, to build, enlarge, alter, improve and repair schoolhouses, outhouses and appurtenances as it may deem expedient; to have the custody and safe-keeping of the schoolhouse and all the school property belonging to the district, and to see that the regulations of the board in relation thereto be observed; to contract with and employ all teachers in the schools and for sufficient cause to remove them; to have in all respects the superintendence, supervision and management of the schools in the district; . . . from time to time to adopt, alter, modify and repeal, as it may deem expedient, rules and regulations for the organization, government and instruction of the schools, and for the reception of pupils and their transfer from one class to another or from one school to another, and generally for their good order, prosperity and utility. By said chapter 881 it is further enacted that nothing therein shall be construed to limit, restrain or annul the powers of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction; that in all matters of dispute which shall be referred to him by appeal and which shall arise under and by virtue of such act or under and by virtue of any other act which is now or shall hereafter be applicable to the schools, school officers or school property of or in said district, his decisions or orders shall be final and binding.

That on the first Tuesday of August 1895, upon a parcel of land situate in the first ward of West Troy, and in former union free school district no. 1, and within said West Troy school district, which land is bounded on the north by an alley, on the east by Fourth avenue, on the south by Seventh street and on the west by Fifth avenue, there were three buildings—one known as St Joseph's Convent, one as St Bridget's Roman Catholic Church, and the third as St

Bridget's Parochial School. That said third building was erected in or about the year 1886, and is owned by the St Bridget's Roman Catholic Church, having over the front entrance on Fifth avenue a tablet with the inscription "St Bridget's Parochial School," and the building is surmounted by a large gilt cross similar to the one on St Bridget's Church. That after the completion of this building the officers of St Bridget's Roman Catholic Church conducted a parochial school therein, and during the school year of 1894-95 the board of education of former union free school district no. 1 leased certain rooms in the building in which a portion of the schools of the district were maintained.

That at a meeting of the board of education of said West Troy school district, held on August 10, 1895, an offer in writing was received from the trustees of St Bridget's Roman Catholic Church to lease for one year to the West Troy school district the schoolrooms in the building at the corner of Fifth avenue and Seventh street (St Bridget's Parochial School building), the board to have control of all schoolrooms during school hours; the said church officers to furnish fuel and pay the fireman and janitor; and the consideration to be paid being one dollar per month. That the board of education, at this meeting, unanimously adopted a resolution accepting the offer. That thereupon at the opening of the schools of the district by the board for the school year of 1895-96, the rooms in said building so leased were occupied and used during the school hours of each school day in which the schools have been in session therein for schools conducted by the teachers employed by the board. That no religious emblems are displayed in the schoolrooms.

That at a meeting of the board of education held on August 19, 1895, a resolution was adopted for the employment of eight teachers in the school to be conducted in the rooms so leased, and such teachers designated, all of whom were members of the Roman Catholic Church, and six of whom resided in St Joseph's Convent, and were members of a religious order or sisterhood of said church, namely: Catharine Walsh, known as Sister Leonie; Anna G. Conway, known as Sister Gertrude; Kate Rice, known as Sister Ludwina; Victoria Melinda, known as Sister Adelaide; Hannah Keefe, known as Sister Ignatia; Jennie Higgins, known as Sister Dechaual.

That on August 31, 1895, each of the six teachers named received a contract, partly printed and partly written, dated that day, addressed to each, respectively, by name at St Joseph's Convent, stating that at a meeting of the board, held August 19, 1895, she was appointed a teacher in the first district for the probationary term of one year, at a salary therein named, and stating further the manner in which the payment thereof would be made, and providing as to payment in the event of a resignation by her for sickness or any other good cause; and containing a statement that it was to be distinctly understood that the appointment was for one year only, and her further retention was wholly within the discrimination of the board, and which contract was signed by the president of the board and the superintendent of schools; that upon each of the contracts was the following form of acceptance: "To the board of education, West Troy, N. Y.: I hereby accept the employment mentioned in the foregoing contract upon the terms stated therein, dated August 31, 1895;" and which acceptance was duly signed by each of the six persons respectively on the contract addressed to her.

That the six persons named under these contracts entered upon their employment as teachers in the school conducted in the leased rooms, and at the date of the submission of this appeal were still performing the duties of teachers therein under the direction of the board of education and under the rules and regulations adopted by the board. That each of the six persons, during the school hours of each school day, in the performance of her duties as such teacher, respectively, was dressed in the particular garb of the religious order or sisterhood of which they are respectively members.

The following facts are established:

That in August 1895, each of the six persons so employed as teachers in the schools in the West Troy school district was duly qualified to teach in the public schools of this State under the provisions of the school law prescribing the qualifications necessary to be possessed by persons to qualify them to teach in the schools of this State.

That during the school hours in which the school conducted in said leased rooms has been held no prayers have been said and no religious exercises have been held, nor any denominational tenets or doctrine taught, either orally or by the use of books.

That the West Troy school district has a superintendent of the schools therein, duly elected, pursuant to the provisions of chapter 881 of the Laws of 1895.

That it is the belief of a large number of the residents of that part of the West Troy school district known as the first ward that, by reason of the leasing of rooms in St Bridget's Parochial School building for school hours only, and conducting a school therein, and the employment of eight teachers, all of whom are members of the Roman Catholic Church, and of whom six are members of a religious order or sisterhood of said church, and who wear the distinctive garb of their order, that denominational tenets or doctrines are taught in the school, and hence a large number of children are not permitted by their parents or guardians to attend thereat.

The first question presented by the appeal herein for my consideration and decision is in relation to the action of the respondents herein in the leasing of certain rooms in St Bridget's Parochial School building during the school hours of each school day only, and maintaining a school therein.

The respondents state as grounds for such leasing: that the public school buildings in the West Troy school district do not furnish adequate accommodations for the children of school age residing therein, or for such children enrolled therein, or for the average number of children attending the schools; that more schoolrooms were needed, and the offer to lease the rooms seemed in the interest of the district; that the board of education of union free school district no. 1 (a part of the present West Troy school district) had, for the ten years prior, leased the same rooms; that no other suitable building in the first ward could be leased, and to build and furnish a new school building would cost the district many thousand dollars; that they believe that they and their predecessors in union free school district no. 1 have saved the taxpayers of West Troy great sums of money by annually renewing the lease; that there were two school buildings owned by the district within four blocks of the St Bridget building, so that no scholar was without a choice of schools; that they have express authority to hire schoolhouses and rooms by subdivision 2 of section 21 of chapter 881 of the Laws of 1895, and cite decision no. 3520 of Superintendent Draper, in the matter of St Raphael's Church, decided March 24, 1887.

No proofs have been presented to me herein of the number of children of school age residing in the school district, nor the number registered in the schools therein respectively, nor of the average attendance at the schools respectively; nor as to the number of school buildings the property of the district, and the seating capacity of each building; nor whether said buildings or any of them would properly accommodate more children than now attend school therein if additional seats and desks were provided.

No proof has been presented herein as to the aggregate assessed valuation of the district upon which taxes for school purposes could be assessed.

The appellants herein, in their reply, annex thereto a map showing two school buildings in ward one on Sixth street, one school building in ward two on Fourteenth street, one school building in ward three, near Sixteenth street, and one school building in ward four, near Fourth avenue. An affidavit of Mr Ball, one of the respondents, alleges that he has personally inspected and investigated as to the capacity of the public school buildings of said district in the fourth ward, and that the floor space of the buildings is sufficient for 394 scholars without more crowding than in the other public school buildings in the district; that in the larger building with four rooms, with a capacity of 60 scholars in each room, one room had 13 scholars enrolled, one 18, one 45 and one 36, aggregating only 112, with a capacity for 240. The brief for the appellants states that in these two buildings, with a capacity for 394, but 250 children are enrolled. The respondents allege in their answer that the daily attendance for the past two years in the school in the St Bridget's School building was 351. The appellants allege that of the number attending the school, 150 should properly be required to attend at the other school buildings in the district.

From the statements contained in the papers herein it is not clearly established that the public school buildings, the property of the school district, if put in proper condition in August 1895, were not sufficient to accommodate all the children attending school in the district.

It has been uniformly the policy of this Department to call the attention of the inhabitants of school districts, and the trustees and boards of education therein, to the condition and improvement of schoolhouses and grounds, to the end that the comfort and health of the pupils attending may be promoted, and the best educational interests secured. It is the policy of the school law and of this Department that each of the school districts of the State should become the owner of a schoolhouse or school building, either by purchase or by building, upon a suitable site or sites.

The school law provides that in the levying of taxes for the construction of schoolhouses such taxes may be collected in instalments, extending several years, and thus obviate any heavy burden upon the taxpayers of such districts. By section 26 of the law creating the West Troy school district it is enacted that in case a tax shall be voted to erect a suitable building for an academy or high school the same may be raised in instalments, the amounts of which and the times of payment of which to be left optional with the board of education; and it is further enacted that the provisions of said section shall extend to all amounts required for building schoolhouses where the estimated cost exceeds $3000.

It was the duty of the respondents herein, admitting for the purposes of argument that when they entered upon their duties in August 1895, there were not sufficient public school buildings in the district to accommodate all the children desiring to attend school therein, to have taken into consideration the erection of a new school building, and the submission of the question of such construction and the voting of a tax therefor, to a meeting of the qualified voters of said district. Instead of taking such action they entered into a lease with the trustees of St Bridget's Roman Catholic Church for certain rooms in the parochial school building owned by the church, alleging as a reason for such leasing that the building and furnishing of a new school building would cost the district many thousand dollars; that the board of education of union free school district no. 1 had for several years previously hired the rooms, and that the respondents believed that they and the former lessees thereof saved the taxpayers of West Troy great sums of money.

Care in the expenditures made by the authorities of school districts, to relieve the burden of taxation, is commendable when reasonably exercised, and when it does not result unfavorably to the best educational interests of the district; but when the money saved to the districts is obtained solely by the occupation of leased property for school purposes, thereby postponing the construction of needed school buildings, or necessary additions to school buildings then existing, it can not be claimed in good faith that the result is in any sense really of benefit to the districts.

If the West Troy school district is financially weak, such action might be deemed excusable; but this is not the fact.

From the reports in this Department made by the school commissioner of the third commissioner district of Albany county, I find that on July 31, 1895, the aggregate assessed valuation of taxable property in union free school district no. 1 was $1,185,501; that by the reports of 1894, on July 31, 1894, the aggregate assessed valuation of taxable property in school district no. 2, town of Watervliet, was $733,682; that of school district no. 9, of Watervliet, was $867,736; that of school district no. 20, of Watervliet, was $1,013,010.

Under chapter 881, Laws of 1895, the territory which on February 1, 1895, constituted union free school district no. 1, and districts nos. 2, 9 and 20, and part of no. 22, of Watervliet, were consolidated into the West Troy school district, and in August 1895, in the West Troy school district there was an aggregate assessed valuation of taxable property therein of $4,000,000. A tax of half a mill upon a dollar (a low rate for a school tax), would produce the sum of $20,000. The West Troy school district, by the apportionment made in March 1896, of the public school money to the district so constituted, received from the State between $5500 and $6000.

The respondents claim that under the provisions of chapter 881, Laws of 1895, they had and have had the power to hire schoolhouses and rooms. It is true they had and have that power, and such grant or power is given, in like language, to the trustees of the common and union free school districts by the general school law of the State; but such provisions have never been held to authorize school authorities to lease rooms except to temporarily supply the lack of schoolhouses and rooms in buildings the property of the district, or during a time when the district does not own sufficient school accommodations, and pending action on the part of the school authorities or the inhabitants of the district to supply such deficiency.

Admitting for the purpose of argument that the respondents had lawful authority to hire rooms in which to conduct a public school in the district, they had no legal authority to hire the schoolrooms in St Bridget's Parochial School building or elsewhere for the term of one year, with the right of control of the rooms during the school hours only of each day in which a school, under the direction of the respondents, should be held during the year; they consenting and giving to the lessors complete control of the rooms at all other times except during school hours.

Under the lease entered into between the respondents and the trustees of St Bridget's Roman Catholic Church, the trustees thereof retained the use, custody and control of the leased rooms for and during the term of time mentioned except between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 4 o'clock in the afternoon of each day in which the school conducted under the direction of the respondents should be in session. The lessors had the right to use the rooms for any purpose they desired during all the time on every day and night of the year, except the school hours during the school days on which the school was in session. The respondents had no control of the janitor of the building, the fires and lights therein, nor of any school property or apparatus placed therein by the respondents for school purposes, nor of the books and property of the pupils attending such school which might be left in the rooms, as is customary to be left in public school buildings.

The decision of Superintendent Draper, in 1887, cited by the respondents, is not in point in this appeal for the reason that the lease taken by the board of education was of the St Raphael's Catholic School building for a period of five years, and not of certain rooms in said building during school hours only.

I am clearly of the opinion that the action of the respondents in hiring the rooms upon the conditions demanded by the trustees of the church, and assented to by the respondents, was an unwise exercise of the power given to them in relation to the leasing; nor can I escape the conclusion that while no direct instruction of a religious character is, or has, so far as appears from the pleadings, been given in this school, nevertheless it is worthy of inquiry why the church authorities are willing to indefinitely contribute to the school authorities the use of this valuable property for a mere nominal consideration. Formerly the church authorities had maintained a separate denominational school therein.

It is entirely natural to suppose that those parents who now object to its present use, reason that such school, with its close proximity to the church building and convent, with the inscription over the doorway, the emblem surmounting the building and the teachers therein employed with their distinctive garb, furnish an object lesson at least, and all the surroundings of the school therein maintained tend to lead the mind of the child toward this particular religious denomination. This result is but natural, and I am convinced is quite in conflict with the trend of American sentiment toward public schools, and the school authorities should perform no acts in their official capacity tending to subject the schools under their charge to this criticism.

Since this appeal was presented the territory embraced within the village of West Troy has been incorporated into the city of Watervliet, but no provision was made in this legislative enactment for additional school facilities, nor has any provision been made for the ownership by the new city, so far as I am informed, of additional school facilities. If such neglect is to be considered as an indication that the present system of leasing—a system only intended to meet sudden emergencies—is to be continued indefinitely, I can not approve such a course, and the respondents herein must be directed to surrender said rooms and discontinue the public school maintained therein.

The second question presented by the appeal herein for my consideration and decision is, in relation to the action of the respondents in the employment as teachers in the school conducted in the St Bridget's Parochial School building of the six persons, members of a sisterhood or order of the Roman Catholic Church, and the wearing by them during school hours of the particular dress or garb of such order. The appellants allege that these six persons, with others of their order, in their examination under the rules of uniform examinations for commissioners' certificates, established by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, occupied a separate room apart from other persons taking such examinations; that such persons have not attended at the teachers institutes held in the school commissioner district in which the school is situate; that it is contrary to the rules and regulations of the religious order of which such persons are members for them to attend mixed gatherings, such as public examinations and teachers institutes.

The appellants have failed to establish by proof these allegations or any of them.

It appears that the examination referred to by the appellants was conducted by School Commissioner Main, assisted by Examination Clerk Mr Finegan, of this Department, and several other examiners from this Department, in accordance with the rules established; that the six persons, with others, attended thereat and complied with the rules; that the six persons, with the others attending, were distributed in three rooms, and were under the direction and subject to the supervision of the examiners at all times during such examination; that the answer papers of all those examined were forwarded to this Department for examination, marking and filing, and that upon such examination, etc., it was found that these six persons were qualified, and each received the proper certificate of qualification, and each became, under the school law, a qualified teacher in the common schools of this State of the grade and for the term of time in the certificates respectively stated.

As to the allegation that these persons have not attended at a teachers institute, it appears that the West Troy school district has a population of more than 5000 and employs a superintendent of schools, and it is therefore optional with the board of education as to whether or not it will close the schools in the district during the time a teachers institute shall be in session; that it is not shown that the schools were closed during any session of a teachers institute in the school commissioner district in which the West Troy school district is situated.

The appellants also allege that the six teachers, members of a religious order or sisterhood, were usually addressed in school hours by the scholars, not by their family names, but by the names assumed by them in the religious order, prefixed by the term "Sister." The appellants have failed to sustain this allegation by proof.

The allegation that these six teachers, members of a sisterhood or order of the Roman Catholic Church, have worn, and continue to wear, during school hours the particular dress or garb of the order, is admitted by the respondents.

It is also established that at the meeting of the respondents, on August 19, 1895, when a resolution was adopted to employ these six persons as teachers, it was stated that they would wear such dress or garb while teaching.

There is no statutory law in this State which prescribes that any particular dress or garb shall be worn by the teachers in the public schools in this State during school hours, nor which prohibits the wearing by them of any particular dress or garb during school hours; neither is there any decision of any court of this State upon the matter. Therefore, the questions to be determined are whether such practice shall be discontinued as a matter of school polity; and what the effect of the recent amendment of the Constitution is upon such practice.

In the appeal of Leander Colt v. the board of education of union free school no. 7, village of Suspension Bridge, town of Niagara, county of Niagara, taken to State Superintendent Draper in 1887, it was established that the board of education on February 1, 1886, hired of St Raphael's (Roman Catholic) Church, by a written lease, a building owned by it for the term of five years at a nominal consideration, and established a school therein under the board, and employed in the school three duly qualified and licensed teachers, who were members of the Order of St Joseph, of the Roman Catholic Church; that the teachers wore in the schoolroom, and at all times in common with all of the members of said order, a particular dress or garb; that such teachers were commonly known to the world, and were uniformly addressed by their pupils by their Christian names, with the prefix of "Sister," as "Sister Martha," etc.; that there were no religious ceremonies or exercises held in the school during school hours. Superintendent Draper in his decision, no. 3520, made on March 24, 1887, held that:

"The wearing of an unusual garb, worn exclusively by members of one religious sect and for the purpose of indicating membership in that sect by the teachers in a public school, constituted a sectarian influence, which ought not to be persisted in. The same may be said of the pupils addressing the teachers as 'Sister Mary,' 'Sister Martha,' etc. The conclusion is irresistible that these things may constitute a much stronger sectarian or denominational influence over the minds of children than the repetition of the Lord's prayer or the reading of the Scriptures at the opening of the schools, and yet these things have been prohibited whenever objection has been offered by the rulings of this Department from the earliest days, because of the purpose enshrined in the hearts of the people and embedded in the fundamental law of the State, that the public school system shall be kept altogether free from matters not essential to its primary purpose and dangerous to its harmony and efficiency."

Superintendent Draper directed the board of education to require that the teachers should discontinue the use, in the schoolroom, of the distinguishing dress of the religious order to which they belonged, and to cause the pupils to address such teachers by their family names with the prefix "Miss," as teachers are ordinarily addressed. It does not appear that this decision has been modified or vacated by Superintendent Draper or modified or disapproved by his successors in the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The respondents herein cite the decision of the Supreme Court of the state of Pennsylvania in the case of John Hysong et al. v. Gallatzin Borough School District et al., decided in the October term 1894, 164 Penn. State Reports, p. 629, etc.

From an examination of the case it appears that a bill in equity was filed in the Common Pleas of Cambria county to restrain the school directors of Gallatzin borough from permitting sectarian teaching in the common schools of the borough, and from employing as teachers sisters or members of the order of St Joseph, a religious society of the Roman Catholic Church. It was alleged in the bill that the "Sisters," while teaching in the public schools wore the garb, insignia and emblems of their order, and that they used the garb, etc., in such manner as to impart to the children under their instruction certain religious and sectarian lessons and ideas peculiar to the Roman Catholic Church. The court of common pleas found as a fact that there was no evidence of any religious instruction or religious exercises of any character whatever during school hours. The fact being admitted that such "Sisters," as teachers, wore, while teaching, the habit or garb of their order, the judge said:

"We conclude, as to this branch of the case, that, in the absence of proof that religious sectarian instruction was imparted by them during school hours, or religious sectarian exercises engaged in, we can not restrain by injunction members of the order of Sisters of St Joseph from teaching in the public schools in the garb of their order, nor the school directors from employing or permitting them to act in that capacity."

An appeal was taken from the decision of the common pleas to the Supreme Court, the main assignment of error being that, "the court erred in finding that the employment of the Sisters of St Joseph as teachers in the public schools, and their acting as such while wearing the distinctive sectarian garb, crucifixes, and rosaries of their order and sect, could not be enjoined."

The Supreme Court affirmed the decree of the court below and dismissed the appeal. The opinion was written by Justice Dean and Justice Williams wrote a dissenting opinion. The decision of the court appears to be made upon the ground that the school directors of Gallatzin, in the absence of any special provisions of law upon the subject, had the discretion to employ the sisters as teachers in the school and to permit them to wear, while teaching, the distinctive dress or garb of the religious order of which they were members, and that the court had no power to revise the exercise of such discretion.

Justice Dean, in his opinion, said: "In thus expressing our full accord with the learned president, judge of the court below, we intimate no opinion as to the wisdom or unwisdom of the action of the school board in selecting six Catholic school teachers, members of an exclusively religious order. In this matter was involved, solely, the exercise of discretion by the school board in the performance of an official duty, for which they alone are responsible. This discretion, when it does not transgress the law, is not reviewable by this or any other court. When a teacher of good moral character applies for a school, and presents a certificate of qualification as to scholarship and aptness to teach, that is the end of judicial inquiry into the action of the board in appointment, because the law makes no further inquisition up to this point. . . . We can not infer, from the mere fact that a school board composed of Catholics has selected a majority of Catholics as teachers that, therefore, it has unlawfully discriminated in favor of Catholics; because the selection of Catholic teachers is not a violation of law, or, which is the same thing, is not an abuse of discretion. Unless this be the case, no court has power to revise the exercise of this discretion, for the very sufficient reason that the law has not made the court school directors, while it has devolved on six citizens of Gallatzin borough the duties of that office."

Upon the contention that such teachers, wearing such distinctive dress while teaching in the school, should be enjoined from wearing it, the court declined to decide, as a matter of law, that it is sectarian teaching for a devout woman to appear in a schoolroom in a dress peculiar to a religious organization of a Christian church and, as Judge Dean said, "We decline to do so; the law does not so say."

Justice Williams, who dissented from his associates on one point, namely, the wearing of a distinctive garb while teaching, said: "Clergymen sometimes wear on the street a coat or hat that affords some evidence of their profession, but they do not appear in churchly robes when about their daily work, or in any garb that points out the church to which they belong, or the creed to which they adhere; but these six teachers in Gallatin do just that. They wear, and must wear at all times, a prescribed, unchangeable ecclesiastical dress, which was plainly intended to proclaim their nonsecular and religious character, their particular church and order, and their separation from the world. They come into the school not as common school teachers, or as civilians, but as the representatives of a particular order, in a particular church, whose lives have been dedicated to religious work under the direction of that church. Now, the point of the objection is not that their religion disqualifies them. It does not. Nor is it thought that church membership disqualifies them. It does not. It is not that holding an ecclesiastical office or position disqualifies, for it does not. It is the introduction into the schools as teachers of persons who are, by their striking and distinctive ecclesiastical robes, necessarily and constantly asserting their membership in a particular church, and in a religious order within that church, and the subjection of their lives to the direction and control of its officers."

It appears that at the first session of the Legislature of the state of Pennsylvania, held after the decision of the Supreme Court in Hysong et al., above referred to, an act was passed, which became a law, prohibiting any teacher in any public school of the State from wearing any dress or garb peculiar to or distinctive of any religious denomination, sect or society. So long as such law is operative so much of the decision in the case of Hysong et al. as holds that school directors in the public schools in that State may permit teachers employed by them to wear, while teaching, the garb of any religious denomination, order, sect or society, is of no force or effect.

The passage of the act by the Legislature of the state of Pennsylvania prohibiting any teacher in any public school in that state from wearing any dress or garb peculiar to or distinctive of any religious denomination, order, sect or society, is indicative of the intention of the people of that state to restrain the directors of the public schools therein from permitting in their schools anything that would create the impression or belief on the part of the patrons of such schools that even indirectly the schools are under the control or direction of any religious denomination, or in which any denominational tenet or doctrine is taught.

It has been the policy of this Department, when the matter has been brought to its attention and its action invoked, as in the case of the Colt appeal decided by Superintendent Draper, that when the wearing by teachers in the public schools of this State of any dress or garb peculiar to or distinctive of any religious denomination, order, sect or society, creates the impression or belief on the part of the patrons of the school that the school was under the control or direction of any religious denomination, or in which any denominational tenet or doctrine was taught; or when by reason of said distinctive garb being so worn contentions and dissensions have arisen among the inhabitants of a school district, threatening the harmony therein and the efficiency of the school, and antagonistic to the best educational interests therein, to advise that the wearing of such distinctive garb should be discontinued.

By section 4 of article 9 of the Constitution of the State, it is enacted: "Neither the State nor any subdivision thereof shall use its property or credit or any public money, or authorize or permit either to be used, directly or indirectly, in aid or maintenance, other than for examination or inspection, of any school or institution of learning wholly or in part under the control or direction of any religious denomination, or in which any denominational tenet or doctrine is taught."

This amendment to the organic law of the State has but recently been adopted by an overwhelming majority. It indicates very clearly an unmistakable and earnest desire on the part of our citizens to permanently establish and maintain a public school system that shall be entirely nonsectarian. That this is the trend of public opinion, both in this country and in the neighboring provinces on the western continent, is manifest. With this spirit I am heartily in accord. The public school system has achieved its greatest measure of success where this has been insisted upon. It is my duty, as it is the duty of the school authorities of the public schools in the several districts of the State, to see that the provisions of the Constitution above cited are neither directly nor indirectly violated.

I take great pleasure in stating that the clergy and laity of the Roman Catholic Church have given to this Department their earnest support and aid in the enforcement of the compulsory education law, as well as every other act relating to the public school system of the State.

The appellants ask that the contracts with the six teachers herein referred to be annulled and set aside. This I have no power to do. These teachers are duly qualified teachers within the provisions of the school law, and having been duly employed by the respondents herein, can not be dismissed during their term of employment without sufficient cause, and no sufficient cause has been shown. Nevertheless, upon this branch of the case I desire to express my disapprobation of the custom of their dressing, while in the performance of their duties, in the garb peculiar to and indicative of the particular sect or order of which they are members. Such dress or garb taken in connection with the location, surroundings and distinguishing characteristics of the building leased by the school authorities and in which they are employed, is a constant and hourly reminder to the pupils under their charge of the existence of one particular religious denomination or sect, and this public declaration under all the circumstances is such an object lesson to the susceptible mind of the pupils under their charge that it comes dangerously near the line of prohibition laid down in the Constitution as herein quoted.

The proofs herein show that it is considered such by the parents of upwards of fifty of the pupils who would otherwise attend this school. They are the people whose interests are to be conserved by this particular school. The objections herein urged against such influences would, of course, apply to like public declaration of religious preference or belief on the part of teachers connected with any other denomination. The fact that but few, if any, of the many sects or denominations insist upon members of their order dressing upon all occasions in a distinctive garb adds force to the objection as it presents itself to my mind. I therefore concur in the opinion of my predecessor in office, namely, that the teachers in the public schools of the State ought not to wear the distinctive garb of any religious denomination, order, sect or society, but dress in the usual costume worn by men and women generally; and that any other costume or usage is inimical to the best educational interests of the locality and should be discontinued by direction of the local school authorities whose duty it is to so administer the trusts reposed in them as to bring about the very best results with the least irritation, and in harmony with the spirit of the section of the organic law herein quoted.

The school best does this which avoids any reference directly or indirectly to any particular denomination, sect or order, both in the construction of the buildings used for school purposes and in the dress worn by the teachers employed therein. To those not satisfied with this complete and absolute severance of secular and religious instructions, the private school is open.

If we ask ourselves in what particulars this school differs from the usual parochial school as formerly maintained therein, before the adoption of the constitutional amendment herein quoted, what reply shall we make? By the nature of the lease, by the wearing of distinctive garb, by the emblem surmounting the building, by the inscription over the doorway, by the practical result that only the children of one particular faith attend this school, the conclusion is irresistible that the State, to all external intents and purposes, is maintaining a sectarian school therein at public expense. It was clearly the intent of this amendment to the organic law that this practice should be prohibited.

The delay in rendering a decision in this appeal was primarily caused by the hope and expectation that in the legislative enactment incorporating the city of Watervliet and providing for the school system thereof, such legislation would determine the questions raised in this appeal. No provision has, however, been made for school facilities to be owned by the city, and to take the place of those secured by such lease.

The contracts made by the respondents herein both in respect to leasing said building and the employment of the teachers engaged therein from which the appeal herein is taken, having expired at the termination of the school year 1895-96, this decision can not be operative except as a determination of the principles involved, and to that extent this decision will be valuable only as indicating the policy to be pursued by school authorities.

A new appeal to reach the result here indicated as the policy to be pursued by local school authorities ought not to be necessary.

I decide, That the action of the respondents herein, in hiring the rooms in St Bridget's Parochial School Building, in which to conduct a public school, with the right of the control of the rooms during the school hours only of each day, in which a school under the direction of the respondents is maintained, and consenting and giving to the lessors complete control of the rooms at all times other than during school hours, and the continuation of such lease beyond the period of emergency contemplated by the statute, was without legal authority on the part of the respondents.

I also decide that it is the duty of the respondents to require the teachers employed by them to discontinue the use in the public schoolroom of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order to which they belong.

4546

In the matter of the appeal of Samuel Kennedy, Edward M. Getman and James Forsyth v. the board of education of the city of Watervliet, Albany county.

The wearing of an unusual garb worn exclusively by members of one religious sect for the purpose of inflating membership in that sect, by the teachers in a public school, constitutes a sectarian influence which ought not to be persisted in. It is clearly the duty of trustees of school districts to require such teachers to discontinue the use in the public schoolroom during school hours of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order to which they belong.

Decided May 15, 1897

William H. Blands, attorney for appellants

John H. Gleason, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

The appellants, in the above-entitled matter, as residents of, and qualified voters in the city of Watervliet, Albany county, appeal from the action of the board of education of such city, consisting of School Commissioners William H. Flewellin, James B. McLeese, Isaac G. Braman and John H. McKeever, in refusing to require six teachers now employed and teaching in one of the public schools of such city, namely, Catharine Walsh, Anna G. Conway, Kate Rice, Victoria Melinda, Hannah Keefe and Jennie Higgins, to discontinue the use in the public schoolroom of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order to which they respectively belong.

The appellants allege that the teachers above mentioned are members of a religious order or sisterhood, namely:

Catharine Walsh, known as Sister Leonie; Anna G. Conway, known as Sister Gertrude; Kate Rice, known as Sister Ludwina; Victoria Melinda, known as Sister Adelaide; Hannah Keefe, known as Sister Ignatia; Jennie Higgins, known as Sister Dechauntal; and that they were at the time of bringing this appeal, to wit, March 1, 1897, performing the duties of teachers in one of the public schools of the city of Watervliet, being held and conducted in the building on the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Seventh street, commonly known as "St Bridget's Parochial School Building," and that each of said six persons, during the school hours of each school day, in the performance of their duties as such teachers respectively, is dressed in the particular garb of the religious order or sisterhood of which they are respectively members.

The appellants also allege that at a meeting of the board of education of said city of Watervliet, held February 22, 1897, at which all four of the afore-said school commissioners were present, and at which Michael J. Day, the mayor of such city as chairman ex officio, presided, the following preamble and resolution were introduced and their adoption moved and seconded, namely:

Whereas, the Superintendent of Public Instruction recently decided on an appeal from the action of the board of education of the West Troy school district, that it was the duty of said board to require teachers employed by them, "to discontinue the use in the public schoolroom of the distinguished dress or garb of the religious order to which they belong," and the same not having been done, and the school particularly referred to in such decision being now a part of the school system of the city of Watervliet, and under the control and management of their board, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the clerk of this board be, and is hereby, instructed to forthwith notify Catharine Walsh, Anna G. Conway, Kate Rice, Victoria Melinda, Hannah Keefe and Jennie Higgins, now acting as teachers in the public school maintained in the St Bridget's school building, to discontinue the use in the public schoolroom of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order to which they belong.

It is also alleged by the appellants that upon a vote being taken thereupon such resolution was declared lost by a tie vote, two of such commissioners voting in the affirmative, and two of the commissioners voting in the negative, the chairman ex officio, not being a member of said board and not being entitled, under the law, to vote in the proceedings of said board.

The appellants further allege that the school referred to in their appeal was, until and including the 31st day of December 1896, one of the public schools of the West Troy school district, and the same school referred to in decision in appeal case no. 4516 of the Department of Public Instruction made by the State Superintendent November 25, 1896; that according to the provisions of chapter 905 of the Laws of 1896 (the act incorporating the city of Watervliet) from and after said 31st day of December 1896, the said West Troy school district ceased to exist, and all the public schools within the city of Watervliet and under the control of the board of education of such city, which board has, "to the exclusion of all boards and officers, except the Superintendent of Public Instruction of this State, the entire supervision and management of the schools of said city"; that by the provisions of said chapter 905 of the Laws of 1896, such board of education is required annually to make and transmit to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction a report in writing, which report shall be in all respects as is required by law of trustees of school districts, and deposit and file the same as required by law.

The appellants ask that the State Superintendent of Public Instruction issue an order directing said board of education of the city of Watervliet to forthwith require the aforesaid teachers to discontinue the use in the public school-rooms in such city during school hours of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order of which they are members.

Two of the members only of such board of education of the city of Watervliet, namely, School Commissioner McKeever and School Commissioner McLeese, have made answer to the appeal herein. The answer does not contain any denial of the allegations contained in the appeal.

The respondents in substance allege:

That the teachers named in the appeal are legally qualified to teach in the public schools of the city of Watervliet, and each is legally employed to teach pursuant to the terms of a written contract duly executed until the close of the present school year; that as the respondents are informed and believe such teachers refuse to wear, while engaged in the discharge of their duties in such school any other than the apparel, dress or garb which they have worn while thus engaged for many years last past; that the adoption of the resolution mentioned in the appeal, and its attempted enforcement by the board of education of said city would be an infringement upon the legal rights and an unlawful and unwarranted interference with the personal freedom of each of such teachers, and a violation of the written contract, and equivalent to an illegal and unwarranted dismissal and discharge of each of such teachers before the end of the contract term, and the city would be liable for compensation without securing the service; that the employment of other teachers, which the adoption and enforcement of the resolution would necessitate, would be a serious injury to the present school system; that they (the respondents) were prior to February 22, 1897, and are now advised, and believe that the board of education of such city has no legal authority to adopt or enforce the resolution mentioned in the appeal; that the respondents deny that the wearing by the teachers, during school hours, of the garb objected to by the appellants is in violation of, or conflicts with, any law of the State of New York, and that the adoption by said board of education and the enforcement or attempted enforcement of said resolution, would be in violation of law, and void and of no legal effect.

Upon the facts established herein, and the law and decisions of the State Superintendents of Public Instruction, the contentions of the respondents herein are not tenable and the appeal herein should be sustained.

Under the laws relating to the public schools of the State the State Superintendent of Public Instruction has supervisory powers over all public schools within the State. He possesses the power to entertain and examine an appeal brought to him by any person considering himself aggrieved, concerning any matter under the school law, or any other act pertaining to common schools, and to decide the same. Such decisions when so made have all the force and effect of statutes and are binding upon school officers until modified or reversed.

Under the provisions of subdivision 10 of section 12, title 5 of chapter 905 of the Laws of 1896, entitled, "An act to incorporate the city of Watervliet," the power given to the board of education of such city to supervise and manage the schools therein, is subject to the supervision of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Draper, in his decision no. 3520, made on March 24, 1887, in the appeal taken to him by Leander Colt v. the board of education of union free district no. 7, village of Suspension Bridge, town and county of Niagara, held that:

"The wearing of an unusual garb, worn exclusively by members of one religious sect and for the purpose of indicating membership in that sect by the teachers in a public school, constituted a sectarian influence, which ought not to be persisted in. The same may be said of the pupils addressing the teachers as 'Sister Mary,' 'Sister Martha,' etc. The conclusion is irresistible that these things may constitute a much stronger sectarian or denominational influence over the minds of children than the repetition of the Lord's prayer or the reading of the Scriptures at the opening of the schools, and yet these things have been prohibited whenever objection has been offered by the rulings of this Department from the earliest days, because of the purpose enshrined in the hearts of the people and embedded in the fundamental law of the State, that the public school system shall be kept altogether free from matters not essential to its primary purpose and dangerous to its harmony and efficiency."

Superintendent Draper directed the board of education to require that the teachers in such school should discontinue the use in the schoolroom, of the distinguishing dress of the religious order to which they belong. It does not appear that Superintendent Draper ever modified or vacated such decision, nor that his successors in the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction have ever modified or disapproved of such rulings and decision. Such decision had the force and effect of a statute in relation to the matter examined and determined therein, and became binding upon the school authorities of the several public schools of the State.

On November 25, 1896, in a decision made by me, no. 4516, in the appeal of Fayette B. Durant and others v. board of education of West Troy school district, relative to the employment of the same six teachers mentioned in the appeal herein, and the wearing by them in the schoolroom during school hours, of the particular dress or garb of the religious order or sisterhood of which they were respectively members, I approved of and concurred in said decision of Superintendent Draper, and stated:

"I therefore concur in the opinion of my predecessor in office, namely: that the teachers in the public schools of the State ought not to wear the distinctive garb of any religious denomination, order, sect or society, but dress in the usual costume worn by men and women generally; and that any other costume or usage is inimical to the best educational interests of the locality and should be discontinued by the direction of the local school authorities whose duty it is to so administer the trusts reposed in them as to bring about the very best results with the least irritation, and in harmony with the spirit of the section of the organic law herein quoted.

"The school best does this which avoids any reference directly or indirectly to any particular denomination, sect or order, both in the construction of the buildings used for school purposes and in the dress worn by the teachers employed therein. To those not satisfied with this complete and absolute severance of secular and religious instruction, the private school is open.

"If we ask ourselves in what particulars this school differs from the usual parochial school as formerly maintained therein, before the adoption of the constitutional amendment herein quoted, what reply shall we make? By the nature of the lease, by the wearing of a distinctive garb, by the emblem surmounting the building, by the inscription over the doorway, by the practical result that only the children of one particular faith attend this school, the conclusion is irresistible that the State, to all external intents and purposes, is maintaining a sectarian school therein at public expense. It was clearly the intent of this amendment to the organic law that this practice should be prohibited, and that a new appeal to reach the result here indicated as the policy to be pursued by local school authorities ought not to be necessary."

I decided that it was the duty of the respondents therein to require the teachers employed by them to discontinue the use in the public schoolroom of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order to which they belong.

Such decision was duly filed with the clerk of such West Troy school district and notice thereof given to the appellants and respondents in such appeal; that the respondents herein were two of the members of the board of education of such West Troy school district.

It was clearly the duty of the board of education of such West Troy school district to require such teachers to discontinue the use in the public schoolroom during school hours of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order to which they belonged.

No new or different state of facts are established in this appeal from those presented in the appeal of Durant and others v. board of education of West Troy school district.

The board of education of the city of Watervliet is conducting one of the schools of such city in the St Bridget's Parochial School Building and employing the same six persons as teachers therein that were employed by the authorities of the West Troy school district, each of whom wears, during school hours, and in the public schoolroom, the distinctive dress or garb of the religious order to which she belongs or of which she is a member.

There is nothing presented in this appeal to alter, change or modify my ruling and decision, as contained in said decision no. 4516, and such decision is in all things affirmed.

It was, and is, the duty of the board of education of the city of Watervliet, under the aforesaid decision of Superintendent Draper and my decision no. 4516, as aforesaid, to require of each of said six persons, teaching in said school, to discontinue the use in such public schoolroom and during school hours, of the distinguishing dress or garb of the religious order to which they severally belong.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered:

That the board of education of the city of Watervliet be, and it is, hereby directed forthwith to notify and require Catharine Walsh, Anna G. Conway, Kate Rice, Victoria Melinda, Hannah Keefe and Jennie Higgins, and each of them, now teaching in one of the public schools of said city, which school is conducted and maintained in the building known as the St Bridget's Parochial School Building, situate on the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Seventh street of said city, to forthwith discontinue the use and wearing by them, and each of them, during the school hours of each school day such public school is held and maintained and is taught by them or either of them, of the distinctive or distinguishing garb of dress of the religious sect or order to which they, and each of them, belong or of which they are members.

It is further ordered:

That in the event such teachers above named, or either of them, after such notification and requirement to them by said board of education, refuse to comply therewith or obey such requirement and the decisions of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, as set forth in the foregoing decision, and continue the use and wearing, in school hours, in such public schoolroom or rooms, as such teachers, such distinctive garb or dress of the religious order of which they are members, that said board of education forthwith dismiss the above-named persons, and each of them, as teachers in such public schools.

It is further ordered:

That such board of education of the city of Watervliet, report in writing to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction on or before June 1, 1897, all acts performed and proceedings had and taken by such board of education, and by the said six teachers, and each of them, under and pursuant to the foregoing decision and the orders made to carry such decision into effect.

Whereas, on March 10, 1897, I made an order in the appeal herein directing E. L. Barkley, county treasurer of the county of Albany, to retain in his hands and withholding payment to the city of Watervliet of the school funds theretofore apportioned by me to said city in the annual apportionment made in January 1897, until the hearing and final determination of the above-entitled appeal, or until my further order in the premises.

It is, therefore, further ordered:

That said order of March 10, 1897, directing the retention in his hands by the county treasurer of Albany county of such school funds apportioned to such city, and the withholding by him of the payment thereof to such city, be, and the same hereby is continued in full force and effect until a further order in relation thereto shall be made by me.

This decision must be filed with the clerk of the board of education of the city of Watervliet and that notice thereof be by him given to the appellants and respondents herein, with opportunity to examine the same; and that a copy of such decision be forthwith served personally upon the treasurer of the county of Albany and the city chamberlain of the city of Watervliet, and each of them.

4722

In the matter of the appeal of Edward Keyser v. the board of education of the city of Poughkeepsie.

Since 1824 it has been the settled policy of the State that localities must own school buildings in which their public schools are conducted; that the leasing and renting of rooms and buildings for school purposes are not authorized except under extraordinary conditions, and to provide for emergency.

The wearing of an unusual garb worn exclusively by members of one religious sect, and for the purpose of indicating membership in that sect, by the teachers in the public schools, constitutes a sectarian influence which ought not to be persisted in. The fact that such members do not associate in public places with the world at large, and will not be employed in any building not consecrated or devoted under the rules of the denomination of which they are communicants, to charitable or religious purposes, and their right, while thus attired, and holding these strict views, to be employed as teachers in the public school system of the State goes far beyond the mere question of the garb or distinctive dress worn by them. It is fundamental that teachers employed in the public schools of the State, in fitting children for useful citizens, should keep themselves in close touch with everything that will enhance their usefulness in this direction. To do this requires association with others engaged in like employment, and familiarity to the every-day affairs of life with which such pupils in future years will be engaged. They should be in touch with men and women in the every-day affairs of life, and above all, the professional training which comes from association with educational representatives ought never to be barred from any teacher employed in the public schools. Transfers from one position to another, as the needs of a city school system may require, ought always to be possible, and no teacher should be employed who owes such allegiance to any other institution, organization or denomination as makes such transfers impossible. It is the duty of the school authorities to require such teachers to discontinue, while in the public schoolroom, and in the performance of their duty as teachers therein, the wearing of such dress or garb.

Decided December 23, 1898

P. Alverson Lee, attorney for appellant

J. L. Williams, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

The above-named appellant appeals from the action of the board of education of the city of Poughkeepsie in leasing for school purposes the building known as school 11, situate on North Clover street in the city of Poughkeepsie, and the building known as school 12, situate at 101 Mill street in said city, both of said buildings being the property of St Peter's Roman Catholic church, and in the employment of two teachers in school 11, and two in school 12, each of whom are members of the order known as the Sisters of Charity, who dress in the garb peculiar to their religious sect, and are addressed usually in the school by their christian names prefixed by the term "sister."

It is contended on the part of the appellant that by reason of the sectarian character of the school thus maintained in these two buildings, parents residing within the first ward of said city where said schools are situate, object to sending their children thereto, and parents residing at long distances from said schools send their children thereto in order to obtain the religious instruction given therein.

The respondents admit the leasing of such buildings at the rental alleged, and admit the employment of teachers who are dressed in the garb described in the appellant's papers, but they deny that there is any religious instruction imparted in such schools, and deny that any "denominational doctrines or tenets are taught in these buildings at any time during the school days of the week." They also allege that the board of education has no power under the provisions of the charter of said city to provide buildings or rooms for school purposes, except by renting the same; that buildings can only be purchased or erected by the affirmative vote of the taxpayers, and allege that the present bonded indebtedness of said city bears such a relation to the total assessed valuation thereof that the constitutional prohibition precludes the city from incurring any further indebtedness.

The material allegations are therefore admitted except as to the teaching of religious doctrines or tenets in these schools, and the power of the city to purchase or erect new buildings by reason of its bonded indebtedness.

The right of boards of education to employ teachers who dress in the peculiar and distinctive garb of any religious denomination and who are addressed by the pupils under their charge by their christian names with the prefix "sister" thereto, has been determined by this Department in several decisions, and I can not state the settled policy of the Department of Public Instruction in this State upon this question more aptly than to quote the following language from Superintendent Draper's decision, 3520, rendered March 24, 1887:

"The wearing of an unusual garb worn exclusively by members of one religious sect and for the purpose of indicating membership in that sect by the teachers in the public schools, constitutes a sectarian influence which ought not to be persisted in. The same may be said of the pupils addressing the teachers as 'Sister Mary,' 'Sister Martha,' etc. The conclusion is irresistible that these things may constitute a much stronger sectarian or denominational influence over the minds of the children than the repetition of the Lord's prayer or the reading of the Scriptures at the opening of the schools, and yet these things have been prohibited whenever objection has been offered by the rulings of this Department from the earliest days, because of the purpose enshrined in the hearts of the people and embedded in the fundamental law of the state that the public school system shall be kept altogether free from matters not essential to its primary purpose and dangerous to its harmony and efficiency."

The teachers referred to herein are members of a religious and charitable order known as "Sisters of Charity," who wear at all times a garb peculiar to their order. It is well known that they do not associate in public places with the world at large, and will not be employed in any building not consecrated or devoted by the rules of the denomination of which they are communicants, to charitable or religious purposes, and their right while thus attired and holding these strict views to be employed as teachers in the public school system of the State goes far beyond the mere question of the garb or distinctive dress worn by them.

To my mind, it is fundamental that teachers employed in the public schools of the State in fitting our children for useful citizens, should keep themselves in close touch with everything that will enhance their usefulness in this direction. To do this requires association with others engaged in like employment and familiarity with the every-day affairs of life with which the pupil in future years must battle for his own existence. They should touch men and women in the multitudinous and intricate affairs of life which perplex and discipline us, and above all, the professional training which comes from association with educational representatives ought never to be barred from any teacher employed in the public schools. Transfers from one position to another, as the needs of a great city school system may require, ought always to be possible, and no teacher should be employed who owes such allegiance to any other institution, organization or denomination as to make such transfers impossible.

Upon the susceptible mind of a child the influence of a teacher always wearing the garb of a particular denomination with the insignia of a religious order upon her person, who is never seen by the child except under the protection imposed by the rules of that order, employed in a building thus consecrated and known to the child to be in the opinion of the teacher a sacred and holy place, and surmounted by an emblem everywhere known as a religious symbol, is, to my mind, the identical influence which is sought to be excluded from the public schools by the organic law of our State. This State annually spends many thousand dollars for visual instruction, recognizing it as one of the legitimate and most useful methods of imparting instruction. It is idle, in my judgment, to recognize this educational influence and close our eyes to the fact that the teacher described herein exerts a like influence upon the susceptible minds of the children. The principle laid down in the language herein quoted from the decision of Superintendent Draper has been followed in several cases and must be considered as the settled and established policy of this State.

With reference to the renting of the buildings complained of by the appellant herein, the proof submitted by the respondent establishes the fact that on the 21st day of August 1873, the board of education of the city of Poughkeepsie entered into an agreement with the Right Reverend John McCloskey, archbishop, etc. whereby the city leased the land and buildings thereon situate on the north side of Mill street in the city of Poughkeepsie, known as "St Peter's Church School for Boys," and the school furniture and facilities connected therewith, and also the land and school building and outbuildings situate on the lot in the rear of the dwelling house of the Sisters of Charity on the west side of Clover street, known as the "Girls' or Female School of St Peter's Church," and the school furniture and fixtures belonging thereto, for a period of ten years from the 1st day of September 1875, at the yearly rental of one dollar, to be paid in yearly payments, the said city also to pay the premiums of insurance on the leased property during the continuance of this lease. By the terms thereof the board of education were to have the absolute control and use of such buildings and lands and school furniture for the use and purpose of public schools "during the school hours fixed or to be fixed by said board," and before and after school hours the said building, land and school furniture were to be under the control of the lessor.

It appears that at the expiration of such term said buildings continued to be occupied by the board of education and respectively designated as schools 11 and 12, and are and since that date have been part of the public school system of the city. No new or other lease seems to have been executed between the church authorities and the board of education, but the board continued in possession of such property after the expiration of their lease without any other agreement, further than that the respondents allege that in the year 1897 it was verbally agreed between the parties to such lease that all religious or denominational instruction therein during school days should be discontinued, and the right to use such buildings for such purposes was waived by the lessor. The buildings thus leased are each surmounted by a cross, and over the doorway of one is the following inscription cut in stone, "St Peter's Male Academy, 1869," while the other building stands partially in the rear of a dwelling house owned by the church authorities, which is occupied as a residence by the sisters teaching in the above-named schools.

It appears from the evidence that prior to the leasing of the buildings herein described, a parochial school was maintained in each of said buildings, and teachers then employed were continued in the school by the board of education. As their places have become vacant by resignation or otherwise, care has always been taken that their successors should be members of the same order or sect, wearing a like attire, whether in pursuance of any understanding with the church authorities or not, is not clear, but it is fair to assume that some agreement of that character outside of the written lease must have existed. The teachers thus employed have been paid by checks drawn by the board of education upon one of the banks of that city, payable to the teacher by her full christian name, and such checks prior to the commencement of these proceedings all bore the indorsement when presented for payment, of "Sister Alexis," alleged to be the sister in charge of the parish house in which the teachers resided.

I am asked by the board of education to hold that the employment of teachers thus attired, teaching in buildings of the character described and permanently leased in the manner set forth, is not a violation of the Constitution of this State. In my judgment such action of this board of education is unwise as a matter of school polity, is a violation of the letter and spirit of the Constitution, and such leasing of buildings is without warrant of law.

The charter of the city of Poughkeepsie makes provision for its public school system. It provides for the election of a board of education, whose powers and duties are defined in section 180 thereof. Subdivision 4 of this section provides that "said board of education are to exercise the powers and discharge the duties of said schools the same as trustees of school districts under the statutes of this State." No provision is made in the charter for the renting of buildings or rooms for school purposes. Section 192, however, makes ample provision for the "purchase or erection of an additional schoolhouse, if the board of education deems such course proper or necessary." Hence we must look to the provisions of the Consolidated School Law for the authority of the board of education of this city to lease property for school purposes. Such authority is given to them only by section 50 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law, which reads as follows:

"Whenever it shall be necessary for the due accommodation of the children of the district, by reason of any considerable number of said children residing in portions of said district remote from the schoolhouse in said district, thereby rendering it difficult for them in inclement weather and in winter to attend school at such schoolhouse, or by reason of the room or rooms in said schoolhouse being overcrowded, or for any other sufficient reason the due accommodation of said children can not be made in said schoolhouse, they shall establish temporary or branch school or schools in such place or places in said district as shall best accommodate such children, and hire any room or rooms for the keeping of said temporary branch school or schools, and fit up and furnish said room or rooms in a suitable manner for conducting such school or schools therein. Any expenditure made or liability incurred in pursuance to this section shall be a charge upon the district."

This language clearly contemplates only the temporary leasing of property for school purposes by school authorities, and was not intended to authorize school boards to permanently maintain schools in leased rooms or buildings. Prior to 1864 trustees were authorized by subdivision 5 of section 49 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Law of 1864 "to purchase or lease a site for the district schoolhouse or schoolhouses as designated by the meeting of the district, and to build, hire or purchase such schoolhouse as may be so designated, and to keep in repair and furnish such house with necessary fuel and appendages and pay the expense thereof by tax." But in the consolidation of the school law in 1894, the power of leasing school buildings was hedged about with certain conditions not in the former statute, clearly indicating the intent on the part of the Legislature to limit such leasing to temporary and extraordinary conditions. Since 1894 it has been the settled policy of the State that localities must own the school buildings in which their schools are conducted, and that the leasing and renting of property for school purposes was not authorized except under extraordinary conditions.

The condition existing in the city of Poughkeepsie for the past fifty years is the best illustration possible of the wisdom of the State in taking away from school officers the power to perpetually rent property for school purposes. Since 1843 the schools in that city have been wholly or partially conducted in buildings and rooms rented for the purpose. In 1843 the village corporation owned no school buildings, and the board supplied the want by the rental of a building formerly occupied as a theater, situate in Market near Jay street. Since that time there have been rented rooms in buildings situate on the corner of Clinton and Thompson streets, in the coach factory at the junction of Mill street and Dutchess avenue, in the basement of the Universalist church, in a building rented of the Baptist church, known as the Hoffman street chapel, in Faith chapel on Union street, in the primitive Methodist church on Church street, and the present board of education is now renting in addition to schools 11 and 12, described in the petition of appeal herein, the Hoffman street chapel of the Baptist church, at an annual rental of $185, the building known as the "Poughkeepsie Military Institute," formerly Waring's Military School, a frame building erected over thirty years ago, paying an annual rent of $1000 therefor, and also a building rented of St Mary's parish in which school 9 is conducted.

The deplorable condition of school facilities in this city is best shown, by stating the exact facts. Out of thirteen buildings in which schools are maintained, five are rented, one is a building formerly used as a dwelling house, one is an old machine shop repaired and converted into a school building, and with the exception of school 5, not a single building has any system of ventilation, and no means of heating except by coal stoves, in some cases within twenty inches of the desks occupied by the pupils, consuming the oxygen of the overcrowded schoolroom. No provision is made for children's wraps, which hang about the schoolroom four and five deep upon an insufficient number of hooks, a most unsanitary condition. Some of these buildings have water-closets in the basements, the odors from which permeate the whole building; in some the rooms are separated from others by glass partitions where the school exercises conducted in one room confuse the school work in the room adjoining. Narrow aisles, in some cases but fifteen inches wide, temporary outside frame stairways, built upon those old buildings as afterthoughts to meet the growing wants of the city; and insufficient seating accommodations for an attendance in some cases larger than the total seating capacity of the room, are among the bad conditions that prevail. Taken altogether, I know of no other city in the State with such deplorable school facilities as this city possesses.

If it be said that the limit of bonded indebtedness has been reached by this municipality, I can only say that that city is now engaged in erecting a brick and stone building for its fire department; has erected three such buildings within five years; has erected a commodious building for the use of its police and public-works department within ten years; has found means for paving its streets with asphalt and Belgian block pavements, and if the choice has been presented between adequate school facilities and these improvements, the city seems deliberately to have chosen the latter in preference to the former.

The two buildings described in the appellant's petition herein are not adapted to school purposes. Access to the upper floor of one is had by a winding narrow stairway. One is upon low, undesirable ground. They can not be properly heated and neither has any satisfactory means of ventilation. The extravagance of the present system is clearly manifest when we consider that the building rented of the Baptist church is scarcely worth, including the land on which it stands, one year's rental paid therefor. It is an antiquated structure with small windows, low ceilings and dark rooms. The rear room is reached by a narrow passage, the entrance to which does not exceed twenty inches in width. The old Poughkeepsie Military Institute, while it is an antiquated frame building built more than thirty years ago is still probably the most comfortable school building in use in the city of Poughkeepsie. Its rental, however, is $1000 a year. This represents an investment of $25,000 at 4 per cent, while that amount would build at least two modern school buildings, with modern heating, lighting and ventilation and slate blackboards, not at present possessed by any school building in the city, with the possible exception of a portion of school 5.

Notwithstanding the continued leasing of school buildings in this city, there has been such an utter lack of school facilities that prior to September 1, 1898, 1001 of the school children in this city who by the laws of our State were entitled to free instruction, were compelled to alternate in their attendance and were able to obtain but two and one-fourth hours' instruction each day.

No evidence whatever is presented to me as to the amount of bonded indebtedness of this city. Hence I have no means of knowing whether the local authorities are permitted under the constitutional limitations to create any further bonded indebtedness. No evidence is presented that any effort has been made in recent years by the board of education to supply this woeful lack of school facilities by taxation. The respondents allege as a matter of belief that the inhabitants of that city would not vote the necessary funds for the erection of new school buildings, although I am at a loss to determine upon what such opinion is founded. They do not allege that any effort has been made to test public sentiment upon that question.

I shall be loath indeed to believe that a city possessing the wealth of Poughkeepsie and citizens of acknowledged intelligence would refuse to appropriate money sufficient to enable her board of education to comply with the school laws of the State, or to furnish reasonable accommodations for her children while in attendance upon the public schools.

I am very clearly of the opinion that the statutes of this State do not contemplate the leasing of school property as practised by this city and that such leasing is clearly contrary to the provisions of the charter of Poughkeepsie and of the school law of the State, although I am not unmindful of the fact that this system, known as the "Poughkeepsie plan," has been widely commented upon and in many quarters has been regarded as wise and practical.

How far the desires of those interested in its continuance may have influenced the board of education in the course pursued by it in regard to the erection of new buildings, I do not know. That it has been eminently satisfactory to the lessors of these buildings is apparent. That the board of education has always considered that the employment as teachers of members of the religious order named, was to be some equivalent for rent, is evident from the fact that the rental of these comparatively large buildings has been but nominal, while to the other denominations, renting inferior buildings but with no effort to have their communicants employed as teachers therein, has been paid a sum fully equal to or in excess of the real rental value of the property. That the lessors of these buildings have always so regarded the arrangement is evident from the fact that for upwards of twenty-five years this large amount of property has been practically donated to the uses of the public school system of the city, and from the further fact that since the commencement of these proceedings great anxiety has been manifest to have the system continued.

This union of interests is no longer desirable, nor for the best interests of the schools of the city. It has been and is a cause of irritation and discord among the patrons of the schools, is against the spirit of our institutions which calls for a complete and total severance of church and state, and in my judgment is against the letter and spirit of the Constitution. Our public school system must be conducted in such a broad and catholic spirit that Jew, and Protestant, and Catholic alike shall find therein absolutely no cause for complaint as to the exercise, directly or indirectly, of any denominational influence. In this respect every school maintained at public expense should be free, open and accessible without reasonable ground for objection from any source whatever.

While the discussion of the facts in connection with the school system of this city has been somewhat broader than the issues raised by the pleadings herein, nevertheless the rental of other church property and private property by the board of education of this city has been and is so clearly a violation of the principle laid down herein that I deemed it advisable to treat the whole question in this opinion. I have also desired that this decision should state without uncertainty the position of the Department with reference to all questions raised herein. Cities, villages and school districts must own the buildings in which their schools are conducted save only when temporary hiring of rooms or buildings is made necessary by some sudden emergency.

The renting by the respondents of the property of the Baptist church and the renting of rooms or buildings by their predecessors from the Methodist or Universalist denominations, in which to permanently conduct the schools in said city is equally reprehensible, and I desire it to be hereafter clearly understood that the prohibition extends to all denominations, as well as to all individuals. All other questions raised herein are but incidental to this.

I decide that the action of the respondents herein in hiring rooms and buildings in which to conduct any of the schools of said city and in continuing the lease of buildings, rented by a former board, and in conducting schools therein beyond the period of emergency contemplated by the statute, is without legal authority on the part of the respondents.

I also decide that it is the duty of the respondents to require teachers employed by them to discontinue in the public schoolroom the use of distinguishing dress or garb of any religious order.

4642

In the matter of the appeal of Eugene Lockwood and others v. board of education of school district 9, Corning, Steuben county.

It is the policy of the school law that each of the school districts of the State should become the owner of the schoolhouse or houses or school building or buildings, either by purchase or by building upon a suitable site or sites; and where power is given to lease rooms or buildings it is only for a limited time to provide for an emergency.

The wearing of an unusual garb, worn exclusively by members of one religious denomination, for the purpose of indicating membership in that denomination, by the teachers in the public school during school hours while teaching therein, constitutes a sectarian influence which ought not to be persisted in. It is the duty of the school authorities to require such teachers to discontinue, while in the public schoolroom and in the performance of their duty as teachers therein, the wearing of such dress or garb.

Decided March 31, 1898.

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal by the appellants in the above-entitled matter, as residents and qualified voters of school district 9, city of Corning, from the action of the board of education of such district in refusing to take action upon, or to comply with the request contained in, a petition or memorial signed by the appellant Lockwood and twenty other qualified voters of such district, and dated September 27, 1897, that certain teachers named therein, teaching in the schools in such district, be required by such board of education to forthwith discontinue the use and wearing by them, during the school hours of each school day held and taught by them, of the distinctive garb, dress or badge of the religious sect or order to which they belong.

The appellants herein also appeal from the action of said board of education in leasing and paying rent for the brick building in which school 2 in such school district is being maintained.

Annexed to such appeal is a copy of the petition or memorial delivered to said board of education, dated September 27, 1897, as hereinbefore stated, and the separate affidavit of one Ira W. Ten Broeck and the appellant herein, Eugene Lockwood.

The appeal herein was filed in this Department on November 29, 1897. The respondents, the board of education, applied for and received an extension of time to answer the appeal, and on January 8, 1898, such answer was filed in this Department.

The following facts are admitted:

That the appellants herein are residents of school district 9, city of Corning, county of Steuben, and are qualified voters therein; that Amory Houghton, jr,

George R. Brown, John L. Lewis, O. P. Robinson, David S. Drake and William E. Gorton are members of, and compose, the board of education of such school district; that the following named persons were employed by such board of education to teach during the school year of 1897-98 and are now teaching in the school designated as 2 in such school district 9, namely, Genevieve Levett, Bercham Holway, Philomena Walsh, Beatrice Brown, Michel Donovan, Josephine O'Connor and Rita Connors, all of whom are members of a religious society, order of sisterhood, known as the "Sisters of Mercy," and are the only teachers employed and teaching in such school except one other not named; that during all the time that such persons have been employed as such teachers in such school, and during each school hour of each school day in which they have been employed in the instruction of the scholars in such school, they have worn the particular, distinctive, distinguishing garb or dress of the sisters of mercy, the religious society, order or sisterhood of which they are members, and wear upon their persons, conspicuously displayed, a cross, rosary or other badge or insignia peculiar to such religious order; that on or about October 2, 1897, a memorial or petition, addressed to the board of education of such school district and dated September 27, 1897, signed by the appellant Lockwood and twenty others, residents and voters in such school district, was delivered to George Hitchcock, the secretary of such board of education, in which, after stating the employment of the said teachers and that they wore during school hours and while teaching in the school, the distinctive dress or garb of the religious order of which they were members, together with the badge or insignia of the order, alleging that the wearing of such garb, they believe, constitutes a sectarian influence within the prohibition contained in section 4 of article 9 of the Constitution of this State, and requesting the board of education to require such teachers to forthwith discontinue the wearing of the distinctive garb or dress during school hours and while teaching in such school; that annexed to the memorial or petition were the separate affidavits of the appellant Lockwood and one Ten Broeck in support of the statements contained in the memorial; that one meeting of such board of education was held after the delivering to the secretary of the memorial and affidavits before the appeal herein was taken, but no action was taken at such meeting by the board relative to the memorial; that the board of education has not interfered with the style and mode of dress of any of the teachers employed by it.

The appellants allege that the scholars attending at said school 2 are expected to, and do, address such teachers habitually as "sisters." The respondents in their answer deny, upon information and belief, "that there is any rule as to the manner of address to said teachers by the pupils of the school."

It is established by the proofs filed herein:

That the building in which said school 2 is maintained is a brick structure, located in the fourth ward of the city of Corning, opposite St Mary's Roman Catholic church, and was formerly used as a parochial school building; that for the past ten years such building has been leased to the board of education of school district 9 for use for the maintenance therein of one of the schools under its charge; that on September 1, 1893, the board of education of district 9 leased from one Peter Colgan, a priest of such church, said building for the term of five years, at the annual rent of $1000, such rental to include the keeping of the building in repair and to be furnished with school furniture, properly plumbed and supplied with water-closets, gas fixtures, etc. and the ground probably graded and drained; also the heating of the building with steam heat, and the services of a janitor; that said board during such term has the full and absolute control of such building.

The appellants herein appeal from the action of the board of education in leasing and paying rent for the brick building in which school 2 is maintained. Such lease, by its terms, will expire on September 1, 1898, and in my opinion, should not be thereafter renewed or continued; but measures should be immediately taken for the construction of a new school building for such district.

The respondents state, as the grounds for their action in leasing such building that by reason of the increase of population and of pupils requiring accommodation, the board of education since and including the year 1883, had erected three school buildings, the last of which was erected in 1895, and that on this account the bonds of the district to the amount of $55,000 are outstanding, the last of which will mature in the year 1931; that to be compelled now to erect another building would greatly embarrass the district, as the aggregate assessed valuation of the real and personal property therein does not exceed $3,000,000.

It has uniformly been the policy of this Department to call the attention of inhabitants of school districts, and of trustees and boards of education therein, to the condition of their schoolhouses and grounds and the necessity of erecting schoolhouses when necessary to properly accommodate the pupils therein. It is true the respondents herein have the power to hire schoolrooms in their school district, and such power is given to trustees and boards of education under the general school law and special acts relating to schools; but such provisions have been held to authorize such school authorities to lease rooms and buildings to supply temporarily only the lack of schoolhouses in the district, or where the same are not in condition for use, or are being repaired or added to, or pending action on the part of the school authorities, or the inhabitants to supply deficiencies.

School district 9, Corning, is financially a strong district, having at present an aggregate assessed valuation of $3,000,000, and is abundantly able to erect the additional schoolhouse needed therein. It has been decided and must be accepted as the settled policy of the State that, except in cases of extreme temporary emergency, localities must provide and in their corporate capacities, must own all necessary school buildings and their equipments.

The respondents herein are in error in assuming that the appeal herein is from their action in making the contracts with the seven teachers named in the appeal, and that as such contracts were made in April 1897, the appeal herein was not taken in time.

The appellants herein do not appeal from the action of the respondent in employing such persons as teachers, but in refusing or neglecting to take action upon the memorial presented to the respondents, and in refusing or neglecting to require such teachers to discontinue the wearing, during school hours and while teaching in the school, of the distinctive dress or garb of the religious order or society of which they are members.

I decide:

That the appellants having given a satisfactory reason for their delay in bringing such appeal, the appeal in that regard was taken in time, under the rules of this Department.

The question raised by the appellants herein, in relation to the wearing by teachers in the public schools of this state of the distinctive garb or dress of the religious order of which such teachers are members, and in being known and addressed by the pupils as "Sister Mary, etc." has several times been brought to the attention of and has received the consideration of this Department.

It has been uniformly held that the wearing of an unusual garb, worn exclusively by members of one religious denomination, and for the purpose of indicating membership in that denomination, by the teachers in a public school, during school hours, while teaching therein, constitutes a sectarian influence which ought not to be persisted in. The same may be said of the pupils addressing such teachers as "Sister Mary, etc." School authorities should require their teachers to discontinue the use in the schoolroom of the distinguishing dress of the religious order to which they belong, and should cause the pupils to address them by their family name with the prefix of "Miss or Mrs" as teachers are ordinarily addressed.

(Decision 3520 of Superintendent Draper, decided March 24, 1887, in the appeal of Leander Colt v. the board of education of union free school district 7 of the village of Suspension Bridge, Niagara county, page 854, etc. of the Report of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for the year ending 1888; also, decision 4516, decided November 25, 1896, in the appeal of Fayette B. Durant and others v. board of education of West Troy school district, page 174, etc. of the Report of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for the year 1897; also, decision 4546, decided May 17, 1897, in the appeal of Samuel Kennedy and others v. the board of education of city of Watervliet, Albany county, in the Report of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction for the year 1898.)

Nothing is presented in the appeal herein to alter, change or modify the decisions of this Department as hereinbefore cited, and such decisions are affirmed, and made operative and obligatory upon the respondents herein.

It appearing that each of the seven teachers mentioned in the appeal herein is under contract to teach in the school in such district until the end of the present school year, and that the dismissal of such teachers by the board of education for the refusal of such teachers to discontinue the wearing of their distinctive garb during school hours and while teaching in such school, would necessitate the employment of other teachers for the balance of the school year, and cause complications in the school district, the directions hereinafter given to the respondents are not to take effect until the end of the present school year.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of school district 9, city of Corning, Steuben county, be, and they are hereby, directed to require all teachers employed by them, to discontinue the wearing during the school hours of each school day in which the school is taught by them, of the distinctive or distinguishing garb or dress of the religious order, society or sisterhood of which they are members.

It is further ordered, That said board of education be, and it hereby is, enjoined and restrained from leasing or using, on or after September 1, 1898, the brick building in which school 2 is now maintained, for the purpose of maintaining or conducting therein any of the public schools of the city of Corning.

5010

In the matter of the appeal of William A. Ferris, Gerrit S. Preston, Horace A. Crane and Alfred K. Bates v. Henry Allen Sylvester, sole trustee of school district no. 9, Lima, Livingston county.

It has been the settled policy of the State since 1848 that localities must own the school buildings in which their public schools are conducted; that the renting of rooms and buildings for school purposes is not authorized, except under extraordinary conditions and to provide for emergencies.

The wearing by the teachers in the public schools, during school hours, while teaching therein, of an unusual garb worn exclusively by members of one religious denomination for the purpose of indicating membership therein, constitutes a sectarian influence, which ought not to be persisted in. It is the duty of the school authorities to require such teachers to discontinue, while in the public schoolroom, and in the performance of their duties as teachers therein, the wearing of such dress or garb.

Decided June 5, 1902

Albert H. Stearns, attorney for appellants

George W. Atwell, jr, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

On April 16, 1902, the above-named appellants filed in this Department their appeal from the action of Henry Allen Sylvester, sole trustee of school district 9, Lima, Livingston county, in leasing for school purposes certain rooms in the building known as "Brendans Hall," situated on Lake avenue in the village of Lima, in said district, and in furnishing heat, light etc., therein, on the ground that such leasing is illegal and void under the Constitution and laws of this State.

The appellants also appeal from the action of such trustee in the employment of two teachers in the school in "Brendans Hall," both of whom they allege are members of the religious order or sisterhood known as "Sisters of Charity," and both of whom, during school hours, dress in the garb or dress peculiar to such order, and are usually addressed by the scholars as "sister" instead of "miss."

They allege that the use of public school money by the trustee in paying said teachers is contrary to the Constitution and laws of this State.

On April 18, 1902, the above-named William A. Ferris and Gerritt S. Preston filed in this Department their withdrawal as appellants in this appeal.

Issue has been joined by service of the usual answer herein.

The following facts are established from the pleadings and proofs filed herein, and the records in this Department.

School district 9, Lima, Livingston county, is a common school district formed many years ago, and comprises the village of Lima, with certain contiguous portions of the town of Lima, and having a population of over 1000. The number of children of school age residing in the district, according to the school census of 1901, was 205. The schoolhouse of the district is a one-story brick building erected in 1860, having two rooms, the larger room having a capacity for seating 40 pupils, and the smaller room a capacity for seating 36 pupils, making a total of 76 pupils. During the present school year the trustee of such district has hired a room in the second story of a block of stores on Rochester street in the village of Lima, in which a school of 20 pupils has been conducted. For a number of years a school of the district, known as the "South School," has been maintained in a brick building situated on Lake avenue in the district, owned by a religious corporation of Lima, under a contract by which the school district pays the sum of $100 annually for heating the rooms in such building in which such "South School" is conducted. On August 22, 1901, Respondent Sylvester, as trustee of such district, employed as teachers in such "South School" Nora O'Connor, at a compensation of $9 per week, and Catherine Dougherty at a compensation of $7 per week, each of whom was a duly qualified teacher under the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and each of them is teaching in such school. The Misses O'Connor and Dougherty are both members of a religious order or sisterhood, and are habitually addressed by the scholars attending such school by the prefix "Sister" instead of "Miss." The assessed valuation of property subject to taxation for school purposes in such district as stated in the report of the trustee for the school year 1900-1, was $550,680.

Since 1848 it has been the settled policy of the State that localities must own the school buildings in which their public schools are conducted; that the renting of rooms and buildings for school purposes is not authorized except under extraordinary conditions and to provide for emergencies.

The wearing of an unusual garb, worn exclusively by members of one religious denomination for the purpose of indicating membership in that denomination, by the teachers in the public schools during school hours while teaching therein, constitutes a sectarian influence which ought not to be persisted in. It is the duty of the school authorities to require such teachers to discontinue, while in the public schoolroom and in the performance of their duties as such teachers therein, the wearing of such dress or garb. (See decision 3250, dated March 24, 1887, by Superintendent Draper in Leander Colt v. board of education of union free school district 7, village of Suspension Bridge, Niagara county. Decision 4510, in the appeal of Durant and others v. board of education of West Troy school district, dated November 25, 1896, made by me. Decision 4540, in the appeal of Kennedy and others v. board of education of the city of Watervliet, Albany county, dated May 15, 1897, made by me. Decision 4642, in the appeal of Lockwood and others v. board of education of school district 9, Corning, Steuben county, dated March 31, 1898, made by me, and decision 4722, in the appeal of Edward Keyser v. board of education of the city of Poughkeepsie, dated December 23, 1898, made by me.)

I decide that the action of the respondent herein, in hiring rooms in which to conduct any of the schools of such district 9, Lima, Livingston county, and in continuing the lease of rooms rented by his predecessors in office, and in conducting schools therein beyond the period of emergency contemplated by the school law, was and is without legal authority.

I further decide that it is the duty of the respondent herein to require teachers employed by him to discontinue in the public schoolroom or rooms the use of the distinguishing dress or garb of any religious order.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that Henry Allen Sylvester, as sole trustee of school district 9, Lima, Livingston county, be and he is hereby directed to require any and all teachers employed by him in the school or schools of such district to discontinue wearing, during the school hours of each school day in which school is taught by them, the distinctive or distinguishing garb or dress of the religious order, society or sisterhood of which they are members.

It is further ordered that said Sylvester, as such trustee, be and he is hereby enjoined and restrained from hiring or using, on and after June 30, 1902, the room in the block or store on Rochester street, in the village of Lima, and the room or rooms in the building on Lake avenue known as "Brendans Hall," in which the school known as the South school is now maintained, for the purpose of maintaining and conducting therein any of the public schools of such district 9, Lima, Livingston county.

RESIDENCE

4901

In the matter of the appeal of Francis B. Taylor from proceedings of annual meeting held August 7, 1900, in school district no. 17, Hempstead, Nassau county.

To acquire a domicile or residence in a school district two things are necessary, the fact of a residence in a place, and the intent to make it a home. A domicile or residence once acquired remains until a new one is acquired. Mere intention to remove without the fact of removing will not change the domicile; nor will the fact of removal without the intention to change the residence. A person, once established in any place, the presumption of residence continues unless rebutted, and the burden of proof is upon the party alleging the same.

Decided November 10, 1900

John Lyon, attorney for respondents

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the annual meeting held on August 7, 1900, in school district 17, Hempstead, Nassau county, in the election of L. Pflug as a trustee of such district for the term of two years, as a successor to the appellant herein, who it was claimed had ceased to be a resident of such district.

The grounds alleged by the appellant for bringing his appeal is that he was, at the time of the said annual meeting, a resident of, and a qualified voter in, such district, and hence, there was no vacancy created by his removal from the district or otherwise, which could be legally filled by the election of any person as trustee, for the unexpired term for which he was elected a trustee.

Messrs Lauer and Hartung, two of the trustees, have united in an answer to the appeal, and to such answer the appellant has made a reply.

It is admitted that the appellant is unmarried and was, on August 1, 1899, and until about the middle of October, 1899, a resident of school district 17, Hempstead, Nassau county; that at the annual meeting held in such district August 1, 1899, he was elected a trustee of such district for the term of three years to succeed one S. Elderl, whose term of office as a trustee then expired; that during the school year of 1899-1900 he acted as one of the trustees of such district and performed all the duties thereof, including the signing, on August 1, 1900, of the annual report of the board of trustees presented to the annual meeting therein held on August 7, 1900, and that he was present at such annual meeting; that at such annual meeting, after the election of Jacob Lauer as a trustee for three years, a motion was made to fill the vacancy in the term of appellant as a trustee, upon the ground of his not being a resident of the district, upon which the appellant stated that he was then a resident of the district and had been, since 1890; that the chairman ordered a vote to be taken of the sentiment of the voters as to whether the appellant was then a resident of the district, with the following result: 4 yeas, 18 noes and 5 blanks; that after the announcement of the result of such vote the appellant again objected to the election of a trustee for two years to fill out his (appellant's) term of office; that a ballot was taken for a trustee for two years to fill out the term of appellant which resulted in the election of L. Pflug.

It is established by the proofs filed herein that the appellant is a lawyer, having an office in the village of Hempstead, Nassau county, in school district 17, and less than a mile from the boundary line between districts 1 and 17; that the appellant is the owner of certain real property situated in school district 17, known as the "Bedell homestead" and, since October 1890, has resided and still resides in said homestead, and in such district 17; that the appellant is, and for the past 10 years has been, a voter in the twelfth election district of Hempstead, in which election district part of school district 17 is situated, and in which election district the "Bedell homestead" is situated.

Inhabitaney and residence mean a fixed and permanent abode or dwelling place for the time being, as distinguished from a mere temporary locality of existence. To acquire a domicile or residence two things are necessary—the fact of a residence in a place, and the intent to make it a home. To retain a residence once acquired, actual residence, however, is not indispensable, but it is retained by the mere intention not to change it or to adopt another, or rather by the absence of any present intention not to change it or adopt another, or by the absence of any present intention of removing therefrom. A domicile once acquired remains until a new one is acquired. Mere intention to remove without the fact of removal will not change a domicile; nor will the fact of removal without intention to change the residence. Once established in any place the presumption of residence continues unless rebutted, and the burden of proof is upon the party alleging the change.

I decide (1) that the respondents herein have failed to establish by a preponderance of proof that the appellant herein, in October 1899 or at any time since October 1900, changed his domicile or residence from school district 17, town of Hempstead, Nassau county; (2) that the appellant herein, on August 7, 1900, was, and still is, a resident of, and a qualified voter in, said school district 17; (3) that the appellant herein was, on August 7, 1900, and still is, a trustee of said school district 17, having been elected such trustee in August 1899 for the term of three years; (4) that the action taken at the annual meeting, held in said district 17, August 7, 1900, that the appellant herein was not then a resident of such district, was without authority of law and void; (5) that the action taken at such annual meeting, held in such school district 17, August 7, 1900, in the election of Pflug as a trustee of such district, was without authority of law and void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that the proceedings taken at the annual meeting, held August 7, 1900, in school district 17, Hempstead, Nassau county, that Francis B. Taylor, the appellant herein was not then a resident of such district be, and the same are, hereby vacated and set aside.

It is further ordered that the proceedings taken at such annual meeting in such school district 17, Hempstead, August 7, 1900, in the election of L. Pflug as a trustee of such school district, be, and the same are, hereby vacated and set aside.

4229

In the matter of the appeal of Edward T. McEnany v. union free school district no. 2, town of Highlands, Orange county.

Where a person has acquired a domicile or residence in any school district in the State and has children of school age, and enters into the employment or service of the United States, such person does not lose his residence and domicile in such school district by reason of his employment elsewhere in the service of the United States, and is entitled to send his children to school in the school district in which he had acquired such domicile or residence.

Decided March 28, 1894

M. H. Hirschberg, attorney for respondent

Crooker, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action and decision of the board of education of union free school district no. 2, town of Highlands, Orange county, in refusing to permit the four children of the appellant to attend the school in said district free. An answer to the appeal herein has been interposed by the respondent.

It appears from the papers presented upon this appeal:

That from December 1879, to May 1882, the appellant resided with his family in said school district no. 2, town of Highlands, and appellant was a qualified voter in said school district, and was then and for a period of five years prior thereto in the employ of the United States on the military post or reservation at West Point; that about May 1, 1881, he moved with his family to West Point upon said military tract or reservation into a United States government building, where he and his family have since resided and still do reside; that the appellant is now and has been since May 1882, in the employ and service of the United States; that the respondents refuse to allow the children of the appellant to attend the schools in such district without payment of tuition.

The appellant on and prior to May 1882, had acquired a domicile or residence in the town of Highlands, Orange county, and in said school district no. 2, town of Highlands, Orange county; such domicile and residence of the appellant was that of his minor children unless such minors had been emancipated from parental control or had been adopted into a new family, and such does not appear to have taken place. To retain a domicile or residence once acquired, actual residence, however, is not indispensable, but is retained by the mere intention not to change it, and a domicile or residence once acquired remains until a new one is acquired.

There is no proof that the appellant has any intent to change or has changed the domicile and residence acquired by him in such school district. The fact of his removal of himself and his family upon the West Point reservation while employed in the service of the United States did not lose him his residence and domicile in such school district, nor gain him a residence or domicile in West Point.

By section 3 of article 2 of the Constitution of the State of New York, it is provided that no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States.

I find and decide that the appellant herein is a resident in union free school district no. 2, town of Highlands, Orange county, and entitled, under the school laws, to send all and any of his children of school age free to the school in said school district.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 2, town of Highlands, Orange county, be, and said board is, hereby directed to receive into the schools in said district, all and any children of school age of the appellant herein, Edward T. McNany, free.

4238

In the matter of the appeal of Mrs E. G. Cuddeback v. board of education of union free school district no. 10, town of Skaneateles, Onondaga county.

A person who has acquired a residence and domicile within a union free school district and whose business necessarily takes him away from the district a large part of the time, and whose wife and son are also temporarily absent from said district, does not lose his residence and domicile in said district, and his domicile and residence is*that of his wife and their child, and such child is entitled to attend the school in the district without payment of tuition.

Decided April 24, 1894

M. E. Dillon, attorney for appellant

Crooker, Superintendent

The appellant appeals from a decision of the respondent, made on November 21, 1893, in refusing to permit her son to attend the school under their jurisdiction without payment of tuition.

It appears from the papers presented that the appellant is a married woman living with her husband, Egbert G. Cuddeback, and they have a son, Clarence Cuddeback, residing with them; that said Egbert G. Cuddeback is engaged in the wholesale produce business, and that such business calls him away from his home the greater portion of his time; that the residence of said Cuddeback is in the village of Skaneateles and in union free school district no. 10 of Skaneateles; that the appellant owns a house and lot in said school district and has resided there for the past sixteen years; that on April 1, 1893, she leased her house until October 1, 1893, and since April 1, 1893, has been temporarily absent from said school district with her son. It affirmatively appears that Mr Cuddeback is a resident of the village of Skaneateles and of school district no. 10, and that the marital relations existing between Mr and Mrs Cuddeback still exist. There can not be any doubt but that Mr Cuddeback acquired a domicile and residence in said school district. To retain such domicile when once acquired, actual residence, however, is not indispensable, but it is retained by the mere intention not to change it or adopt another, or rather, by the absence of any present intention of removing therefrom. A domicile once acquired remains until a new one is acquired. A married woman follows the domicile of her husband. The domicile of the parent is the domicile of a minor, unless such minor has been emancipated from parental control or adopted into a new family, and there is no proof that the son of Mr Cuddeback has been so emancipated or so adopted.

I find and decide that Egbert G. Cuddeback was in the year 1893 a resident of union free school district no. 10, Skaneateles; that the domicile and residence of the appellant herein in 1893 was that of her husband; that the residence of Clarence Cuddeback, the minor son of said Mr and Mrs Cuddeback, in 1893, was that of his parents.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the board of education of union free school district no. 10, Skaneateles, do receive into the schools in said district Clarence Cuddeback, the minor son of Mr and Mrs Cuddeback, free as a resident pupil in said district, and without demanding or receiving any tuition fees for his admission to and attendance in said schools.

5259

In the matter of the appeal of John S. Dennis, Thomas H. Golder and Edmund T. Ker, from the acts of Wm. Bunselmeyer in claiming to be trustee of union free school district no. 9, town of Greenburg, Westchester county.

Renting a room in a school district for the purpose of storing household goods is not sufficient to maintain a residence in the district when an actual home is maintained elsewhere.

Decided May 25, 1906

Henry C. Griffin, attorney for appellants
Frank V. Millard, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

There is no dispute as to the facts in this case. The only question to be determined is whether certain acts of respondent constitute a removal from the district. Respondent Bunselmeyer was elected trustee of school district no. 9, town of Greenburg, Westchester co., on August 2, 1905. His wife owned a house and lot in the district in which Bunselmeyer and his family resided. In March 1906 Mrs Binselmeyer sold the house and lot. Respondent was unable to rent another house in the district and on April 2, 1906, moved his family into another district in which he had rented a house. Since that time his child has attended school in the district into which he has moved. It does not appear that he has any business interests in district no. 9. He also rented one room in a house in district no. 9, Greenburg, and placed therein certain pieces of property. Respondent also claims that he owns a lot in district no. 9 and that he intends to erect a house on such lot. He does not show when he intends to erect such house or that he is making any preparation to erect it. Renting a room in a school district for the purpose of storing a few household goods, is not sufficient to maintain a residence in the district when an actual home is maintained elsewhere. A trustee of a school district should be accessible to the residents of the district and should actually reside in the district so that he may be in touch with the needs of the school and the wishes of the inhabitants of the district. Under section 29, title 7 of the Consolidated School Law removal from the district vacates the office of trustee.

I decide, That the acts of respondent constitute a removal from the district and that he thereby vacated the office of trustee. This vacancy has existed since April 2, 1906 and Respondent Binselmeyer has not been a legal trustee of district no. 9, Greenburg, since that date and has not therefore been legally entitled to meet with the board of education of that district since such date. As more than thirty days have elapsed since such vacancy occurred the school commissioner has the power to fill such vacancy by appointment. The board of education may fill such vacancy if action is taken before the school commissioner makes an appointment.

5228

In the matter of the appeal of Orville T. Smith from the action of the board of education of school district no. 1, town of Catskill, Greene county.

A board of education may legally suspend a nonresident pupil until the tuition for which he is chargeable is paid.

A man who hires a house and lives in a district a portion of the time for the "comfort and convenience of business" is not necessarily a resident of such district.

If such arrangement is only temporary and he has an established permanent home elsewhere his residence must be regarded in the district of such permanent home.

Decided December 5, 1905

James H. Van Gelder, attorney for appellant

H. L. Austin, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

On October 31, 1905, the board of education of school district no. 1, Catskill, Greene county, suspended the 12 year old son of appellant from the school privileges of said district. The cause of this suspension was the failure or refusal of appellant to pay the regular tuition charged to him for the attendance of his son at the schools of said district as a nonresident pupil. After his son had been suspended by the board of education appellant, under protest, paid the tuition in question so that his son might be accorded the school privileges of the Catskill schools. He then brought this appeal from the action of the board of education in charging him tuition for his son's attendance and also from the action of the board in suspending his son.

It is not clear from the moving papers in this appeal on what ground appellant claims the right to send his child to the Catskill school without the payment of tuition. The inference is that he claims a bona fide residence in the Catskill district, although he does not, as pointed out by the attorney for respondent, even allege that he is a resident of such district. Appellant states that he rents certain property in the district; that he is engaged in business in the district and that during a portion of the year his family lives or resides in the district. These conditions are not sufficient to make him a resident of this district. He states that "for the comfort and convenience of business he hires a house in Catskill and moves there in the fall." He could do this and still be a nonresident. If appellant claims to be a resident of district no. 1, Catskill, and therefore entitled to send his children to school in that district he must affirmatively show that he is an actual resident of the district. His pleadings do not show this and on his moving papers the appeal should be dismissed. The pleadings of respondent show conclusively that appellant is not a resident of the district, that he owns real estate and maintains a permanent residence in school district no. 2, Catskill, that at the last general election he voted in the election district in which his residence is located and that such election district does not include any part of the village of Catskill, and that his residence in district no. 1, Catskill, is only temporary and for his "comfort and convenience" in business matters and to obtain for his son the advantages afforded by the Catskill schools.

The board of education was lawfully protecting the interests of the district in charging appellant tuition for his son's attendance at school and appellant's failure or refusal to pay such tuition was good ground for suspending the child from school privileges.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

4084

In the matter of the appeal of D. L. Spaulding v. board of trustees of union free school district no. 1, town of Austerlitz, Columbia county.

Right to attend school. When children whose home has been broken up are brought to the residence of one who stands in the place of the parent, to find care and protection for an indefinite period, they become residents of the district in which said person resides.

Decided June 3, 1892

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is brought from the refusal of the board of trustees of union free school district no. 1 of Austerlitz, Columbia county, N. Y., to allow one Roscoe Hamm to attend the public school in said district without paying tuition therefor, and for suspending him from school until such tuition shall be paid.

The following facts appear from the papers upon this appeal:

The appellant, with his family, resides in union free school district no. 1, town of Ansterlitz, Columbia county, N. Y. Roscoe Hamm, a nephew of appellant, of the age of 12 years, resides with the appellant. The mother of said Roscoe Hamm is dead. His father is a poor man, and a day laborer, having no permanent domicile, and at present working in the state of Connecticut, and unmarried. The appellant, under authority from the father, has taken the said boy into his family, to care for, manage and correct him as if he were the son of the appellant, and without receiving any compensation therefor from the father. The boy has been attending the school in said district. That on April 20, 1892, the respondents, by resolutions adopted, declared that the said Roscoe Hamm, in their opinion, was not a resident of said district, and that the secretary of respondents be instructed to present a tuition bill for the last two terms to the appellant, and to notify appellant that if such bill was not paid by him or other relatives of said boy, the said Roscoe Hamm could no longer be allowed to attend said school. The bill for tuition was presented to appellant, who declined to pay it. The boy attended the school the following week, when the principal of the school, acting under directions of respondents, suspended the boy from attendance at school until the tuition bill should be paid.

The question involved in this appeal is that of residence, and it is often a difficult one to decide. The facts in this case establish that the appellant has taken the boy for an indefinite period to care for and manage, and establishes such a substantial adoption of the boy as to make him a resident of the district and entitled to the privileges of the school. It has been the rule of this Department that when children, whose home has been broken up, are brought to the residence of one who stands in the place of the parent, to find care and protection for an indefinite period, they become residents of the district in which said person lives.

The appeal is sustained, and the board of trustees of union free school district no. 1 of the town of Austerlitz, county of Columbia, is hereby directed to admit Roscoe Hamm to the privileges of the school in said district as a resident thereof.

In the matter of the appeal of Joseph S. Hamlin v. the board of education of union free school district no. 2 of the town of Trenton, county of Oneida.

The granddaughter of the appellant, whose parents reside in the state of Missouri, and, from anything that appears, are able to maintain and educate their children, is temporarily residing with the appellant in Trenton, Oneida county. Such residence is subject to be terminated at her option or that of her parents. The appellant does not occupy the relation of a parent or guardian to his said granddaughter. Held, that such granddaughter is not entitled to the privileges of the school in the district where the appellant resides without payment of tuition.

Decided June 10, 1892

Crooker, Superintendent

This is an appeal from a resolution and decision of the board of education of union free school district no. 2 of the town of Trenton, county of Oneida, refusing to allow Louisa Gosnell, a grandchild of the appellant, residing with him, to attend said school without the payment of tuition.

From the papers filed with this Department upon said appeal, the following facts are established:

That the appellant resides and is a taxpayer in said school district. That he is about 82 years of age. That his family consists of his wife, who is about 74 years of age; his daughter, Ada Hamlin; his grandson, Walter Hamlin, and a servant, Harriet Carpenter. That his granddaughter, Louisa Gosnell, who resided with her parents in Westport, Mo., at the request of her grandmother and her aunt, in or about February 1891, with the consent of her parents, came to reside in the family of the appellant. That the appellant had no knowledge that his said granddaughter was to come to his residence until her arrival. That the traveling expenses of said granddaughter from Missouri were paid by appellant or some of his family. That the arrangement under which the said granddaughter came to reside in the family of the appellant, as appears from the testimony of Miss Hamlin, was that a servant who had been in the employ of the family of appellant for some years left said employment. That in a conversation had between the mother of the granddaughter and Miss Hamlin, the mother had stated that if said servant left she (the mother) would let one of her daughters come to appellants to assist them. That Miss Hamlin wrote to the mother requesting that said Louisa come and remain a year or two or more and they would pay her traveling expenses. That in about three weeks the said Louisa came to appellant's residence. That during the residence of said Louisa with appellant, he has furnished her board and clothes and she has taken lessons in music from Miss Hamlin. That the said Louisa does the cooking, fine ironing, helps with the sweeping, and looks after her grandfather. That she is about 17 years of age. That the mother of said Louisa stated to her daughter and wrote to Miss Hamlin that she did not want her daughter to go to school, but desired her to devote her time to music. That said Louisa did not wish to attend school, but upon the request and advice of Miss Hamlin in or about September 1891, commenced to attend the union free school in district no. 2, in Trenton, Oneida county, and continued to attend said school during the term in the months of September and October 1891. That on or about October 30, 1891, the respondents adopted the following resolution: "Resolved, That Louisa Gosnell and Walter Hamlin are not considered by this board as resident pupils, and that Joseph Hamlin, the person with whom they reside, be notified that they must pay tuition within one week from date (October 30, 1891), or they will not be allowed to attend the school after that time." That a letter of H. A. Pride, secretary of respondents, under date of November 2, 1891, containing such resolution, was delivered to the appellant. That at a meeting of respondents held on or about November 7, 1891, said respondents decided that said Walter Hamlin was entitled to the privileges of said school. That the appellant thereupon brought an appeal from the decision of respondents that said Louisa Gosnell was not a resident of said district and not entitled to the privileges of said school without payment for tuition.

It is clearly established by the foregoing facts that the said Louisa Gosnell did not come to reside in the family of the appellant for the purpose of attending school. The sole question presented by this appeal is as to the residence of Louisa Gosnell. The question of residence is often one difficult to decide. The residence of a minor is usually that of the parents or guardian. The residence of the parents of Louisa Gosnell is in the state of Missouri. They are possessed there of a home, at which, for anything that appears upon this appeal, they are able to maintain, care for and educate their children. The appellant does not occupy the relation of a parent or guardian to his granddaughter. Her residence in his family is but temporary, subject to be terminated at her option or that of her parents. In my opinion the said Louisa Gosnell is not a resident of union free school district no. 2 of the town of Trenton, and not therefore entitled to the privileges of the school in said district without payment of tuition.

The appeal is dismissed.

SCHOOLS

3993

In the matter of the appeal of citizens of Elmira, N. Y., v. the board of education of the city of Elmira.

The corporate authorities of a city having neglected to provide by tax the sums needed for the support of the public schools of such city for the school year, the board of education assumed to close the schools and dismiss the teachers employed; held, That the closure of the public schools, except in special cases, is contrary to the laws of the State.

The board of education directed to open the schools. The corporate authorities directed to levy a tax for the amount needed for school purposes for the school year.

Decided September 4, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

Chapter 113 of the Laws of 1859, as amended from time to time, is a somewhat comprehensive special statute providing for the administration of the schools of the city of Elmira. Among other things this act provides (section 20, subdivision 11) that the board of education shall annually, before the day for the last meeting of the common council in March, determine and certify to the common council the sums deemed necessary for the maintenance of the schools for the year commencing on the 1st day of September thereafter.

In accordance with this direction the board of education duly determined and certified that the sum of $49,340 would be needed for the purposes named.

The statute (section 21) directs the common council, upon the receipt of the estimates of the board of education, to proceed to consider the same and to approve, increase or diminish the same, but prohibits the council from reducing the sum below a sum sufficient to defray all the necessary expenses of the public schools, including the academy, and after fixing the amount to be expended for the purposes named, to certify the same back to the board of education, which body is required to limit its expenditures to the amount so fixed.

The common council proceeded to the discharge of this statutory duty and on the 25th day of May fixed and determined the amount deemed necessary for school purposes for the ensuing year, at the said sum of $49,340.

Section 12 of the act makes it the duty of the common council to raise by tax the sum so determined upon, and section 13 directs that it "shall be levied and collected in the same manner, by the same collector and at the same time that other city taxes are."

The charter of the city provides the machinery for collecting city taxes, but instead of being in operation as to the special school act contemplated is at a standstill in consequence of disagreement in the council as to the amount to be raised for such city taxes. Although the statute requires that the assessment rolls with the tax warrant shall be delivered to the city chamberlain as the collecting officer on or before the 15th day of June in each year, this has not yet been done in the present year.

In view of this blockade of the machinery for raising taxes and because of the apprehension that funds for meeting the expenses of the schools would not be provided, and of the disinclination to incur an indebtedness not provided for, the board of education on the 29th of July determined to close the schools for the ensuing school year and took formal action to that effect.

From this action an appeal was brought to this Department by numerous residents of Elmira.

In communications to the board and in conference with a committee thereof, the Superintendent informally expressed his opinion that the board, in taking this action, fell into an error. The State undertakes to provide a common school within reach of every home. It insures this by raising some $4,000,000 through a general State tax levy for the support of a general system of common schools, and by providing for the organization and management of such a system. It authorizes localities to do as much more as they will to augment or perfect this system. It does not permit them to overthrow it. In one part of the State it provides for raising moneys, over and above what the State provides, in one way and in another part in another way. In one place it causes this system to be administered by local officers chosen in one way and in another place by officers chosen in another way. The particular way is largely left to the wishes of the locality. But everywhere the common schools are part and parcel of a general system. This is so in Elmira. No local authority, much less the failure to discharge an official and statutory duty can be permitted to stop their operation. The schools there have fortunately been organized upon a broader basis than the State required. Local intelligence and pride may always be relied upon to do this. The residents of Elmira desired this. In deference to their wishes the Legislature provided for it by enacting special statutes for the government of the schools of that city. These special statutes only supplement the general school laws of the State. All must be read and construed together. Having organized a city system of schools upon such a basis it must be operated on that basis. The statute makes the expenses thereof a city charge. The city authorities are directed by law to raise the money and how to raise it. If they fail to perform their duty they may be compelled to do it. If they do not raise the money and are not compelled to, the schools are to proceed all the same and teachers, employees and others acquire a right of action against the city for services or necessary supplies, which the courts will enforce.

Acting upon this view of their duty in the premises, the board of education on August 28th, rescinded their resolution of July 29th, determining to close the schools, and directed that they be opened at the usual time in September.

Having taken this step, the board, very properly presents the question as to whether there is not a way of requiring the city authorities to proceed with the collection of the tax without forcing teachers and others to the necessity of many suits against the city.

If there is a way it is manifestly to the interest of all concerned that it should be followed. As the amount to be raised for the schools is not a subject of controversy, as it has been absolutely fixed and determined in the manner provided by law, it is undoubtedly desired by the citizens of Elmira that its collection shall forthwith proceed in order to avoid, so far as possible, the annoyances which are impending.

The Elmira school act provides (section 13) that the amount to be collected in the city for school purposes "shall be levied and collected in the same manner, by the same collector and at the same time that other city taxes are."

The only thing in the way of the collection of the school taxes proceeding at once, and without awaiting the solution of the controversy in reference to other city taxes, is the provision that all shall be collected at the same time. But all the statutes relating to the matter must be read together. The legislative purpose in the premises is not to be determined by the literal wording of a single clause separated out from pages of statutory law bearing upon the matter. It is clear that the Legislature intended that the amount determined to be necessary for the support of the school establishment of Elmira should be collected. Its collection was not to take place upon the happening of some contingency. The moneys in question are for the expenses of the school year commencing September 1, 1891, which has already been entered upon. They are now needed to meet the expenses of the work which the Legislature directed to be carried on. The Legislature intended that they should be ready for use when needed. The direction that these moneys should be collected at the same time as other city taxes, was only for convenience and no essential part of the scheme. Suppose it should so happen that in any year no other city taxes are to be collected. Would any one contend that no school moneys could be raised? The provision as to time was not mandatory but only directory, and was made upon the confident expectation that other city taxes would be collected prior to the month of September in each year. There would seem, therefore, no good reason why, under existing circumstances, the city authorities should not have proceeded with the collection of the school moneys, or why they may not do so at any time. Nor is there any apparent reason sufficient to prevent their being compelled to do so by ordinary legal process.

But regardless of this the Legislature has evidently intended that the collection of taxes for school purposes shall not depend upon any local considerations whatever.

The Consolidated School Act (chapter 555, Laws of 1864, title 11) provides that any person conceiving himself aggrieved by any act or decision concerning any matter pertaining to common schools may appeal to the State Superintendent, and requires that officer to hear and decide the same and makes his decision final and conclusive. Section 2, subdivision 4 of the title above named provides that the Superintendent shall have power "to make all orders by directing the levying of taxes or otherwise which may in his judgment be necessary to give effect to his decision."

Arriving at the determination hereinbefore set forth upon the matters submitted, and in order to give effect to his decision that the schools must be kept in operation, the Superintendent

Orders that the clerk of the city of Elmira forthwith proceed to extend and apportion the amount fixed and determined by the common council of said city as necessary to be raised for the expenses of the schools of said city for the year commencing September 1, 1891, namely: the sum of $49,340 on the assessment rolls of said city, and to file the same and make a full duplicate or copy thereof with the tax so extended and apportioned and certify the same in the manner required by law, and shall deliver the same to the chamberlain of said city, and the said chamberlain shall thereupon proceed to collect from the several persons named in the said assessment rolls the sums set opposite their respective names. Said clerk and chamberlain will in preparing the rolls and collecting said school taxes proceed as directed by the statutes relating to the levying and collection of taxes in said city of Elmira, but without the formal authority of the common council or the warrant of the mayor of said city, and this order shall be their warrant and authority for so doing.

CLOSING OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Action of a board of education in resolving to close public schools for the reason that the corporate authorities upon whom the duty to provide funds devolves by law, neglect to provide necessary means, will not be upheld.

Statutes providing for the raising by tax of moneys for school purposes in the city of Elmira, set forth and considered.

Teachers under contract of employment would have a remedy by law, if wages provided for by contracts were in default, although prevented from teaching by reason of the closing of the schools.

State of New York, Department of Public Instruction

Superintendent's Office, Albany, N. Y., August 4, 1891

E. J. Beardsley, Esq., Superintendent of Schools, Elmira, N. Y.:

SIR: On the first instant I received by your hand petitions signed by many citizens of Elmira, addressed to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, praying him to intervene and prevent certain resolutions adopted by the board of education of said city on the 20th day of July, and determining to close the public schools of said city during the next school year from taking effect. You also handed me a paper signed by the members of the board of education assuring me that the statements contained in the petitions were true and consenting that I should make whatever answer I deemed proper in the matter, without notice to the board or any of its members.

While evidently intending that the matter shall be brought before me by way of appeal from the action of the board, the rules governing the practice in appeals to the Department have not been complied with and the usual course would be to return the papers that they might be perfected and completed. It is important, however, that there shall be no unavoidable delay in a matter of so much general concern, and I have therefore deemed it advisable to at once express my views of the subject rather than compel the board and the petitioners to await the slow progress of a formal appeal.

It seems that the board following the statute under which it operated (chap. 113, Laws 1859) certified to the common council of the city that the sum of $49,340 would be necessary to meet the expenses of the schools of the city for the school year beginning September 1, 1891, and that upon the 25th day of May the common council considered and approved the said estimate. The statute provides that moneys for school purposes "shall be levied and collected in the same manner, by the same collector and at the same time that other city taxes are," but it is generally known that the warrant for the collection of other city taxes has not yet been issued, although the same should have been in the hands of the chamberlain prior to the 15th day of June 1891, in consequence of a controversy in the common council touching taxes for other than school purposes, but of the precise nature of which I am not advised.

The board of education therefore appears to conclude that funds may not be available for school expenses during the next year, and with manifest unwillingness resolves that the schools be closed during the year.

I have given the subject such consideration as I have been able during the limited time afforded me and with the greatest respect for the opinion of the board, I am led to say that it seems clear to me that the action of the board can not be justified.

The public school laws of the State, applicable in Elmira as elsewhere, and the special statutes particularly applicable there, contemplate that schools shall be continuously maintained, save only at such times as may be deemed necessary for the purposes of recreation. It has been repeatedly held that local boards or officers have no power to discontinue schools. All the statutes exemplify this intention of the Legislature. Let us instance one that is particularly applicable in this case. The Elmira school law (section 21 as amended February 21, 1866) guards against the closure of the schools by expressly providing that upon the receipt of the estimates of the board of education "the common council shall proceed to consider the same, and approve, increase or diminish any or all of said estimates; provided, however, that the aggregate amount shall not fall below a sum sufficient to defray all the necessary expenses for the support of the public schools in the school district of Elmira, including the academy, for the ensuing year." Fortunately the common council has performed this duty and approved the estimates for the expenses of the schools as presented by the board of education. The statute requires the board to limit its expenditures to the sum so fixed and approved, but does it not justify the board in assuming that such sum will be available for the purposes named?

Q. Are all the provisions of the general school laws and these special provisions in the case of the city of Elmira to be neutralized and set aside because a common council has delayed the issuance of a tax warrant longer than it should have done?

I am clearly of the opinion that the board has no authority to close the schools for a year nor for any length of time (usual vacations excepted), unless something occurs which necessarily stops their operation, and then only until the obstacle can be removed. Has any such thing yet occurred in Elmira? I think not. The schoolhouses have not been burned. There is no contagious disease prevailing. The teachers have not refused to act. No warrant has even been dishonored. An apprehension that one may be at some time in the future is not enough. In public administration it is well not to attempt to cross troublesome bridges until they are reached.

I observe that the board resolved that "persons engaged to teach be released from such engagement." But suppose they prefer not to be released? It takes two to make an engagement and two to unmake one. The board can not discharge the persons who have been engaged to teach the public schools of Elmira without their consent, because of the possibility that there may not be money with which to pay them. These teachers are entitled to have the city fulfill its engagement. They will be entitled to their pay or to such legal damages as they may suffer and can require the city to make them good by actions in the courts. In the event of possible contingencies let that course be taken. Aside from the requirements of the school laws, the board would surely not be justified in subjecting the city to this liability without securing to the city the benefit of the services of these teachers.

It occurs to me that it is very usual for city charters to forbid the incurring of any city liability beyond the amount in the treasury for meeting the expenses, and that the board may apprehend trouble from such a provision in the Elmira charter. Without the facilities for conveniently referring to such provisions which may exist and without stopping to look them up, it seems proper to me to suggest to the board that they may well distinguish between a liability imposed by law or already legally incurred, and some new and unusual liability for which legal provision has not been made. Liability for teachers' wages and other ordinary expenses of the schools are of the former class. The city is liable for such expenses under the law and without any new or affirmative action of the board, and the board need apprehend no personal or other liability from proceeding upon this assumption.

So I conclude that there has been no sufficient justification for determining to close the schools, and accordingly that the board has exceeded its authority; that it should forthwith rescind its action, open the schools as usual and go on in the ordinary way until something occurs to absolutely prevent their operation. If in the course of time, funds are not provided in the ordinary way for meeting the expenses, let legal claims be enforced by legal remedies. Attempt to cross streams only when they are reached and if bridges are then found to be gone, cross in some other way. If any bridges are now down it is more than likely that they will be repaired before the schools get there. In any event I am quite certain that the people of Elmira will stand by the board of education in going on with the schools, even though they be obliged to meet unusual difficulties with unusual means. The greater their embarrassments, the more thoroughly will they be sustained. I am, yours very respectfully,

A. S. DRAPER,
Superintendent

CLOSING OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The law contemplates that public schools shall be open continuously (save during reasonable vacations).

Failure of corporate authorities to provide moneys required for the support of schools, no justification for the school authorities in closing same.

Liability incurred by the employment of teachers can not be evaded by closure of schools.

State of New York, Department of Public Instruction

Superintendent's Office, Albany, N. Y., August 26, 1891

To the Board of Education, Elmira, N. Y.:

Referring to an interview with Messrs Joslyn and Cooley on the 25th instant, in relation to certain resolutions adopted by your board on the 29th of July, determining to close the schools of the city of Elmira the next school year, in consequence of the failure of the common council of that city to issue a warrant for the collection of taxes for the support of the schools, I very respectfully advise you that my views upon the subject were very fully set forth in a communication to Mr E. J. Beardsley, superintendent of schools of the city of Elmira, on the 4th instant, which I will be glad to have the board consider as intended for its information and guidance. I have nothing of consequence to add to that communication other than that more reflection confirms the views therein expressed. It seems to me that the board erred in determining to close the schools. The law contemplates they shall be open continuously (save reasonable vacations), and undertakes to provide the means for maintenance and make certain that its purpose is not thwarted or overthrown. The board is to assume that the moneys for meeting expenses will be provided when actually needed. If the common council fails to perform its duty in the premises, the board of education can not help it. It should continue to perform its duty just the same. The city will become liable for the expenses and the same may be collected by due process of law. Even though the city be harassed with suits and saddled with costs and expenses, the board will not be responsible for it, for it will not be the cause of it. It will only perform the duty which the law imposes and which its members have sworn to perform. It can not properly do less than this. It may very properly use every reasonable means for removing the obstacle which clogs the machinery set up for collecting school taxes but the schools must proceed with their vital and beneficent work whether such efforts are successful or not. If the ordinary processes for raising school moneys are paralyzed, others will have to be resorted to. If public liability is incurred, it will not be the work of the members of the board, but of the law which governs them and which will not permit its purposes to be overthrown. I entertain no doubt of the duty of the board in the premises. It is clear to me that it should forthwith rescind its action of July 29th and open the schools at the usual time.

I am, very respectfully

A. S. DRAPER,
Superintendent

3706

In the matter of the appeal of L. Z. Miller v. school district no. 39, town of Hector, county of Schuyler.

A school was closed for one week because of the prevalence or fear of an epidemic disease. Held, That a teacher was entitled to pay for the time the school was so closed, within the term of her employment, the same as if school had been continued.

Decided August 24, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant was employed by the board of education of district no. 39, in the town of Hector, Schuyler county, to teach the school in said district for the term of sixteen weeks, commencing on the 26th day of September 1887, at three dollars per day, and entered upon his employment. Such employment afterward seems to have been continued by agreement of the parties up to the summer of 1888. During the week between the 15th and 22d days of November 1887, the school was closed because of the prevalence or the fear of an epidemic disease. The board has never paid the teacher for that week. The teacher has demanded pay and been refused, and brings this appeal for the purpose of determining his right to such compensation. The board admits the employment and admits that the school was closed at the time for the reason specified by the teacher, and also admits the demand for compensation for such week and their refusal to pay the same. They set forth two reasons in justification of such refusal: first, they say that the school was closed but not by order of the board of education; second, they say that they had settled with the appellant from time to time and that no claim was made for compensation for the week during which the school was closed until about the time of the close of the school for the year.

There is no force in the claim of the board that the school was closed without permission or action on the part of the board. It is clear, from the papers, that it was closed by the consent of all three members of the board, and indeed in accordance with their judgment and wish. If the business of the board was transacted in an irregular way, it certainly is not for them to take advantage of it. The second reason assigned by the board for refusing the claim of the teacher, has addressed itself to my mind much more seriously. It is clear that when in the midst of a term of employment the school is closed by reason of circumstances for which the teacher is in no wise responsible and he continues ready to fulfill his agreement at all times, he is entitled to pay the same as though the school had been in operation. It is true that such claim ought to be asserted by the teacher promptly. He ought not to settle accounts with the board, receiving no pay for a portion of his time, and, at the same time disclosing no claim to it. I have carefully weighed what is said by the respective parties touching this point of the case. From it I conclude that there never was any conclusive settlement between the parties. The board paid the teacher, on account, wages from time to time; it is probable that they may have paid him all they understood they owed him; but I am unable to find that at any time the teacher did anything which must be held as a waiver of his claim. No receipts are produced and no proof is offered that he in any way acknowledged that he had received all that was due him. It is to be borne in mind also that the teacher was an employee of the board and that his employment was continued until the summer of 1888, and that he was in a position which might, although it ought not to, cause him to be less independent about the matter than he otherwise would. It is also shown that he made claim to this week's compensation upon the termination of his employment. It is clear that under the law he was entitled to pay for the week in question and that he never has been paid. The only question is, whether his course was such as to bar him from now asserting his right to the compensation in dispute. I am of the opinion that it would have been better for him to have made his claim more promptly, but I can not conclude that he has waived his rights in the premises.

I therefore sustain the appeal and direct the respondents to draw their order in settlement of one week's wages of the appellant, according to the terms of their agreement with him.

3973

In the matter of the appeal of Robert C. Roberts and others v. school district no. 9, town of Marcy, county of Oneida.

A school district meeting voted to close the district school. From such action an appeal is taken. The evidence shows that the school was not closed. Held, that the appeal was prematurely taken; that the action of the district was not controlling upon the trustee. Decided April 21, 1891

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought by three electors of school district no. 9, town of Marcy, county of Oneida, upon the following ground:

That, at a special meeting of the district, held February 24, 1891, the meeting voted to close the school in said district until the next annual meeting. They allege that they are parents of children of school age, residing in the district, and object to the closing of the school.

From the answer of the respondent, it appears that this action was taken by the district meeting, but that the school has not been closed and is still in session. It is also made to appear by the answer, although it is unnecessary to consider it upon this appeal, that there has been a very small attendance at the school held in the district, for some time past. At times, there has been no attendance by pupils, and the average daily attendance has not, during the past term, amounted to four.

This appeal has been taken prematurely. The action of the district meeting is not controlling upon the trustee. If I were to reverse the action of the meeting, it would in no way change the condition of affairs in the district.

I therefore dismiss the appeal.

3794

In the matter of the appeal of Silas C. Kimm v. the board of education of union free school district no. 1, of the town of Hermon, county of St Lawrence.

The law directs that schools be closed during the time a teachers institute is being held, and requires attendance at the institute of teachers without loss of pay.

Boards of education are not authorized to determine whether a teacher shall attend or not; they have no discretion in the matter.

A memorandum of hiring, which authorized a teacher to attend a teachers institute, provided the teacher would make up the time so spent at the end of a term; held an attempt to avoid the effect of a plain provision of law, namely, that teachers shall be paid for time spent in attendance at institutes, just as if school had been taught by them that week, and therefore void.

Decided July 29, 1889

De Coster & Newberry, attorneys for appellant

Worth Chamberlain, attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant was employed to teach the school in the above-named district during the school year 1888-89. The memorandum of employment was as follows:

Hermon, N. Y., May 2, 1888

This is to certify that I have been empowered by the board of education of the Hermon school to employ S. C. Kimm to teach said school for one year of thirty-nine weeks, beginning on such a day in August of 1888, as the board may desire, with the usual vacations between terms. I hereby promise to pay him the sum of $800 for said year's term of service. But if, at the close of any term of school, it is found that he is not working for the interests of said school, we reserve the right to refuse to continue him in our service.

I also agree to allow him to attend a teachers institute which may be held in this commissioner district, provided that he will make up such time at end of the term during which said institute occurs.

S. C. KIMM

Teacher

C. H. RISLEY

President

The appellant taught thirty-nine weeks and also attended the teachers institute one week. He claims an extra week's pay therefor. His appeal is from a refusal to pay the same.

The board admit the contract, but contend that under it the teacher was to teach thirty-nine weeks and attend the institute one week, for $800. The board also claims that the teacher failed to perform his agreement in other particulars. They say he agreed to spend his time for four weeks, prior to the opening of the school, looking up pupils for the school, by which, I suppose they mean, he was to exert himself to induce nonresident pupils to attend the school, and also that he promised to hold a school exhibition to raise money for the benefit of the district, and that he failed to keep these promises. They claim the right to offset the loss which they allege they sustained through such failure against his claim for an extra week's wages.

It may be well doubted whether a contract with a teacher that he should spend time endeavoring to secure the attendance of nonresident pupils, and that he should hold an exhibition to raise money for the district could be upheld and enforced. But independent of that question, it is apparent to me that this claim of an offset is an afterthought on the part of the board. They have tendered him the balance of the year's salary without claiming any right to make a deduction for failure to fulfil his agreement, and it does not seem to me that their claim of that character, under the present circumstances, is entitled to much weight.

The paragraph in the memorandum of employment, concerning attendance upon the institute, shows a misconception of the law in that connection on the part of the board. In this memorandum, the president of the board says: "I also agree to allow him to attend a teachers institute which may be held in this commissioner district, provided that he will make up such time," etc. It is not for the board to allow a teacher to attend an institute. The law does that. The board can not require time spent in attendance upon an institute to be made up. The law directs that the schools shall be closed; that the teachers shall attend the institute, and shall be paid for their time in so doing. The board has no discretion in the matter, nor can it by any circumlocution avoid the payment of teachers' wages while attending the institute.

It is impossible for me to arrive at any other conclusion than that the board undertook to rid itself of all responsibility for the teacher's wages while he should attend the institute. The memorandum certifies that the employment was for thirty-nine weeks for $800. If the teacher attended the institute, the board would allow it, provided the week was made up. This is precisely what the statute forbids. There is an institute in every district every year. The district has no option in the matter. The law does not contemplate any making up of time spent in the institute. It does require that the district shall pay wages if the teacher attends the institute, precisely as though he had taught school.

I have considered the question whether the teacher did not bar himself from exacting an extra week's pay, by reason of the fact that he accepted this memorandum without raising any question about the provisions in reference to institutes. I am of the opinion that he came short of doing what he should have done at that time. He should have had a clear understanding, at once, about the institute matter. But I do not think he can be held to have waived his rights under the statute.

The appeal is therefore sustained, and the district directed to settle with the appellant for one extra week of service at the rate of $800 for thirty-nine weeks.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS—ALTERATION OF

The provision requiring three months' notice to trustees of an alteration in their school district is intended for their protection, and to that end is to be benignly construed.

Decided December 26, 1828

Flagg, Superintendent

In September 1827, Messrs Reuben Stearns and Nathaniel W. Ingraham were set off from district no. 10 in the town of Locke, and attached to district no. 9 in the same town. In November ensuing, Ingraham was elected a trustee of the latter district, and officiated in that capacity until November 1828. There was no evidence on record of the alteration above mentioned having been made with the consent of the trustees of district no. 10, or that any notice had been served on them by the commissioners; but they were notified of the intention of the commissioners to set off the two individuals referred to, and of the time and place of meeting for the purpose. In November 1828, a tax was voted in district no. 9 to build a schoolhouse, when a doubt was raised by one of them, whether they had been legally set off from no. 10. The facts were submitted to the Superintendent for his opinion.

Messrs Stearns and Ingraham petitioned the commissioners of common schools to be detached from district no. 10 to no. 9, and in September 1827, their petition was granted; and Ingraham was elected a trustee of no. 9, in which capacity he served until November 1828. The alteration of district no. 10 by attaching them to no. 9, appears to have been recorded in the usual manner under the old law. Whether the trustees of no. 10 were originally willing to gratify Messrs Stearns and Ingraham in their request to be annexed to no. 9 or not, and whether notice was served or not, can not after so long a time affect the relations of Messrs S. and I. with the trustees and inhabitants of no. 9. The provision requiring the consent of trustees to detach persons from their district, and holding them three months without such consent, was made for the benefit and protection of the trustees, to whose injury the alteration might operate. For instance, trustees might have made contracts and incurred responsibilities, which would operate oppressively, if some of the most wealthy were detached before they had time to collect the tax. In such cases the trustees are effectually protected by their veto upon the formation of the district for three months, in which time they can collect their tax. And to carry this intention into effect, the act should be benignly and favorably construed for the protection of the trustees. But in relation to Messrs Stearns and Ingraham, none of these reasons can avail them; they desired to be set to no. 9, and were gratified. The trustees of no. 10, from their silence in the matter, seem to have acquiesced; and as the trustees have not sought to retain Messrs S. and I., and more than a year has elapsed, they must be considered as having been legally attached to no. 9.

Town superintendents (school commissioners) have no authority to alter the boundaries of a school district, if the same have been established by this Department upon appeal, until after the lapse of three years from the time they were so established, without express permission of the State Superintendent.

Decided May 12, 1855

Rice, Superintendent

The appellants, in making their annual report, enumerated, among the children of their district, the five children of Mr William Raynor. In making his apportionment, the town superintendent deducted these children from the enumeration of district no. 22, on the ground that they and their father were residents of the adjoining district, no. 21. The trustees of the latter district answered the appeal.

It appears from the evidence that the farm of Mr Raynor was taken from district no. 22, some five or six years since, and annexed to district no. 21, by an order of the town superintendent, that officer not being aware that the line between the said districts had been established in 1830, by the State Superintendent, upon appeal.

It has been held that town superintendents have no power to alter the boundaries of a school district, if the same have been established by this Department, upon appeal, unless consent shall have been previously given by the State Superintendent for such alteration. This rule was established to prevent the decisions of the Department from being deprived of any practical effect, as might be the case, if immediately after the decision a new order could be made precisely or substantially similar to the one which has been set aside.

This reason fails, however, when lapse of time and a consequent change of circumstances may have made the reasons no longer applicable which controlled the decision. As this is a subject of regulation, it will hereafter be held that, after a lapse of three years from the time when the boundary of a district shall have been established by this Department, upon appeal, it shall no longer be requisite to apply for express permission of the State Superintendent to authorize a local officer to make an alteration of the same.

In the case under consideration, the appeal should be sustained, without reference to the above-mentioned objection. It is the duty of the town superintendent to apportion the public money according to the number of children in the several districts "as the same shall have appeared from the last annual reports of the trustees," and not otherwise. If he deems the report incorrect, it is proper for him to call upon the trustees to correct it, and if they refuse to do so, they may, perhaps, render themselves liable to the penalty imposed for wilfully signing a false report, with the intention of causing the town superintendent to apportion and pay to their district a larger sum than its just proportion of the school moneys of the town. The report, however, is conclusive until it shall be amended by the trustees, or the question be determined on appeal.

4917

In the matter of the appeal of Fred J. Saunders v. N. F. Benedict as school commissioner, third commissioner district, Onondaga county.

It is against the settled policy of this Department to allow real property to be transferred from a comparatively weak district to a stronger one when it is not clearly shown that it would give increased convenience to the persons occupying the transferred territory. A trustee of a school district has no power, in the name of the district, to consent to an order for the alteration of school district territory which would take him out of the district of which he is trustee, and by its operation, vacate his office.

Decided December 19, 1900.

Dougherty & Miller, attorneys for appellant

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from an order made, August 17, 1900, by N. F. Benedict, as school commissioner, third commissioner district, Onondaga county, altering joint school district 13, Fabius, Onondaga county, and Truxton, Cortland county, and the consequent alteration of union school district 9, Fabius, Onondaga county. The appellant, alleges, in substance, as the grounds for bringing his appeal, that such order was improvidently and improperly made in that it transfers territory from a weak to a strong district, and is an abuse of power on the part of the commissioner; that the order is irregular in that the territory set off is not described by metes and bounds; that said commissioner had no jurisdiction to make the order without the concurrence or knowledge of the school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Cortland county, such district 13 being a joint district located in said second commissioner district of Cortland county, and third commissioner district of Onondaga county, and said order having been made without the knowledge of, and without any notice to, the school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Cortland county, of the proceedings leading up to the making of such order, and without her concurrence in such order.

Commissioner Benedict has answered the appeal, to such answer the appellant has replied, and to such reply such commissioner has made a rejoinder.

Since the appeal herein was taken school commissioner Benedict applied to me for permission to amend his said order of August 17, 1900, by describing therein more definitely the territory affected by said order. Permission was given him to so amend such order, and November 14, 1900, such amended order was made by him, describing such territory by metes and bounds, and such order was filed in the office of the clerk of the town of Fabius, Onondaga county. A copy of such amended order was annexed to the answer made herein by such commissioner.

The following facts are established by the pleadings and proofs filed herein:

— On August 17, 1900, and for many years prior thereto, there was a school district known as joint school district 13, Fabius, Onondaga county, and Truxton, Cortland county, and within the third commissioner district of Onondaga county and second commissioner district of Cortland county. The assessed valuation of such district was $18,750, and there were residing therein eighteen children between the ages of 5 and 21 years. There was situated in said town of Fabius, union school district 9, having an assessed valuation of $200,100, and about one hundred and fifteen children between the ages of 5 and 21 years, residing therein. One J. M. Crandal was sole trustee of such joint school district 13, and resided with his wife, Helen C. Crandal, upon a tract of land consisting of about 2.8 acres in lots 34 and 35 of the town of Fabius, which land was owned by Elliot B. Rowley and Franklin B. Rowley, and assessed for school taxes at the sum of $3000. Said tract of land was occupied by Trustee Crandal and his wife, Helen C. Crandal, under lease thereof either to said trustee or his wife or to both of them. Trustee Crandal and his wife had residing with them four children of school age. On August 17, 1900, school commissioner Benedict, with the written consent of Trustee Crandal, and the president of the board of education of union school district 9, made the order appealed from herein, transferring said tract of land upon which such Trustee Crandal resided, from district 13, of which he was sole trustee, to union school district 9, town of Fabius, thereby taking Trustee Crandal out of district 13, and vacating his office of trustee.

It is in proof that the distance from the residence of Trustee Crandal and his wife to the schoolhouse in district 13 is from one mile to one and one-fourth miles, and that the distance from such residence of Trustee Crandal to the schoolhouse in union school district 9 is two miles.

It is against the settled policy of this Department to allow property to be transferred from a comparatively weak district to a stronger one when it is not clearly shown that it will give increased convenience to the persons occupying the transferred territory.

State Superintendent Ruggles, in decision 3410, dated May 5, 1885, held "that a trustee of a school district has no power, in the name of the district, to consent to an order for the alteration of school district territory which will take him out of the district of which he is trustee, and by its operation, vacate his office." I concur in said decision of Superintendent Ruggles.

The appeal herein is sustained, and the order of School Commissioner Benedict, dated August 17, 1900, appealed from, and his amended order, dated November 14, 1900, are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

3938

In the matter of the appeal of Alfred Ward and others v. J. Freeman Wells, school commissioner of Warren county.

An order of a school commissioner setting off lands from one district to another, and based upon the consent of a trustee whose lands upon which he resides, are set off, and the effect of which is to take him from the district of which he is trustee, and thus vacate his office. Held to be inoperative and void.

Order set aside.

Decided December 3, 1896

L. C. Goodrich, Esq., attorney for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought by resident taxpayers of school districts nos. 5 and 7 of the town of Thurman, Warren county, from an order made and issued by J. Freeman Wells, school commissioner of Warren county, transferring lands from district no. 7 to district no. 5 aforesaid. The order was made upon the consent of the sole trustees of the districts affected, and bears date September 1, 1890. One objection raised by the appellants to the validity of the order, is a fatal one, and renders necessary no further investigation of the matters raised by the appeal.

It is clearly shown that the trustee of district no. 7, upon whose consent the order was made, was the owner of and resided upon land affected by the order, and transferred from the district in which he was trustee, to another.

Ruggles, Superintendent, in deciding appeal no. 3419, May 5, 1885, in which the same question arose, said:

"It is clear to my mind that the trustee of a school district has no power, in the name of the district, to consent to an order for the alteration of school district territory, which will take him out of the district of which he is trustee, and by its operation, vacate his office."

I concur in the opinion of my learned predecessor, and hold, in this case, accordingly.

The order appealed from is set aside, and the appeal sustained.

4903

In the matter of the appeal of Fanny E. Sawyer and others v. Everett A. Chick as school commissioner third commissioner district of Jefferson county.

This Department has never favored the alteration of school districts, in taking property from a comparatively weak district financially, and annexing it to a district financially strong.

Decided November 10, 1900

A. M. Leffingwell, attorney for appellants

Skinner, Superintendent

This appeal, while in form is taken by the appellants against Everett A. Chick as school commissioner of the third commissioner district of Jefferson county, is in fact an appeal from the action of a local board, consisting of School Commissioner Chick, A. A. Scott, supervisor, and Lee M. Whitney, clerk of the town of Henderson, taken on September 22, 1900, in vacating a preliminary order made by Commissioner Chick, dated September 15, 1900, to take effect on December 15, 1900, and filed on said September 15, 1900, in the office of the clerk of the town of Henderson, altering school districts 5 and 8, Henderson, by the transfer of certain real property described therein from district 5 to district 8.

An answer to such appeal has been made by the persons constituting such local board.

The following facts are established by the proofs filed herein:

A petition, in writing, dated September 11, 1900, signed by the appellants, was delivered to Commissioner Chick, requesting him to make an order altering the boundaries of school district 5 and school district 8, Henderson, Jefferson county, by the transfer of certain real property, described therein, and owned or occupied by the petitioners, from district 5 to district 8; that Commissioner Chick, on September 15, 1900, made a preliminary order of alteration, the trustee of district 5 not consenting thereto, of such districts 5 and 8, said order to take effect December 15, 1900, transferring the real property described therein and in said petition of the appellants, from said district 5 to district 8, which order was filed in the office of the clerk of the town of Henderson September 15, 1900; that on September 15, 1900, Commissioner Chick gave notice, in writing, to the trustee of each of districts 5 and 8, which districts were affected by his said preliminary order of alteration, of the said order of alteration so made by him, and notice that on the 22d day of September 1900 at 10 o'clock a. m., at the office of A. M. Leffingwell, in the village of Henderson, N. Y., he would attend and hear objections to the said preliminary order of alteration of such districts; that said trustees might request the supervisor and town clerk of the town in which their school districts lie to be associated with said school commissioner at such time and place for the purpose of confirming or vacating the said order; that on September 22, 1900, at the office of said Leffingwell, in the village of Henderson, Commissioner Chick attended and heard proofs and arguments in objection to, and proofs and arguments in favor of, said alteration of such school districts, and that at such place and time there were also present A. A. Scott, supervisor, and Lee M. Whitney, clerk of said town of Henderson, each of whom produced proof that he had been requested by the trustee of school district 5, situated in said town, to be associated with said school commissioner upon such hearing; that opportunity to be heard was then and there given to all persons who desired to present objections against or arguments in favor of such alterations, and after due deliberation the said local board rendered its decision that the said preliminary order of Commissioner Chick be vacated; that September 25, 1900, a record of said action of such local board was filed in the office of the clerk of said town of Henderson. It further appears that the number of children of school age residing in school district 8 is eighty-six, and the aggregate amount of property subject to taxation therein is $246,568; that the number of children of school age residing in school district 5 is seventeen, and the aggregate amount of property subject to taxation therein is $36,408; that the aggregate valuation of the real property sought to be transferred by said preliminary order, from district 5 to district 8 is $4100, and the aggregate number of children of school age residing upon such property is five; that the appellant, Fannie E. Sawyer, is the owner of a farm situated in district 5, assessed at $3000, but resides with her husband, Charles Sawyer, in the village of Henderson in district 8, and has no children; that the appellant, Alfred Wilson, resides upon the farm owned by Mrs Sawyer, under a lease which will expire March 1, 1901, and in the hearing before the local board, did not allege any expectation of remaining on such farm after said date, and has three children, one of whom is 13 years old, one 17 years old and the third not as yet 5 years old; that the appellant Julia E. Penney owns real property assessed at $500 situated in district 5, upon which she resides with her husband Adolphus Penney, and they have two children of the ages respectively of 10 and 13 years; that the appellant, James Ellis, owns real property situated in district 5, assessed at $400, and has residing with him one child of the age of 17 years; that the schoolhouse in district 5 is nearer the residences respectively of the appellants herein who have children attending the school therein, than the schoolhouse in district 8; that the road over which such children are required to travel to attend school is a fairly well-traveled road and is not more obstructed by snow than ordinary country roads; that most of the travel between Sacket's Harbor and Henderson village is upon said road on which the schoolhouse in district 5 is located and any obstruction by reason of snow is more often greater between the residence of Penney and Henderson village than between the residence of Gilman near the schoolhouse in district 5; that the teacher employed in the school in district 5 is of sufficient learning and ability to teach any study that any child or children attending such school would wish to pursue; that the school in such district has been maintained for at least 160 days in each school year, and can be maintained for a longer period if the educational interests of the district require it.

This Department has never favored the alteration of school districts in taking property from a comparatively weak district financially, and annexing it to a district strong financially.

I am clearly of opinion, from the facts established herein, that the action of the local board in vacating the preliminary order made by Commissioner Chick, September 15, 1900, in the alteration of school districts 5 and 8, Henderson, Jefferson county, was a wise exercise of the power vested in said board, and should be affirmed by me.

The appeal herein is dismissed, and said decision of said local board is affirmed.

3693

In the matter of the appeal of R. W. Parks, trustee of school district no. 2; P. W. Wilbur, trustee of school district no. 3; Hugh Boyle, trustee of school district no. 7; H. B. Pike, trustee of school district no. 11, all of the town of Burke, in the county of Franklin, and others, v. James M. Wardner, school commissioner, and others.

A commissioner's order, taking territory from weak districts and annexing it to a strong district, will not be upheld unless it is clearly shown that such change is beneficial to patrons of schools, or that district boundaries would by the change be made more regular.

Failure of the supervisor and town clerk to affix their signatures to an order changing district boundaries, not fatal; they may affix their signatures at any time.

A public officer will not be allowed to impeach his own official act.

Decided June 8, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the action of the school commissioner of the first school commissioner district of Franklin county, in making an order, dated November 28, 1887, cutting off certain territory embraced in school districts nos. 2, 3, 7 and 11, in the town of Burke, and adding such territory to school district no. 16 of said town, and also from an affirmatory order made by the school commissioner in conjunction with the supervisor and town clerk of said town, made on the 17th day of December 1887.

The proceedings of the school commissioner and of the board, consisting of the school commissioner, the supervisor and the town clerk, seem to have been regularly taken and in the form and manner prescribed by statute. I observe that the affirmatory order is only signed by the school commissioner, when it should have been by the supervisor and town clerk as well; but I do not think the omission vital. It is not contended that they did not assent to the order, and their signatures could be attached at any time. I also notice a written statement by the town clerk, to the effect that he acted under the influence of the school commissioner and without much regard to the merits of the question involved. This statement is of no consequence whatever. An officer can not be allowed to impeach his own official act.

I come then to consider the advisability of the action appealed from. A full examination of all the papers and maps submitted leads me to doubt the advisability of it. The effect of it is to cut off from four districts, none of which is very strong, taxable property of considerable consequence to them, and to add the same to a district which, in valuation, is stronger than any of the four adversely affected. It seems that, before the change, the assessed valuation of taxable property in school district no. 2 was about $32,000, and about the same in school district no. 3, while in school district no. 7 it was $34,000, and in school district no. 11 it was less than $12,000. In district no. 16 (the one added to) it was $60,000 before the change. Inquiring as to the number of children of school age in the several districts before the change, I find that in no. 2 it was forty seven, in no. 3 it was thirty-three, in no. 7 it was eighteen, and in no. 11 it was seventeen, while in no. 16 it was one hundred and thirteen. It is not contended that the alteration is made for the convenience of the persons affected thereby. It is not shown that it brings them any nearer a schoolhouse. The most, and about all, that can be said for it is that district no. 16 is stronger and more thickly settled; that it has established a graded school; that it proposes to make still better schools, and that it needs the benefit of the added property in order to enable it to do so; but it seems to me that this ought not to be done at the expense of making districts which can not afford it, poorer than they are against their protest. They say that they have endeavored to maintain good schools with suitable schoolhouses and through the employment of capable teachers. They show that they have, within a short time, improved their school property at some expense, and that they have been obliged to, and have taxed themselves to a reasonable extent, for the support of the schools. They insist that the operation of the orders appealed from would mainly be to increase taxation for school purposes in their districts, and lower it in the district added to, and it seems to me that their papers establish the fact. No person who is a resident of the territory taken from the four districts named, and added to no. 16, appears to sustain the order. An examination of the map seems to show that the effect of the order does not cure or remove irregularities in district boundaries. I do not see that the boundaries, after the change, would be any more regular, or that the districts would be in better form and shape than before it. A piece of the line of the Ogdensburgh and Lake Champlain Railroad Company runs through the town, and it seems to have been the purpose to bring a still larger portion of said road within district no. 16 than it had before. In short, the only result of the change which I can see, is to make one district, which is already reasonably strong in valuation, still stronger, and that at the expense of four districts which are as weak in that direction as school districts ought to be. It has been repeatedly held by this Department that that should not be done unless it was shown that there were other reasons for the change which were overpowering. If it could be shown that the advantages arising from the change would be sufficient to outweigh the disadvantages, the order could be upheld, but the papers before me fail to satisfy me of that fact in the present case. I think they establish the contrary.

I am therefore obliged to sustain the appeal, overrule the action of the commissioner, and of the board consisting of the school commissioner, supervisor and town clerk, and declare the orders appealed from to be of no force and effect.

3774

In the matter of the appeal of Lemon Thomson and John A. Dix v. William N. Harris, school commissioner of the second district of Saratoga county.

Experience has demonstrated that the affairs of districts which are formed of parts of two or more counties, are not, as a general rule, as smoothly administered as those which lie wholly within a county.

In a district in which the larger proportion of the children reside in one county and the schoolhouse is located in another, to reach which they are compelled to cross a river by a bridge which it is claimed is not in a safe condition; ordered, that the school commissioners, from whose refusal to join in a preliminary order dividing the district by the county line an appeal is taken, should make such preliminary order.

Decided March 23, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

This appeal is brought by residents, taxpayers and electors of joint school district no. 10 of the towns of Greenwich, Washington county, and Northumberland, Saratoga county, from the refusal of the respondent to join with Commissioner J. W. Barbur, of Washington county, in an order dissolving said district and detaching so much of the district situate in Washington county to district no. 17 in the same county.

From the pleadings it appears that the district is now divided by the Hudson river, and the Greenwich portion of the district is separated from the Northumberland portion by said river. Joint district no. 10 has but one trustee, and he has refused to consent to the alterations. The trustee of district no. 17 has consented, and Commissioner Joseph W. Barbur is ready to join in a preliminary order with the respondent, making the alteration desired by the appellants.

It has been found by experience that districts which are formed of parts of two or more counties, are not, as a general rule, as smoothly run as those which lie wholly within a county. In this case it appears that the schoolhouse of the joint district is located in Saratoga county, and that the larger proportion of the children of the district reside in Washington county, and in order to reach the schoolhouse are compelled to cross the river by a bridge which, the appellants allege, is not in a safe condition, but this is disputed by the respondent.

I have reached a conclusion in this matter, and it is not necessary for me to examine at this time very closely, into the merits of this particular case.

I have concluded to sustain the appeal, and hereby direct the respondent, Commissioner William N. Harris, to join with Commissioner Joseph W. Barbur in making a preliminary order, taking so much of the territory from joint district no. 10 as is situate in Washington county, and annexing the same to district no. 17 of the town of Greenwich in said county. The consent of the trustee of district no. 10, having been secured, the order must be made to take effect at least three months after the date of the order. The trustees may then call a meeting of the supervisors and town clerks of the towns, to be associated with the commissioners, and determine whether a confirmatory order shall be made or not. From the action of this local board, any person feeling aggrieved may take an appeal to this Department.

4909

In the matter of the appeal of A. Coleman Smith and Leonard S. Sherwood as trustees of school district 4, Ossining and Mount Pleasant, Westchester county v. Bertha E. H. Berbert as school commissioner second commissioner district of Westchester county.

The power to form, alter and dissolve school districts is given to school commissioners, under the provisions contained in title 6 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the acts amendatory thereof, and such provisions must be strictly complied with.

The description of a district should be so complete and definite that a surveyor, at any future day, may be able to run its boundaries without reference to any other document than the order forming, altering or dissolving it.

A preliminary order, altering the boundaries of school districts is defective in not requiring the refusal of the trustee of any of the districts to consent thereto, and in directing that the order take effect in less than three months after the notice given by the commissioner of a time and place when he or she would attend and hear objections to such order.

The first imperative duty of a school commissioner after making and filing the preliminary order, is within 10 days thereafter to give at least a week's notice in writing to the assenting and dissenting trustees of the district to be affected, of a time and place named when he or she will hear objections to such order, and that the trustees may request the supervisor and the town clerk of the town or towns within which such district shall wholly or partly lie to be associated with the commissioner in such hearing. If such local board shall affirm such preliminary order the commissioner must then make and file a confirmatory order, the board uniting in the order; that such confirmatory order must recite the preliminary order and all proceedings taken thereafter, including the actions of the local board, and concluding with the final order of alteration made by the commissioner.

Decided November 30, 1900

Aug. Coleman Smith, attorney for appellants

Baldwin & Boston, attorneys for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from an order or orders, made by Bertha E. H. Berbert as school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Westchester county, altering the boundaries of school district 4, Ossining and Mount Pleasant, Westchester county, and the consequent alteration of school district 6, Ossining, Westchester county.

The ground alleged by the appellants for bringing their appeal is, that the proceedings taken, and the order or orders made by Commissioner Berbert, are not in accordance with the provisions contained in sections 2 and 3, and section 4 as amended by section 4, chapter 264 of the Laws of 1896, of title 6 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, and the rulings of this Department.

School Commissioner Berbert has answered the appeal and to such answer the appellants have made a reply.

From the proofs filed herein, it appears that School Commissioner Berbert, on or about June 1, 1900, made an order, in writing, addressed to the trustees of school districts 4 and 6, Ossining, Westchester county, which order was to take effect August 30, 1900, making certain alterations, stated therein, of the boundaries of said district by the transfer of certain lands from district 4 to district 6; that said order was filed with the clerk of the town of Ossining, but at what date does not appear; that notice of such order came to Trustee Sherwood and Trustee Harris of school district 4, and Trustee Bayles of district 6; that on or about July 31, 1900, a protest to said order was made by the trustees of district 4 and filed with the clerk of the town of Ossining, upon the ground that the said order was in violation of sections 2, 3 and 4 of title 6 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894; that on or about August 9, 1900, the trustees of said districts 4 and 6 were notified by School Commissioner Berbert that she would hold a meeting August 15, 1900, at three o'clock p. m., at the office of the clerk of the town of Ossining in Sing Sing for the purpose of hearing arguments upon said order; that on said date, said commissioner, Trustee Sherwood of district 4 and Trustee Bayles of district 6, met at said office of the town clerk, and Trustee Sherwood was heard in opposition and Trustee Bayles on behalf of such order; that thereupon Commissioner Berbert sustained said order.

Sections 2 and 3 of title 6, and section 4 of title 6 as amended by section 4 of chapter 264 of the Laws of 1896, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, prescribe the method to be pursued by school commissioners in the alteration of school districts, in which no dissolution of a district is made.

This Department has uniformly ruled that under the provisions of section 2 of title 6, whenever a school commissioner decides to alter any school district or districts, he or she should first endeavor to obtain the consent of the trustees of the districts to be affected, that such consent must be in writing, and accurately state the alteration to which they consent. Having obtained such consent of all the trustees, the school commissioner next proceeds to draw and file the order. The order must recite that the consents had been given, and such written consents must be attached to, and made a part of, the order of proceeding.

Sections 3 and 4 prescribe the proceedings to be taken when the consent of the trustees of all the districts affected is not obtained. The proceedings are purely statutory, and any failure to follow the statute strictly will vitiate the order. Although the trustees of all the districts to be affected will not consent to the alteration, the school commissioner can make the order and file it with the clerk or clerks of the town or towns in which the districts affected are situated, which order is termed a preliminary order. Two things are required to be inserted in such order, namely, 1, the order must recite the refusal of the trustee or trustees of any district or districts to give his or their consent to such alteration; 2, the commissioner must direct that the order, as a whole, shall not take effect until a date fixed therein, which date shall not be less than three months after the notice required to be given in section 4 as amended. Such order should be promptly filed in the office of the clerk of the town in which the school districts to be affected thereby are situated.

Section 4, as amended, prescribes that within 10 days after making and filing such order, the school commissioner shall give at least a week's notice in writing to one or more of the trustees of the district to be affected by the proposed alterations, that at a special meeting, and at a named place within the town in which either of the districts to be affected lies, he or she will hear objections to such alterations. The trustees of any district to be affected by such order may request the supervisor and town clerk of the town or towns within which such districts shall wholly or partly lie, to be associated with the commissioner. Such notice must state therein the making of such order, giving the date thereof and when it was filed in the office of the town clerk or clerks, and must give a copy of such order in full; and in addition to giving the time and place in which the commissioner will attend to hear objections to such order, and to the proposed alterations, it must also state that such trustee may request the supervisor and town clerk of the town or towns within which such school district or districts do wholly or partly lie, to be associated with such commissioner at such time and place for the purpose of affirming or vacating such order.

Upon receipt of such written notice of the commissioner the trustees, if they decide to do so, may request, in writing, the supervisor and clerk of such town or towns to be associated with the commissioner at the time and place for hearing objections, and if such town officers attend at such time and place they should present such request, with proof of service, so as to establish their jurisdiction to act with the commissioner. The commissioner and such supervisor and town clerk, when requested, should attend at the place and hour named in such notice and organize what is known as a "local board." Such board has authority to adjourn from time to time as it may determine; but can not adjourn the time of meeting to any day later than three months after the date of the preliminary order. Such board, whether it consists of the commissioner alone, or such commissioner and supervisor and town clerk, may hear testimony and arguments for and against such proposed alterations, and when such proofs and arguments have been finished each member of said board has a vote upon the question as to whether such preliminary order of the commissioner shall be affirmed or vacated; and their decision is final unless appealed from. If they decide, by a majority vote, to vacate such order, the whole matter terminates with such decision, and a record of the action of the local board must be filed with the clerk of the town or towns in which the districts affected are situated. If, on the other hand, the board decides to affirm the order of the commissioner, it then becomes necessary for the commissioner to make and file the final order or order of confirmation, known as the "confirmatory order." Such board does not make the alteration, this the commissioner must do, the board uniting with him or her in the order, which order must recite the first or preliminary order, and all proceedings taken thereafter, including the action of the local board, and concluding with the final order of alteration made by the commissioner.

The confirmatory order is the one by which the alteration is made, and the first order is merely preliminary, inchoate and of no effect whatever until the same is duly affirmed by the local board.

Under the provisions of title 6 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 and the uniform rulings of this Department, it is clear that the action, proceedings and orders of School Commissioner Berbert, relative to the alteration of school district 4, Ossining and Mount Pleasant, Westchester county, and the consequent alteration of school district 6, Ossining, Westchester county, were not duly and legally taken, and no alteration of such school districts has been duly and legally made; that the contention of the appellants, that the acts, proceedings and orders on the part of Commissioner Berbert, in the attempted alteration of said districts 4 and 6, were not in compliance with the provisions contained in sections 3 and 4 of title 6 of the Consolidated School Law, and the rulings of this Department, is fully sustained.

I decide that the alleged order made on June 1, 1900, to take effect August 30, 1900, is defective in not reciting the refusal of the trustees of district 4. to consent to such alteration; is defective in not describing the territory to be transferred by well known tracts, lot lines or metes and bounds; is defective in directing that the order take effect in less than three months after the notice required by section 4 of title 6; that no notice, as required by section 4 of title 6, was ever given to the trustees of said districts 4 and 6; that no notice of the time and place when such commissioner would attend and hear objections, and that the trustees of such districts might request the supervisor and town clerk of the towns of Ossining and Mount Pleasant to be associated with such commissioner, as required by said section 4, was ever given; that no confirmatory order was ever made as required by said section 4, and the rulings of this Department.

I further decide that said alleged order of June 1, 1900, and such alleged order of August 15, 1900, relating to the alteration of said school districts 4 and 6, are, and each of them is, void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered that the alleged order of June 1, 1900, and the alleged order of August 15, 1900, and all proceedings alleged to have been taken at the office of the clerk of the town of Ossining, Westchester county, August 15, 1900, in relation to the alterations of said school district 4, Ossining and Mount Pleasant, and district 6, Ossining, Westchester county, be, and the same are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside.

3642

In the matter of the appeal of Lemuel K. Tinney v. J. Russell Parsons, jr, school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Rensselaer county, and Lewis N. S. Miller, school commissioner of the second commissioner district of said county.

Orders of school commissioners altering school districts, where the statutory proceeding has been observed, will not be disturbed by the Superintendent, unless it is shown by a clear preponderance of evidence that the action taken was unwise, adverse to the interests of education and decidedly against the convenience of the greater number of people affected thereby.

Decided November 9, 1887

Warren, Patterson & Gambell, attorneys for appellant
Thomas & Pattison, attorneys for respondents

Draper, Superintendent

On the 16th day of June 1887, the school commissioners of the first and second commissioner districts in Rensselaer county made an order dissolving joint district no. 11, of the towns of Brunswick, Grafton and Poestenkill, of said county, and divided said district into three portions. That portion lying in the town of Brunswick was annexed to district no. 3, of that town; that portion lying in the town of Grafton was annexed to district no. 7, of that town; and that portion lying in the town of Poestenkill was annexed to district no. 4, of that town. The appellant, being a resident and taxpayer of said district no. 11, and, feeling aggrieved at the order of the commissioners, brings an appeal therefrom to this Department.

In considering appeals of this nature, it is customary to inquire, first, whether the commissioners proceeded with regularity, and in the manner provided by the statutes. The proceeding is a statutory one, and the several steps provided by the statutes must be strictly followed. If it is found that the commissioners failed to comply with the requirements of the statutes, then their acts must necessarily be set aside. If it is found that they committed no error, it then becomes necessary to inquire whether the thing which they did was an advisable thing to do; whether it is calculated to promote the interests of education. Touching the propriety or advisability of an order, it is always assumed that the officer making it acted with sound discretion and good judgment; that he, being upon the ground and familiar with local circumstances, was the better able to determine intelligently as to the course which ought to be taken in the matter concerning which the order is made than the Superintendent can at his distance from the scene; and orders of this nature are commonly sustained and followed unless the appellant shows by clear preponderance of evidence that the action taken was unwise, not to the advantage of education, and decidedly against the interests of the greater number of people affected thereby.

There is no claim that the steps taken by the commissioners in this case were not regularly taken, and it must therefore at once be assumed that they followed the requirements of the statutes.

Now, touching the advisability or expediency of the order, I have arrived at the conclusion, after most carefully reading the papers submitted, that the appellant fails to show, in any such conclusive manner as is required to override the order, that the action taken was not advisable. I find that the order which is appealed from was made with the written consent of the trustees of all of the districts in which portions of the dissolved district were annexed, and with the consent of two of the three trustees of the dissolved district. This circumstance is certainly of great weight in determining the matter. It is not to be supposed that the order could work great injustice to residents of the dissolved district, or be prejudicial to the educational interests of the territory affected, and, at the same time, have the approval of all of these trustees. It is always desirable, also, that school districts shall lie wholly in a single town, and the order seems to have been made to bring this about. The school commissioner of the first commissioner district says that he visited the school in district no. 11 upon four different occasions, and each time found not to exceed five children in attendance. The district seems to have been a weak one, and there is everything to indicate that the children of the district will have the advantages of better schools, under the operation of the order, than they had before. It is true that they may, in one or two instances, be obliged to go further, in order to attend school, than at present, but these unfortunate cases ought not to be permitted to overthrow a proceeding taken evidently with great deliberation, and after carefully investigating and considering all the circumstances concerning the matter.

I am, therefore, led to dismiss the appeal.

in the matter of the appeal of John Pettis as trustee of school district no. 10, Wilton, Saratoga county, v. John T. Rice as school commissioner, second commissioner district of Saratoga county.

This Department has uniformly held that the order of a school commissioner altering the boundaries of school districts should be sustained when on appeal it appears that the commissioner has acted in good faith and by the order has restored to a district territory which had been unintentionally and under a misapprehension of facts set off from such district.

Decided December 31, 1900

Frank Gick, attorney for appellant

William D. McNulty, attorney for respondent

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the decision of a local board, confirming a preliminary order, dated September 27, 1900, to take effect January 21, 1901, made by John T. Rice as school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Saratoga county, altering the boundary of school district 10, Wilton, Saratoga county, and consequently altering the boundaries of school district 6, Northumberland, Saratoga county, in the transfer of a parcel of land, known as the Gifford farm from said district 10 to said district 6.

The appellant alleges several grounds for bringing his appeal.

School Commissioner Rice has filed an answer to the appeal.

From the facts established by the appeal and answer herein, Commissioner Rice in making his preliminary order, and the local board in confirming said order, acted in good faith and for the purpose of restoring to school district 6, Northumberland, Saratoga county, territory which had been unintentionally and under misapprehension of facts set off from said district 6, Northumberland, to district 10, Wilton, Saratoga county.

It is in proof that in July, 1899, the appellant herein was sole trustee of school district 10, Wilton, and a Mr Washburn was the sole trustee of school district 6, Northumberland; that the appellant, Pettis, was the owner of a parcel of land known as the Gifford farm, situated in school district 6, Northumberland, assessed for school purposes at the sum of $350; that a portion of the roadbed of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Company lies in district 6, Northumberland and in 10, Wilton, a part of said roadbed being located upon said parcel of land known as the Gifford farm; that the appellant applied to Trustee Washburn for his consent that said Gifford farm be transferred from said district 6, Northumberland, to said district 10, Wilton, for the reason that it would be a convenience to the appellant; that on July 13, 1899, Commissioner Rice, upon the application of the appellant, and the written consent of the appellant as trustee of district 10, Wilton, and said Washburn as trustee of district 6, Northumberland, transferred the Gifford farm from district 6, Northumberland, to district 10, Wilton; that at the time said order was made, neither Commissioner Rice nor Trustee Washburn knew that said order included the track of said railroad, located upon the land so transferred; that Trustee Washburn, having within a few days after the order of July 13, 1899, was made, learned that such order transferred from district 6, to district 10, property of said railroad of the assessed value of $6000, saw Commissioner Rice and informed him of the effect of such order, and his (Washburn's) ignorance of the fact that the transfer of the Gifford farm carried with it the property of said railroad, and requested said Rice to make an order setting back said Gifford farm in district 6 in order to correct the error and misapprehension of facts under which such order was made; that thereupon, and by reason of the misapprehension of facts on the part of Trustee Washburn and Commissioner Rice, said commissioner, July 28, 1899, made a preliminary order to take effect October 28, 1899, Trustee Pettis refusing his consent thereto, transferring said Gifford farm back to said district 6; that subsequently a hearing was had before a local board and a confirmatory order was made from which the appellant herein appealed to me, and on October 31, 1899, I made my decision, 4814, dismissing the appeal on the ground of irregularities in the confirmatory order and the filing thereof, and vacated said order; that September 27, 1900, Commissioner Rice made a preliminary order to take effect October 8, 1900, setting off from district 10, Wilton, to district 6, Northumberland, said parcel of land known as the Gifford farm, and on the same day gave notice thereof to the trustees of each of such districts; that October 8, 1900, at the schoolhouse in Gansevoort, Saratoga county, he would hear objections to such order; that October 8 and 13, 1900, a hearing was had before a local board consisting of Commissioner Rice and the supervisors and town clerks of the towns of Northumberland and Wilton, the trustees of district 10, Wilton, and 6, Northumberland, being present, and the preliminary order of September 27, 1900, was affirmed, and a confirmatory order was made, signed and filed in the office of the clerk of each of said towns of Northumberland and Wilton, Saratoga county.

This Department has held that an order made by a school commissioner, setting off real property from one school district to another under a misapprehension of facts, will be vacated. See decision of Superintendent Weaver, May 20, 1869.

Superintendent Draper, in decision 3518, made August 18, 1886, held, that a commissioner's order, altering the boundaries of school districts should be sustained, when on appeal it appears that the commissioner has acted in good faith, and by the order has restored to a district territory which has been unintentionally and under a misapprehension of facts, set off from such district.

From the facts established it is clear that on July 13, 1899, the order made by Commissioner Rice, transferring the Gifford farm from district 6, Northumberland, to district 10, Wilton, was so made under a misapprehension of facts and mistake on the part of the commissioner and of Trustee Washburn of district 6, in consenting thereto.

It is in proof that on July 13, 1899, there were no children residing on the territory known as the Gifford farm; that the assessed valuation of the property situated in district 10, Wilton, was $62,789; that there were twenty children of school age therein and one teacher employed; that the expense of maintaining a school therein for a school year was $321.06; that the assessed valuation of district 6, Northumberland, was $1,31,630, with sixty children of school age therein and two teachers employed; that the expense of maintaining a school for a school year was $670.28.

The appeal herein is dismissed, and the confirmatory order, appealed from herein, dated October 13, 1900, to take effect January 21, 1900, is hereby affirmed.

3518

Luther L. Ackerson, trustee of school district no. 6, town of Sterling, Cayuga county, N. Y., from an order of Josiah Gailey, school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Cayuga county, dated March 26, 1886, changing the boundaries of said district.

Commissioner's order altering the boundaries of a school district sustained, when on an appeal it appears that the commissioner has acted in good faith, and by the order has restored to a district territory which had been unintentionally and under a misapprehension of facts set off from such district.

Decided August 18, 1886

Draper, Superintendent

This is a proceeding by Luther L. Ackerson, trustee of school district no. 6 of the town of Sterling, Cayuga county, appealing from an order of Josiah Gailey, school commissioner of the first commissioner district in said county, altering the said district no. 6 by taking therefrom lands and annexing them to the adjoining district no. 17.

The commissioner's order bears date March 26, 1886.

The grounds of appeal are as follows:

1 That the lands in question were formerly a part of district no. 17, and were, by an order bearing date March 24, 1877, with the consent of the trustees of both districts affected, annexed to district no. 6.

2 That the property set over does not contain a dwelling house, and, therefore, the change does not bring any child of school age nearer to a public school building.

3 That district no. 17 was, before the granting of the order appealed from, already a stronger district than district no. 6, and that consequently the change weakens the weaker district.

4 The real objection seems to be that a portion of the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburgh Railroad, which, for a number of years, had been taxed in district no. 6, will hereafter be taxable in district no. 17.

I have very carefully examined the pleadings and papers filed upon this appeal, and from such examination I find the facts to be:

That previous to the granting of an order by then School Commissioner Morehouse, some doubt and confusion had arisen as to the boundary line between districts nos. 6 and 17 in the town of Sterling. That an order was consented to by the trustees of districts nos. 6 and 17 and granted by the school commissioner taking certain farm lands claimed by district no. 17, and annexing them to district no. 6. That the present school commissioner at that time acted as an adviser to the trustees of district no. 17, and advised such trustees to consent. That neither the commissioner nor the trustee of district no. 17, nor the present commissioner intended to consent or advise that the lands covered by the tracks of the said railroad should be included in such transfer. That in describing the line between said districts nos. 6 and 17, the south side of the farm of one Jesse Carris was used, the commissioner and trustee of said district no. 17 supposing that to carry the line south of the railroad bed. But it appears that Carris had changed his south line by parting with a part of his farm on the south so that this south line was north instead of south of the track, and the effect of using his south line to divide the districts was to include the railroad in district no. 6 instead of district no. 17. This change was unknown to both commissioner and trustee. Upon the discovery of the error the present commissioner by the order appealed from has set back to the district from which it was so taken by misapprehension, the lands north of Carris's old south line. It is not claimed that any attempt was made to deceive the commissioner or the trustee of school district no. 17 at the time the original order was granted, but no mention of the change of the boundary of Carris's farm was made, and the commissioner and trustee of said district no. 17 were not informed of it, and the commissioner in describing the boundary of the districts was misled thereby.

From all the facts so found, I am led to the conclusion that when the order of March 27, 1877, was granted by the commissioner and consented to by the trustees of districts nos. 6 and 17, the commissioner and the trustee of school district no. 17 acted under a misapprehension of facts and did not intend to transfer the lands mentioned from district no. 17 to district no. 6.

A similar case came up on appeal to this Department in 1869, and Superintendent Weaver decided the order, made under misapprehension of facts, void and set the same aside.

But I have also considered the question of the relative strength of the districts and fail to discover that there is any great difference. Both are and will be sufficiently strong to support suitable schools and provide instruction for the number of children of school age in their respective districts. The commissioner having acted in good faith and in the absence of contrary proof, I shall hold with good judgment and in accord with the statute. I must, from all the facts presented to me on this appeal, overrule the appeal and sustain the order appealed from.

In the matter of the appeal of John Greenan v. Stephen Pollard, school commissioner second commissioner district, Allegany county.

Where it appears that an order of a school commissioner, setting off a portion of one district and annexing such portion to another will give better school facilities and increased convenience to the persons occupying the transferred territory and, at the same time, leave the district from which such territory was taken sufficient resources with which to maintain a good and sufficient school therein, this Department can find no justification in setting aside the action of said officers.

Decided January 3, 1895

Crooker, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from the final order of the respondent, as school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Allegany county, made on June 30, 1894, in the alteration of the boundaries of school district no. 9, town of Wellsville, Allegany county, and the consequent alteration of the boundaries of school district no. 7, town of Wellsville, Allegany county, in taking "All that part of subplot 73, within great lot 31 of the Schermerhorn tract, in township 3, range 3-1, of Morris reserve, as lies south of the Erie Railway lands, being about 165 acres," and attaching the same to district no. 7, town of Wellsville; said order to take effect on October 1, 1894.

An answer has been made to the appeal, and to the answer a reply, and to the reply a rejoinder.

The following material facts are established:

That prior to the aforesaid order of the respondent, said part of subplot 73, consisting of about 165 acres of land, was situate within said school district no. 9, town of Wellsville; that one Nathan Williams resided upon said lot of land, having residing with him six children, four of whom are of school age; that the distance from the dwelling house of said Williams to the schoolhouse in district no. 9, by the nearest highway, is over three miles; that to attend the school in district no. 9, said children would be obliged to travel the same highway which leads to and past the schoolhouse in district no. 7, and that after reaching said schoolhouse they would be compelled to travel about one and three-fourth miles to reach the schoolhouse in district no. 9; that the schoolhouse in district no. 7 is about one and three-fourth miles from the residence of said Williams, and can be reached by the main traveled valley road leading from the village of Wellsville to the village of Andover; that there is no road, public or private, including log roads, leading from the dwelling house of said Williams, excepting the public highways, as shown upon the map annexed to the appeal herein, over which said children of Williams could reach the schoolhouse in district no. 9; that there is no road across said lot 73 from the residence of said Williams to said schoolhouse in district no. 9; that said Williams resides on what is known as Dyke's Creek, which is in a valley, and that the schoolhouse in said district no. 9 is situate on the uplands, and that running parallel with said creek is a high steep hill, higher than any other hill in the school district, over which hill the children of

Williams would have to go to attend at the schoolhouse in said district no. 9, unless they traveled the aforesaid highways; that much of the time during the school year said Williams has sent his children to school in the village of Andover for the reason that it was impossible for them to attend the school in said district no. 9.

It also appears that prior to June 15, 1894, the aggregate valuation of the property liable to taxation in said school district no. 9 was the sum of $34,237, and there were thirty-seven children of school age residing therein; that the assessed valuation of the land in said lot 73, owned by said Williams, was the sum of $1750; that the United Pipe Line runs over and across the said land of said Williams in said lot 73 and between the residence of said Williams and the highway in front of said residence, and hence in taking said lot 73 from said district no. 9 it was impracticable to do so without transferring the said pipe line therewith; that the assessed value of said pipe line was $1714; that aggregate value of the property set off by said order of respondent, was the sum of $3464, leaving said district no. 9 with property of the aggregate assessed valuation of $30,773.

It further appears that application was made by said Williams to the respondent to set off said lot 73 from said district no. 9 to said district no. 7, and that the respondent after careful investigation of the subject, on June 15, 1894, made a preliminary order for such alteration; that the appellant as trustee of said district no. 9, not consenting, on June 16, 1894, the respondent gave due notice, under the school law, to the trustees of both districts nos. 7 and 9, that on June 30, 1894, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the town clerk's office in Wellsville he would attend and hear objections to the proposed alterations; that the respondent attended at said time and place, when an opportunity to all persons who desired to be heard to present their objections was given, and no sufficient objection being given, the respondent, on June 30, 1894, made his confirmatory order, dated on that day, to take effect on October 1, 1894, and duly filed the same with the town clerk of the town of Wellsville.

There is no claim on the part of the appellant of any irregularity in the proceedings had and taken by the respondent.

The main ground upon which the appeal is taken appears to be: (1) that the children of Williams could reach the schoolhouse in district no. 9 by going across lots or on private or log roads; (2) that many children residing in the district are obliged to travel a greater distance to reach said schoolhouse than the children of Williams; (3) that by taking property from the district of the aggregate value of $3464, the financial condition of district no. 9 is materially weakened.

As to the first ground above stated the proofs clearly establish that it is almost impracticable for the children of Williams to reach the schoolhouse in district no. 9 other than by the public highways, by reason of the high ground and the absence of roads of any kind across lots. As to the second ground above stated it is equally clear that many children in said district reside at a greater distance by the public highways from said schoolhouse than do the children of Williams, but they have no such elevation to climb as the children of Williams, and there are private and log roads by which they can reach the said schoolhouse at a great saving of distance; that it also appears no application has been made by the parents of such children to the school commissioner to set them off from said district. As to the third ground stated above, school district no. 9 has an aggregate assessed valuation of $20,773, a sum amply sufficient to raise, without being burdensome, sufficient money to maintain a good and sufficient school in said district.

This Department has held that where it appears that an order of the school commissioner, setting off a portion of one district and uniting it to another, will give better school facilities and increased convenience to the persons occupying the transferred territory, and at the same time leave the district from which the transferred territory was taken sufficient resources with which to maintain a good and sufficient school, this Department can find no justification in setting aside the action of such officer.

In my opinion the respondent herein, in making the order appealed from, has wisely exercised the power and discretion vested in him by the school law, and that the school district no. 9 possesses sufficient resources with which to maintain a good and sufficient school therein.

The appeal herein is dismissed, and the order of School Commissioner Pollard, of June 30, 1894, is confirmed.

3705

In the matter of the appeal of Charles Cady, as trustee of school district no. 14, town of Hounsfield, Jefferson county v. S. W. Maxson and T. S. Gray, school commissioners of said county.

An order altering school districts will not be disturbed where the change was made to better accommodate patrons of the school and the change does not materially affect the size or the assessable valuation of the district from which a portion of territory has been cut off.

Decided August 22, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

By the order of the two commissioners of Jefferson county, made upon the 11th day of May 1888, a portion of district no. 9 of the town of Hounsfield was cut off and annexed to joint district no. 14 of the towns of Hounsfield and Watertown. Inasmuch as the trustees of the districts affected did not all consent to such order, notice was given that the commissioners would attend at the schoolhouse in district no. 9 of Hounsfield at 10 o'clock in the forenoon on the 24th day of May 1888, to hear objections thereto. At the time and place named the supervisor and town clerk of the town of Watertown and the town clerk of the town of Hounsfield were associated with the commissioners to hear objections. After such hearing and after due deliberation, the board confirmed the order of the commissioners by a unanimous vote. This appeal is brought for the purpose of setting aside the orders making the alteration. Numerous objections are offered to the change by the appellants. It is claimed that the new boundary lines are not properly set forth; that the only house upon the territory affected is nearer the schoolhouse in district no. 9 than in district no. 14; that the change weakens the district from which the territory is taken. It is insisted with considerable energy that the descriptions of the boundary lines in the first order of the commissioners and the subsequent order of confirmation are not the same.

In answer, the commissioners insist that the descriptions of boundary lines are proper, except that they admit that there was a slight clerical error in the first order, which was corrected in the subsequent one. They say that more than thirty days elapsed after the making of the order before the appeal was taken; that no map accompanied the appeal; that the house upon the territory affected is only about two-thirds as far from the school in district no. 9 as it is from the one in no. 14, and that the road to district no. 9 is a main public highway, always open for travel, which is not the case as to the roads to no. 14. They show also that after the alterations the assessable valuation of property in no. 14 is $74,990, while in no. 9 it is $51,150.

I have carefully considered all that has been said by the parties on both sides. It seems to me that the commissioners were justified in the action which is appealed from. The only material question which is raised is as to the variation in the orders, but that is shown to have been a clerical error only, and one which misled nobody; and I do not deem it to be of sufficient moment to justify me in requiring the commissioners to retrace their steps and go through the proceedings again. It seems to be clear that the alteration is made for the benefit of one family in order to bring such family in closer proximity to a schoolhouse, and I see no reason why it could not be made for that purpose inasmuch as it does not materially affect the size or the assessable valuation of the district from which a portion of territory was cut off. I have determined to dismiss the appeal.

3893

In the matter of the appeal of Thomas G. Parsons and Mary B. Parsons v. William J. Barr, school commissioner of Genesee county.

The setting off of lands from one district to another will be ordered by the State Superintendent when the effect will be to give the occupants of such lands school advantages which they did not possess, and when a district will not be materially weakened by such transfer, nor the symmetry of the district lines be affected.

Decided July 24, 1890

Draper, Superintendent

Appellants are residents of school district no. 3, of the town of Batavia, Genesee county. The appellant, Mary B. Parsons, is the owner of real estate in said district. The appellants are the parents of four children of school age, three of whom are over 15 years of age. All the children now attend and for some time past have attended the school in district no. 2, of the town of Batavia, where appellants are required to pay for their tuition. The appellants, whose property adjoins district no. 2, and from the map of the district before me would seem naturally to belong thereto, are desirous of being set off to district no. 2. They allege that district no. 3 has taxable property to the amount of $159,795, a sufficiently large amount of taxable property so that the district would not be materially weakened by the loss of appellants' land; that the road to be traveled to reach the school in district no. 2, is one leading to Batavia where appellants receive their mail and transact their business, while the road to the school in district no. 3 leads them away therefrom. That the school facilities in no. 3 are not adequate for children as far advanced as the appellants' children are, and that appellants are now doubly taxed for tuition, paying taxes in district no. 3, and for tuition in no. 2. It is also alleged that the school which appellants' children attend in district no. 2 is nearer to appellants' home and much easier reached. The respondent avers that the distance to district school no. 3 is about the same as to no. 2, and that a good school is usually maintained in district no. 3, and the instruction there given is sufficiently advanced for appellants' children. He alleges that the supervisor and town clerk oppose the change, and for these reasons he has declined to make the order.

I have reached a conclusion in this case with some hesitation. Ordinarily, the judgment of the local school authorities will be upheld, but I feel that in this case that the educational interests of district no. 3 will not suffer, and that the symmetry of the district lines will not be affected by the transfer. The children do not attend in district no. 3, and that an unfair burden is imposed upon the appellants, is evident to me.

The appeal is sustained and the commissioner is hereby directed to make an order setting off the lands of the appellants as shown on the map filed with this appeal, from district no. 3, of the town of Batavia, to district no. 2, of the same town.

3669

In the matter of the appeal of Nathan Marsh, of school district no. 6, town of Conesus, Livingston county, v. R. Austin Kneeland, jr. school commissioner of the first district of Livingston county.

A school commissioner's refusal to make an order setting off land from one district to another in order that certain children residing on said land might be given school facilities which, at certain seasons of the year, they were denied, because of the condition of the roads leading to the schoolhouse, upon the ground that by the change a weak district would be injured, will not be upheld, when it appears that the district will not be materially weakened by the change, but will still have sufficient taxable property to maintain a good school.

Decided May 29, 1888

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by a resident taxpayer of school district no. 6, town of Conesus, Livingston county, from the refusal of the school commissioner to set off and annex his lands to district no. 8 of said town.

The appellant alleges that the change sought for will enable him to send his children to school; that owing to the condition of the road leading from his residence to the schoolhouse in district no. 6 in the winter seasons and the fact that no persons reside on the road between his residence and the schoolhouse, and because the road is, consequently, not generally traveled, it becomes impassable, and, as his children are young, they are not able to attend the school; that the road leading to the schoolhouse in district no. 8 is largely traveled and kept open.

The commissioner answers and alleges that district no. 6 is relatively weaker than district no. 8 and that it would weaken materially a weak district to make the change.

It appears that each district contains a good schoolhouse and maintains a satisfactory school; that the number of children in each district is about the same; that the assessed valuation of district no. 6 is $65,200 and district no. 8, $87,450; that the appellant's property lies largely in district no. 8, but is taxed in district no. 6, he residing on that part of his property lying in district no. 6.

It can not be doubted that the change will be beneficial to the family of the appellant, and the district from which he would be taken would still be sufficiently strong to maintain a good school. I do not consider the objection urged by the commissioner sufficient to sustain his refusal to grant the order.

I have concluded to sustain the appeal and hereby direct R. Austin Kneeland, jr, school commissioner of the first district of Livingston county, to make an order, within thirty days from the date hereof, transferring the lands of the appellant lying in district no. 6, and abutting lands in district no. 8, to district no. 8 of the town of Conesus in the county of Livingston.

3813

In the matter of the appeal of Thomas O'Connell v. Eber S. Devine, school commissioner of the first district of Broome county.

A farm will be set off from district and annexed to another, when it will enable the occupant thereof, who has a large family of children of school age, to have school accommodations for his children, and the change will not materially reduce the amount of taxable property in a strong district.

Decided September 24, 1889

D. H. Carver, attorney for appellant

Draper, Superintendent

The appellant resided in school district no. 6, of the town of Conklin, in the county of Broome. He desires to have his farm annexed to school district no. 4, of the town of Binghamton. The town of Conklin is in the first school commissioner district of Broome county, and the town of Binghamton is in the second commissioner district. Mr O'Connell shows that he has from time to time made application to Commissioner Devine to make the alteration, but that the commissioner has declined and refused to do so. This appeal is brought for the purpose of procuring a determination of the matter.

The appellant shows that he resides at a point which practically prevents his children from attending the school in his school district. His house is nearly three miles from the schoolhouse. The road is but little traveled, and during a considerable portion of the year is shown to be impassable. He has nine children. He has for several years sent his children, who were capable of attending school, to a school across the line in the state of Pennsylvania. He shows that, if he were annexed to school district no. 6, of the town of Binghamton, he could send his children to school in that district, the road being better and being more convenient for him because of the frequency with which he goes to the city of Binghamton on business errands. The school district in which he resides is a strong district. The assessable valuation is over $40,000. He presents the consent of the majority of the taxpayers in his district, and also of the trustees of both of the districts which would be affected by the change. He also presents a certificate from Commissioner James L. Lusk, of the second commissioner district of Broome county, saying that he thinks the change ought to be made.

The respondent has made no answer to the appeal, and the facts alleged by the appellant must, therefore, be assumed to be true. I have no hesitation in saying that, upon this showing of facts, the appellant seems to me to be clearly entitled to the relief he seeks.

The appeal is sustained and the respondent is directed to join with the other commissioner having jurisdiction in an order making the proposed alteration.

3795

In the matter of the appeal of J. A. Wright v. George Peckham, school commissioner of the second district of Cayuga county.

Territory may properly be detached from one district and annexed to an adjoining district, when it appears that it is in close proximity to the schoolhouse in the latter district and a very considerable distance from the schoolhouse in the former district, and there are children to be accommodated with school advantages, to whom the alteration is no inconsiderable matter, and the former school will be left sufficiently strong to maintain a satisfactory school.

Decided July 29, 1889

Draper, Superintendent

On the 1st day of April 1889, the respondent made an order detaching a certain portion of territory, including the residence of appellant, from district no. 5, of the town of Moravia, and annexing the same to district no. 1 of said town. Inasmuch as the consent of the trustee of district no. 5 to the alteration was not given, it was directed, pursuant to statute, that said order should not take effect for ninety days. Subsequently the commissioner heard objections to the order going into effect, at a time and place named by him, as required by statute, and on the 15th of April made a second order annulling the first. From this second order this appeal is taken.

It does not appear that either the supervisor or town clerk of the town of Moravia was associated with the commissioner in determining upon the advisability of the alteration.

District no. 1 is the village of Moravia, and the fact is undoubtedly, as claimed, that the school facilities are better there than in the outlying district no. 5. The residence of the appellant is nearer, by half, to the schoolhouse in no. 1 than that in no. 5. The walks are better and more passable. He has children to whom the advantages of getting to the school, in district no. 1, is no inconsiderable matter. It must be conceded, I think, that the appellant should be given the enhanced advantages of the school in the village, when he is in sight of the schoolhouse, and, indeed, so near, as he says, as to hear the opening exercises at his house, unless there is some insuperable reason why it should not be so. The only reason which can be advanced against the alteration is that it would weaken district no. 5. If the alteration is made, it would transfer property of the valuation of $6350 from no. 5 to no. 1, and leave an assessable valuation of over $70,000 in no. 5. There are fifty-nine children of school age in no. 5 at present, and the change would leave nearly fifty, as large a number as can well and advantageously be provided for in an ordinary common school district in the country. So I can not see that district no. 5 would be materially injured by the change. While there is wide disparagement in the strength of the two districts, it must be remembered that one is an ordinary school district, and the other a union free school district; and it may well be doubted if the former is not as well able to provide the school facilities which it does provide for its children, as the other is to provide such as it does provide for its children. This being so, I can not escape the conclusion that the first impression of the school commissioner was correct, and that this appellant should be transferred to the village district.

The appeal is sustained; the order of the school commissioner of date of April 15, 1889, is set aside and annulled, and the one of the date of April 1st is confirmed.

4534

In the matter of the appeal of E. A. Barton, sole trustee, school district no. 2, town of Elko, Cattaraugus county, from proceedings for the alteration of school districts nos. 2 and 3, town of Elko, Cattaraugus county.

The notice by school commissioners required to be given under section 4 of title 6 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894 of a time when and place where he or she will hear objections to a preliminary order for the alteration of school districts must be served personally upon the assenting and dissenting trustees, or left at his or their residence with some person of suitable age and discretion, and can not be served by mail.

The order of the local board affirming the preliminary order of the school commissioner must be made by the school commissioner, and signed by him or her and all the members of the local board must unite with the commissioner in such order.

Decided March 4, 1897

O. S. Vreeland, attorney for appellant

Skinner, Superintendent

This is an appeal from certain proceedings had and taken in the alteration of school districts nos. 2 and 3, town of Elko, Cattaraugus county. In August 1896, a petition, signed by certain residents of school district no. 3, town of Elko, Cattaraugus county and presented to the trustee of such district, requesting upon several grounds stated therein, that such district be extended by annexing thereto the whole of lot 8 (in district no. 2) which petition was presented to Martha Van Rensselaer, school commissioner of the second district of Cattaraugus county, by such trustee, together with his written consent to the alterations asked for in the petition. That subsequently, School Commissioner Van Rensselaer, the trustee of district no. 2, refusing to consent to such alterations, made a preliminary order making the alterations asked for, which order was to take effect January 27, 1897, and such order was filed in the office of the clerk of the town of Elko on October 9, 1896. That on October 10, 1896, the appellant herein received by mail a notice signed by School Commissioner Van Rensselaer, of which the following is a copy:

To the trustee of school district no. 2, town of Elko, county of Cattaraugus, N. Y.

Take notice that I, Martha Van Rensselaer, school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Cattaraugus county, New York, did on the day of October 1896, make an order altering districts nos. 2 and 3, town of Elko, as does appear from the order hereto attached, and that said order was filed in the town clerk's office on the day of October 1896.

You are also notified that on the 9th day of October 1896, at 10.30 o'clock, a. m., and at the town hall, Quaker Bridge, in the town of Elko, I will attend and hear objections to the foregoing order and to proposed alterations.

You are also notified that you may request the supervisor and town clerk of the towns or town in which your school district lies, to be associated with me at such time and place for the purpose of confirming or vacating said order.

MARTHA VAN RENSSELAER

School Commissioner, Second District, Cattaraugus County

That the appellant on October 10, 1896, went to Quaker Bridge, town of Elko, and saw the town clerk and was informed by him that no meeting pursuant to such notice was held on October 10, 1896; that no other notice was ever received by the appellant. That on October 27, 1896, at 10.30 a. m., School Commissioner Van Rensselaer attended at the town hall at Quaker Bridge, town of Elko, and at such place and time D. H. Andrews, supervisor of such town also attended at the request of the trustee of district no. 3, of such town, to be associated with such school commissioner upon such hearing, and opportunity being given to all persons who desired to be heard, a vote was taken upon confirming such preliminary order made by such school commissioner, and said Andrews, as supervisor, voted in favor of such confirmation, and said school commissioner voted against such confirmation, and thereupon such school commissioner made a confirmatory order, to take effect on January 27, 1897, which order was not signed by her associate in the local board, and such order was filed with the clerk of the town of Elko. That the appellant received a letter from School Commissioner Van Rensselaer, dated, October 31, 1896, informing him of the proceedings of the meeting of October 27, 1896, and of such confirmatory order and the filing thereof. That on or about December 26, 1896, the appellant brought his appeal herein.

School Commissioner Van Rensselaer, and Eben Seekins, trustee of district no. 3, have each answered the appeal.

Trustee Seekins alleges that the appeal herein was not taken within the time prescribed by the rules of practice of this Department relating to appeals. I decide that the appellant has rendered a satisfactory excuse for his delay in bringing his appeal.

It is admitted that the trustee of district no. 3, consented to the alterations of districts nos. 2 and 3, and that the trustee of district no. 2, refused his consent.

Section 4, title 6, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, as amended, enacts among other things, that within ten days after making and filing a preliminary order for the alteration of school districts, the school commissioner shall give at least a week's notice in writing to one or more of the assenting and dissenting trustees of any district or districts to be affected by the proposed alterations; that at a specified time, and at a named place within the town in which either of the districts to be affected lies, such commissioner will hear the objections to the alteration, etc. The section does not provide that such notice shall be served on the trustees by mail, and in the absence of any such provision such notices must be served personally upon such trustees, and if any such trustee shall be absent from home, or can not after due diligence be found, then by leaving the notice at his or her residence with some person of suitable age and discretion, between six o'clock in the morning, and nine o'clock in the evening.

It is clear, from the proofs filed herein, that School Commissioner Van Rensselaer did not serve personally, or cause or attempt to serve personally, either of the trustees of said districts nos. 2 and 3 with the notice required by section 4, above cited. On the contrary, it appears by an affidavit of such school commissioner, sworn to on November 5, 1896, that the service of such notice upon both such trustees was made by depositing, on October 8, 1896, in the post office at Randolph, Cattaraugus county, such notice inclosed in prepaid wrappers, directed respectively to E. A. Barton, Tunesassa, Cattaraugus county, N. Y., and E. Seekins, Elko, Cattaraugus county, N. Y.

I decide that no legal notice under the provisions of said section 4, title 6 of the school law was served upon the trustees of such districts nos. 2 and 3, or either of them by School Commissioner Van Rensselaer, of a meeting to hear objections to the preliminary order made by her on October 8, 1896, and the meeting held on October 27, 1896, at which she and Supervisor Andrews were present, was without authority of law.

Admitting, for the purpose of argument only, that School Commissioner Van Rensselaer had legal authority to give the notice required by such section 4 to such trustees, by mail, it clearly appears that the notice mailed by her to the appellant herein, was that she would attend at the town hall at Quaker Bridge on October 9, 1896, and not on October 27, 1896, to hear objections to such preliminary order made by her.

The appellant has annexed to his appeal the notice received by him by mail on October 10, 1896, a copy of which is hereinbefore set out in full. Such notice is typewritten with the exceptions that the day and month when she would attend, etc., are written 9th and "October," and her signature is written. The notice fails to show that any erasures or alterations have been made therein. The dates in October on which she made the preliminary order and on which said order was filed with the town clerk of the town of Elko, are left blank in such notice.

It is well settled that the first or preliminary order made in the alterations of school districts is but one step in the proceedings and is of no effect whatever until the same has been duly confirmed. That the first imperative duty of the school commissioner, after making and filing the preliminary order of alteration, is to give at least one week's notice in writing to the trustees of all the districts affected by such proposed alteration, and such notice must state that he or she has made an order of alteration, reciting such order, and that at a stated time and place within the town in which either of the districts to be affected lies, he or she will hear the objections to the alteration. When the local board decides to confirm the order of the commissioner, it becomes necessary for the commissioner to make and file the final order, or the order of alteration. The local board does not make the alteration. The commissioner must do this, the board uniting with him or her in the order.

The confirmatory order appealed from has the signature of School Commissioner Van Rensselaer, but does not have the signature of D. H. Andrews, supervisor of the town of Elko, who was associated with her in hearing objections to such alterations.

The appellant also alleges that Eben Seekins is not trustee of school district no. 3, town of Elko, for the reason that at the time of his election as trustee, on the first Tuesday of August 1896, he was not, has not since been, nor was he at the time of bringing the appeal herein, a resident of such school district. It appears that at the annual school meeting held in said district on the first Tuesday of August 1896, said Seekins was, by the color or form of an election, elected trustee of the district, and ever since has been, and still is, acting as such trustee; that no appeal from such election upon the ground that he was not eligible to hold such office, or any other ground, has ever been taken to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Until an order shall be made by such State Superintendent that such election of Seekins was illegal or that he is ineligible to hold the office of trustee, he is deemed to be trustee de facto of said district, and as such, authorized to perform the duties of the office of trustee under the school law.

I find and decide that the appellant herein never received, in accordance with the provisions of section 4, title 6, of the school law, any notice that School Commissioner Van Rensselaer would attend at the town hall, Quaker Bridge, in the town of Elko, on the 27th day of October, 1896, at 10.30 a. m., to hear objections to the order made by her on October 8, 1896, altering school districts nos. 2 and 3, town of Elko; that no notice of a time and place at which she would attend to hear objections to such order was ever duly and legally given by her to the appellant herein; that all proceedings had and taken by such school commissioner relating to alterations of the districts subsequent to October 8, 1896, including the proceedings taken on October 27, 1896, and the alleged confirmatory order made therein, were, and are, and each of them was, and is, illegal and void, and should be vacated and set aside; that the appeal herein should be sustained.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the order made by School Commissioner Van Rensselaer, dated October 8, 1896, altering school districts nos. 2 and 3, town of Elko, Cattaraugus county, and the proceedings had and taken by such school commissioner and Supervisor Andrews in relation to such alteration, on October 27, 1896, and the confirmatory order altering said districts, signed by such school commissioner and filed with the town clerk, of the town of Elko, Cattaraugus county, be, and the same hereby are, and each of them is, vacated and set aside.

4544

In the matter of the appeal of Fred W. Rickmyer and others v. Cora A. Davis, school commissioner, first commissioner district, Oneida county.

The description by a school commissioner in an order forming a new district or annexing territory to another district or districts should not be described "As a farm owned or occupied by A. B.," or, "As known as the Washington place," but should be described by great lot, tract or lot lines, or highways or well-known established monuments that survive the transfer of ownership in the land, so complete and definite that a surveyor at any future day may determine the boundaries of such territory without any reference to any other document than the order of the commissioner.

Decided March 25, 1897

Skinner, Superintendent

This appeal is taken from an order made on January 28, 1897, by School Commissioner Davis of the first commissioner district of Oneida county, dissolving school district no. 7, town of Floyd, Oneida county, and annexing the territory of the district so dissolved to other adjoining school districts in the towns of Floyd and Rome. The order recites that the annexation of the territory of such dissolved district to such other adjoining districts was with the consent of School Commissioner Harding of the third district of Oneida county; that said order was filed in the office of the clerk of the town of Floyd.

The appellants allege several grounds for bringing the appeal. School Commissioner Davis has answered the appeal and alleges that in her judgment it is for the best educational interests of the persons of school age residing in such district that the district be dissolved and its territory annexed to adjoining districts.

I do not deem it necessary for me to examine as to whether or not School Commissioner Davis has wisely exercised the power and authority given to her by the school law, to dissolve school district no. 7 of Floyd and annex its territory to other adjoining districts within her commissioner district, and acting with Commissioner Harding to annex other portions of its territory to adjoining school districts in the third commissioner district of Oneida county, as there is an objection to the validity of the order appealed from which appears to be fatal.

Commissioner Davis could have made an order dissolving school district no. 7 of Floyd, and then different orders annexing the territory of the dissolved district to adjoining districts within her commissioner district, and with Commissioner Harding made orders annexing the remaining territory to adjoining school districts within the third commissioner district.

She elected to make one order including therein the dissolution of school district no. 7 and annexing its territory to adjoining districts, thereby altering such districts.

In the order appealed from "all property of said dissolved district belonging to Messrs Moulton, Lawton, Vanderpool, Vanderhoof, Brown, Evans and Mrs Eunice Crumb" is annexed to district no. 1, Floyd; property known as the Walbran place to district no. 8, Floyd. Like descriptions are given of the property annexed to districts nos. 10 and 16, Rome; and all property occupied by Messrs Holtby, Pugh, Briggs and Rickmyer, to district no. 14, Rome.

This Department has uniformly held that in the description of territory forming a new district, or annexed to another district, the description should be so complete and definite that a surveyor, at any future day, may run its boundaries without reference to any other document than the order forming, altering or describing the territory. For this purpose the exterior lines should be defined by reference to natural monuments, marked trees, creeks, etc., or to township lines of historical notoriety, such as the lines of the great original subdivisions in great lots, tracts, or lots, or the course of highways. Where these fail, the courses and distances as ascertained by the compass and chain should be given. Boundaries should be defined by known established monuments and marks that survive the transfer in the ownership of the soil. Boundaries by farms owned by persons named, or other transitory and perishable lines, however clearly understood at the time, are perpetually subject to change, and in a few years become vague and uncertain, as the memory of men and the title to their possessions pass away. Lines that coincide with farms that have afterwards been cut up into smaller lots, or consolidated with other farms, whereby the original boundaries have become obliterated, are a fruitful source of contentions, strifes and litigation in school districts.

The statements "of the farm now owned by, or the property of, or occupied by A. B." renders it very difficult to ascertain what territory was meant, as the ownership or occupation of land is continually shifting.

In the order appealed from "the property" belonging to Messrs Moulton etc., or known as the Walbran place, or occupied by Messrs Holtby, etc., is annexed, etc., whereas certain land or territory formerly forming a part of dissolved school district no. 7 of Floyd, was annexed to certain adjoining school districts. The Department has, therefore, acted upon the policy of setting aside the action of school commissioners in the alteration of districts where this principle of defining boundaries of territory annexed to districts by proper monuments and prominent landmarks is disregarded.

When school commissioners ascertain that school districts within their commissioner districts are weak financially, and weak in the total resident school population, and weak in the average attendance upon instruction, the dissolution of such weak districts and the annexation of the territory of the dissolved districts to adjoining districts will be approved.

In the orders made to carry into effect such dissolutions and alterations of school districts, care should be taken by school commissioners to define the territory annexed to the different districts by proper monuments and prominent landmarks.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the order made by Cora A. Davis, school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Oneida county, on January 28, 1897, in which Selden L. Harding, school commissioner of the third district of Oneida county, joined, dissolving school district no. 7, town of Floyd, Oneida county, and annexing the territory of the dissolved district to school districts nos. 1 and 8, town of Floyd, and nos. 10, 14 and 16, town of Rome, Oneida county, be, and the same is, hereby vacated and set aside.

In the matter of the appeal of George W. Wilson, trustee, school district no. 5, town of Lumberland, Sullivan county, from decision of local board in the matter of the alterations of school districts nos. 1 and 5, town of Lumberland, Sullivan county.

The alteration of school districts, solely for the purpose of equalizing valuations in districts affected, is against public policy, and will not be sustained by this Department. Such purpose of equalization of values may be an element for consideration, but should not be the controlling one.

Decided March 3, 1896

Skinner, Superintendent

John Z. Twichell, school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Sullivan county, on November 22, 1895, made an order upon the consent of the trustee of school district no. 5, but without the consent of the trustee of school district no. 1, town of Lumberland, Sullivan county, altering the boundaries of said district no. 5 so as to include all the real estate of lot 36 lying south of the foot of the tow path of the Delaware and Hudson canal; and altering the boundaries of said district no. 1 so as to take out of said district that part of lot 36 north of the foot of the tow path of said canal and which order was to take effect on March 2, 1896. That on December 28, 1895, a local board composed of Commissioner Twichell and Supervisor Smith of the town of Lumberland (the clerk of said town, being the trustee of said district no. 5, not sitting), after hearing all persons desiring to be heard in relation to said order rendered its decision, vacating said order of Commissioner Twichell. From said decision of said local board the appellant in the above-entitled matter, as trustee of district no. 5 and on behalf of said district, has taken an appeal.

It appears that the aggregate amount of taxable property in district no. 5 is $5885 and the amount raised therein for school purposes the present school year is $157, the tax rate being 2.67 per cent; that the aggregate amount of taxable property in district no. 1, other than the Delaware and Hudson canal, is $5490, and the valuation of such canal company within the district is $54,101.60, making the total valuation $59,590.60; that the amount raised therein for school purposes for the school year of 1894-95 is $625, the tax rate being .010488.

It further appears that school district no. 1 was formed by an order made February 18, 1850, by the then town superintendents of schools fixing the boundaries thereof, which order was recorded in the office of the town clerk of said town on March 23, 1850; that the said boundaries had not been changed up to November 22, 1895.

It is admitted by the parties to this appeal that the alteration of said districts, as described in said order of Commissioner Twichell, so far as the inhabitants of district no. 5 were concerned, was solely for the purpose of increasing the amount of taxable property in the district by including within its boundaries a section of said Delaware and Hudson canal. It appears that three and nineteen-twentieths miles of said canal is within said district no. 1 and the order of Commissioner Twichell would take about three-quarters of a mile of said canal from district no. 1 of the valuation of $10,000 and annex it to district no. 5. It is not claimed that said order was made for the convenience or benefit of the residents of the territory affected, nor would it enlarge their school privileges.

The decision of the local board vacating the order of Commissioner Twichell was based upon the decision of Superintendent Draper in appeal no. 3534, on November 13, 1886.

The facts in appeal no. 3534 appear to have been that in district no. 5, Poughkeepsie, there were about two and one-half miles of the New York Central Railroad, and no portion thereof in district no. 1; that the order therein appealed from cut off territory containing about three-quarters of a mile of said railroad from no. 5 and annexed it to no. 1; that the fact was undisguised that the object of the order was solely to increase the valuation of property in district no. 1. Superintendent Draper in his decision said: "In any event, I am not prepared to give sanction to the proposition that school districts should be changed only for the purpose of equalizing valuations. Perhaps it may properly be an element for consideration, but it should not be the controlling one. If districts are to be altered whenever, and only because one has more valuable property than another, the result would be a constant struggle for the annexation of such property, and the people and the school system would be endlessly involved in controversy in consequence of it. This is against public policy, and as it is the essential, if not the only, ground upon which the change here in question was made, it can not be sustained."

I concur in the views stated by Superintendent Draper. Altering school districts only for the purpose of equalizing valuations is not sustained by this Department; it may be an element for consideration, but it should not be the controlling one.

The appeal herein is dismissed and the decision of the local board affirmed.

4453

In the matter of the appeal of John Fisher, William Madden, Michael J. Jackson, Joseph Silk and Walter F. Jeffers, individually and as trustees of and composing the board of education of union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, v. Walter S. Allerton, school commissioner, first commissioner district, Westchester county. Charles Dusenberry, jr. and others v. Walter S. Allerton, school commissioner, etc.

A school commissioner has no jurisdiction to alter a school district until the trustees thereof have been asked and have given, or refused to give, their consent: a preliminary order altering or dividing the school district or erecting a new district, is simply a step in the proceeding. It is the confirmatory order by which the district is altered or divided or the new district is erected. School commissioners have no power to alter or divide school districts upon which there is an outstanding bonded indebtedness.

Decided June 8, 1896

Herbert D. Lent, attorney for appellants

Skinner, Superintendent

The two above entitled appeals are taken from an order made by Walter S. Allerton, school commissioner, first school commissioner district of Westchester county, altering or dividing union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, by taking certain territory therefrom and forming a new school district to be known as district no. 3, town of East Chester, Westchester county.

The two appeals being from the same order, they are consolidated and are examined and decided as one appeal.

The principal ground upon which said appeals are brought is, that at the time of making the said order, altering or dividing said union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, said district had a bonded indebtedness outstanding.

The following facts are established by the proofs filed herein:

That at the annual school meeting in said union free school district no. 1, East Chester, held on August 6, 1895, a resolution was duly adopted to raise by tax the sum of $25,000 for the purpose of purchasing a schoolhouse site and erecting a schoolhouse thereon, and that said tax be levied and collected by instalments; that the board of education of said district, pursuant to the provisions of the school law, gave public notice that bonds for said $25,000 would be sold on January 27, 1896, said bonds to bear interest from March 1, 1896, and to be delivered on or about that date; that on January 27, 1896, the Bank of Mount Vernon submitted to said board of education a bid for said bonds; that by reason of an injunction granted by the Supreme Court restraining the sale of said bonds no action was taken by said board of education upon bids received for said bonds until February 10, 1896 (said injunction having been vacated on February 7, 1896), when said board notified said bank that its bid had been accepted and said bonds awarded to it, and that said bonds would be delivered to said bank on or about March 1, 1896; that on March 4, 1896, said board of education delivered said bonds amounting to $25,000 to said Bank of Mount Vernon, and received from said bank therefor the sum of $25,400, being the face thereof and the premium thereon; that on or about February 10 a petition was presented to the respondent, School Commissioner Allerton, asking him to alter or divide said union free school district no. 1 by taking therefrom certain territory and erecting said territory into a new school district; that on February 13, 1896, said Commissioner Allerton wrote to the president of the board of education of said union free school district no. 1, informing him of the filing of said petition and asking if the trustees would consent to the erection of the proposed new district, and on March 4, 1896, said Allerton received a letter from said board dated March 2, 1896, informing him that said board had refused to give its consent; that on March 6, 1896, said Commissioner Allerton made a preliminary order erecting said new school district, to be known as district no. 3, East Chester, to be composed of territory theretofore contained in said union free school district no. 1, and reciting therein that the trustees of said district did not consent to said order, and which order was filed with the town clerk of the town of East Chester; that on March 14, 1896, said Allerton gave notice in writing to the trustees of said district no. 1, East Chester, that on March 25, 1896, at 8 o'clock in the evening he would attend at the office of the town clerk of the town of East Chester, at Tuckahoe, to hear objections to the erection of said new school district; that in pursuance of said notice the said Allerton did attend at the time and place stated in said notice, and due opportunity was given to all persons who desired to be heard to present their objections, and all such persons were heard, the principal objection as stated being that said union free school district no. 1, East Chester, could not be legally altered or divided, as there was upon said district an outstanding bonded indebtedness; that afterward said Commissioner Allerton decided to confirm said preliminary order made by him on March 6, 1896, and made his confirmatory order dated March 25, 1896, erecting said new school district out of territory theretofore contained in said district no. 1, thereby consequently altering and dividing said district no. 1, which confirmatory order was to take effect on June 10, 1896, and which order was filed with the town clerk of the town of East Chester on March 31, 1896.

Section 30 of article 5, title 8, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, among other things, enacts "And the school commissioner having jurisdiction may alter any union free school district whose limits do not correspond with those of any incorporated village or city, in the manner provided by title 6 of this act, but no such district shall be altered or divided upon which there is an outstanding bonded indebtedness."

In section 6, title 6, of said Consolidated School Law of 1894, it is enacted: "He (school commissioner) may alter the boundaries of any union free school district whose limits do not correspond with those of any city or incorporated village, in like manner as alterations of common school districts may be made as herein provided; but no school district shall be altered or divided which has any bonded indebtedness outstanding."

The application to Commissioner Allerton to alter or divide said district no. 1 by taking therefrom certain territory and erecting said territory into a new school district, was made about February 10, 1896, but it was not until March 4, 1896, that he was informed by the trustees of said district no. 1 that they refused their consent to such alteration of their district.

This Department has held that a school commissioner has no jurisdiction to alter a school district until the trustees thereof have been asked and have given, or refused to give their consent. Commissioner Allerton, therefore, had no jurisdiction to make any order in the premises until March 4, 1896, and it appears he did not make any order until March 6, 1896.

It is clear that on March 4, 1896, there was upon said union free school district no. 1, East Chester, an outstanding bonded indebtedness, and that said district had a bonded indebtedness outstanding of $25,000, and, therefore, under the provisions of the school law, said Commissioner Allerton was forbidden to alter or divide said district.

The preliminary order of March 6, 1896, did not alter or divide said district or erect a new district, but was inchoate, simply a step in the proceeding, and of no effect whatever until the same was confirmed by his action, or that of the local board, if the supervisor and town clerk were associated with the commissioner upon the hearing of objections, at the request of the trustees of district no. 1, under the provisions of the school law.

It was the confirmatory order of March 25, 1896, which, by its terms, was not to take effect until June 10, 1896; that said alteration or division of said district, and the erection of the new district, could be made and become operative, and on and since March 4, 1896, said union free school district no. 1, East Chester, had and has a bonded indebtedness outstanding.

As the provisions of the school law prohibited the alteration or division of said school district, I have not deemed it necessary to consider any other question presented by the appeals herein.

The appeals are sustained.

It is ordered, That the preliminary order made by Walter S. Allerton, school commissioner, on March 6, 1896, and the confirmatory order made by him on March 25, 1896, altering and dividing union free school district no. 1, town of East Chester, Westchester county, and the erection of a new school district, to be known as school district no. 3, town of East Chester, Westchester county, out of territory heretofore contained in said union free school district no. 1, are, and each of them is, hereby vacated and set aside.

3512

William Morrison, as sole trustee of school district no. 1, towns of Stockport and Greenport, Columbia county, N. Y., from an order of the school commissioners of Columbia county, and an order affirming the same, altering school districts no. 1, Stockport and Greenport, and no. 2, Stockport.

Alteration of school districts is a purely statutory proceeding. Provisions of title 6, chapter 555, Laws of 1864, must be strictly followed.

When a school district lies within two commissioner districts, one commissioner can not alter or divide it.

Town officers are not authorized to proceed to hear objections to the alteration of a school district lying in two commissioner districts, or to make any order in the premises unless both commissioners attend.

The preliminary order for the formation of a new district, in case the trustees refuse to consent thereto, provided for in section 3, title 6 of the Consolidated School Act, is inchoate and of no effect, until confirmed by the order provided for in section 4.

Decided July 24, 1886

Draper, Superintendent

This is a proceeding by William Morrison, sole trustee of school district no. 1, Stockport and Greenport, Columbia county, N. Y., appealing from an order made by the school commissioners of Columbia county on the 26th day of January 1886, altering school districts no. 1, Stockport and Greenport, and no. 2, Stockport, by taking a part of the territory of the former district and adding it to the latter, and from the order of the local board confirming such order on the 8th day of February 1886.

The objections raised to the proceedings appealed from are:

1 That the confirmatory order is void for the reason that the school commissioner of the first commissioner district did not unite in the same.

2 That the local board was without jurisdiction for the reason that the supervisor and town clerk of Greenport had not been requested to participate in the proceedings thereof by the trustees of district no. 1.

3 That great wrong and injustice will be done district no. 1, by the alteration.

The facts relating to the procedure are as follows: On the 26th day of January 1886, Oliver W. Hallenbeck, school commissioner, of the first commissioner district of Columbia county, and Peter Silvernail, school commissioner of the second commissioner district, duly made and filed their order altering school districts no. 1, Stockport and Greenport, and no. 2, Stockport, by taking part of the territory of no. 1 and adding it to no. 2. The trustee of district no. 2, John P. Van Buren, duly consented to said alteration, and the trustee of district no. 1, William Morrison, dissented, as recited in the order. It appears that district no. 2 lies wholly in the second commissioner district of the county, and district no. 1 partly in the second and partly in the first commissioner district. The trustee of district no. 1 not consenting to the alteration, the order was made to take effect not until the 15th of May 1886. Copies of the commissioners' order, and of the assent and dissent of the trustees of the respective districts were filed in the town clerks' offices of the towns of Stockport and Greenport on the 27th day of January 1886. On the 29th day of January 1886, notice was served by the commissioners on the trustees of both districts, that on the 8th day of February 1886, at 10.30, a. m., at Kittle's Hall, in Stockport, they intended to make a final order for the alteration of said school districts.

The trustees of school district no. 2 notified the supervisor and town clerk of Stockport of the intention of the commissioners, and requested them to be associated with the commissioners at such time and place. The trustee of school district no. 1 did not request the supervisor and town clerk of Greenport to be associated with the commissioner. It further appears that on the 8th day of February 1886, at 10.30, a. m., and at Kittle's Hall, in Stockport, pursuant to the notices aforesaid, the commissioner of the second commissioner district of the county, and the supervisor and town clerks of Stockport and Greenport met and made an order affirming the original order. This order was duly filed in the proper town clerks' offices.

The alteration of school districts is a purely statutory proceeding, and the provisions of title 6, chapter 555, Laws of 1864, must be strictly followed.

In the case before me, the first objection urged to the proceeding is, that the commissioner of the first commissioner district did not unite in the confirmatory order made February 8, 1886, and it becomes necessary to examine the question as to whether it was necessary for both commissioners to unite in this order.

The sections under which this alteration was made are 3 and 4 of title 6 of the act referred to, and read as follows:

"§ 3 If the trustees of any such district refuse to consent, he may make and file with the town clerk his order making the alteration, but reciting the refusal, and directing that the order shall not take effect as to the dissenting district or districts until a day therein to be named, and not less than three months after the notice in the next section mentioned.

"§ 4 Within ten days after making and filing such order he shall give at least a week's notice, in writing, to one or more of the assenting and dissenting trustees of any district or districts to be affected by the proposed alterations, that at a specified time and a named place within the town in which either of the districts to be affected lies, he will hear the objections to the alterations. The trustees of any district to be affected by such order may request the supervisor and town clerk of the town or towns within which such district or districts shall wholly or partly lie to be associated with the commissioner. At the time and place mentioned in the notice the commissioner or commissioners, with the supervisor and town clerks if they shall attend and act, shall hear and decide the matter; and the decision shall be final, unless duly appealed from. Such decision must either confirm or vacate the order of the commissioner, and must be filed with and recorded by the town clerk of the town or towns in which the district or districts affected shall lie."

I must examine first what jurisdiction, in respect to territory, commissioners have. Section 1 of this title reads, "it shall be the duty of each school commissioner in respect to the territory within his district:

1 To divide it, so far as practicable, into a convenient number of school districts, and alter the same as herein provided."

The significance of subdivision 1 of section 1 can readily be seen.

The jurisdiction of a school commissioner to alter districts is thereby extended only over the territory of his own commissioner district. But school districts frequently lie in two or more school commissioner districts, and, in such cases, the jurisdiction of one commissioner not extending over the whole territory, section 6 of the same title provides, that "the commissioners within whose districts any such school district lies, or a majority of them, may alter or dissolve it."

School district no. 1, Stockport and Greenport, lies within two school commissioner districts. For this reason one commissioner can not alter or divide it, but under the authority in section 6 "the commissioners, or a majority of them," may make any alteration or dissolution thereof. One not being a majority of two, it will require the concurrent action of both commissioners to make an alteration of this district. This presents the question as to when or by which order the alteration takes effect. A long line of decisions upon this point, in which the effect of the two orders, provided for in cases similar to the one here, are ably discussed, strengthens me in the conclusion that the preliminary order provided for in section 3 is inchoate and of no effect whatever until the same has been duly confirmed as provided for in section 4. If, after making the first or preliminary order, no further proceeding is taken, the alteration is not affected. "The commissioner or the commissioners, with the supervisors and town clerks, if they shall attend, shall hear and decide the matter." "Such decision must either confirm or vacate the order of the commissioner." This language of the statute, and the construction that must be placed upon it is, that when a preliminary order for the alteration of a school district has been made, and the time fixed for the hearing of objections thereto, the commissioner, if the districts affected by the order lie in one commissioner district, or the commissioners, when the districts are located in two or more commissioner districts, shall hear and decide the matter and enter an order vacating or confirming the preliminary order. The commissioner "shall attend," the statute says. The attendance of the supervisors and town clerks is provided for, so that their respective towns may have a voice in the decision of the matter, but the statute does not say they "shall attend."

The absence of the town officers from the board will not in any way prevent the commissioner or commissioners from acting, or invalidate the proceedings taken by the commissioners at the time fixed for the hearing of the objections, otherwise regular. But if the commissioners do not attend, the town officers are not authorized by law to make any order in the premises, and the preliminary order must fall. In this case the school commissioner of the first commissioner district did not attend the meeting on the 8th of February 1886, for the purpose of hearing objections, and did not unite with the other commissioner in the confirmatory order. The confirmatory order is the one by which the alteration of the districts is affected, and the first order, merely preliminary, being in fact but one step in the procedure for the alteration, and if not followed by the subsequent statutory requirements, it is void.

The direction of the statute, the "commissioner shall attend," was not complied with.

The school commissioner of the second commissioner district had no authority under the statute to make an order altering a school district lying wholly or partly in another commissioner district. The failure of the commissioner of the first district to unite in the confirmatory order renders the proceedings irregular, and the orders appealed from must be set aside.

The disposition of the foregoing questions makes it unnecessary to examine the other objections raised by the appellants.

The appeal is sustained, and the order appealed from hereby vacated and set aside.

In the matter of the appeal of John C. Keller and Willis Baldwin, trustees of school district no. 2, town of Hunter, in the county of Greene, v. Henry B. Whitecomb, school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Greene county.

The power given to a school commissioner to divide a school district is purely statutory, and the commissioner must follow the provisions of the statutes literally and fully.

Order vacated because of failure to do so.

The advisability of dividing a village into two districts, with two small schools, instead of continuing as one district with a good-sized school, questioned and disapproved.

Decided September 19, 1887

Clarence E. Bloodgood, Esq., attorney for appellant

Hallock, Jennings & Chase, attorneys for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal by the trustees of district no. 2 of the town of Hunter, Greene county, from an order made by the respondent upon the 19th day of October 1886, and also from an order made by said commissioner on the 19th day of November 1886, confirming the first mentioned order, by which orders a portion of said district no. 2 was set off and constituted a separate school district, to be known as district no. 11.

The appellants claim that the proceedings of the commissioner were irregular, and that, whether they were or not, the order appealed from is inadvisable as being against the best interests of education in the locality.

It is claimed that the proceedings were irregular, in that the first order was made without the consent of the trustees of the district affected, and that no such notice as the statute requires was given that the commissioner would hear objections, at a specified time and place, to the alterations made in the order.

The notice given was as follows:

To the Trustees of District No. 2, in the Town of Hunter, Greene County, N. Y.:

Take notice that I intend, on the 8th day of November next, at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the residence of Samuel S. Mulford, in the town of Hunter, Greene county, New York, to make an order for the alteration of school district no. 2, in the town of Hunter, aforesaid, by cutting off a portion of the same and forming a new school district, to be known as district no. 11, of said town.

The portion of said district no. 2, so to be cut off and to form said new district, is bounded and described as follows, viz: Bounded on the north by the north lines of lots nos. 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, in great lot no. 24, west part of the Hardenburgh patent; east by the west line of the east half of said great lot no. 24, Hardenburgh patent; south by the height of lands next south of the Schoharie kill, and west by a line drawn parallel with said lot lines and crossing the highway running through the village of Hunter at the division line between the lands of Wm. F. Greene and the lands occupied by William A. Douglass — excepting therefrom the house and lands on lot no. 5 of said great lot no. 24, west part of Hardenburgh patent, formerly occupied by Michael Sax; also excepting therefrom the farm and lands on the easterly side thereof, now occupied by Samuel Brown.

You are therefore requested to meet without delay and to adopt a resolution consenting to the above proposed alteration, in which case you will please furnish me at the same time and place above mentioned with a copy thereof, certified under the hands of a majority of you, or to adopt a resolution applying to the supervisor and town clerk of Hunter aforesaid to be associated with me at the time and place above mentioned in determining on the propriety of such proposed alteration.

In the latter case you will please transmit copies of such resolution, certified under the hand of a majority of you, to the supervisor and town clerk without delay, together with a notice of the time and place above stated at which such alteration will be made by me in case of their nonattendance.

Dated October 10, 1886.

HENRY B. WHITCOMB
School Commissioner

Section 4 of title 7 of the Consolidated School Act provides that "Within ten days after making and filing such order, he (the commissioner) shall give at least a week's notice, in writing, to one or more of the assenting and dissenting trustees of any district or districts to be affected by the proposed alterations, that at a specified time and at a place named within the town in which either of the districts to be affected lies, he will hear the objections to the alterations."

It has always been held that the alteration of school districts can only be effected by a strict construction of, and a rigid adherence to, all of the requirements of the statutes relating to the subject. The several steps indicated in the statutes must be taken with care before the alteration can be effected. For obvious reasons this ought to be so. The individual rights and interests which are involved in proceedings to alter school districts are too numerous and too important to be lightly dealt with. The courts have uniformly held that when power to affect property is conferred upon those who have no personal interest in it, such power can be exercised only in the precise manner specified in the law or instrument conferring the power. This rule has always been rigidly adhered to by this Department in considering appeals from orders altering the boundaries of school districts.

Now, applying these general principles to the present case, we find that the statute requires the commissioner to give notice of a time and place, when and where he will hear objections to the alteration. The gist and purpose of the requirement is that the trustee and other persons objecting to this change shall be clearly and plainly notified, in writing, of a time and place when they may have a public opportunity to interpose their objections.

The statute likewise guarantees them the right of having the matter determined only after such opportunity shall have been afforded them. If this requirement and this right were only technical, they would have to be complied with and protected; but it seems to me they are not technical. The law confers upon the objectors a substantial right to an exact and specific notice of their rights in the premises, and sound public policy requires that the requirement should be literally and fully observed. In my judgment, the notice given by the commissioner in this case, does not meet the requirement of the statute. The notice starts out with the declaration that, upon a day specified, "I intend to make an order for the alteration." The law provides that the commissioner shall first hear any objections offered, and then decide what he ought to do. It is true that subsequently the notice contains the request that the trustees shall adopt a resolution consenting to the alteration or applying to the supervisor and town clerk to be associated with the commissioner "in determining upon the propriety of such proposed alteration." But it nowhere informs them of their right to present their objections directly to him or to a board consisting of himself, the supervisor and the town clerk. I think the omission is fatal.

The contention of the respondents that the appellants were not injured or misled by the defect in the notice, can not be sustained. They may have been. The fact that the commissioner followed the form of notice laid down for his guidance in the Code of Public Instruction will go a long way towards exculpating him from any charge of blundering, but it will not make the notice a sufficient one. In the later editions of the Code the form of notice had not been changed as it should have been, to conform with the changes in the statute.

The conclusions above set forth, of course, render it necessary to sustain the appeal and set aside the orders appealed from. But the desire was expressed by both of the able counsel who appeared upon the argument that, in any event, the decision should not be allowed to turn solely upon the question raised as to the regularity of the proceedings, for the reason that, if the order was set aside, only because of an irregular proceeding, the ground would have to be all gone over again in order to get a decision of the case upon the merits, and that time, trouble and expense would be saved by a determination of the case upon its merits now. In view of this I listened to exhaustive arguments, in which all that could well be said upon the merits of the case was ably presented.

It appears that prior to 1880 the territory comprising district no. 2 constituted three school districts, which were joined in one district by the then school commissioner. It seems to be generally agreed that the consolidation would have been generally approved if the schoolhouse for the combined district had been located nearer to the center of the village of Hunter. The alteration now proposed makes the division line to run nearly through the center of the village. It would seem to be an arbitrary division. Why it should be run just there it is difficult to determine. The advisability, in an educational point of view, of dividing a single village into two school districts, is doubtful. Experience shows that better results are obtained in large schools where opportunity is afforded for suitably grading the pupils, than in a small one where all ages and classes have to be gathered into the same room. It seems also that in 1882 application was made to the school commissioner to make the precise alteration from the order making which an appeal is now taken, and that from his refusal to do so an appeal was taken to this Department and that the Superintendent (Gilmour) overruled the appeal. In view of these facts, reasons more weighty than those now advanced would have to be presented, and a substantial unanimity of desire on the part of the people of the district affected would have to be shown, before I should feel justified in sustaining the suggested division.

The appeal is sustained and the orders appealed from are set aside and declared void and of no effect.

3620

In the matter of charges against Charles F. White.

The order of a school commissioner dividing a large school district will be sustained when it appears that the proceedings were regular and that injustice has not been clearly shown, or that the action is manifestly against the educational interest of the district. Trustees are not bound to call a special meeting for the consideration of the question of dividing a district. Such a meeting would have been entirely proper, but this is a matter the responsibility for which rests with the trustees and the school commissioner. Neither malfeasance in office nor immoral character being shown, the trustees will not be removed from their offices.

Decided July 16, 1887

Albert W. Seaman, Esq., attorney for respondent

Draper, Superintendent

The matter first above entitled is an appeal from the order of the respondent made on the 22d day of April 1887, dividing school district no. 2, of the town of Newtown, and setting off a portion of said district into a new school district, to be known as district no. 12.

A very rancorous controversy has been going on in district no. 2 of the town of Newtown for a long time, which has been brought before this Department at numerous times and in a variety of forms.

At the annual school meeting in the district, held August 31, 1886, action was initiated looking to the construction of a new schoolhouse. At subsequent special meetings this step was determined upon, and a new site was selected for the purpose. The supervisor of the town refused to consent to the change of site, and was overruled by the Department upon an appeal taken by W. H. Proctor and others. Agreements were made for the purchase of a new site. Then a movement was started looking to the division of the district. The board of trustees is divided in opinion as to the advisability of such action. At a meeting of the board held on the 11th day of April 1887, a petition was received from Joseph B. Denton and others, asking the board to consent to a division of the district. Two of the three members voted to give such consent; the third voted against it. Taking this consent as the basis of his action, the school commissioner made his order dividing the district on the 22d day of April, from which order this appeal is taken.

An appeal is also pending from the neglect or refusal of the board of trustees to call a special meeting of the district to consider the matter of dividing the district, and charges are also pending against Trustees George W. Smith and Charles F. White, upon which it is asked that they be removed from office.

The voluminous papers bearing upon all of these proceedings have been examined with care, and extended arguments of the various counsel representing the different interests have been heard.

The most important of all of the proceedings is the appeal from the order of the commissioner dividing the district. It was made upon the consent of a majority of the board of trustees of the district. No irregularity in the proceedings is shown. It is objected that the consent of the board preceded the order of the commissioner, but this was clearly right. The commissioner could not have made the order he did except after such consent had been given. It is objected also that there was no "deliberation" in the board at the time of the action giving consent was taken. All of the members were present, and there was apparently as deliberate procedure as the heated circumstances would allow. It is not shown that all of the provisions of law governing the procedure were not strictly observed. It, therefore, is only left for me to determine whether the order appealed from was advisable.

It is the practice of this Department to sustain the orders of school commissioners, altering school districts, where their proceedings are regular, unless the action taken is shown to be clearly unjust to some interest which may be involved, or is manifestly against the educational interests of the locality.

It appears that the assessed valuation of district no. 2 before division was about $445,000. The assessed valuation in the two districts, after division, is respectively $260,000 and $184,000. One hundred and fifteen children of school age reside in the territory which has been set off. The fact, which is shown in the papers, that less than twenty of this number have heretofore attended the public school, seems best explained on the ground that school facilities have been either inadequate or inaccessible. The district is accumulating in population. By common consent added school accommodations are needed. A new schoolhouse upon a new site is to be erected. The site selected is some distance, though not great, farther from the proposed new district than the one heretofore occupied. It seems doubtful if the pupils of the old district could long be accommodated in one building. It likewise seems impracticable for all of the electors in so large a district to meet and transact business intelligently in a school meeting. These difficulties will increase and multiply.

In view of these considerations, it is impossible to say that the commissioner did not exercise his discretion wisely in making the order appealed from. It is certainly not shown to my satisfaction that he did not, and I am, therefore, unable to sustain the appeal.

Desiring to dispose of all matters pending before the Department relating to this district, I also dismiss the appeal from the refusal of the board of trustees to call a special meeting of the district to consider the question of division, and I dismiss the charges against Trustees Smith and White. It would have been entirely proper, and perhaps advisable, for the board to have called a meeting for the consideration of the matter. But it was a matter, the responsibility of which the law placed upon the trustees, and they had the legal right to follow their own judgment and act accordingly. No allegations are made against Messrs Smith and White which would justify their removal from office. No immoral character or malfeasance in office is shown. They have had part in the general conflict of opinion in the district, and perhaps have been headstrong in carrying out their opinions, but probably no more so than very many others have been or would have been in their places.

The several above-entitled appeals and charges are therefore dismissed.

5440

In the matter of the appeal of Alfred G. Lewis from the dissolution and annexation of school district no. 8, town of Geneva, Ontario county.

Alteration of boundaries of district; desires of taxpayers not alone conclusive. Where an appeal is brought from an order dissolving a school district and annexing the territory thereof to another district, the fact that the appellant is the owner of a considerable portion of the territory annexed will not control the decision of the appeal, if it appears that the people of the district have profited educationally by the order.

Order modified so as to conform to wishes of residents. Where a district is dissolved and its territory annexed to a union free school district and it appears that the residents of the district living outside of the city desire to retain the school district organization and those residing within the city desire to be annexed to the union free school district, comprising the greater portion of such city, the order should be modified so as to provide for the maintenance of a district outside of the city.

Decided February 28, 1910

G. M. B. Hawley, attorney for appellants

Draper, Commissioner

The appellant, Alfred G. Lewis, owns a large tract of land located outside of the city of Geneva, in former school district no. 8, town of Geneva, county of Ontario. He paid more than one-quarter of the school taxes in such district, being assessed for school purposes in the sum of $56.270. He complains of an order granted by W. A. Ingalls, school commissioner of Ontario county, dissolving such district no. 8, town of Geneva, and annexing the territory thereof to union free school district no. 1, town of Geneva. The latter district comprises nearly all of the city of Geneva, although its boundaries are not coterminous with those of the city.

It is clear that Commissioner Ingalls acted in good faith in making this order. It is probably true that a considerable portion of the district would be benefited by annexation to the union free school district. The educational interests of certain parts of district no. 8 situated within the city limits would doubtless be promoted by such annexation. The school commissioner, acting under the advice of the Department, directed the trustee of the district to call a special district meeting to vote upon a proposition of raising money to build a larger schoolhouse, or to have the district dissolved and annexed to school district no. 1. Such a meeting was held October 11, 1909, and thirty votes were cast upon the question of dissolution and annexation, of which twenty-four were favorable and six opposed. The trustee of the district gave his consent to the action, and the board of education of district no. 1 also consented. The order dissolving the district and annexing its territory to union free school district no. 1 was entered October 23d, to take effect October 25, 1909.

The appellant insists that a large number of the qualified electors were not personally served with notices of the special meeting called to consider this question. The notices were served on all the qualified electors so far as known to the clerk of the district. It is apparent that a number received no notice, but the failure was not intentional nor was fraud shown on the part of the clerk. The meeting was legally held and was sufficient to give the school commissioner the required information as to the sentiment of the district in respect to annexation. After this meeting those living outside of the city proposed that the order of dissolution and annexation be set aside and a new order be granted dividing the district at the city line, and establishing a new district out of that part of the old district which was situated outside of the city. This proposition was not voted upon at the special meeting. The appellant caused petitions to be circulated among the taxpayers of the former district for the purpose of ascertaining what the district thought about this method of settling the controversy. It is apparent that the greater part of these taxpayers desire a division of the district, and the annexation of that part within the city to district no. 1. The appellant asks that the order be annulled and that the school commissioner be directed to issue an order dividing the district in accordance with this petition.

The fact that the appellant is the largest taxpayer of the district, owning a considerable portion of the territory thereof, should not control the decision of this appeal. It will be his duty, as well as that of every other taxpayer, to pay what is required for the most advantageous advancement of the educational interests of the community. The petition asking the annulment of the order appealed from is signed by taxpayers and does not seem to have been presented to those electors who have children in attendance at school, or who rent taxable property within the district. The opinions of such persons are entitled to the same consideration as are the opinions of those who pay taxes. An appeal based solely upon the assertion that the appellant's financial interests are adversely affected by the act complained of, will receive little attention, especially if it appears that the district has profited educationally by such act. Notwithstanding this defect, it clearly appears that nearly all of those living in the former district, outside of the city, are favorable to the establishment of a new district out of that territory; it also seems that a majority of those within the city are willing to be annexed to the city.

The question of the effect of the annulment of this order and a subsequent division along the line suggested, upon the educational prosperity of the community, must be first considered. The assessed valuation of that part of district no. 8, lying without the city limits, is $99,750, and of that within the city limits is $85,904. There are at least sixteen pupils living within that part of the district outside of the city who have been attending the school in such district since its annexation to the city district. It is evident therefore that that part of former district no. 8 is strong enough financially and in number of pupils to maintain a thoroughly efficient elementary school. The educational strength of this community will not be lessened by the maintenance of a small school, with a competent teacher, under a trustee who is reasonably desirous of promoting the educational welfare of his own and his neighbors' children.

It would not be just to disregard the wishes of those living outside the city and within the confines of the former district, if such wishes may be carried out without seriously affecting the interests of the school or of the community. It is therefore incumbent upon me to sustain the appeal. The school commissioner should make a new order annexing to union free school district no. 1 all that part of district no. 8 which lies within the city of Geneva and altering the boundaries of district no. 8 so as to include only so much of its territory as lies outside of such city. The board of education of union free school district no. 1 was made a party to this appeal. The board did not answer, so that it may be assumed that they have acquiesced in the relief sought. The board will therefore doubtless agree to the annexation of that part of district no. 8 which lies within the city limits.

In sustaining this appeal the fact should be emphasized that the Commissioner of Education has not been influenced by the argument that the order appealed from has imposed an added burden of taxation for school purposes upon the taxpayers of the district. The tax of $6.78 per thousand is not too much to pay for the privileges of a school system such as that maintained by the city of Geneva. The taxpayers and patrons of the school, living in district no. 8 outside the city, desire to run their own school. The privilege will be granted them, but with the distinct understanding that liberal appropriations must be made for repairs and alterations, apparatus and equipment, and teacher's salary. The appellant and others who have joined with him in the petition will be held personally accountable for the maintenance of a first-class school in this district. If there be any failure in this regard the school commissioner will be directed to issue an order dissolving the district and annexing it to union free school district no. 1.

The appeal is sustained.

It is hereby ordered, That the order executed by Willis A. Ingalls, school commissioner of the first school commissioner district, county of Ontario, dissolving school district no. 8, town of Geneva, and annexing its territory to union free school district no. 1, town of Geneva, which order was dated October 23, 1909, and filed in the office of the town clerk of such town on October 25, 1909, is hereby revoked and set aside.

It is hereby ordered, That the order executed by Willis A. Ingalls, forthwith take such action as may be required under article 2 of the Education Law to alter the boundaries of said school district no. 8, town of Geneva, and union free school district no. 1, so that all of that part of such district no. 8, as lies within the limits of the city of Geneva, shall be annexed to, and become a part of, union free school district no. 1.

5354

In the matter of the appeal of Benjamin F. Milks from the action of School Commissioner J. D. Jones of the second school commissioner district of Allegany county in making orders dissolving school district no. 6, town of Amity, and annexing portions thereof to school districts no. 1, town of Scio, and no. 5, town of Amity

The fact that certain residents of a district will be somewhat farther removed from a schoolhouse though still within a reasonable distance of one as such distances are usually determined in rural districts should not be regarded as sufficient ground to defeat the plan to give a community affected the school facilities which would follow from the action complained of.

Decided October 3, 1907

D. D. Dickson, attorney for appellant

Jesse L. Grantier, attorney for respondent

Draper, Commissioner

On June 15, 1907, John D. Jones, school commissioner of the second school commissioner district of Allegany county, made an order dissolving school district no. 6, town of Amity. On the same date he also made concurrent orders annexing the northern portion of such district to district no. 5, Amity, and the southern portion of such district to district no. 1, Scio. This appeal is brought by Benjamin E. Milks who was trustee of school district no. 6, Amity, at the time the school commissioner made the order of dissolution. It appears that there had been considerable discussion previous to the issuance of these orders in relation to the annexation of the whole of district no. 6 to district no. 1. To this proposition the residents of district no. 6 appeared to have been unanimously opposed. It appears that every resident voter of the district petitioned the school commissioner in opposition to such annexation.

The commissioner did not make an order annexing the whole of such district to district no. 1, Scio. He dissolved the district and annexed one portion to the district north of no. 6 and the other portion to the district south of it. There is nothing in the pleadings to show the exact attitude of the residents of no. 6 upon the orders which the school commissioner did make. No meeting of the voters of the district appears to have been held. The trustee was not directed by vote of the district to bring this proceeding. He undoubtedly represents the views of a majority of the voters of the district upon such questions. While there is nothing in the pleadings showing a specific declaration of the voters of the district upon the orders made the pleadings do seem to indicate that a decisive majority of the inhabitants of the district is opposed to such orders.

During the school year ending July 31, 1907, the number of pupils attending school in district no. 6 was only eleven. Two of these moved from the district during the year. The average attendance last year was less than eight. It appears that the number of pupils in attendance at school from such district and the average attendance thereof will be still less this year. The district must therefore be regarded as numerically weak.

The school commissioner's rearrangement of the territory of this district has been such as to place all children within a reasonable walking distance of a schoolhouse. None of the children will be required to walk more than two miles to attend school. The distance for many of these children will be much less. The highways are good hard roads and on which there is much travel. It is not shown that the orders complained of will operate as a hardship upon any of the children of the district.

The prime object which the school commissioner had in mind when he made these orders was to establish a strong central school at Scio. The appeal of Melvin H. Pendleton from the dissolution of district no. 2, Scio, is closely related to this proceeding. The hamlet of Scio is located in the northwest corner of district no. 1. The schoolhouse of no. 1 is located in the hamlet of Scio. District no. 2, Scio, and district no. 6, Amity, join no. 1, Scio. These two districts also extend to within a short distance of the schoolhouse in district no. 1. District no. 1 has a new modern schoolhouse with proper equipment. It has the facilities to accommodate all the children of the territory annexed by the order in question. The school is properly graded, the teachers employed therein are superior to those that are generally employed in rural schools. None of the rooms will be overcrowded. The educational needs of the community will be greatly promoted by the establishment of this strong central school through the consolidation of the districts in question. Sufficient property and sufficient pupils will be joined to enable the district to maintain an academic department. The school commissioner was justified in making these orders to effect the results desired provided that thereby he did not impose an injustice or a hardship upon residents of the districts affected and even if a majority of the voters of such districts were opposed to such orders. The fact that two families will be somewhat farther removed from a schoolhouse though still within a reasonable distance of one, as such distances are usually determined in rural districts, should not be regarded sufficient ground to defeat the plan to give the community affected the school facilities which should follow from the action complained of. The inconvenience which any of the residents of these districts may suffer from the standpoint of distance to a schoolhouse will be overcome by the better school facilities which will be afforded. The school commissioner should be sustained herein.

The appeal herein is dismissed.

534I

In the matter of the appeal of John Van Dusen et al. from the decision rendered by D. F. Hiler, school commissioner of the first school commissioner district of Steuben county in relation to the alteration of the boundaries of school districts nos. 13 and 5, town of Bath, Steuben county.

When it appears that a portion of a school district should be annexed to an adjoining village district in order to afford the residents of such portion of the district proper school facilities, and such action may be taken and still leave the district with sufficient property and sufficient children to maintain a good school, and the trustees of the districts affected give their written consent to such alterations, the school commissioner should make an order accordingly.

Decided September 26, 1907

Thomas Shannon & Clarence Willis, attorneys for appellants

Draper, Commissioner

On September 17, 1906, 27 residents of school district no. 13, town of Bath, Steuben county, petitioned D. F. Hiler, school commissioner of the first school commissioner district of Steuben county, to so alter the boundaries of said district as to transfer therefrom the property owned by petitioners and situated therein to union free school district no. 5, town of Bath. Attached to such petition was the written consent of the trustee of school district no. 13 and the written consent of the board of education of union free school district no. 5. The school commissioner had the authority therefore to make the order at once and without giving a hearing upon the question.

It appears from the moving papers that the school commissioner did not render a decision on such petition until July 29, 1907. No explanation is given for a delay, by the school commissioner, of more than ten months in passing upon this important question.

School district no. 5 is a union free school district maintaining a graded school including an academic department and is within the incorporated village of Bath. The territory which petitioners desired transferred is also within the said village. Good sidewalks are maintained from that section of the village to the schoolhouse. It also appears that public conveyances go from this section of the village by the schoolhouse and return several times during the day. Children could therefore find a means of conveyance on stormy days. Although residents of district no. 13 the children from this portion of the village generally attend the school in district no. 5 and pay the regular rates of tuition. The owners of property must also pay their taxes for school purposes in district no. 13. District no. 13 is a rural district in a farming region. The schoolhouse is about two thirds of a mile outside of the corporation limits. There are no sidewalks and the roads are generally drifted in winter. It also appears that in going to the schoolhouse in district no. 5 the children may cross the railroad tracks at a guarded crossing, but that in going over the tracks on the way to and from school in district no. 13 they are required to use a crossing which is unguarded.

It appears that all the interests of the residents of this section of the district are associated with the interests of district no. 5.

Under all the circumstances it appears that the logical place for the territory in question is in school district no. 5. The property might be transferred and still leave district no. 13 with an assessed valuation of $95,000.

The school commissioner has declined to file an answer to this proceeding and it must therefore be determined on the moving papers. In view of the fact that the trustee of district no. 13 gave his written consent to the alteration proposed and the district still possesses sufficient property to maintain a good school, I do not understand why the school commissioner is unwilling to make the order. It appears clear that he erred in not making such order. Petitioners are entitled to relief prayed for.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That D. F. Hiler, school commissioner of the first school commissioner district of the county of Steuben shall without unnecessary delay, make an order altering the boundaries of school district no. 13, Bath, and the consequent alteration of school district no. 5, Bath, so as to effect the transfer of territory from said district no. 13 to said district no. 5 as requested in the petition filed with him on the 17th day of September 1906, and signed by John Scott and 26 other residents of said district no. 13, Bath.

4376

In the matter of the appeal of George Wolcott and others v. Ella Gale, school commissioner, second commissioner district of Tompkins county.

Where a school district has a board of three trustees and an application is made to such trustees for their consent in writing to the alteration of their district, such trustees must meet and act as a board upon such application, and the fact of such meeting being held and consent given, should be set forth in the written consent signed by them, presented to the school commissioner. It appearing that no such meeting of the trustees was held, but the consent of two of such trustees was obtained at different times, and is not the act of the board; held, that the school commissioner obtained no jurisdiction to act in altering the boundaries of the school districts and such order must be vacated.

Decided September 27, 1895

C. R. Walcott, attorney for appellants

Skinner, Superintendent

Some time between June 24 and July 17, 1895, Ella Gale, as school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Tompkins county, made an order, without being dated, but which by its terms was to take effect on July 17, 1895, and which order purported to have been made upon the consent in writing of the trustees of school district no. 9, town of Dryden, and no. 12, town of Caroline, county of Tompkins, altering the boundaries of said district no. 12 of Caroline, by setting off a certain farm belonging to one H. P. Banfield from said district, and annexing said farm to said district no. 9, thereby altering the boundaries of said district no. 9. That said order was filed in the office of the clerk of said town of Caroline on July 27, 1895.

On August 30, 1895, an appeal by George Wolcott and others from said order of Commissioner Gale was filed in this Department and on August 31, 1895, an answer by F. D. Snyder, trustee of said district no. 9, town of Dryden, to said appeal was filed.

The grounds stated in said appeal why said order of Commissioner Gale should be vacated are substantially as follows: That said order was not dated and by its terms was to take effect ten days prior to the time said order was filed with the clerk of the town of Caroline; that no valid consent to the said alteration of school district no. 12, town of Caroline, was given by the trustee of said district; that said order does not sufficiently set forth the boundaries of said school districts no. 12 of Caroline and no. 9 of Dryden as altered by said school commissioner.

The facts established by the papers filed herein are as follows: That on and prior to June 24, 1895, there was situate in the town of Caroline, Tompkins county, a school district known and designated as district no. 12 of said town, having three trustees, and that there was also situate in the town of Dryden in said county a school district known and designated as district no. 9, of said town having one trustee; that one H. P. Banfield was a resident of said town of Dryden and said school district no. 9 of said town; that said Banfield was also the owner of a farm of about eighty acres situate in lot no. 93, town of Dryden and in said school district no. 12, Caroline; that said farm does not adjoin the farm or premises on which said Banfield resides; that said farm of eighty acres was leased by said H. P. Banfield to his son who resides thereon; that said H. P. Banfield had no children of school age residing with him, and that his said son had but one child residing with him, which child is of the age of three years; that said H. P. Banfield applied to the trustees of said school district no. 12, Caroline, individually and not as a board, for their consent that the boundaries of said district be altered by the taking of said farm of eighty acres from said school district and annexing the same to said district no. 9 of Dryden, and obtained the signature of Messrs Denman and Graham, two of said trustees to the consent annexed to said order of Commissioner Gale and referred to in said order, and Wolcott the third trustee, verbally refused to sign such consent; that said consent was signed by Mr Snyder, the sole trustee of said district no. 9 of Dryden; that said consent was on or about June 24, 1895, presented to and left with said School Commissioner Gale, who subsequently made the order appealed from, transferring said farm from said school district no. 12, Caroline, and annexing said farm to said school district no. 9, Dryden; that said order is not dated but that it is stated therein that said order should take effect on July 17, 1895; that said order does not define and describe the boundaries of said district no. 12, of Caroline, as altered, nor of the boundaries of said district no. 9, Dryden, as altered, which district boundaries became altered in consequence of the alteration of the boundaries of district no. 12, of Caroline, by the transfer of said farm therefrom and the annexation of the farm to district no. 9, of Dryden; that the boundary lines of said farm of eighty acres are not sufficiently or definitely set forth in said order by well known established monuments or marks, but by lands owned by different persons.

Under the provisions of title 6, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, the school commissioners have power, with the written consent of the trustees of all the districts to be affected thereby, to alter any school district within their respective commissioner districts by an order, and fixing a day in said order when such alteration shall take effect.

This Department has uniformly held that where a school district has a board of three trustees and an application is made to such trustees for their consent in writing to the alteration of their district, such trustees must meet as a board and act as a board upon such application, and the fact of such meeting being held and the consent given should be set forth in the written consent signed by them, presented to the school commissioner.

It is clear that in the application made by said Banfield to the trustees of said district no. 12, town of Caroline, for their consent to said alteration of said district, no meeting of the said board of trustees was held to act upon such application, nor was any consent to such alteration given at any meeting of said board, nor does any notice of any such meeting and consent appear upon the consent presented to said school commissioner or in the proceedings taken relative to such alteration, but on the contrary it appears that the consent of said two trustees of said district no. 12, Caroline, was obtained at different times and was not the act of the said trustees as a board convened for that purpose.

I find and decide that upon the consent as thus obtained from the trustees of said district no. 12, town of Caroline, Commissioner Gale obtained no jurisdiction to act or make the order of July 1895, from which this appeal is taken.

In the disposition of this appeal it is not necessary for me to pass upon the other questions raised by the papers presented.

The appeal herein is sustained and the said order of Ella Gale, school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Tompkins county, is vacated and set aside.

In the matter of the appeal of F. H. Brennan, and others, v. Julia K. West, school commissioner, Richmond county.

Under the provisions of section 6, title 6 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, no school district shall be altered or divided which has any bonded indebtedness outstanding.

This Department has uniformly held that any change, however slight, in the existing boundaries of a school district makes it a change or alteration of such district. An order of a school commissioner, transferring a portion of the territory of the district not having any bonded indebtedness outstanding to a district having a bonded indebtedness outstanding, is an alteration of said district and prohibited by the school law.

Decided August 1, 1895

Jared Sanford, of counsel for appellants
W. H. H. Ely, attorney for respondents except Mrs West
Julia K. West, respondent in person

Skinner, Superintendent

On or about March 16, 1895, Mrs Julia K. West, school commissioner of Richmond county, made an order entitled, "In the matter of the alteration of school district no. 3, of the town of Southfield, Richmond county, and the consequent alteration of school district no. 6, of the town of Southfield, Richmond county," whereby she, upon the consent in writing, as alleged in said order, of the trustees of said school district, altered the boundaries of said districts as in said order set forth, and which said order was to take effect immediately; and which said order, with the papers accompanying the same, were duly filed in the office of the clerk of the town of Southfield, Richmond county. From said order of School Commissioner West, F. H. Brenman, Charles A. Smith and John Smith, qualified voters of school district no. 3, of Southfield; and John P. Purcell and William E. Hounslow, qualified voters in that portion of said district no. 3, of Southfield, set off by said order into school district no. 6, of Southfield; and D. J. Tyson, a taxpayer in both of said school districts, nos. 3 and 6, of Southfield, have appealed.

In support of the appeal herein a protest of thirty-six of the fifty-seven qualified voters residing in that portion of district no. 3, set off into district no. 6, against said order, is filed herein.

It appears from the proofs presented herein that in and by said order of Commissioner West, a strip of land, forming part of school district no. 3, of Southfield, was set off into school district no. 6, of Southfield, and that by said order the track and roadbed of the Staten Island Railroad is made the boundary line between said districts. The appellants allege several grounds upon which their appeal is taken: the principal ones being, that at the time of making the order by Commissioner West, school district no. 6, of Southfield, had a bonded indebtedness outstanding, and that school district no. 3, of Southfield had "virtually" a bonded indebtedness outstanding, and therefore, under the provisions of section 6, of title 6, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, neither of said school districts could be altered or divided so long as such bonded indebtedness was outstanding.

It is conceded by the appellants and respondents herein that on March 16, 1895, when the aforesaid order of Commissioner West was made, altering the boundaries of both of school districts nos. 3 and 6, of Southfield, said school district no. 6, of Southfield, had a bonded indebtedness outstanding of $4500.

In relation to the allegations contained in the appeal herein that school district no. 3, of Southfield, had, on March 15, 1895, "virtually" a bonded indebtedness outstanding of $6500, the proofs presented herein establish the following facts: That at a special meeting of said district no. 3, of Southfield, duly called and held on May 26, 1894, the following resolution was duly and legally adopted, namely: "That we build a new schoolhouse on the lot selected, and that we bond the district for $6500, to be paid by tax upon the taxable property of the district in ten equal annual instalments, the last instalment to become due and payable within ten years, for the purpose of building a schoolhouse and furnishing the same"; that at a special meeting of the voters of said district, duly called and held on June 30, 1894, the following preamble and resolution were duly and legally adopted, namely: "That whereas at a special meeting of this school district, held May 26, 1894, a resolution was passed, That we build a new schoolhouse on the lot selected and that we bond the district for $6500, to be paid by tax upon the taxable property of the district in ten equal instalments, the last instalment to become due and payable within ten years for the purpose of building a schoolhouse and furnishing the same; and whereas the said bonds have not been issued, and whereas the new law going into effect this day extends the time limit within which the bonds must be made due and payable to twenty years, it is resolved that the time limit of the bonds for $6500, voted by this district at the special school meeting, held May 26, 1894, be extended to twenty years, and that said bonds be paid by tax upon the taxable property of the district in twenty equal instalments, the last instalment to become due and payable within twenty years from the date of said meeting of May 26, 1894"; that on July 14, 1894, Commissioner West, pursuant to the provisions of section 17, article 2, title 7, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, in writing, approved of the levying by the trustees of said district of said sum of $6500, for the purpose of building a new schoolhouse for said district; that the trustees of said district advertised for proposals from persons who would loan said district said sum of $6500, and take or purchase said bonds at the lowest rate of interest and not below par; that on July 16, 1894, the firm of Edward C. Jones & Co., brokers, 80 Broadway, New York City, offered to give par for said bonds, the same to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent, subject to proof of legality of their issue; that on or about July 17, 1894, two of the residents and taxpayers of said school district commenced an action in the Supreme Court of the State against the then trustees of said district to enjoin and restrain the consummation of the issue and sale by the trustees of said district of said bonds, and the issue and sale of said bonds were postponed until the hearing and determination of said action; that at the request of the plaintiffs in said action the trial thereof was postponed from time to time until a term of said court, held in and for Richmond county, on the first Monday of May 1895, when the complaint in said action was dismissed with costs; that no bonds for said $6500 or any part thereof have ever been executed, issued or delivered by the trustees of said school district no. 3, nor any sum of money received by said trustees or said district thereon.

The words "bonded indebtedness outstanding" of school districts as contained in section 6, title 6, of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, means an indebtedness of a district covered by bonds duly made and delivered, for which the district has received the amount of money expressed in said bonds, and that such bonds are not paid.

In my opinion the trustees of said school district no. 3, of Southfield, have the legal authority, under and pursuant to the action had and taken by the qualified voters of said district at the special meetings of May 26 and June 30, 1894, to borrow the sum of $6500 for the building and furnishing of a schoolhouse for said district, and to issue bonds payable in twenty equal annual instalments, the last payment to be made on May 26, 1914, or to issue said bonds and sell the same at the best price they can obtain therefor, and to levy annually a tax for the bond and interest becoming due and to pay the annual interest upon the bonds outstanding; but in my opinion, upon the proofs presented herein, on March 15, 1894, said school district did not have any bonded indebtedness outstanding within the meaning of the provisions of the Consolidated School Law.

The questions presented in this appeal for my decision are, first, had School Commissioner West the legal power and authority, under the provisions of the Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, to make the order, dated March 16, 1895, from which order the appeal herein is taken; and, second, if said commissioner had such power and authority, has there been a proper exercise thereof.

Prior to June 30, 1894, there were no provisions of the school law forbidding the altering or dividing of school districts, having a bonded indebtedness outstanding, but this Department had uniformly held that any school district having a bonded indebtedness outstanding should neither be altered nor divided so long as such indebtedness remains outstanding. By section 6 of title 6 of said Consolidated School Law of 1894, chapter 556 of the Laws of 1894, that became operative on June 30, 1894, it was enacted, "but no school district shall be altered or divided, which has any bonded indebtedness outstanding."

It is clear that since June 30, 1894, neither School Commissioner West nor any school commissioner in this State, has had any legal power or authority whatever to alter or divide any school district which has any bonded indebtedness outstanding; but on the contrary, every school commissioner in the State is forbidden to make any alteration or division of any school district having any such indebtedness outstanding.

This Department has uniformly held that any change, however slight, in the existing boundaries of a school district, makes it a case of alteration.

Admitting for the purpose of argument solely, that school district no. 3, of Southfield, on March 16, 1895, had neither "virtually" nor actually, any bonded indebtedness outstanding, it is conceded that school district no. 6, of Southfield, had, at the date aforesaid, a bonded indebtedness of $4500 outstanding.

It is clear, by the order of Commissioner West of March 16, 1895 (if she had the legal authority to make said order), a portion of the territory forming part of said district no. 3, is taken from said district and added to said district no. 6, and the boundaries of district no. 6 are altered thereby as surely as the boundaries of district no. 3 were altered.

I find and decide, therefore, That School Commissioner West had no legal power or authority to make said order of March 16, 1895, but on the contrary, as such school commissioner, she was forbidden and prohibited from making said order; that the appeal herein from said order must be sustained, and said order held to be illegal and void.

The appeal herein is sustained.

It is ordered, That the order made by Julia K. West, school commissioner of Richmond county, bearing date March 16, 1895, which order by its terms was to take effect immediately; and which order was duly filed in the office of the clerk of the town of Southfield, Richmond county; and in and by which said order the boundaries of school district no. 3, of the town of Southfield, Richmond county, and school district no. 6, of the town of Southfield, Richmond county, were altered, and each of said districts was altered, as in said order set forth, be, and the said order is, hereby vacated and set aside, as wholly illegal and void; and that all and every act and proceeding had and taken by said School Commissioner West, relating to said school districts nos. 3 and 6, since March 16, 1895, upon the assumption that said order of alteration was legal and valid, be, and is, and are vacated and set aside as void.

4013

In the matter of the appeal of Robert Sagendorph and Charles Dingman v. Orville Drumm, school commissioner of the second commissioner district of the county of Columbia.

Appeal from the refusal of a school commissioner to divide a district recently bonded to pay for a new school building, and annex a part to a district in which there is a good school building. Overruled, commissioner's action sustained.

Decided October 13, 1891

Andrews & Longley and J. L. Crandall, attorneys for appellants
Hon. A. H. Farrar, attorney for the respondent

Draper, Superintendent

The appellants are residents of the southern portion of school district no. 1, of the towns of Stuyvesant and Stockport, in the county of Columbia. The school site in said district has recently been changed to a point farther north than that formerly occupied. A new schoolhouse has been erected upon the new site, and bonds have been issued to meet the expenses thereof. The appellants claim that this practically deprives them of school facilities in district no. 1, and they ask that the southern portion of the district be cut off and annexed to district no. 3, of the town of Stockport. The trustee of one of the districts affected has given his consent to such change, but not so in the case of the trustee of the other district. The school commissioner has declined to make the provisional order contemplated by the statutes, and from his refusal this appeal is taken.

I have given the papers careful examination, and have heard able counsel at length. I conclude that two or three families having children to send to school are farther removed from the schoolhouse in their district than before the change in site. Even before the change of site, they were farther from the schoolhouse than is desirable. I am not certain but that they ought to have some relief. It might be well to create a new school district out of parts of the two districts under consideration, but I do not feel justified in overruling the school commissioner upon the issue here presented. He is to be sustained unless it is clearly shown that his refusal to make the change requested operates very unjustly to parties aggrieved, or is manifestly opposed to the educational interests of the territory affected. The burden is upon the appellants to show this, and they do now show it to my satisfaction. The appellants would not be very much nearer a schoolhouse after the alteration they desire, than they are now. If the change were made, the shape of school district no. 3 would be irregular in the extreme. Again, it was held by Ruggles, Superintendent, in decision no. 3315, rendered December 10, 1883, that a district under bonds should not in equity be divided until the bonds were paid. I should not be willing to apply this rule in all cases. I think it may be said that, after a district has issued bonds for the erection of a schoolhouse, a portion of it should not be cut off and attached to a district in which there is a good schoolhouse, with the effect of permitting the residents of the detached portion to escape their share of taxation for the improved school facilities. It was undoubtedly this that Superintendent Ruggles meant; but that would not be the case where a new school district was erected involving the necessity of building a new schoolhouse. The present case, however, seems to come entirely within the rule laid down in the decision of Judge Ruggles referred to, and I am not able to see that there are any special circumstances sufficient to make it an exception to that rule.

Upon the whole, I conclude that the appeal must be dismissed, and it is so ordered.

4384

In the matter of the appeal of A. V. Van Liew, trustee, school district no. 13, town of Ulysses, Tompkins county, from action of local board, vacating order of Charles Van Marter, school commissioner, first commissioner district of Tompkins county, dated March 23, 1895, altering school districts no. 13 and no 15, town of Ulysses, Tompkins county.

It appearing by the proofs presented to the local board that no valid reason existed for the alteration of the school districts made by the preliminary order of the school commissioner; held, that the action of said board in vacating their order was proper.

Decided October 3, 1895

Skinner, Superintendent

A petition signed by the appellant in the above-entitled matter and R. R. Updike as sole trustee of school district no. 15, town of Ulysses, and dated December 11, 1894, was presented to Charles Van Marter, school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Tompkins county, asking that the boundaries of district no. 13, of Ulysses, be altered, by transferring a certain farm known as the Ralph Updike farm, then owned by one W. C. Van Liew and situate in school district no. 15, of Ulysses, from said district and annexing the same to school district no. 13 of Ulysses, and consequently altering the boundaries of district no. 15; that on February 1, 1895, no action having been taken by said school commissioner, said Updike as trustee of the district, withdrew his consent to said alterations of said districts; that on or about February 6, 1895, another petition, signed by the appellant herein, and twenty-four residents of said district no. 13, Ulysses, was presented to said commissioner requesting him to alter said district as aforesaid, that said school commissioner made an order dated March 23, 1895, altering the boundaries of said school districts nos. 13 and 15, by transferring said farm of W. C. Van Liew from district no. 13 and annexing it to district no. 15, which order by its terms was to take effect on August 1, 1895; that said commissioner gave notice, under the provisions of the school law, that on May 4, 1895, at the schoolhouse in district no. 15, he would hear objections to said order of March 23, 1895, and on said day said commissioner attended at said schoolhouse, and at the request in writing of said Updike, as trustee of school district no. 15, the supervisor and town clerk of the town of Ulysses, were associated with the school commissioner in the hearing of objections to said order; that said board, after hearing objections, voted to vacate said order of said commissioner; that on May 30, 1895, the appellant herein appealed from the action and decision of said local board.

An answer to said appeal by Robert R. Updike, trustee of said district no. 15, has been filed.

The appellant herein contends that said Updike, as trustee of school district no. 15, having consented in writing to the proposed alteration of the district of which he was trustee, he can not legally withdraw said consent. Such contention is not tenable. The consent of Updike was withdrawn before any action had been taken by the school commissioner under the petition of December 11, 1894, and before the petition of February 6, 1895, was presented to him.

The consent or refusal to consent to the alteration of said districts by the trustees of said districts did not give jurisdiction to the school commissioner. Under the school law school commissioners have power to alter school districts with or without the consent of the trustees of the districts to be affected. If the trustees consent the school commissioner may make an order, making such alterations, to take effect on a day named, which order will be final, unless appealed from; but when said trustees of said districts or of any one of said districts to be affected refuse consent the school commissioner may make a preliminary order making such alterations; which order shall not take effect until a day named therein, and not less than three months after the date of the order, and he must give notice of a time and place at which he will hear objections to said alterations. At the time and place of such hearing, upon the written request of the trustees of any of the districts affected the supervisor and town clerk of the town or towns in which said districts are situated, may be associated with the school commissioner, thus forming a local board, to hear objections to said alterations. Said board must either confirm or vacate said preliminary order. If such preliminary order is confirmed a confirmatory order must be drawn and signed by the members of said board, which confirmatory order makes the alterations and not the preliminary order which is inchoate. If the local board vacates the preliminary order the whole proceedings fall.

The papers herein do not show that any proofs were presented to said local board establishing any valid reason why such alterations should be made, nor that there is any valid reason why said farm should be transferred from district no. 15 to district no. 13.

It is not shown that there are any children of school age residing on said farm. It is shown that the owner of said farm does not reside thereon, but lives with his father, and that he has no children, and that he lets the farm. The distance from said farm to the schoolhouse in no. 15 is substantially the same as to the schoolhouse in district no. 13, or at most but twenty rods farther.

If the object of the alteration proposed is for the purpose of equalizing assessments, I would state that the altering of districts for that purpose only has not been sanctioned by this Department; that may be an element for consideration, but should not be the controlling one.

The appeal herein is dismissed, and the action of said local board, vacating said preliminary order of School Commissioner Van Marter, of March 23, 1895, is confirmed.

4353

In the matter of the appeal of William R. DuMond and Lincoln Butler from decision of local board vacating order of Frank L. Ostrander, school commissioner, first commissioner district of Delaware county, altering boundaries of school district no. 6, town of Colchester, Delaware county.

Where it is shown that an order of a school commissioner, altering the boundaries of school districts, is not for the best educational interests of the district affected thereby, the action of the local board in vacating said order will be confirmed.

Decided May 6, 1895

F. W. Hartman, attorney for appellant

Skinner, Superintendent

On or about November 3, 1894, Frank L. Ostrander, school commissioner of the first commissioner district of Delaware county, made a preliminary order, with the consent of the trustee of school district no. 20, town of Colchester, Delaware county, the trustee of school district no. 6, town of Colchester, Delaware county, dissenting, altering the boundaries of school districts nos. 6 and 20 by setting off from district no. 20 into district no. 6 five parcels of land and including in district no. 6 lots 361 and 362 and a "gore" lot west of lot 361, which said lots had never been embraced in any school district in said town of Colchester; that said order was to take effect on February 5, 1895; that said Commissioner Ostrander gave to the said assenting and dissenting trustees due notice under title 6 of the Consolidated School Law of 1894; that on November 20, 1894, at a time and place within said town of Colchester, specified in said notice, he would hear objections to the said alterations of the boundaries of said school districts; that the trustee of said district no. 6 requested that the supervisor and town clerk of the town of Colchester be associated with said commissioner; that on said November 20, 1894, at the time and place specified in said notice the said local board, consisting of said commissioner and the supervisor and town clerk of said town, duly organized and proceeded to hear objections to said alteration; that the trustee of district no. 6 appeared in person and by counsel, in opposition to said order of said commissioner, and the appellant, Du Mond, herein, appeared in support of said order; that after hearing the proofs and testimony presented and the arguments of counsel said local board adjourned to meet at the office of the town clerk of the town of Colchester at Downsville on December 18, 1894, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon; that said local board met pursuant to said adjournment and after due deliberation, voted to vacate said preliminary order of Commissioner Ostrander of November 3, 1894.

From said action and decision of the said local board the appeal in the above-entitled matter has been brought.

An answer, by the persons composing said local board, has been made to the appeal, and to said answer the appellants herein have filed a reply.

The papers and proof filed herein by the appellants and respondents contain statements relating to former appeals from orders made by school commissioners, and to an order made by Commissioner Ostrander since this appeal was taken that are not material to the question at issue raised by the appeal herein.

The question for my decision in this appeal is, whether or not, upon the facts established and admitted at the hearing had before the local board in December 1894, said board wisely exercised the power and authority it had to vacate the preliminary order made by Commissioner Ostrander on November 3, 1894.

It appears that the appellants herein reside on lot no. 361 in the town of Colchester, Delaware county, located in what is known as "Pelner Hollow"; that on the east side of Pelner Hollow, extending north from the county line between the counties of Sullivan and Delaware, there is a hilly or mountainous range of land covered with forest, across lots 369, 370, 359 into 347, and westerly across lots 348 and 339 into school district no. 20, town of Colchester, and thence south, beginning in the southerly portion of 340 and across lots 341 and 342 in said district no. 20 and lots 343, 344 and 345 in district no. 14, town of Colchester; that there is a public highway commencing northerly of the schoolhouse in district no. 20, which extends in southerly direction through said district no. 20 and across district no. 14, and near the schoolhouse in said district, down to said county line of Sullivan and Delaware counties; that commencing in the aforesaid highway on lot 340 in district no. 20 there is another public highway running east across said lot 340, through the opening of said range of hills on the west-erly side of said Pelner Hollow, and thence southeasterly across lots 339 and part of lot 348 in district no. 20, and thence south across lots 348, 360, 361 and 368 down to the public highway running northeasterly and southwesterly in Sullivan county, between the county line of Sullivan and Delaware counties and the Beaverkill river; that there is a public highway commencing at a point in the said public highway in Sullivan county north of the Beaverkill river easterly of the east line of lot 133 extended, running north to, and beyond, the schoolhouse in district no. 6, town of Colchester. It further appears that it is impracticable for the children of the appellants herein, or other children residing in said Pelner Hollow, to reach the schoolhouse in said district no. 6 on account of the hill range extending as aforesaid along the easterly side of said Pelner Hollow except by the public highway down said Pelner Hollow to the said highway northerly of the Beaverkill river, and thence on and up the said road to said schoolhouse, a distance of about five miles. It was conceded by the appellant, Du Mond, upon the hearing before said local board, that if the lots in Pelner Hollow were annexed to district no. 6 that a branch school must be maintained in Pelner Hollow for the accommodation of the persons of school age residing in that locality.

It also appears that about the year 1886 it was assumed that the land in Pelner Hollow was within the boundaries of said school district no. 6, and a branch school of said district was established therein, in a building erected by the inhabitants of said Hollow, which building and the land upon which it was located was conveyed to said district so long as the same was used by said district for school purposes, and when not so used, should revert to the grantor or grantors; that in the year 1892 one Shaver, then trustee of said district no. 6, refused to maintain said branch school, and an appeal from his decision was taken to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who dismissed the appeal upon the ground that the records of the formation of said district failed to establish that the appellant in said appeal was a resident of said district, or that the building in which said branch school was maintained was within said district.

It further appears that since 1892 said district no. 6 has not maintained a branch school in said Pelner Hollow, or in the building which, so as aforesaid with the land on which it is situate, was conveyed to said district; that said building is a small building, badly dilapidated, situate upon a small, rough and stony site, said site and building being worth about $25.

It further appears that the aggregate assessed valuation of the real and personal estate within said district no. 6 is $16,690; that the aggregate assessed valuation of the real and personal estate of Pelner Hollow, annexed by the preliminary order of Commissioner Ostrander to district no. 6, is about $2170.

It having been conceded that if the said preliminary order of Commissioner Ostrander was confirmed that said district no. 6 would be required to establish and maintain a branch school in Pelner Hollow for the persons of school age residing in that locality, I am of the opinion that the building in that locality in which the branch school was maintained between 1888 and 1892, assuming that district no. 6 has the legal right to use such building, is inadequate to properly accommodate the pupils in said locality, and that said district would be required to erect and furnish a new building for such branch school; and that the expense of erecting and furnishing such building and maintaining such branch school, would be burdensome upon said district.

Commissioner Ostrander in his answer to the appeal herein alleges: that in making said preliminary order he did not intend that it should be considered as his final conclusion that that was the proper disposition of the matter; that he was not then fully acquainted with all of the facts and circumstances relating thereto, but desired a full hearing; that after the hearing before the local board, and a consideration of the arguments and evidence presented he became satisfied that the preliminary order did not dispose of the matter in the best way, and that he believes the action of the local board in vacating said order was right.

Upon the facts established herein, I find and decide, that the decision of said local board, in vacating said preliminary order of Commissioner Ostrander of November 3, 1894, altering the boundaries of school districts nos. 6 and 20, town of Colchester, Delaware county, was a wise exercise of the power and authority vested in said board; that the decision of said local board is confirmed, and the appeal herein should be dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

3918

In the matter of the appeal of John Decker v. John J. Kenney, school commissioner of Richmond county.

The territory of a school district which has been established by a special act, a provision of which reads, "that the territory . . . shall constitute a separate school district . . . " can only be altered by legislation. Held, that an order of a school commissioner assuming to alter such a district, can not be upheld.

Decided October 30, 1890

Robert J. Scherer, Esq., attorney for appellant

-Draper, Superintendent

This is an appeal from the order of the school commissioner, made on the 26th day of May 1890, cutting off a portion of the territory of the Port Richmond union school district and annexing the same to school district no. 9, of the town of Northfield. Section 1 of chapter 363 of the Laws of 1875 reads as follows:

"§ 1 From and after the passage of this act, the territory now known as union free school district no. 6, in the town of Northfield, county of Richmond, shall constitute a separate school district to be known as the Port Richmond union free school district."

It seems clear to my mind that, in view of the fact that the Legislature has, by a special act, determined that the territory embraced within the Port Richmond union free school district, shall constitute a separate school district, the commissioner was powerless to change the same. It is unnecessary for me to consider the reasons which actuated the commissioner, or to make any investigation into the merits of the case. The district could be altered only by the Legislature.

The appeal is sustained, and the order of the school commissioner is set aside and declared to be void and of no effect.

3534

Harvey B. Van Dyne, trustee of school district no. 5 of the town of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess county, N. Y., v. Albert P. Smith, school commissioner of the second commissioner district of Dutchess county.

